HENEY'S ASSASSIN COMMITS SUICIDE.

SENSATION HEAPED UP.

MORRIS HAAS KILLS HIMSELF IN JAIL.

Would-Be Murderer of Heney Ends Life By Shooting While Under Guard.

Twice Searched by Police, Detectives and District Attorney's Official, Prisoner Manages to Conceal Weapon and Extra Cartridge With Which He Committed Suicide While Watchers Were Near.

MORRIS HAAS, who shot Francis J. Heney in Judge Lawlor's courtroom Friday afternoon, committed suicide last night in the County Jail.

The prisoner, though under constant guard, managed to shoot himself through the head with a 41-caliber Derringer which he had concealed in his shoe.

Haas was searched twice after the shooting, but both times his shoes were ignored, according to the police officials and Detective Burns, who assisted in one search.

The wife of the prisoner visited him yesterday afternoon and two officers were present throughout the interview. They declared it was impossible for her to have handed the weapon to the prisoner.

A mark in his ankle showed where the old-fashioned pistol had been secreted. Haas wore elastic-side shoes, which made the hiding of the revolver possible without betraying its presence.

A rigid police investigation will be made to ascertain how it was that the prisoner, charged with the enormous offense with which Haas was charged, could have a weapon in his possession with which to end his own life.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch] Morris Haas, the rejected juror who shot Francis J. Heney on Friday afternoon, committed suicide tonight at 8:40 o'clock in his cell at County Jail No. 2.

He fired a bullet into his forehead while he lay on his cot, wrapped up in his blanket apparently asleep. His weapon was a 41-caliber Derringer, an antique pattern, single shot firearm, which, it is said, he had been able to [illegible] [illegible] of the two sets of police officers and detectives who searched him after his arrest.

Haas had gone to bed at 8 o'clock and had been allowed by his guards, Detective Sergeant Thomas Burke and Patrolman Dennis Burke, to sleep with his shoes on. This peculiar request was made on the previous evening, and granted by the prison authorities. It was considered odd, but no particular notice was taken of it, and no suspicions were aroused, although the two searches of the prisoner had been defective in that the shoes were not taken off and examined. The police say that the shoes, old-fashioned gaiters, were the only place where a small revolver could be concealed.

OCCUPIED CELL NO. 23.

When Haas's body was found, it was lying on its side in the aisle of the narrow stone cell, No. 23. The corpse had evidently rolled off the cot when the bullet was fired. The tiny revolver, which did the work, was found covered by the blankets which had tumbled off the bed.

Not until an examination of the dead man's clothing was made did the police find the evidence which convinced them that the man had hidden the weapon in his shoes. Captain of Detectives Kelly found one trouser leg rolled up, and, looking closer, saw the indentation in the man's leg which showed to him how the pistol could have been tucked into the elastic side of the shoe and hidden there, safe from discovery.

Haas slept both nights with his cell door open and two guards patrolling the corridor.

Patrolman Bohle was the last man to talk with the prisoner. He says that Haas seemed fairly cheerful and did not exhibit the restlessness which characterized him on his first night in jail. Five minutes before the fatal shot was fired Bohle looked into the cell and saw the man apparently sleeping. Haas opened his eyes and glanced at the policeman, and then closed them again.

REPORT RINGS THROUH PRISON.

Bohle stepped out into the corridor again and the next thing that happened was the report of the pistol ringing through the big prison and telling everybody that a tragedy had come as a sequel to the Heney shooting.

The manner in which Haas obtained and kept the revolver which did the deed last night is something which will need a rigid police investigation. Detective Burns said tonight that he believed the weapon had been slipped into the man's cell this morning by somebody who eluded the vigilance of the prisoner's guards.

Haas was visited by his wife at 2 o'clock this afternoon, and every moment of that interview was watched, it is said, by Patrolmen Atridge and Kelly.

Two searches were made of Haas before he went to that cell. Immediately after the Heney shooting the would-be assassin was carefully searched by Capt. Duke and Detective Burns. These men say that the job was done thoroughly. This was at 5 o'clock.

SHOES IGNORED BOTH TIMES.

At 7 o'clock when the man was brought as a special prisoner to the County Jail, he was again searched—this time by Detective Sergeant Burke and Patrolman Kelly. On both occasions, it is now admitted, the shoes of the prisoner were ignored, although all the rest of the clothing and the entire body were covered.

Capt. Kelly was in the jail all yesterday afternoon and evening and had ample opportunity to observe the prisoner and get his state

GERMANY FURIOUS.

Kaiser Blamed For Its Woes.

Meddling in Foreign Affairs Series of "Miserable Mistakes."

Must Resign His Personal Rule, Says a Famous Publicist.

Storm Will Rage Over Land Until Absolutism Is Destroyed.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Maximillian Harden, Germany's most fearless, most brilliant publicist—without whose exposures of the character and excesses of Emperor William's round table advisers the present constitutional crisis would never have assumed so grave an aspect—has given to The Times correspondent a startling statement of the significance of the situation, and how alone Emperor William can find salvation.

Mr. Harden was a friend of and a believer in Bismarck; he is a thorough monarchist, and a defender of the traditions of the kingdom of Prussia. Therefore, his words have sensational import, especially in view of the indication furnished by the Frankfurter Zeitung (which is in close touch with the Emperor,) that the sovereign is disposed to repudiate the assurances which his Chancellor gave the Reichstag. Mr. Harden's statement follows:

"Never has German prestige been at so low an ebb; never have the Germans been so filled with political passion. A storm rages over the land which will continue to rage until the air is clear, until absolutism is killed.

"DIVINE RIGHT" DOOMED.

"The death knell of the present system has been sounded. The doom has been uttered of that majesty which clothes itself in clouds.

"Even conservative men give voice to their regret that the expressions of the Kaiser relating to foreign politics have brought the empire into the critical position. No foreigner can understand this, and it has cost Conservatives their heart's blood.

"The situation is terrible. Indignation is paramount. The Kaiser imagines that it is his forte to guide foreign affairs of the empire. When Caprivi became Chancellor the Kaiser told him to 'leave politics to me; they are my special domain.'

MISERABLE BLUNDERS.

"Just reflect on what he has done. Take Morocco and the whole train of miserable mistakes, false moves and misconceptions attributable to the Kaiser, which earn us the hatred and jealousy of England and France through his senseless support of the Sultan. By want of sympathy for the Young Turks we earned the mistrust of Turkey.

"Italy is thinking seriously of breaking away from the Triple Alliance. Russia hates us as never before. And now Japan is told that our navy has been built to watch her on the Pacific.

Drawing of Courtroom, Showing How Morris Haas Shot Heney.

This sketch was made on the spot immediately after the attempt to assassinate Heney had been made by the rejected juror, who last night added to the sensations that are thrilling San Francisco by committing suicide in his cell at the County Jail. The picture of Haas at the top was taken immediately after the shooting. Haas is middle figure in the picture.

MUCK-RAKERS "SKEERED."

NATIONAL PROSPERITY ASSOCIATION QUITS.

Business Men Who Boosted During Dull Times Find People Too Busy Now to Listen and Close Offices to Join Procession.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The National Prosperity Association has terminated its useful existence. E. C. Simmons, chairman of the organization's Executive Committee, has sent a letter to subscribers, reviewing the work and expressing gratification over the spirit manifested by St. Louis business men.

The "give us a rest and sunshine" campaign cost somewhat less than $8000. Subscriptions to the amount of $8800 were made and there is a balance of about $900 on hand. Mr. Simmons recommends that this amount, nearly $900, be given to the St. Louis Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association.

In announcing that the National Prosperity Association's work is done, Mr. Simmons takes a general rap at President Roosevelt, and he denounces professional muck-rakers with a vengeance. Prosperity is here, according to Mr. Simmons, because muck-rakers are afraid to show their heads.

No salaries were paid by the association. Everybody connected with the movement had sunshine in his heart. Mr. Simmons has directed the following letter to subscribers:

"The work of the National Prosperity Association is finished. The object for which it was organized, v.z.: to hasten the return of prosperity, has been accomplished. Results far better than we had expected, were obtained. Among the most important of these was a visit to President Roosevelt, which resulted in his not sending any more messages to Congress, or doing anything that had the appearance of an attack on railroads or other large corporations.

"Perhaps the greatest thing is the change in public sentiment towards railroads and large corporations, especially in the South and Southeast. Muck-rakers have ceased to show their heads; demagogues have quit talking, and a very healthy state of mind prevails toward these industries, whereas, previous to our work, there was a vicious antagonism clearly evident among the masses of the people, most of whom had formed their views by opinions without giving the subject proper thought."

WATCH COMPANY RESUMING.

FIVE-DAY SCHEDULE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ELGIN (Ill.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Officials of the Elgin National Watch Company today posted notice that the five-day schedule will be resumed in all departments, beginning next week. At a conference of company heads in Chicago several days ago, it was concluded that conditions warrant resumption of a five-day working week. The factory has been running four days since February, when financial stringency necessitated cutting down working hours. During the entire time, the force of 3300 employés have been retained on the payroll. Inasmuch as the watch plant is the largest Elgin industry, local merchants regard today's order as an indication of immediately approaching prosperity. Both Republicans and Democrats of Elgin freely admit this increase is a direct result of Republican victory in the national election.

GIRL DEAD IN BOAT HOUSE.

ATLANTIC CITY (N. J.) Nov. 14.—With the gas pouring from an unlighted gas jet, Ella Clark, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl, daughter of a well-to-do resident, was found dead in a boathouse today, and near by the unconscious forms of Arthur Penny, aged 18, and Walter Reynolds, also 18, sons of well-known citizens. Three glasses, and a bottle which had contained whisky, were found in the room where the trio was discovered. Detectives believe the girl was enticed into the boathouse and plied with liquor. It is believed the gas was accidentally turned on again, after one of the youths had extinguished the lights.

GRAND DUKE ALEXIS.

CZARS' UNCLE DIES IN PARIS.

He Was a Member of Hated "Ducal Ring."

Lived in Arrant Dread of Assassination.

Scandal Was Ever Busy with His Name.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Grand Duke Alexis, uncle of Emperor Nicholas of Russia, died here today.

The Grand Duke was regarded as one of the dominant figures in Russia's hated ducal ring. He was always in such fear of assassination that he seldom went out of sight or call of personal protectors and secret police.

He was 58 years old, being born January 2, 1850. He did not figure in love affairs like the other Grand Dukes and remained a bachelor.

Alexis drew $148,000 annually from Russia as head of the navy.

The Duke, who served twenty-four years as director of the navy of Russia, fled to Paris immediately after Grand Duke Sergius fell victim to the Nihilist bomb. By attempting to run away from the specter hand which was casting the shadow of death over the entire royal household and himself in particular, Alexis nearly fell within its grasp.

Despite every attempt at secrecy, his flight became known to his enemies, the Nihilists, who made two attempts to dynamite the train that was hurrying him to the border.

In both attempts the dynamiters were nearly successful.

Nihilists followed him from St. Petersburg to Paris and by their mystifying means communicated to him that he would never leave Paris alive.

Grand Duke Alexis was born in 1850. He resigned the supreme control of the marine in October, 1905, following a savage criticism of his administration of the navy, especially in the construction of ships. Charges of mismanagement and inefficiency against the Marine Department had been current for years and after the war with Japan they increased tenfold.

Grand Duke Alexis himself did not escape personal attacks and scandal was so busy with his name that he was several times the subject of public demonstrations, notably at the French theater in St. Petersburg, in the latter part of 1904. The Grand Duke visited the United States in 1872.

FOREIGN BRIEFS.

Consul Promoted.

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—Choso Koiko, consul-general of Japan at San Francisco, who accompanied to this country the excursion of Pacific Coast business men has been transferred to Mukden as consul-general. He will be succeeded in San Francisco by Matsuzo Nagai, third assistant secretary of the Japanese embassy at Washington.

Coming Home.

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—The delegation of Pacific Coast business men who have been [illegible] Japan for several weeks, sailed on the Japanese steamer Tenyo at 6 o'clock this evening, for San Francisco with the exception of a few who will first go to China before returning home.

Pope Wants Peace.

ROME, Nov. 14.—The Pope has instructed the Vatican representatives accredited to the powers that probably will take part in the expected congress to settle the Balkan situation, to use their influence in favor of peace.

EDUCATION.

PLAN TO KEEP SEXES APART.

GIRLS AND BOYS TO BE GIVEN SEPARATE SCHOOLS.

Head of Chicago Board of Education Will Lay Before Authorities His Scheme for Higher Technical Training for the Young Women of the Windy City.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Segregation of the sexes in Chicago High schools is to be put to an elaborate test in the near future, if the plans of E. G. Cooley, Superintendent of School, are carried out.

The Superintendent's newest plan, which will come before the Board of Education at its meeting Wednesday evening, is for a system of three technical high schools for girls, to be located in each of the three divisions of the city, and to correspond to the present technical high schools for boys.

In addition to advanced courses in sewing, cooking and general housekeeping, these schools will give instruction in the various trades which have been invaded by feminine labor. In this way, in addition to turning out skilled mechanics and shop workers, the public schools will have to their credit a body of "sweet girl graduates," who can make gloves, superintend a weaving-room, or enter a downtown office as an expert stenographer or accountant.

In a report he has prepared to submit to the board, Mr. Cooley says:

"There is undoubted need of schools for girls similar in general plan to the two technical high schools which the board already has provided, and of the third technical high school which is projected for the South Side. It is the opinion of the Superintendent that a technical high school for girls should be established first, on the West Side, and that in time similar technical high schools for girls should be established on the North and South sides of the city."

SLOPE BRIEFS.

Spiteful Arrest.

OAKLAND, Nov. 14.—Rebekah Butler, the gypsy arrested here two days ago, on a charge of having fleeced a farmer of North Yakima, Wash., out of $2000, was released today. The police, after telegraphing the authorities at North Yakima, learned that no warrant had been issued there for the woman, and that her arrest in this city was the result of spite work.

and we have earned the jealousy of that rising empire.

"This is the state of affairs, after twenty years of William the Second's reign. His utterances on foreign affairs have spoiled or embittered our relations everywhere.

RULE INTOLERABLE.

"Germany, become politically mature, demands the instantaneous cessation of this personal rule, which has grown intolerable.

"The Kaiser must show that he has other claims to respect and loyalty than mere legitimacy. He has forfeited much.

"The Germans are remembering what Napoleon said: 'In nature there are no kings.'

"No, a naked king is unthinkable. In China the Emperor rides in a golden coach. In England, King Edward is a modest business men. We Germans are treated to a mixture of the two, which is untenable.

"One thing is clear—we have won the battle, for a start has been made in a movement which will go on until absolutism and personal rule, with its accompanying Byzantinism, have been shattered.

"Germany finally will enter the list of constitutional countries. We are marching, and if you listen you can hear in the distance the thunderous tread of our millions of feet."

GERMANY ANXIOUSLY WAITS KAISER'S WORD.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—Emperor William is still at Donaueschingen, as the hunting guest of Prince Von Fuerstenburg. He is due at Kiel Monday noon to swear in a number of naval recruits.

Chancellor Von Buelow will leave Berlin tomorrow, and will be at Kiel to receive the Emperor. The audience between the Chancellor and His Majesty, upon which depends the future course of events, has been arranged for this afternoon. While the agreement of the Chancellor with the position of the Reichstag and the federated government is now clearly known, the Emperor's attitude is greatly in doubt as a result of diversified predictions.

The Glenzboten, a monthly political review published under the supervision of the Foreign Office, has taken up the defense of Chancellor Van Buelow, and in the current issue says:

"Calm consideration of German interests does not permit us to judge the oversight of a trusted statesman as we would similar action by a clerk whose error in such a case would be unpardonable. It would be the height of absurdity to expect the Chancellor personally to examine and control every man. The misfortune is that such a conversation ever occurred."

The Cologne Zeitung says that, "from the meeting of the Emperor and the Chancellor is to be learned how far the Emperor agrees with Von Buelow's viewpoint or whether any agreement has been reached. The Reichstag has not arrived at any formal conclusion in this matter and the solution of the crisis lies today with the Emperor, upon whom all eyes are turned."

Baron Von Jenisch, who is a kinsman of Prince Von Buelow, is in the Emperor's suite as representative of the Foreign Office. He is a man of calm and quiet judgment, to whom His Majesty is personally attached.

BLAST KILLS WORKMAN.

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 14.—Two Austrians, Antone Juras and Tobias Raurer, were blown to atoms yesterday while employed on the Western Pacific road, near camp No. 33, Plumas county. A premature discharge of a blast was the cause.

PITH OF NEWS FROM THE MIDDLE WEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The first real snow storm of the season struck Chicago this afternoon, the "beautiful" coming down steadily in big, feathery flakes. From the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard today the weather was crisp and keen, with here and there a snow squall. The temperature, too, averaged several degrees below normal for the middle of November. Today's maximum temperature was 35 and the minimum 26 deg. FIGHT RENEWED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The National Industrial Traffic League has begun anew its fight on the new uniform bill of lading. At a meeting held yesterday the executive committee of the League instructed the Bill of Lading Committee to collect all of the objections to the uniform bill of lading and present them to the executive committee at its January meeting. In addition to this, the executive committee is going to try to get the railroads to reconsider the clause of the bill which provides for a 10 per cent. advance in the rate when the carrier accepts shipments at carriers' risk, or when the shipper does not wish to abide by the restrictions of the bill of lading.

"COUNTERFEIT."

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—As a result of a great number of counterfeit $5 bills in Chicago, Chief Wilkie of the secret service, has renewed his efforts to secure an amendment to the Federal statute which would impose a fine of $50 on all national banks failing to stamp the word "counterfeit" on all spurious bills offered to them. According to Chief Wilkie, the failure of the banks to do this is the cause of much widespread circulation of bad money. The present statutes are mandatory in character, but fail to provide any punishment.

REBUILD CHURCHES.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) Nov. 14.—The committees of the home missions of the Methodist Episcopal church today appropriated $100,000 toward the rebuilding of the churches destroyed in the San Francisco earthquake. It was suggested that $100,000 more was badly needed, Bishop Hamilton of Boston led the debate in favor of the appropriation.

BOOK STORE BURNED.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.) Nov. 14.—Fire starting in the rear of Dodds Bros.' book store, Fifth and Main streets, caused a loss estimated at $100,000 this morning. The buildings destroyed were those occupied by the McClendon Drug Company, William Branch Grocery Company, J. Olsen, market; Dunham Shoe Company and Dodd Bros.' book store, all partially insured.

REPEAL AMENDMENT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—The repeal of the Fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, which granted suffrage to negroes, was urged as the best and only remedy for solving the problem of the negro race in an address delivered by D. A. Green, senior judge of the criminal court of Birmingham, Ala., at the banquet of the Atlas Club, in the Egyptian banquet hall of the Auditorium Hotel last night. "When the negro attempts to dominate the white," he said, "and exercises political privileges which may lead to preferment, the limit is reached beyond which we cannot go. Take from the negro the right of franchise and you remove the chief cause of friction between the races."

The Monarch Newspaper.

THIS issue of The Sunday Times is the biggest newspaper published in the world today.

The total volume of advertising in this issue is apporximately 490 columns, of which about 200 columns are classified advertisements.

The amount of advertising in this one day's Times is larger by far than that printed in a whole week by any local evening newspaper. It is greater by over 50 per cent. than that carried by both the other morning papers together, today.

The grand total is another witness to the fact that the long-heralded Taft prosperity wave arrived on schedule time. 490 columns of ads. in a single issue of the Sunday Times! This is the largest aggregate that The Times has had for a year and a half.

It is all significant of the bounding progress of Los Angeles.

FINAL.

OFFICIAL REPORT OF EMPEROR'S DEATH.

Tsi An, Dowager Empress Dying. Conflicting Rumors Laid to Rest. Edicts Naming Regent and Heir Apparent Are Popular With People.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PEKING, Nov. 14, (9 p.m.)—The Emperor died shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon.

This sets at rest the conflicting rumors of the last two days that have originated in Peking and been published around the world.

The Emperor of China is dead. This message is the first unqualified statement to come from the Chinese authorities, and it gives specifically the time of the passing of his majesty.

The regent is Prince Chun, the Emperor's brother, and if he is accepted by the government before the Dowager Empress dies, the likelihood of any revolutionary outbreak in China will be reduced materially.

LONG ILL.

The Emperor has been ill for a long time and during recent audiences with foreign representatives he was unable to sit upon the throne, or stand in an erect position.

It was evident for a long time that he would be unable to withstand a crisis which sooner or later must develop in the disease from which he was suffering.

Recent climatic extremes caused fatal complications.

DEATH CHAIR WAITING.

At the moment of the death of the Emperor the dowager Empress's own death chamber chair was waiting in the court yard. She, too, had been in a serious condition, and word that was brought to her earlier in the day that the Emperor was dyinfi, caused her to collapse. This has prevented her assuming the relationship of grandmother to the successor to the throne, which, according to the Chinese, would enormously augment her authority.

There is little indication of emotion among the people. The Emperor's death and the probable death of the Dowager Empress within a short time, have had very little effect upon the Chinese, who are pursuing the even tenor of their way without signs of mourning.

Kwang Hsu's later life was a pitiable spectacle to his attendants. His feebleness had rendered him a mere puppet, and he had suffered long from ill-health, which was combined with fear and despair. Latterly he showed marked signs of mental disturbances and even went so far, last August, as to declare himself mad.

REFORMERS SATISFIED.

The edict pormoting Prince Chun to the regency and his infant son, Pu Wei, to be heir presumptive, made a good public impression.

It satisfies the reformers and appeals to the sentiments held by the people for Kuang Hsu, because it respects the close blood ties in the matter of succession and introduces a new and more modern element into the government. It is an evidence of the victory of the reformers.

The government today notified the American Legation officially that Prince Chun had been made regent, and that he was to be the head of the state. This is recognition of the retirement of the Dowager Empress. One of the edicts issued in the name of the Emperor said:

"Since last autumn we have been ill. The physicians have not been successful in curing us. eW are weak and without spirit, racked by pain, without appetite, cold and feverish, and it has been impossible for us to sleep. We are anxious to permit the viceroys and the Governors to send other physicians to us quickly, and we will give extraordinary rewards to the physicians or officials who help us."

UNITED STATES AND JAPAN WATCH CHINA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Anticipating troublous times in the Far East when the Dowager Empress of China dies, the United States and Japan are now carrying on negotiations with a view to having a full understanding of each other's views in regard to affairs pertaining to that ancient realm. Exchanges of notes have been going on for two months or more. Secretary Root today admitted that the exchange of notes may have served as a basis for the reports coming from Tokio saying that he and Ambassador Takahira are engaged in drafting a treaty which shall govern the two nations in their treatment of China when the expected break-up following the death of Tsi An, comes.

America desires a clearer understanding of the views held by Japan with regard to China. The American attitude toward China has been clear since 1867. The most recent declaration on the subject, however, is contained in the note sent out by the late John Hay to the American representatives in the capitals of the powers and communicated by them to the government to whom they were accredited, on July 3, 1900. In that note Mr. Hay laid it down as American doctrine that the "territorial and administrative entity" of China should be preserved. That note served as a foundation upon which the negotiations following the Boxer insurrection of that year were carried on.

All the great powers, as well as Japan, not then recognized as a great power, accepted that note as controlling their course in respect to China. But Japan's acceptance was not written in plain terms. Now the United States would like to know more definitely.

Although the officials of the State Department will not admit it, the fact is this government took the initiative by asking Japan to define her views more clearly. In doing that the United tSates entered upon a course not unlike that followed by Japan prior to the war with Russia. Russia failed to respect her adherence to the note of July 3, 1900, in that she continued to occupy Manchuria after the date fixed by her for evacuating that province.

Japan considered her interests placed in such jeopardy that she felt constrained to ask Russia when compliance with the agreement might be expected. The United States is almost as deeply interested in the trade and commerce of Manchuria as Japan was. The serious illness of the Empress Dowager and the death of the Emperor of China made it timely for the United States to begin inquiries, which, if answered in good faith by Japan, will make the future course of the United States much plainer.

The presence of the Atlantic battleship fleet in far eastern waters at this time is regarded by officials of the State Department as particularly fortunate. If the death of the Emperor and the inability of the Empress Dowager precipitates a crisis, either internal or external, for China, the United States will have force enough in the waters of China to make her advice and counsel felt in the negotiations sure to follow any change in the peaceful condition now prevailing in the empire.

The death of the Emperor, in itself, is not accounted a fact of any significance. His aunt put him in a corner years ago and kept him a mere figurehead.

The negotiations, it is expected, will meet with approval in London for the reason that British merchants have complained about Japan's policy in Manchuria. The Japanese claim is that she is respecting the open-door arrangements made by Secretary Hay, but the fact is that the free trade in that province has been so managed that all except Japanese and Russian goods have been practically excluded. The American trade in cottons has fallen off from about $30,000,000 to about $3,000,000, and the time seems not far distant when even that small amount of Manchurian trade will pass into the hands of the Japanese.

Answering an interpellation in the House of Commons recently, the British Ministry was at pains to explain that the alliance between Great Britain and Japan would not cover a conflict between Japan and the United States. That explanation was drawn out by the unfavorable comment in Australia, made concerning the alliance when Admiral Sperry's fleet was calling at Australian ports.

BOY DIES.
MAN IS HELD.

NIGHT REPORT.]

Nov. 14.—Manuel Viera, messenger boy down on Grove street last night by an automobile driven by H. C. Bedwell, the well-known race-horse owner, died at the Receiving Hospital today of his injuries. Mr. Bedwell was formally placed under arrest on a charge of manslaughter, but was released on bail pending the result of the Coroner's inquest. The boy was riding a wheel at the time he was run down and there is a variance in the stories of the witnesses as to the responsibility of the driver of the automobile.

Lineman Dangles at End of a Cross-arm Fifty Feet in Air.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Kinney, whose home is in Sacramento, met with a spectacular mishap here this morning.

Kinney was a member of a crew stringing copper cables on the seventy-foot steel towers of the Great Western Power Company north of town. He was out on the end of the lowest yard, fifty feet above the ground, to make fast a cable that had been stretched.

One guy broke and the other slipped. The lower was pulled over by the cables, with Kinney clinging to the arm for his life. He sustained an injury to the jaw and a cut on the head and was badly bruised, but not fatally injured and will probably recover.

Miss Frink of Seattle Starting on Eastern Trip, Loses Suit Case and Goes Home.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Diamonds and other jewelry, amounting in value to nearly $1000, and a quantity of valuable wearing apparel, all contained in an expensive suit case, were either stolen from Miss Helena Frink, daughter of J. M. Frink, former candidate for Governor and president of the Washington Iron Works, or placed aboard the wrong train Wednesday. The loss spoiled a two months' eastern trip for Miss Frink, who stopped at Spokane and returned to Seattle yesterday.

is brought by Receiver Wildes of the bank, who filed the complaint in Carson City last Monday, and who was asked for an accounting of the bank funds alleged by him to have been lost by the State Bank and Trust Company through malfeasance of the directors of the bank. The complaint was sealed and not made public until after the papers had been served on Rickey last night.

Papers have been served on each of the defendants, except Mapes, who is now in the East. All will have to appear in the District Court in Carson on a date yet to be named, and give an accounting of the bank's business. In the event that judgment is secured by Wildes against Rickey and his associates, Wildes will immediately proceed to collect this amount from the directors individually to reimburse the depositors who suffered when the bank closed its doors October 23, 1907.

was informed that in Butte, Mont., it was had claimed to be a French princess and the heiress to a fortune, which, in the alleged language of the letter, "was sufficient to keep them both." After reading the dispatch, she said:

"Such a statement as that is a bare falsehood. I never, at any time, intimated that I had the slightest feeling for Manning except that of friendship. In one of my letters I told him that the house was lonely after he left, but that was all. Regarding the claim that I said I was a Princess, the nearest that I ever came to that was to bill myself when on the stage as 'Alexandra Marakoff, the Russian Princess.'"

Prof. Giorza, the husband of Mme. Marakoff, is a graduate of the Milan Conservatory of Music and in recognition of his work as a compositor was knighted by King Victor Emmanuel. He was formerly a resident of San Francisco, but lost his home and fortune in the earthquake and fire, after which he came to Seattle where he has since lived.

James A. Manning, in whose possession were found the letters which led to the discovery of the friendship of Mme. Marakoff for the accused man, is alleged to be a member of a gang of criminals who are charged with having passed forged checks, aggregating $8000, in the various cities of the Northwest. According to the authorities of Montana and Idaho, where several men alleged to be members of the gang are now in jail, these same men were implicated in the murder of sixteen graders on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, who were found dead on the line between Taft and Grand Forks, in Idaho. They are also charged with robbery.

CROWDS PACK FAIR GROUNDS.

Phoenix Pitches Tents to Hold People.

Many Conventions Meet and Adjourn Again.

Supreme Court Denies Storm a Rehearing.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 13.—Immense crowds have attended the Fourth Territorial Fair at the grounds near Phoenix this week. Special trains have been necessary to bring the people into the city, but local accommodations have not been overtaxed, and the visitors are good natured and seemingly satisfied with their treatment.

The exhibits at the fair grounds are very much better than ever before and large tents have been erected to hold the overflow from the buildings that were ample to house everything offered last year. This is the first year wherein industrial exhibits have been made a decided specialty, even automobiles being presented for the inspection of the miners and farmers who have thronged here for holiday.

The agricultural exhibits are far better than ever before, especially notable are the displays of cotton. The cotton from Yuma was shown in every form from the staple on the bush to the thread and to the completed cloth. At Buckeye, in the lower part of the Salt River Valley, about 200 acres of cotton now are being harvested.

Another product to which great attention is being given in the Southwest is the date. From Phoenix, Tempe and Yuma exhibits are made of about forty varieties, with many different modes of packing, a number of large bunches of unpicked dates also being shown.

The agricultural products displayed are from every part of the Territory. Notably fine are the apples sent from the Verde Valley of Yavapai county, and the Gila Valley of Graham county.

Though hundreds of horses are on the ground for racing and for exhibition, the races are not developing the speed shown in previous fairs. There are no real top-notchers among the horses on the ground, such as Dan Patch, who was a great drawing card last year. But the race card is full of $1000 contests, and the crowds have been well entertained.

At the top of the programme of attractions has been Knabenshue with his airship. He has made at least one ascension every day at the fair, beside sailing over the city on the first day at a thirty-mile gait. There has been no wind and conditions for flight have been ideal. On Wednesday he reached a height of about 2000 feet, which is the limit of his gas expansion.

TRACK FAST.

Wednesday afternoon the track was taken by the automobiles. The change in the programme crowded the horses off, but the cars proved a tremendous drawing card.

According to Harris Hanshue, who drove the Reo Bird on some exhibition trials, "the Phoenix track is the fastest track in the world, though very few know it. If it is devoted to motor racing in the future, all the big racing cars will have to come here." The best time made by Hanshue was 56s. flat, but he says he can do a mile on this track down to 52 or 53.

The best work of the afternoon for ordinary cars was done by the Franklin Greyhound, which went around the track without much trouble in just one minute.

INDIANS FREE.

Yesterday was one of the most interesting days at the fair, for Indians were admitted free. Thousands of the redskins were in attendance, for the annual Indian Day at the fair is held in esteem only subordinate to circus time. The leading item of the programme was a parade by about 700 uniformed pupils of the Phoenix Indian School, commanded by Capt. E. P. Grinstead, Superintendent C. W. Goodman holding the review.

This year no prize was offered for miners' drilling contests, the money going to firemen's contests, with teams entered from a number of the towns of the Territory. On Tuesday a "dry test" was held, which was won by the Yuma team in 29s. The Douglas team was second; then following, the teams from Tempe, Phoenix and Tucson. A hub and hub race was won by Phoenix, with Douglas second; and a foot race for 100 yards by Douglas. The Phoenix fire department had an exhibition drill Wednesday night, extinguishing a blaze in a frame structure that had been built in front of the grand stand, the exhibition being a part of a great fireworks show.

At the banquet Wednesday night, Gov. Kibbey spoke of the automobile as something which advances civilization and promotes good roads. He believes that Arizonans as a rule are inclined to be too modest.

An especially interested spectator of the bicycle races was L. D. Copeland of Los Angeles, an old-time resident of Phoenix, and the father of the motorbicycle. As far back as 1884, while engineer in a Phoenix flour mill, he built a small engine and attached it to one of the old-fashioned Star bicycles, which had a fifty-one-inch rear wheel and an eighteen-inch forward wheel. This machine he exhibited at the first Territorial fair in 1884, on the old grounds south of Phoenix. He later developed it in New Jersey, and took trips as long as sixty miles with a steam tricycle. In later years he has been building motor boats on the Pacific Coast.

REHEARING DENIED.

The Supreme Court has adjourned until January. The most important decision reached was that denying the motion for rehearing of the case of J. P. Storm, sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for the theft of $12,000 of Yavapai county money, while acting as Treasurer of Yavapai county. The crime was committed five years ago. The sentence was given two years ago, but legal delays have kept the defendant out of jail on $7000 bail. Decisions were also affirmed to the effect that collections of taxes could not be made against the Grand Cañon Railway Company, and the Western Arizona Railway Company of Mohave county.

This evening at Melczer Hall will be held the first of two sessions of the Arizona Cattle Growers' Association, an organization headed by D. B. Heard of Phoenix. The principal speaker this evening will be Gov. Kibbey, who will talk of matters that were considered in the last Legislature, and of laws that should be passed concerning stock interests.

HAAS HELD A RESERVE SHOT.

Police Find Extra Cartridge in His Pocket.

Was of the Same Caliber as His Derringer.

Associated Press Story of the Suicide.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Morris Haas, who yesterday attempted to assassinate Francis J. Heney, tonight committed suicide by shooting himself through the middle of his forehead with a pistol he had concealed about his person.

Haas went to bed at 8 o'clock at the County Jail, and covered up his face with a blanket.

At 8:40 p.m. a shot was heard from his cell and when the guards entered it was found that he had rolled out of bed and was lying dead on the floor with a bullet hole in his forehead.

A 41-caliber single-shot Derringer was grasped in his hand. His left trouser leg was pulled up and examination showed a mark on his leg where the weapon had rested while concealed in his left shoe.

Haas wore gaiters with elastic sides which made this possible.

After he had shot Heney yesterday Haas was searched by Police Captain Duke, Detective Burns and a policeman. After he had been taken to the County Jail, he was searched again, but at neither time were his shoes examined.

Haas went to bed last night with his shoes on and again tonight and when he was asked why he did this, said that he would rather sleep with them on. His wife called on him today, but two officers were present during the interview and they say she could not possibly have slipped the weapon to him.

ANOTHER CARTRIDGE.

Dist.-Atty. Langdon, Detective Burns and Rudolph Spreckels, on their arrival at the County Jail after the suicide of Haas, searched his clothing and in one of his trousers pockets found a cartridge of the same caliber as the Derringer with which he shot himself. The weapon that Haas used in his attempt to kill Heney was a 41-caliber, and the cartridge found in his pocket could have been used in that.

Detective Burns said that Haas was thoroughly searched when he was taken in the courtroom, and also when he was received at the County Jail and that the cartridge and Derringer could not have been on his person. He expressed the opinion that the pistol had been passed to Haas since he was taken into custody.

While at the County Jail, Haas was in charge of the police, and Policeman Boyle was standing within two feet of his cell door when he shot himself.

Haas's wife called at the jail today to see him, and two stories are told as to where the interview took place. One story has it that Haas talked to his wife through the cell door, and the other that they were allowed to go into another room. The conflicting stories could not be reconciled tonight. A rigid investigation will be made by the authorities.

Haas's body has been removed to the morgue.

MRS. HAAS FLEES.

It was learned late tonight, Mrs. Haas had left her home at 1848 McAllister street, and her whereabouts could not be ascertained. Neighbors said Mrs. Haas left the house shortly before 5 o'clock this evening. Soon after the mother left her children were seen to follow.

One of the children volunteered the information to a friend across the street that they would be in safe hands and that some one of the family would return tomorrow and let their friends know where they are.

A neighbor had the impression that Mrs. Haas had remarked during the day that she was going to friends in Berkeley, but nothing definite could be learned tonight.

ATTORNEYS GIVE SERVICES TO CITY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Dist.-Atty. W. H. Langdon, who arrived this morning from Fresno, announced that he would accept the service of Matt I. Sullivan, Hiram Johnson and J. J. Dwyer, three of the attorneys who have proffered their services as assistants to his office in the prosecution of the Ruef trial and other proceedings connected with the bribery graft prosecution. The three men chosen in this emergency stand high in the ranks of their profession.

CREAMERIES FOR SANITATION.

Operators Subscribe Fund to Secure Legislation Providing Compulsory Sanitation.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Operators of creameries of the State, in convention assembled, unanimously voted at the closing session today of the Creamery Operators Association to invoke legislation looking toward the compulsory sanitation of dairies and creameries, and subscribed $1000 toward a fund to defray the expenses of representation at the State capital to urge the enactment of more stringent sanitary laws.

The following officers were elected: W. H. Roissel, president; C. E. Gray, Eureka, vice-president; J. H. Sever, Oakland, secretary-treasurer.

The next convention will be held at Porterville.

BULLET FOUND IN LOWER JAW.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—The five surgeons attending Francis J. Heney, after their consultation tonight, stated that Mr. Heney was resting easy and that his pulse, temperature and respiration were practically normal.

The bullet was located in the muscles of the lower maxillary. The bone was not shattered, and the doctors say they will perform an operation to remove the piece of lead tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

ASSASSIN A SUICIDE.

of mind through repeated interviews He says that the man was plainly laboring under a heavy strain, which he showed in the almost feverish manner in which he talked about his family. Kelly says that Haas had a haunted look in his eyes, and a look of abject melancholy which told plainly how his predicament was preying on him.

"He told me a pretty full story of his life," said Kelly last night. "But he never dropped one hint that he contemplated suicide, or hoped to end his troubles in a way to cheat the law.

BROODED OVER HIS EXPOSURE.

"He spoke about his family constantly, and said that they had always lived happily together until he was proclaimed an ex-convict in open court. That, said he, made him despised by his former friends.

"His business began to be bad and he brooded over it. He was unable to sleep at nights, and he sat up often and smoked until morning.

"He told me that a woman friend of the family told him that he was growing crazy, and she threatened to swear out a warrant for his arrest on the grounds of insanity.

"Haas told me that when he decided to shoot Heney he did not tell anybody about it, and he declared to me that nobody knew about it at all. He added in his last interview with me that he hoped his victim would not die."

Haas spent his last hours on earth quietly. He ate roast beef, bread and tea, but his meal was a sparing one. To his guards he seemed moody, sometimes very gloomy, and, at other times, rather cheerful. One remark which he dropped to Sergt. Burke was very significant. He said:

"Before this thing ends there will be sensational developments."

In the light of events which followed, it is believed that the man was darkly hinting at his own suicide.

OFFICIALS RUSH TO JAIL.

Shortly after the arrival of the newspaper automobiles the machines of Detective William J. Burns, Rudolph Spreckels and Chief of Police Biggy arrived in rapid succession. The party headed by Burns and Spreckels immediately went into the corridor and gathered around cell No. 23, where Langdon, Spreckels, Burns, Deputy Coroner Kennedy and several detectives and bodyguards.

Deputy Kennedy inspected the clothing of Haas and examined his wound. The body had been left up to this time in the position in which it had fallen on the floor of the cell. The man was fully dressed, with the exception that his collar, tie and coat had been removed. The search of the garments revealed no papers and nothing of value except another cartridge to fit the Derringer. This was in the right-hand trousers pocket.

The wound was in the middle of the forehead, Haas evidently having placed the muzzle of the weapon squarely against the skull. The ball pierced the brain and death must have been instantaneous.

FIND NO POWDER MARKS.

Immediately upon finding the body as it lay in the cell before the arrival of Deputy Coroner Kennedy, Rudolph Spreckels and Detective Burns examined the point in the forehead where the ball entered to see if there were any powdr marks. Burns made a close inspection, with a poor light, and announced that he could see no such marks.

Spreckels remarked about it several times, attaching some significance to it that he failed to make clear afterward.

That Burns had not secured a further confession from Haas was evidenced by his remark that he had but one regret, meaning that the man had not given the information he had been after regarding any influence that might have been brought to bear upon Haas before the shooting of Heney.

LOCAL LAWYER'S AID ASKED.

The following telegram, which had been handed to Haas by his wife when she visited him in the afternoon, was found lying on the bed in the cell, after the body was discovered:

"LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.

"To Morris Haas, County Jail.

"Friend of yours asks me to come up and defend you. Shall I come? Wire immediately.

"J. F. SEYMOUR."

Detective William J. Burns is of the opinion that the weapon was passed to Haas in the jail. He said:

"The man was searched twice, once by myself, and I am certain that he had no Derringer concealed in the clothes when he entered his cell. There can be but one conclusion, and that is that he got the weapon from some one in this prison."

Dist.-Atty. Langdon was of the same opinion. He said:

"The man was searched thoroughly by experienced men on two occasions. The question now to be answered: Where did he get the Derringer with which his life was snuffed out?"

HAAS FLAT IS DESERTED.

Rudolph Spreckels stated that there was nothing clear as to where the weapon came from, and he did not wish to make a statement until he had all the facts in the case.

At 1 o'clock this morning the attendant at the Lane Hospital, where Mr. Heney now lies, issued a report that Mr. Heney was passing a restful night, and that no complications of any sort had made an appearance.

The Haas flat at No. 1848 McAllister street, was dark and untenanted tonight. According to neighbors living in the apartments above the flat, and others residing in the vicinity, Mrs. Haas left the house shortly before 5 o'clock this evening. A few minutes after the mother had departed the children were seen to follow her. One of the children volunteered the information to a friend living across the street that they would be in safe hands, and that some one of the family would return today, and let their friends know where they had gone. It was the impression of one of the neighbors that Mrs. Haas had remarked during the day that she intended going to friends in Berkeley, but nothing definite could be told as to her whereabouts last night.

RUEF TALKS OF TRAGEDY.

Abe Ruef, occupying cell No. 61, in the same wing of the jail, was deeply interested in the tragedy, and had a number of observations to make about it. He said:

"There is little doubt in my mind that Haas had contemplated suicide before the idea entered his mind to take with him into the other world the man who was the author of his fancied wrongs. After once having made up his mind to die, he schemed how to kill Heney and take his own life. The weapon he used to shoot the prosecutor was too large to conceal, and he figured that only a slight search would be made of him. It strikes me, although it is merely a guess, that he could have concealed it better somewhere else than in a shoe, especially of the gaiter variety, as anything in a gaiter works out, and can be seen plainly.

"It is probable that Haas, brooding over the exposure of his record in the penitentiary, and the fact, perhaps, that the little children of the neighborhood refused to associate with his own, long ago decided that life was too much of a burden and that the contemplation of suicide led to the planning of this double tragedy."

SLEEP COMES TO HENEY.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 15.—At 1 o'clock this morning word came from the hospital that Mr. Heney was asleep and was not expected to awaken until morning. His pulse and respiration are nearly normal.

ARMED GUARDS TO WATCH RUEF TRIAL.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—When the trial of Abraham Ruef, so tragically interrupted yesterday afternoon by the shooting of Francis J. Heney in the open court room by Morris Haas, is resumed on Monday, more than a score of plain clothes detectives will mingle with the crowd, armed men will guard the corridors and in front of Carpenter's Hall on Fulton street in the vicinity of the building strong patrols and a large force of police reserves will be held to promptly quell any disorder or threatened violence. Steps to this end were taken shortly before noon today by Judge Lawlor, who had called Chief of Police Wm. J. Biggy and Under Sheriff Peter Haggerty to his chambers to confer with them on the matter.

Aside from the favorable turn in the condition of Heney the most important developments of the day were plans made for the prosecution of Ruef's trial. Dist.-Atty. Langdon, who returned this morning from Fresno, was in conference with Hiram Johnson, Matt I. Sullivan and Jos. Dyer, and accepted their services to take up the prosecution of Ruef where Heney left off. Judge Lawlor was consulting with Chief Biggy and Under Sheriff Haggerty who in the absence of Sheriff Nolan, is in charge of the Sheriff's office, upon proper precautionary measures.

Taking judicial cognizance of the state of public feeling which has never been so intense, or run so high since the shooting of Judge Terry by David Nagle many years ago, and which may be fanned into a flame by advertised public meetings, Judge Lawlor determined to take the necessary steps for the resumption of Ruef's trial in proper legal manner, seeing to it that his rights are not violated in the slightest so that it might jeopardize the result of the trial and at the same time afford protection to all engaged in it. For the present at least Ruef will be kept in custody and brought from the County Jail at Ingleside and returned to it in a covered vehicle and under strong guard.

At the Central police station, Captain Duke, and at the Bush Street station, Captain Henry Gleeson, under instructions from Chief Biggy, will keep a large number of men in reserve for instant action. Every officer in the courtroom will have instructions what to do in the event of trouble. So complete were the plans gone over in detail at the conference in the Judge's chambers, that it was even decided on how to get Ruef out of the building quickly in the event that it became necessary.

Under instructions from the Judge, Under-Sheriff Haggerty will take similar precautions at the county jail where Ruef is confined.

Should there be any threatening demonstration around the Ingleside jail it was decided that Ruef should be quickly removed to some place, the location of which was not divulged.

While the public feeling is much wrought up over the shooting of Heney and there is a tendency on the part of some to inflame it still more, the conservative deprecate the public indignation meetings scheduled for tonight. Everything is quiet and orderly in the city, and there is not the slightest indication of trouble or disorder of any kind. Chief of Police Biggy stated to the Associated Press that he would take no steps to prevent the holding of indignation meetings as a precautionary measure.

"There is nothing to warrant me in taking such action," said he.

"The police will be able to meet any emergency that may arise, but I do not anticipate any trouble."

In view of the feeling in the city as a result of yesterday's tragedy, it is quite probable that Henry Ach and Thomas B. Dozier, Ruef's attorneys, may ask for a change of venue. Both attorneys were closeted in Ach's office almost the entire day. They denied that they had as yet considered taking any such action, stating, however, that they had spent several hours in closely reading the newspaper reports of the shooting, comments and editorials, and laid particular stress upon the inflammatory character of some of the articles. From this it was inferred that Ruef's counsel was laying the foundation for a change of venue.

Ruef spent the entire day in the County Jail. That he will remain in custody during the remainder of his trial, and will not be given his liberty, although under bonds aggregating $1,500,000, was intimated today by Judge Lawlor.

It developed that Judge Lawlor had a premonition that some untoward incident might mar the trial, that he was contemplating placing Ruef under special surveillance next Monday, or ordering him into the custody of the Sheriff, and that the actual purpose of the conference in his chambers with Mr. Heney and Ach and Dozier, just a few minutes before the shooting, was to inform Ruef's counsel of his intention.

As the trial proceeded, the judge informed counsel for both sides that he was becoming more and more anxious regarding the defendant and expressed the fear that something might occur. He said that he did not wish to be understood as casting any imputation upon Ruef or making the intimation that there was any danger of his fleeing from the jurisdiction, but he had made up his mind to use the discretion vested in him and decided to order Ruef into custody unless some other satisfactory arrangement could be made.

Judge Lawlor suggested that Ruef's sureties select some man satisfactory to the court, to be in constant attendance upon Ruef and be responsible for his appearance; but at the same time it was to be understood that this would not relieve his bondsmen of any liability. The judge submitted this to counsel for both sides, saying that he had no intention of inconveniencing the defendant during the trial, and preferred some such arrangement to ordering him into custody, believing it could be effected without the fact becoming public.

He especially desired that the jury should not know it, in order that Ruef's position might not in any way be prejudiced in the minds of the twelve men who will pass upon his guilt or innocence.

The judge asked that the attorneys look up the law on the question and submit their opinions to him Monday.

A few minutes later the tragedy was enacted in the courtroom.

William J. Burns, head of the corps of special detectives employed by the prosecution, and Dist.-Atty. Langdon spent considerable time with Haas in the County Jail today interrogating him closely. Very little was elicited that was not included in the statement made by Haas last night.

INDIGNANT.

MAYOR ADDRESSES BIG MASS MEETING.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—At a meeting of citizens tonight, presided over by Mayor E. R. Taylor, resolutions were passed declaring unwavering allegiance to the law, and a determination to support the District Attorney's office in securing the detection and conviction of criminals, high or low, and the full protection of the officers in the discharge of their duty.

The resolutions also declared that if the criminal law was found to be so framed as to permit the escape of civic malefactors, the law must be amended, and if the lax administration of the law was due to misinterpretation by judges, men should be placed upon the bench capable of construing the law.

The meeting tonight was the most significant that has been held since the days of the vigilantes, and demonstrated that public sentiment is fully aroused and determined to bring an end to the demoralizing conditions of the last two years.

Fully 5000 representative citizens gathered in Dreamland rink, while almost an equal number, gathered in the street in front of the building, and in an adjoining square.

POLICE NOT NEEDED.

Ample police protection was provided in case of any disorder. Thirty-two men were detailed at the meeting, sixteen in uniform, eleven in plain clothes and five mounted.

A force of twenty men was held in reserve at the O'Farrell-street station, and the entire day watch reported at the Central Station. There was no occasion, however, for the police to use force, as the crowd was easily kept in hand, and the orators, while speaking in plain terms, counseled adherence to law and order and deprecated violence.

The speakers were Rev. William Rader, who said that the shot fired at Francis J. Heney was heard around the world, and that the people of San Francisco were now on trial for the enforcement of law and order; William H. Langdon, District Attorney, who said that legal technicalities that would be brought up by the attorneys for the defendants prohibited his making a speech as a public official, but who assured the public that his office would make every effort to convict criminals, high or low.

Rudolph Spreckels eulogized Heney and said he had devoted his talent at the risk of his life to the prosecution of boodlers with the express understanding that he was not to receive one dollar for his services. James D. Phelan said that corporations and people who sold public franchises were more responsible for corruption than the officials who accepted bribes, and that the newspapers that had hounded the prosecution and either covertly or openly defended bribery should be boycotted.

Walter McArthur spoke for organized labor, and said the workingmen were heart and soul with the graft prosecution.

BELABORS RUEF.

Charles S. Wheeler, one of the leading attorneys of the city, said that Heney's only fault, for which he had been shot, was trying to send a confessed criminal of a thousand crimes to the penitentiary.

He said that for months the law in San Francisco had been assassinated by counsel for the defendants in the graft cases. While praising Judges Dunne and Lawlor for their efforts to try the graft cases fairly, Mr. Wheeler said that the best remedy for scoundrely lawyers who prostituted justice would be a sentence of five days in jail every time they tried to impede the progress of the court, and their disbarment on the recommendation of the reputable lawyers in San Francisco.

Mr. Wheeler spoke of the pressure brought in a social and business way to protect the grafters, and said that conditions in San Francisco had arrived at such a state that a sure passport into society was for a man to have his dress-coat plastered with indictments.

The telegrams from President Roosevelt received today by Mrs. Heney and Rudolph Spreckels, were read and received with cheers, as were the remarks of all the speakers.

The overflow meeting was addressed by Rudolph Spreckels, District Attorney Langdon, Chester Rowell, editor of the Fresno Republican, and others.

The following resolutions were adopted unanimously:

"Whereas, following unparalleled disaster from the elements our unfortunate city fell upon times of unprecedented civic corruption, necessitating the wreckage of government and the rebuilding of our civic structure on foundations of law and justice, and,

"Whereas, the first labor necessary was the prosecution of criminals, bribe-givers, bribe-takers and brokers in corruption, and

"Whereas, the prosecution, beset with many difficulties, obtained its evidence in the only way that such evidence could be obtained; and,

"Whereas, in the subsequent attempt to convict the guilty there was developed a vast conspiracy to thwart the ends of justice, which conspiracy has involved social boycott and unjust coercive business pressure; has openly employed thugs to terrorize the officers of the law; has employed lawyers to browbeat and insult witnesses, prosecutors and the judges on the bench, and to waste the time and money, and to exhaust the patience of the people by useless and technical delays, and which conspiracy has, moreover, involved so large a part of our public press that many of our people have been deprived of the truth and have been fed upon poisoned lies; and

"Whereas, up to the present time the law as administered, has proved inadequate to secure that prompt and certain application of justice which must be the basis of social order, and,

Whereas, out of this conspiracy grew plots to kidnap and actual kidnaping; plots to bribe juries, and actual jury bribing; plots to assassinate witnesses and an attempt to assassinate a witness by dynamite, and out of it also grew plots to assassinate the prosecutors, and the attempted assassination of the bravest friend that San Francisco has known, Francis J. Heney, therefore be it

"Resolved, that here and now we declare our unwavering allegiance to law, and that if the criminal law be found to be so framed as to permit the escape of civic malefactors we shall see to it that the law be amended; that if the lax administration of the criminal law be due to misinterpretation by judges, we shall see to it that men be placed upon the bench capable of construing the law; and be it further

"Resolved, that we call upon the Supervisors to provide adequate funds for the District Attorney's office to secure the detection, prosecution and conviction of criminals, high or low, and the full protection of officers in the discharge of their duties; and be it further

"Resolved, that we demand the truth from our public press, and shall see to it that our people are informed of the facts that they may judge of those who by lying and misrepresentation are perverting public opinion. Be it further

"Resolved, that we solemnly assert our utmost confidence in the law and abiding character of our people, that we here declare our gratitude for the inestimable service rendered us by the office of the District Attorney in the restoration of reputable and responsible government; and that we stand firm in our determination to indorse and to aid that office to the end that all persons accused of crime shall be fairly tried, and that their guilt or innocence be finally established in accordance with the provisions of law.

"To these ends we pledge ourselves, that our beloved city may be purged of boodlers and grafters, and be a better home for ourselves and our children.

"Be it further resolved, that we send word to our wounded champion that his labors for us are appreciated, and that his sufferings for our sake are not in vain."

Extra police precautions were taken to preserve order at the meeting, a large number of police being detailed for the purpose. A force was also held in reserve.

The meeting filled the large Dreamland rink, and overflowed into the street and adjoining park.

The telegrams received today from President Roosevelt to Mrs. Heney and Rudolph Spreckels, were read at the meeting and their sentiment was heartily indorsed.

THIRTY POLICEMEN ON GUARD FIRST NIGHT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Morris Haas spent a sleepless night after the shooting, in a cell at the County Jail, which was guarded against possible mob violence by a special detachment of thirty police officers, armed with rifles.

Three detectives stood watch at the bars of the cell, watching the prisoner closely throughout the night lest he attempt suicide. The watchers reported that Haas, after several times composing himself for sleep, gave up the attempt and spent the early morning hours in gloomy meditation.

In the same building, though in a different section of the jail, Abraham Ruef spent the night.

Ruef, in custody for the first time in several months, was incarcerated by order of Superior Judge Lawlor immediately after the shooting, the judge availing himself of a privilege conferred by statute in case of emergency, explained that he deemed it wisest to remove the defendant in the pending trial from possible violence.

NO VIOLENCE.

Although the period of excitement following the attempt upon Heney's life lasted far into the night, increasing momentarily as the news spread and the crowds gathered, and although intemperate speeches were made and rash counsel was given in some instances while tempers were at white heat, there was reported to the police not a single attempt at violence.

The official interrogation of Haas took place in the courtroom a few moments after the wounded Heney had been removed to a hospital.

The prisoner was seated on the edge of a table, and at times his wandering gaze fell upon the pools of blood on the floor where Heney fell.

There were present as interrogators, Chief of Police Biggy, Capt. Duke and Detective Burns, the latter doing most of the questioning. In his answers Haas seemed wandering and somewhat incoherent. Time and again his mind reverted to the exposure brought about by the prosecution, and while he several times expressed regret at what had occurred, other points in the inquisition he spoke of the shooting as a matter decided upon and to be accepted as a matter of course.

WHERE HE WENT.

Haas first described his movements yesterday. He told of a trip in the morning to the office of the City Auditor, where he cashed a warrant for jury service. Next he visited a friend, Sam Levy, and borrowed $20, of which he gave $10 to his wife upon his return home. Leaving his home again he had two glasses of beer in a Fillmore-street saloon and then visited a nickelodeon, where he remained to see several sets of moving pictures. Again he returned to his home, remaining there until half an hour before the shooting, when he walked to the courtroom.

Haas was questioned closely about his possession of the revolver with which the shooting was done and of a number of extra cartridges found in his pocket. He said he had owned the weapon since 1901, that it had been in his pocket since Thursday, and that he had carried it at various times during the past few years.

In discussing the motive for his attempt upon the life of Mr. Heney, Haas continually made reference to the disgrace of his exposure by the prosecution and his answers conveyed the idea that he had brooded over the public references to his past life to a considerable degree.

Some of the questions and replies were as follows:

"What was your reason for shooting Mr. Heney?"

"Just for humanity's sake," he replied.

"Why did you not shoot Ruef for humanity's sake?"

"Because Ruef did not denounce me that day. Oh, what I suffered since then—don't talk. I did not do it for my sake. I had to do it. I didn't take any revenge on Mr. Heney.

CONTINUALLY BROODING.

"I would talk to myself. I called myself a cur, a coward. I says, 'Why don't you meet Heney? What is your life worth? You are only exposed wherever you go.' "

"Don't forget, Mr. Burns, I got married seventeen years ago and raised a family of four children. Now, look at what those children have suffered already by my being in the papers. My boy was so proud when first my name appeared in the paper."

"Is it not true that you tried to qualify as a juror and get on the jury when you were not qualified?" was asked.

"I am an elector, that is higher than a juror; I voted yesterday; I voted a week ago Tuesday. I got a pardon from Gov. Waterman. It is a public record that I was in San Quentin. Why didn't Mr. Heney look up my record?

"I wish anybody would come and shoot me. Let them hang me. What do I care? I don't care absolutely a snap. I had only two jobs since I left San Quentin and I was knocked both times. At that time there wasn't more than a dozen people knew about it.

"I have been going to the nickelodeons to hide myself. It is dark there.

"Heney knew I was going to get him. He must have felt it in his bones. I would be ashamed to live amongst you men—do you think I would be denounced?"

COLOR CURE FOR INSANE.

Illinois Hospital Equipped With Eight Solariums for Patients.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PEORIA (Ill.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two new cottage buildings erected at the site of the Illinois Hospital for the Insane at Bartonville, equipped with eight solariums for the continuance of the work of phototherapy inaugurated by Superintendent George A. Zeller, will be dedicated Thanksgiving Day.

Phototherapy is studied in no institution in the cure of mental trouble excepting in Denmark. Two of the solariums are equipped in ruby, two in violet, two in amber and two in opal. The incandescent lamps are of these colors also, and the decorations of the wall. Dr. Zeller has found that despondent insane patients are enlivened when placed in the red room and the violent patients soothed when in the blue room. Opal is antiseptic and aids the consumptives.

Five years ago Dr. Zeller took up the experiments with phototherapy and the results were so satisfactory he prevailed upon Gov. Deneen to permit him to equip the two new cottages with the solariums for a continuation of the work. Each of the cottages will accommodate 150 patients and every phase of insanity can be treated.

INDIANA DEMOCRATS HAVE WIDE CHOICE.

John W. Kern and Benjamin F. Shively Lead List With Others Grooming for the Race—Bryan's Sympathies Supposed to Be With His Running Mate.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Indiana Democrats are putting out a large crop of senatorial aspirants and the contest for the seat of Mr. Hemenway promises to be one of the liveliest that has been witnessed in the State for a number of years.

Some of the men who have come into the race are known not only in Indiana, but in the country at large. John W. Kern, the defeated Vice-Presidential candidate, and Benjamin F. Shively, for several years a member of Congress from the South Bend district, belong to this class. Kern was twice the nominee of his party for Governor, served in the office of Reporter of the Supreme Court for four years, and for the same length of time was a State Senator from this county.

Benjamin F. Shively is recognized as a man of ability and made an enviable record in Congress. He was the Democratic candidate for Governor in 1896, but went down with his party to defeat.

There is much curiosity to know what attitude Mr. Bryan will assume as between these two candidates. Kern is so well liked by Bryan and did such good work as a speaker in the campaign that it is believed Bryan's sympathies are with him. John E. Lamb of Terre Haute, George V. Menzies of Mount Vernon, and L. E. Slack of Franklin, are active candidates also.

HEIR TO MILLION FOUND.

Rescued from Insane Asylum in Texas by a Friend Who Was Passing Through.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON, (Tex.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Paul W. Westermole, aged 35, missing heir to a million dollars worth of property consisting of 100,000 acres principally in Val Verde, Edwards and Sutton counties, Texas, a well stocked ranch and stocks and bonds, has been accidentally found in the Texas State insane asylum, and is being taken to a private sanatorium by an old friend of his father who was John Westermole of San Antonio, Tex. While visiting the asylum, he noted the inmate's resemblance to John Westermole and discovered his identity. The lunatic's widowed mother now resides in California and his sister had spent a fortune trying to find him. He left home twelve years ago after quarreling with his father. He was admitted to the asylum from San Saba county.

Too Long Courtship.

In the amiable way of villagers, they were discussing the matrimonial affairs of a couple who, though recently wed, had begun to find the yoke of Hymen a burden.

"'Tis all along 'o these hasty marriages," opined one caustic old gentleman, who had been much to the fore in the discussion. "They did not understand each other; they'd nobbut knowed each other for seven year."

"Well, that seems long enough," said the interested lady listener.

"Long eno!' Bah, ye're wrong! When a body's coortin' he canna be too careful. Why, my coortship lasted a matter o' nineteen year!"

"You certainly were careful," agreed the lady listener. "And did you find your plan successful when you married?"

"Ye jump to conclusions!" said the old man, impatiently. "I understood her then, so I didna marry her."—[Exchange.

LABOR.

UNIONS TRY BULLDOZING.

Order Business Man Out of Globe, Ariz.

He Decides to Extend His Visit There.

Organizations Attempting to Rule Camp.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Labor agitation again is rife in this camp of 3000 employed miners. Yesterday a union committee waited upon Charles Clauson and ordered him to leave the district forthwith. Mr. Clauson advised the committee that he had come from Los Angeles on business, and that he would remain until he had finished, though he had intended leaving at once for New York.

He was in charge of the Copper Queen mines at Bisbee during the great strike in April of last year. Agitating strikers were not reëmployed when the strike failed, and Clauson is blamed for handling the "black book." He is in Globe looking over mining property.

L. C. Shields, chairman of the committee which approached Clauson, said that his entry into the local field would mean a strike of every union man. Unionists claim to control 80 per cent. of labor around Bisbee, where they are making preparations for another attempt to unionize the camp. Any such attempt would be resisted to the last by the main mining companies.

Light Wedding Breakfast.

After making special arrangements with a restaurant proprietor to decorate a table with flowers and assign special waiters to it, a bridegroom who was married at Astoria, Or., recently, who had said that a wedding party of thirty-two person would order after they had seated themselves, appeared at the appointed time with the party and ordered coffee and cake for them, which they took one hour to consume.

After finishing their feast the happy husband gave the much chagrined proprietor $2.20 and left.—[San Francisco Call.

[AUTHORIZED ANNOUNCEMENT.]

YOUR NAME IS VALUABLE.

Any man or woman who is 21 years of age and a citizen of the United States has a right to locate and hold oil land under the Petroleum Placer Act. It is not necessary to go on the land. It can be located in your name by an agent. Over in Nevada there is an oil belt that will create a great excitement in the next twelve months, land that can be had now for the cost of location will be selling for $500 per acre. Am going to locate several thousand acres of this land. Would like to hear from people who will pay the cost of locating and agree to give me one-third of the profits. This oil land will solve the fuel problem in Nevada. Advertiser is a responsible business man and can give the highest references. Address Oil Man, box 167, Times Office.

The Wonderful Blood of Man

Dies and Is Born Again With Every Breath of the Lungs.

Human blood contains red and white corpuscles. The little red soldiers carry food, strength and vitality to all parts of the body and the little white warriors fight the battles of the body.

When through poor eating, wrong digestion, disease or whatever the cause may be, the blood becomes filled with poisons and impurities the little red and white soldiers cannot do their work properly and hence they become a menace rather than an aid to the rest of the body.

20,000,000 corpuscles die with every breath of the lungs. To rid their ranks of enemies they throw them into the cells of the skin or down deep in the tissues, and man has to suffer pimples, boils, blackheads and eruptions.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers are scientifically prepared under the highest of expert supervision and give to the blood through its regular nourishing channels—the stomach and digestive canal—a purifying food and invigorator.

Calcium Sulphide is one ingredient—the greatest blood purifier known to chemistry: Quassia, Golden Seal and Eucalyptus are other component parts, each having a particular office for the elimination of impurity and the upbuilding of the blood.

The remarkable feature about Stuart's Calcium Wafers is that they act so speedily and so efficiently that they tone up the whole system from the standpoint of perfect blood almost beyond conception.

Their peculiar charm lies in the method of manufacture which insures the fullest strength of the ingredients beyond all other manner of preparation. One does not purchase an untried blood cleanser in Stuart's Calcium Wafers, but a blood builder and purifier backed by thousands of men and women whose use of it is its greatest testimonial tribute. Ask your druggist. He sells them for 50c, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 175 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

FEDERAL BOAT LINE.

San Franciscan Says Coast Should Work for Steamship Connections With East via Panama.

Speaking at the City Club luncheon at the Westminster Hotel yesterday, Isidor Jacobs, president of the Good Government League of San Francisco, urged that the people of the Coast work for the establishment of a line of steamers from Seattle to Panama, touching at all Pacific ports, including San Pedro, and connecting through the Panama Railroad with ships on the Atlantic, now operated by the Federal government. Mr. Jacobs said that while the Pacific Mail Steamship Company is operating between San Francisco and Panama, competition with the transcontinental railroads is neutralized and that the service is of little benefit to the people.

"I believe," said Mr. Jacobs, "that the harbors of California should be municipally owned, because in San Francisco we have seen that State control results in the squandering of a large amount of money for State employés controlled by the machine.

"I believe that you should strive to have your harbor municipally owned and controlled, and that you should take prompt action to see that all steamship lines that ply up and down the coast should give you a direct, regular and complete service, which you are entitled to by the large amount of business originating in and coming to this section of the State."

TO HONOR CLEVELAND.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Residents of Illinois, with the object of perpetuating the memory of Grover Cleveland, have formed the Grover Cleveland Memorial Association, and articles to form such a corporation will be filed with the Secretary of State today at Springfield. The association purposes to erect a suitable memorial to be presented to some municipality in the near future. Among the board of directors are the Governor and his recent political opponent, Adlai E. Stevenson.

FLYING.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE.

Citation Steps Best Mile of All Pacing Mares.

Fastest Heat Seen West of Mississippi River.

Copa de Oro Owned by Durfee Outclassed.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—Records generally went to smash in the closing programme of the Arizona fair today, when Citation, owned and driven by Dick McMahon, paced three heats in 2:04 3-4, 2:05 1-2 and 2:02 1-2. The last heat established a new world's record for pacing mares, being the fastest third heat. It broke the Phoenix track record of 2:03 1-4 for a pacing race, and was the fastest heat ever paced in a race by any horse west of the Mississippi River.

The last half-mile was made in one minute, and the race was against Copa de Oro. W. G. Durfee of Los Angeles, owner and driver. Copa de Oro made a fine showing, but never had a chance of winning the money. The purse was $2000.

Another event was the 2:25 pace, purse $1000, and this was notable for the fine time made by horses of low mark. All of these were California participants, as follows:

Velox	2	2	1	1	1
High Fly	1	1	3	4	4
Boton de Oro	3	4	2	2	2
Explosion	4	3	4	3	3

Time, 2:04½, 2:10¼, 2:09¼, 2:10½, 2:13½.

The 2:19 trotting race, also closely contested, requiring five heats, as follows:

Dutch	2	2	1	1	1
R. Ambush	1	1	2	4	2
Goldenut	4	3	3	2	3
Boralmas Bros.	3	4	4	3	4

The fastest heat was the first of 2:14; and the slowest was the last, the time being 2:17½.

There were many pleasing minor features, and a good attendance.

Cincinnati Races.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 14.—Latonia results:

Five and one-half furlongs: Light Blue won, The Peer second, Enfield third; time, 1:09 4-5.

Mile and seventy yards: Apt won, Budge Treen second, Donna H. third; time, 1:50 4-5.

Mile and seventy yards: Orlando won, Canopian second, Banrida third; time, 1:50 1-5.

Six furlongs: Aimee C. won, Deuce second, Cloisteress third; time, 1:16 3-5.

Mile and seventy yards: George Bailey won, Mystifier second, Ladie Vie third; time, 1:49 4-5.

One and one-sixteenth miles: Estelle C. won, Gold Treasure second, Lady Baldur third; time, 1:52 3-5.

AUTO STRIKES RECTOR.

Prominent Episcopal Clergyman of Connecticut Is Probably Hurt Fatally in Accident.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 14.—Rev. Dr. G. Brinley Morgan, one of the most prominent Episcopal clergymen in Connecticut, and rector of Christ Church, was struck by an automobile this afternoon and probably fatally hurt.

BOTH CHAMPIONS.

POMONA AND U.S.C. IN GREAT TIE CONTEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Two scores at the end of the closest-played and hardest-fought game seen on Alumni Field this season, brought half a thousand rival undergraduates onto the field in a burst of enthusiasm, and left the conference football championship undecided, by a score of 6 to 6. Both collegiate bodies carried their men from the field on their shoulders, while the rooters paraded behind their respective bands, both well satisfied to have tied a game with such worthy rivals.

Both scores were sensational. U.S.C. carried the leather over first, after Stan Burek had been sent in at full to win the game if possible, in spite of his bad knee. His playing put new life into his team, and a series of splendid bucks carried the ball close to the Pomona goal. The blue and white line held. A long punt by Shutt sent the ball back into seemingly safe territory, but on a splendid forward pass, Burek to Hall, U.S.C. made nearly 35 yards, landing the leather on Pomona's 4-yard line. A center buck netted 3 yards, and Burek was shoved over on the next play. Paulin kicked a pretty goal, and the game seemed sure for U.S.C.

Pomona's score came within a few minutes of time, after the red and gold had been set back 20 yards to mid-field for holding. With the ball in U.S.C.'s possession, half the Pomona line broke through against a kick formation, and the low pass from Allen was grabbed by Weinland, Pomona's center, and carried down the field. Pandemonium broke loose when Gore kicked goal and tied the score.

The game was classy and up-to-date throughout, both teams proving themselves well versed in new formations, quick and heady in both offensive and defensive work.

At any time during the contest, a single failure to meet forward passes or onside kicks would have meant a score.

The U.S.C. special reached the Santa Fé station at 2 o'clock, and the red and gold rooters paraded at once to the field, headed by their band. A little later the blue and white enthusiasts followed their band to the field from Holmes' Hall, and entered with vigor into the singing and cheering contest on the bleachers. Both singing and cheering were the best heard on Alumni Field in recent years, the support given both teams at all stages of the game being fine. In singing, Pomona had somewhat the best of it, but in plain, old-fashioned rooting the U.S.C. followers, though outnumbered, nearly held their own.

Play began at ten minutes before three, and from the time the whistle blew to the end of the game there was no let-up in the excitement. Forward pass followed onside kick in quick succession, while brilliant tackle succeeded brilliant tackle. Both teams played exceptionally well at the end of the line, while hardly a fumble of difficult kicks marked the work of the backs.

Metz, for Pomona, played a star game at half, while the work of both Shutt and Brecker was little behind him.

Hall and Paulin put up fine stiff games for U.S.C., and Burek, while he was in, played the star game of the day. At center, Weinland had a little the better of Allen, putting up a fine exhibition. Fuller was not quite up to some of his star performances in previous games, but nevertheless was a tower of strength at left tackle. Both Ickes and Vaile, the rival quarters, ran their teams well, keeping the men together and showing good head work at all stages of the contest.

The score well represents the merits of the two teams, there being little choice between them. In straight center and tackle bucks, U.S.C. had a shade the better of it, while the Pomona team showed up a little ahead in running off passes and onside kicks. On the defense, there was an even break, both teams showing fine heady work and sure tackling.

Paulin kicked off to the Pomona goal line, Pomona running the leather back twenty-five yards. A mass on tackle failed to gain, and the next moment a fumble cost the blue and white fifteen yards, the ball being downed on the 10-yard line. Shutt kicked forty yards, Paulin running into the thirty mark. An end run lost three yards, and the next two plays netted five yards, the ball going to Pomona on her 35-yard line.

Pomona was in U.S.C. territory later, an on-side kick by U.S.C. gave her the ball on her 45-yard line, and a well-executed forward pass netted twenty yards. Another forward pass, and five yards around right end brought the spheroid to U.S.C.'s 25-yard line, where Southern California secured on an attempted fake from placement. Paulin punted to Shutt, who lost the ball on being tackled hard at mid-field.

The next threat came when Pomona intercepted a forward pass on U.S.C.'s 40-yard line, and gained twenty-five with an on-side kick. Another on-side kick gave the ball to Paulin, who was downed almost on his own goal. Paulin booted the leather forty yards. After U.S.C. had regained it on another on-side kick, punted again past mid-field.

The longest straight advance of the day came at the time when U.S.C. carried the ball from mid-field to the Pomona 5-yard line, where the home team finally held. Not long after Shutt had punted safely, U.S.C. secured the ball on the bounce, after one of Paulin's kicks, and tried for goal from the 25-yard line, the ball falling short.

Throughout the remainder of the half the teams played evenly, neither side being able to gain consistently, and having recourse to punts and onside kicks. The half ended with the ball in U.S.C.'s possession in mid-field.

The second half was a repetition of the first, until after a couple of good gains on passes, which brought the leather well into Pomona territory, Burek went in and sent the ball over from the 30-yard line, where Paulin had carried one of Shutt's punts. His arrival started things. On the first play, tackle round U.S.C. made nearly 15 yeards. The Pomona line was still too strong, however, and Paulin's forced try for goal was blocked.

The Pomona respite was short lived, for the lone successful forward pass, Burek to Hall at end, put the ball on Pomona's 4-yard line, and two bucks took it over. Blue and White stock was quoted very low when Paulin kicked the goal.

After the kick-off the ball was sent back and forth, neither side coming within scoring distance until just before the end of the game, when a forward pass helped land the ball on Pomona's 25-yard line, in U.S.C.'s possession. Holding cost 20 yards, and from near mid-field on U.S.C.'s kick formation Kepner broke through with the ball, jostling Paulin and allowing Weinland to grab the leather and start for the distant goal. Good interference helped the Pomona center, and U.S.C. tacklers chased him in vain.

A moment after the touchdown Gore added the necessary point and the blue and white stands went daft. Only a few minutes of play remained and the ball was in U.S.C.'s possession at midfield when time was called.

The line-up:

U.S.C.		Pomona.

CHICAGO HOLDS CORNELL.

Westerners Outweighed and Outplayed, but Prevent a Blank Score by Triple Pass.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Chicago fought an even battle with Cornell today, the score being 6 to 6 at the end of the greatest game played in the west this season.

That Chicago was fortunate to tie its opponent, was the opinion even of the most enthusiastic admirers of Stagg's athletes.

Outweighed and outplayed on straight football, in the first half, Chicago gave an exhibition of speed and involved play in the second that bewildered the Ithacans and sent the ball across the Cornell goal. A triple pass negotiated by Steffen, Page and Schommer five minutes before the close of play, tied the score and sent the Chicago enthusiasts into a frenzy.

A heavy snow fell coming in the second half and seemed to disconcert the Cornell Players.

Long Beach First.

The Long Beach football team covered itself with glory yesterday afternoon by defeating the Whittier team by a score of 4 to 0, the locals' score being made by a place kick by Fullback Peterson from the 35-yard line. It was a battle of two teams evenly matched. Long Beach was constantly on the aggressive and their lines were never in danger. The best work was done by Long and Middough. Frazier was new in the quarterback's position, but played it well.

Easy for Poly.

SANTA BARBARA, Nov. 14.—The Polytechnic High School team of Los Angeles defeated the Santa Barbara High School at Rugby football this afternoon, by the overwhelming score of 56 to 0. The visitors outclassed the locals in weight, were experienced and scored almost at will.

Wise Talks

By the "Office Boy"

It is with a good deal of pride and satisfaction that I announce the fact that I won the Banner in the Chamber of Commerce contest for the best ad. on "Home Products," and I want to take this opportunity to thank my friends for their trouble, kindness and thoughtfulness in sending the ads. in. I really never supposed I had so many loyal friends. Hat in hand, I can only say, as Bill would have, "I am overcame." I not going to try to rub it into the other fellow, who didn't happen to win, or anything of that sort. I'm for him, and during the week I'm going to devote my ads. to what I think will help him more than it will my boss. I'm not jealous, or selfish. We've all got to be successful in order to make Los Angeles the big, rich, powerful city she is destined to be. What I am preaching is sunshine in business. I want to eliminate the "grouch" and do away with "knocking" and "kicking," and have everybody look pleasant and "boost." It's just as easy for an Ad. Writer, or a salesman to say what he has to say in a pleasant way. Oranges are as cheap as lemons, so why hand out lemons? You may be just as successful as we are, but you don't have any fun out of life. You're afraid to laugh. Cheer up! Cultivate the giggle, giggle habit. If you don't think you're living in the best town of its size in the country, seek another location and make room for a Booster. In the meantime, the Silverwood Stores will continue to do business on the good-natured plan. Get the habit. It will tack ten years on your life. A good way for a man to get the habit is to get in the habit of trading with us.

THEATER CRAZE OF NEW YORK.

BY JULIAN JOHNSON.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—I do not believe there has ever been another city on earth so devoted to and consumed by the passion for the theater as is New York.

This love of the play, in any form, has gone beyond all normal bounds. It has become a craze. Men who think twice before spending a penny elsewhere, jostle and fight for a position to throw dollars at a box-office.

Though the theaters of New York stuff the insatiate amusement maw of 5,000,000 people, the appetite is none the less gluttonous, enlarged, abnormal. The talk-topic of the club is the theater. At the office and shop between whiles the men talk of the theater. The girl at the ribbon counter hands you half a yard of gaudy new musical comedy slang with your change. The waiters in the innumerable little beaneries, with which Broadway is dotted, put a professional polish to their "ham-and" call as they slip it over the counters. The dramatic editors of the New York dailies have assistants two or more each, and in one or two instances at least their own little reportorial staffs.

A few years ago New York men in their stage talk veered to actresses. Now they talk men and plays—and they talk intelligently. Knowledge of the theater is as universal in this city as knowledge of opera in Milan. No boy on the street but what knows in a general way the whole history of every ruling favorite on the Great White Way.

This morning in Times Square I asked a fellow who was idling there the location of the great Pennsylvania terminal.

"Well, I dunno exactly," he said. "It's somewheres off that way, though ——" indicating Seventh avenue south, which is correct.

"By the way," I remarked as I started on, "you don't happen to know where the Frohman offices"——

"Yessir! Empire Theater building, Fortieth and Broadway."

I proceeded, very much enlightened.

This terrific theatrical prosperity has brought all sorts of evils and numerous near-evils in its wake.

Ticket-speculating in New York is not the venture of a few ne'er-do-wells out of better employment, but a legitimate business, carried on thoroughly and systematically from year's end to year's end.

The ticket-speculator is a recognized person. He displays an official license, which grants him as thorough a right to vend as that possessed by any other seller of small commodities or luxuries.

He is accepted everywhere as a necessary and convenient evil.

His patrons vary from the lowest to the highest. Even the mighty have unlimited faith in his resources. Thus, last night I saw Otto Kahn, who sits in the "Diamond Horseshoe" at the Metropolitan, and is a director of that institution, rambling up and down from speculator to speculator in front of the Manhattan Operahouse, endeavoring—and vainly—to purchase a box. The astute Mr. Hammerstein, spying him, offered his own box, but Kahn smilingly refused, and during "Tosca" stood up with the rest of the pikers at the back of the house.

Over at the Hippodrome every ticket sold bears a formidable warning that it is not resalable, and will be refused at the door if purchased elsewhere than at the box-office. And the ticket speculators have a pretty little industry, not at the next street, nor around the corner, but in front of the very gates. And I haven't seen any of their tickets dishonored, though I am not vouching for any insurance accompanying the speculators' tickets.

Down near Madison Square Tyson's is located. Here we have not ticket speculation, but ticket brokerage, established in a ground-floor office and conducted as regularly and I've no doubt as profitably as many an office that handles stocks and bonds.

Here is the one place in the United States where grand opera might be conducted profitably had the grand opera managers financially inclined natures.

At the Metropolitan the demand for high-priced seats is out of all proportion to the supply of seats in sight. Practically everything in the theater has been purchased for certain performances each week during the entire season. And there will be many special performances when all the seats will be gobbled up far in advance of even the ordinary figures. Yet the institution will this year present the greatest operatic orchestra in the world, 130 men; two complete choruses, one singing French and Italian, and the other singing German, and an overwhelming aggregation of fifty-nine principals. The Metropolitan simply will not allow its organization to make any money—and this procedure likewise deters Oscar Hammerstein from making anything to mention, though he, too, has considerable pride in a reputation well and hardly won. Hammerstein has not only made his New York institution a solid affair, but he has built an immense operahouse in Philadelphia, to be opened in a few days, and has recruited there an advance subscription of more than a quarter of a million dollars.

Three miles of stars and big productions is bewildering enough in itself, but when the three miles becomes a way of almost unvarying prosperity it is fairly stupefying.

Start down even below the Academy of Music, if you will, and continue out as far as Fiftieth street, and Broadway is nothing but an avenue of amusement. Counting the ramifications on side streets—and the New Amsterdam, the pride of the syndicate, is on a side street—there are really more than three miles of theatrical way.

For blocks and blocks above and below Herald Square world famous theaters are set so close that they seem to grudge even the parsimonious room taken up by the thin little shops between.

There are the notable old places that every man who has traveled knows, and newer places—and not many of the newer ones have half the dignity nor structural command of the landmarks. The new theater of New York is almost invariably small, and sneaks and insinuates its way into the landscape with a compulsion that is insidious. Beautiful new theaters there are—the New Amsterdam and Mr. Belasco's late classic Stuyvesant being in evidence—but of the general variety, the cosy little house of unpretentious externals, and the faculties of a mint, there are legion. Joe Weber's theater, where "Paid in Full" is in golden reign, is a good example.

REPUBLICANS CELEBRATE.

Ten Thousand Spectators Watch 2200 Missourians Quaff Lager and Hear Speeches.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ten thousand spectators attended a banquet in the Coliseum here tonight in celebration of Republican victory in Missouri at the national and State election and saw 2200 party leaders dine sumptuously and quaff foaming lager, an unlimited quantity of beer having been furnished for the occasion.

A message from President Roosevelt was enthusiastically received, in which he said he congratulated Missouri's triumphant Republicans and said he was sorry he could not be with them.

Gov.-elect Hadley, Senator Warner and other speakers said they would keep their campaign pledges, including the plank for home rule in great cities.

PRINCIPAL ATTRACTIONS.

[illegible] are the principal attrac[illegible] is a question often asked by [illegible] in the lobby. The best an[illegible] is to dig in and find out, for [illegible] is of the greatest interest [illegible] may be only of sec[illegible] to someone else.

[illegible] in California Theater [illegible] band—a dandy, [illegible] moving pictures—all free [illegible] of the exposition—was a [illegible] pump of human in[illegible] and the house was packed at [illegible] of the six performances [illegible]. As the little thea[illegible] at a time this made 3000 [illegible] witnessed the programme. [illegible] it was estimated by those [illegible] that 25,000 people visited [illegible] last evening, and they [illegible] up to the last minute. [illegible] interest in the affair was [illegible] feature of the evening. [illegible] such a wide-spread [illegible] interest taken in an [illegible], but in this case Man[illegible] and those who [illegible] have followed the [illegible] custom of doing [illegible] which will command [illegible] circumstances.

[illegible] 40,000 square feet [illegible] taken up before the [illegible] evening, and things [illegible] smoothly as though [illegible] had been in progress [illegible] a tribute to the men [illegible] of Los Angeles and [illegible] had the direction of [illegible] building at No. 318 [illegible]

[illegible] PROGRAMME.

[illegible] with the exposition, [illegible] by the Merchants' [illegible] Association, the [illegible] Home Products" [illegible] Prosperity Week, which [illegible] under the auspices [illegible] of Commerce, should [illegible] Los Angeles pros[illegible] a wonderful suc[illegible]

Everyone stops to ad[illegible]

[illegible] side of the lobby is a [illegible], showing the har[illegible] of "Los Angeles, the [illegible]." The piers of Redondo [illegible] of Port Los Angeles, as [illegible] pretentious harbors [illegible] Pedro, Long Beach and [illegible] combination, gives one a [illegible] of the possibilities of Los [illegible] the surrounding country [illegible] point of view and [illegible] all kinds of manufac[illegible]

[illegible] the left, near the top of [illegible] the exposition entrance [illegible] and exit from the thea[illegible] exposition. It costs 10 cents [illegible] to the exposition, but [illegible] admission to the theater; [illegible] costs for admission to [illegible] from the street, but this [illegible] admission to the exposition. [illegible] long lines at each entrance [illegible] turn to get in, for only [illegible] people are admitted at one [illegible] the seats.

[illegible] ahead from the lobby, [illegible] is in a bewildering dis[illegible] flags, bunting and decorations [illegible] products. Right ahead is one [illegible] interesting exhibits of the [illegible]. It is a complete little bun[illegible] furnished down to the last [illegible]. And everything about and [illegible] was made right in [illegible]. It is safe to say that [illegible] ever built in Los Ange[illegible] the number of guests in [illegible] little drawing-room that [illegible] exposition did last even[illegible] the broad veranda stood [illegible], who had a glad [illegible] for hundreds who [illegible] him, while a home-like [illegible] pretty girls and well-dressed [illegible] and chatted in the [illegible] made (the chairs) in [illegible]

[illegible] in the exposition was [illegible] crowded during the en[illegible] and there was only one [illegible] the whole affair, and that [illegible] truss, made in Southern [illegible] handed the visitor for [illegible]. It is undoubtedly a good [illegible] sort of gives a shock to [illegible] her sweetheart—to [illegible] one of these trusses [illegible] in sandwich fashion [illegible] crowd; it jars one's es[illegible] of the necessities. [illegible] many bright spots [illegible] walls! The candy [illegible] of ever sweetening in[illegible] brands and other brands [illegible] in active evidence. [illegible] school, the country store [illegible] counter, run by the [illegible], were abso[illegible] by the crowds, every [illegible] just as enthu[illegible] women, wanted to [illegible]

[illegible] dyspeptics among [illegible] visitors last night [illegible] their wants felt un[illegible] the country store [illegible] all kinds of gro[illegible] objects, all of [illegible] cents apiece—it's a one-price counter with a vengeance.

Right near the entrance is a bright grate fire blazing away as home-like as you please. And the coal is made in Southern California, too, cheap at $8.50 a ton. Toby Newman bought the first ton; the tons went like hot cakes at the price. The funny part of it is that the Alberhill Company of Riverside county was digging for clay when they struck coal. Now they dig out the fire-clay on one side and the lignite coal on the other. Where else except in Southern California is there such a mine?

Just back of the model bungalow is the display of F. W. Braun, of interest to assayers and others. Here is a new trade chart that is a wonder. On a great map of the world in circular form in shown the city of Los Angeles like a golden star from which radiates lilac ribbons to all countries of the globe, showing where the trade of the firm extends, and around the rim of the world is the motto: "We Supply the World with Metallurgical Appliances."

Over on "Hill" street Supervisor-elect R. W. Pridham was absent, but his prettily decorated booth, with all kinds of fancy and cardboard boxes and printing exhibit, was a center of interest. Near by was a native jewelry manufactory, where dainty bits of abalone were carved into shapes to fascinate. In fact all along the line there is something to interest every minute, until at the end of the row is the Made in Southern California ice-cream parlor. It's popular, very.

ONLY CHILLY STREAK.

Maybe it's a sort of auto-suggestion stunt, but it feels chilly right alongside of the ice-cream parlor where there is an ice plant. Will P. Stevens is the refrigerating engineer, who is the manufacturer of the refrigerating and ice-making machinery. Not far away is the exhibit of the Woodill & Hulse Electric Company, "Illuminating Engineers."

At the corner of Seventh and Main streets (in miniature) is the cooking school. It's easy to see that it is a made in Southern California bargain counter and one of the sights of the place is the eager way in which the masculine fringe on the outside reaches for a cup of coffee three rows in. The supposition is that they get there once in awhile. The miniature biscuits are said to be fine by those who have braved the real experts. Anyway, what right has a masculine atom to be found in a bargain counter rush. Mrs. J. C. Hazard of the State Normal School is in charge.

The Country Store is down on Main street and is a source of so much fun as well as profit that it is the liveliest country store that ever was. The customer lays down 10 cents on the counter and draws an envelope, just as you would a card from a conjuror's trick pack, and then you tear it open and hand the attendant the number inside. Each section of shelves is adorned with a number and the shelf of a particular section filled with something made in Southern California, something good. Whatever your number calls for you get from one of these shelves. It was a sight to see how many people lugged around parcels of groceries, canned goods and things and actually looked happy.

EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.

Close by the Country Store, handy to prospectors, are the demonstrations of a pocket smelter, manufactured by Way's Pocket Smelter Company of South Pasadena, and L. M. Pritchard's chemical process for prospectors for gold, silver or copper to make their own assays.

Next to the Cooking School, one of the most popular points of interest is the miniature plant of the Quartz Glass Manufacturing Company. Around here there was a continuous line three deep anxious to get a peep at the mysteries of making fancy glass objects, from a bottle to a fancy flower wall vase.

On the same exposition thoroughfare the Los Angeles Can Company conducts a machine which spits out cans all the time. Some people who stack up against this can machine early in the game get so fascinated trying to count how many cans an hour that machine can turn out that they forget all about the Cooking School.

Altogether there are so many things to be seen and described that it will take more than one day or one article to do it properly. But the opening of the Made in Southern California Exposition last evening shows it will be a great success for weeks to come.

WHERE OYSTERS GROW.

Every one has laughed at the story of the young wife who ordered "half a dozen halibut" for dinner. Had she lived in the South Pacific Islands, she might have been equally laughed at for ordering half a dozen oysters, to say nothing of a pint, which is not at all uncommon among American gormands.

Pliny mentions that, according to the historians of Alexander's expedition, oysters a foot in diameter were found in the Indian seas. And Sir James Tennant was unexpectedly enabled to corroborate the correctness of this statement; for near Trincomali enormous specimens of edible oysters were brought before him. One of these was found to measure more than eleven inches in length by half as many in width.

But this extraordinary measurement is beaten by the oysters of Port Lincoln, South Australia, which are the largest edible ones in the world. They are as large as a dinner plate, and of much the same shape. They are sometimes more than a foot across the shell, and the oyster fits its habitation so well that it does not leave much if any margin.

It is no uncommon experience in that quarter for a person who is hungry to have one oyster, fried in butter or in eggs and bread crumbs, set before him. The delicacy of flavor of the Port Lincoln mammoth is famous, even in that land of luxuries, and one is ample even for a hearty appetite.

THE SENTINEL YEAR.

(IN MEMORIAM, ELIZA A. OTIS, DIED NOV. 12, 1904.)

Full panoplied from Time's cohorts, whence comest thou, O year?
Dost come with measured tread of feet to guard these ashes dear,
To watch this cherished grave? Advance! Salute! Fall into line,
Thy place is ready, friend, thou needest not the countersign.

The violets their hoard of Heaven still offer by this mound,
The poppies spill their virgin gold, and tears of dew abound,
But thou, stern Guard, most welcome art, since well we know, some day
At trumpet call, within thy ranks, our souls shall march away.

Keep vigil then, God's Sentinel, the while His stars troop by,
And, over all, yearlong, He spreads the azure of His sky,
Keep tryst, O hearts, with star and bloom, till, riding on apace,
The shining Herald summons us to greet her face to face.

No tramp of feet, no beat of drum, but onward, rank and file,
The years sweep by, O cherished soul, the thought of thy dear smile
Makes beauteous this honored day, and sets a seal on high
Toward which we look with longing eyes, the while the years march by.

NEW GERMAN AMBASSADOR.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF IS READY TO COME.

Successor to Von Sternburg Is at Cairo, Egypt, but Is Preparing to Leave for Berlin to Receive Instructions from the Emperor and Proceed to the United States.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

CAIRO (Egypt) Nov. 14.—Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, who was recently appointed German Ambassador at Washington, is prepared to leave for Berlin, where he will receive instructions and have an audience with Emperor William.

Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff and Countess, Germany's recently appointed diplomatic representative to the United States. The Countess is a daughter of Edward Luckemeyer of New York.

He will leave Berlin for Washington between the 10th and 15th of December.

Count Von Bernstorff has been representing the German government in Egypt. His selection by Emperor William to succeed the late Baron Speck von Sternburg as Ambassador to America was a surprise to the local German colony. Countess Von Bernstorff is a daughter of Edward Luckemeyer of New York.

Count Von Bernstorff was first diplomatic agent and Consul-General at Cairo, but he was raised to the rank of Minister Plenipotentiary early in 1908. He is the fourth son of Count Albrecht von Bernstorff, who was a distinguished contemporary of Bismarck, and he was born in London in 1862 while his father was German Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

WIFE CAUSE OF SHOOTING.

ESCAPADE WITH LADY DOUGLAS STARTS FRAY.

Former British Officer Admits Goading Lord Douglas by Making Her Drunk and Raking up His Connection With Oscar Wilde and Intimacy With May Yohe.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WINNIPEG (Man.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When Lord Sholto Douglas, brother to the present Marquis of Queensberry, and son of the eighth Marquis, who framed the prize fighting rules, was arrested for attempting to murder a former officer of the British army, John J. Baxter Rowlands, considerable mystery surrounded the shooting, but according to a statement made by Rowlands at Creston, British Columbia, today, it was owing to attentions which Rowlands was paying to Lady Douglas.

Rowlands says he was at the Douglas domicile at 11 o'clock on the evening of the shooting when Douglas suddenly appeared. Rowlands admits he had put in the evening making love to Lady Douglas, and had supplied her with a considerable quantity of rye whisky of which she was particularly fond. Then Douglas appeared and found them both in a state of intoxication.

Instead of at once leaving, as Douglas suggested he should do, he continued to occupy the seat of honor in Douglas's parlor and vilified the owner of the house, reminding his wife of the part he had taken in the Oscar Wilde case, of his entanglement with May Yohe, a vaudeville artist, after she had been divorced by Lord Francis Hope and deserted by Capt. Putnam Bradlee Strong. All the time he told in detail while Lord and Lady Douglas sat and listened.

At last, goaded beyond the point of endurance, Douglas seized his gun and shot him. The next Rowlands remembers is lying in the hospital, with shot wounds in the back of his head, neck and shoulders. He admits, however, that he deserves what he got.

THE HISTORIC COUNTRIES.

Under the Control of Russia and Turkey Are the Unprogressive Monarchies.

[New York Mail:] Russia and Turkey, between them, govern most of the world's historic races, administer the cradle lands of most of the world's great religions. Early in the nineteenth century, when Greece and Egypt were still in the Ottoman's grasp, the Turk might claim that nine-tenths of the heritage of the ancient world was in his keeping. He still presides over the countries celebrated in Rawlinson's "Five Great Monarchies," over the countries of the "Arabian Nights," over the countries where Xenophon marched with the 10,000 and Alexander with the companions; where the Christ began his mission and Mohammed undertook to give it another fulfillment, and where the Crusader led the followers of the one against the followers of the other.

More will be heard of these ancient races, as a result of the document that gives them a voice in an imperial parliament. The long silence and paralysis of absolutism will be lifted. That silence has not been complete. There had been material, if not political progress—railroads entering historic lands, development of regions which had not lost their old fertility, discovery of resources, work on new trade routes. Now political self-consciousness will supplement such industrial revival as has appeared.

Poor Tools And A Good Worker

That Is What Makes Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Taste, Foul Breath and Catarrh.

The stomach is a good strong vital organ, which is constantly protecting and feeding every other organ of the body.

It is the most abused, neglected and scorned member of man also. Most men abuse their stomach with undercooked food, high living, alcohol, tobacco, pastries and scores of other unhealthy practices.

When the stomach at last sickens of all this abuse and cannot do its full duty, most men are not warned but keep up their assaults on the stomach until at last it rebels and begins to strike back and cry for help. Man by his own abuse has taken away from the stomach the tools to work with

These tools are the gastric juices which go to make up the digestive agents. From 7 to 35 pounds of gastric juice are turned into the stomach every day.

When poor, poisonous food consumes this juice, dilutes it, robs it of its strength and throws it, a fermented mass from the system, of course there is just that much of the gastric fluid which cannot be readily supplied by the blood.

When food comes into a stomach filled with depleted fluids lacking of power to do their part, the good strong stomach is using poor tools and, of course, cannot succeed in its work.

A condition which often prevails is that which takes place when the gastric juice contains too much alkali. If the juice were wholly alkaline it would not only devour and digest the fluid but would eat and digest the stomach itself. Such gastric fluid does the digestion no good and attacks the walls of the stomach, making them raw and sore and setting up inflammation and irritation.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will strengthen a stomach filled with poor gastric juice. They will remove any abnormal alkaline condition, allay irritation, sweeten the breath, remove catarrhal conditions and digest food no matter how the stomach has acted before.

These little tablets contain an ingredient, one grain of which will digest perfectly 3000 grains of food. They will digest an entire meal placed in a jar without the aid of any other force except themselves. They have demonstrated this time after time.

Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c, and 40,000 physicians use them in their practice. Send us your name and address and we will mail you at once a trial package free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

THE MIGHTY POWER OF MI-O-NA THE MONEY BACK DYSPEPSIA CURE

Mi-o-na, that Extraordinary and Perfect Stomach Tonic, will Relieve Dyspepsia in Twenty-four Hours

Relief is not cure; opium will stop the most excruciating pain, but it won't cure the disease.

And it's just the same with alleged dyspepsia cures which contain pepsin. The pepsin will help to digest the food, but the stomach is left in worse condition than it was before.

You don't want pepsin to digest your food; you want the natural juices of your stomach to digest your food. If you have dyspepsia or any stomach trouble, you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest its own food and digest it properly.

Mi-ona will make your stomach so strong that you can eat what you want and all you want any time you want it, without distress.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls, and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

Your druggist sells Mi-o-na and he says to every reader whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed by the makers to cure or money back.

Mi-o-na is a certain cure for sea or car sickness, vomiting of pregnancy and sickness of the morning after.

The price is only 50 cents a box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

Mi-o-na is Better than Gold

"I can't say enough for Mi-o-na tablets; they have done more for me in one week than all the doctors have for the two years I have been under their care, and I will do all I can to recommend it to my friends. You can also use my name in your ad. if you like, for Mi-o-na is better than gold to me. I am like a new man, and am able to work once more for the first time in over a year."—W. A. Ennis, 328 Green St., Syracuse.

Another from the president of a New York corporation:

"I have been a terrible sufferer from dyspepsia and gastritis for two years. The most eminent physicians prescribed for me with no effect. I have been absolutely cured by your Mi-o-na tablets. The first one gave me a relief almost incredible."—Herbert H. Taylor, 801 West 143 Street, New York City.

"Mi-o-na tablets are truly great for anyone that has stomach trouble. I can not praise them too highly for what they have done for me."—Mrs. W. D. Bennett, Bucksport, Me.

"I suffered with stomach trouble for 15 years; spent $300 for medicines. Everything failed to do any good until I found Mi-o-na. That has cured me, and it will cure others that suffer."—L. R. Honket, Mountain Island, N. C.

Mi-o-na is a most economical treatment—a large box of tablets only costs 50 cents, and the dyspeptic, nervous or otherwise, who does not give them a trial, is losing an opportunity to regain health

If you cannot obtain the tablets from your druggist, address Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N. Y.

Temperance Advocates Praise The Great Tonic Stimulant

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Treat, of Meriden, Conn., both suffered from severe stomach trouble. Both are completely cured and restored to health and strength by the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey.

MR. AND MRS. J. E. TREAT.

Read what they say: Mrs. Treat in a letter March 30, 1908, wrote:

"I take pleasure in informing you of the great benefit derived from the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Before using this grand medicine I suffered from severe stomach trouble, could retain no food on my stomach and was subject to vomiting spells. I had no strength in my limbs and was much discouraged.

"I began to improve after using the first bottle, taking same in small doses as per directions, and now, after three months' use, my stomach is all right. I have a good appetite and have regained my health and strength entirely. My husband also suffered with his stomach, had no appetite and was so weak and run down that he had given up his work. He was induced to use your Malt Whiskey, with the result that he is now able to attend to his work every day and has a hearty appetite.

"We do not approve of the improper use of any liquor, but Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, used as directed, has done much for us, for which we are extremely grateful."—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Treat, 91 Camp St., Meriden, Conn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey

is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain. It is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It cures nervousness, typhoid, malaria, every form of stomach trouble, diseases of the throat and lungs, and all run down and weakened conditions of the body, brain and nerves. It is prescribed by doctors and is recognized as a family medicine everywhere.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey, and is sold in large sealed bottles only; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark, the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for a free copy of illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

MERGER MAKES BIGGER BANK.

St. Louis Institutions Have Combined.

National Bank of Commerce Absorbs Another.

Enormous Aggregation of Capital Results.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] An agreement was reached whereby the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis takes over the commercial and bank accounts of the Commonwealth Trust Company of St. Louis, giving the National Bank of Commerce about $9,000,000 more of deposits, and making the former institution the largest in point of deposit outside of New York and Chicago.

The merger makes its deposits total $61,413,533. The Commonwealth Trust Company will continue as a purely trust institution. Tom Randolph, president, and W. L. McDonald, vice-president of the trust company, were elected vice-presidents of the National Bank of Commerce.

Randolph will remain a director in the trust company. None of the directors of the Commonwealth will sever their connection on account of entering the directorate of the National Bank of Commerce.

B. F. Edwards, who was elected president of the National Bank of Commerce, following the death of J. C. Vanblarcom, continues as head of that institution.

Nearly 400 shares of National Bank of Commerce were sold on the St. Louis Stock Exchange today, practically at $256, net gain for the day $3 per share. This stock has been very active the past week, and advanced $20 per share in that time.

BAD BOOK-KEEPING.

Interstate Commerce Commission Is Criticised for Ruling on Depreciation Charges.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "To include in operating expenses a charge for depreciation equally in bad times with good would mean reduced dividends in most cases and bankruptcy in many."

This warning is issued to the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Journal of Political Economy in its November issue, which has a long article on "depreciation charge in railway accounting." Disclaiming any purpose of criticising the commission for its provision that a certain per cent. shall be charged against the income of railroads each year for depreciation, and suggesting that it will probably have to be at least 6 per cent., the writer proceeds to show the absurdity of the policy. In short, he insists that, among other things, such a practice would be a fraud upon the public and upon the stockholders. He says:

"To put expenditures into operating expenses which have not been actually made has been regarded as 'padding' accounts. To make a charge for depreciation every month on a purely arbitrary basis, when the money which is thus charged is not actually spent in replacement, is obviously charging against operating expenses something for which no expenditure is made."

GAY SEASON IN WASHINGTON.

SOCIETY AT THE CAPITAL TO GO WITH A WHIRL.

Return of Good Times Sets at Rest All Uncertainty and President Roosevelt's Regime Will Close in a Round of Festivities—Debutantes Add to Interest of Early Functions.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Washington this winter promises a gay season. Since election day settled matters of state, society, which up to November 3 held its breath, has been planning a round of entertainments which will make the closing days of the Roosevelt régime long to be remembered.

The official season of the White House hospitality will cover a period of exactly two months. Beginning with the Cabinet dinner, which will be given December 17, the usual dinners and receptions will continue until February 13, when the Army and Navy reception will bring the season to an end.

The list of this season's débutantes will be a long one. In addition to Miss Ethel Roosevelt and the two Misses De Lagercrantz, daughters of the Swedish Minister, Miss Marguerite Moncheur, oldest daughter of the Belgian Minister, will make her début, and the Baroness Elizabeth Rosen, daughter of the Russian Ambassador, is expected to make her formal bow in capital city society.

In the official set Miss Martha Bacon, daughter of the Assistant Secretary of War, will be a prominent addition to the list of the young girl débutantes. The army and navy always furnishes a long list of débutantes, but this winter makes a new record. Of special interest will be the introduction of Miss Dorothy Williams, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Williams and sister of Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

BETTER COAST DEFENSE.

MORE MEN FOR GUNS.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Numerous recommendations for the improvement of the coast artillery are made in the annual report of Brig.-Gen. Murray, chief of that branch of the United States army.

Gen. Murray recommends that the coast artillery be organized for command and administration as a separate territorial division of the army; that it be increased by three brigadier-generals of coast artillery, to command as many territorial departments; that the chief of coast artillery be made a major-general, and that all annual estimates and all accounts and expenses be kept separate from those of the mobile army.

An urgent appeal is made for an increase for the corps of cadets at West Point by authorizing additional cadets for each Senator and for appointment by the President, in order that the demand for officers for the artillery may be met.

For the formation of militia coast artillery reserves, Gen. Murray states there will be required 2278 officers and 53,110 men to provide one manning detail for all the coast defenses, constructed and proposed in the United States, insular possessions and the entrances to the Panama Canal.

The defenses of Manila Bay, Pearl Harbor and Honolulu, Gen. Murray says, involve strategical conditions of the highest order, and he lays special stress upon the importance of early attention to that work.

Miss Logan Weds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The wedding of Miss Mary Elizabeth Logan of Chicago and Nathan B. Payne of New York took place yesterday at the home of Mrs. John A. Logan. The bride is the daughter of James V. Logan of Illinois, brother of the late Gen. Logan. Lieutenant-Commander Frederick R. Payne, U.S.N., acted as best man. The bride was attended by Mrs. Logan Tucker.

Watch Home of Mrs. Phipps, Denver Divorcee, Whose Life Was Jeopardized by Blackmail Plot Backed by Dynamite—Drugs May Have Unbalanced Prisoner's Mind.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

DENVER (Colo.) Nov. 14.—Entertaining the belief that others may have been implicated in the plot to dynamite Mrs. Genevieve Chandler Phipps besides Mrs. Allen F. Read, the home of the woman whose life was placed in immediate jeopardy is now guarded night and day to prevent any repetition of the attempt to blackmail her by persons who may have inspired the crime or who may have been directly implicated in the plot.

Mrs. Read is reported very ill.

That Mrs. Read could not possibly be identical with Mrs. Alice Cheney Brown, the woman who on November 2 attempted to swindle a firm of Chicago brokers out of bonds valued at $20,000, was asserted today by Miss Jessie Campbell, Mrs. Read's sister, who arrived in the city from Rochester, N. Y., yesterday evening.

Miss Campbell said it had been ascertained that Mrs. Read did not leave Buffalo for the West until November 2.

Miss Campbell is convinced that illness and the use of morphine has unbalanced her sister's mind.

NO REST FOR GOVERNOR.

No Substitute for Montana Executive If Out of the State or Sick.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HELENA (Mont.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Atty.-Gen. Galen today rendered an opinion to the effect that there is at present no one legally authorized to perform the duties of the office of Governor in case of the absence from the State or inability of that official. The opinion is addressed to Gov. Norris, in answer to his query if any one is legally authorized to act during his absence or inability.

The opinion says there is no statute making provision as to when the term of the Legislature begins, but the Constitution states it starts the day after election unless otherwise ordered.

A successor having been elected to succeed Senator Miles of Park county, he is no longer acting Lieutenant-Governor, and as the Lieutenant-Governor-elect does not take office until January next, the office is, therefore, vacant.

Wooden Leg Affinities.

Mrs. Mary W. Bull, John H. Bull and Frank H. Fleming appeared in an Oakland police court, and the fact that they have only three natural lower limbs among them furnished the foundation for the story told to the justice.

Mrs. Bull, together with her 2-year-old daughter and her latest affinity, Frank Fleming, were arrested in San José on a misdemeanor warrant sworn out by John Bull, the husband, who is now in Oakland.

The story on which the entanglement is founded began two years ago, when Mrs. Bull, then a Miss Brown of Oakland, lost a leg in a car accident.

She went to Bull, himself a one-legged man, and also a manufacturer of artificial limbs. He fitted a peg for her and their relations, due perhaps to sympathy for each other in their mutual affliction, in time assumed a nature not wholly platonic, Miss Brown brought suit for breach of promise, which ended in their marriage.

Divorce proceedings are now pending. A few days ago the wife left Oakland with Fleming, another one-legged man, and her daughter, and drove to this city in a pony rig. They went to Monterey, and then returned to this city, where the outfit was sold.—[San Francisco Call.

Stomach Gases and Torpid Livers

Give Way Before the Peculiar Purifying Power of Stuart's Charcoal Lozengers.

A Trial Package Sent Free.

The foul gases of the stomach and the torpid action of the liver are easy victims for charcoal to overcome.

This great natural cleaner and absorbent will most certainly be relished by a system afflicted with gaseous or sluggish tendencies.

Charcoal has long been known as a great absorbent of gas. A panful of charcoal will positively purify a room filled with foul odors and decay. Its absorbing ratio is one hundred times greater than its own volume.

The ancients gave charcoal for many human ills successfully. The North American Indians used it for snake bite, poison from eating wild herbs and cured what they called "stomach bad medicine" with it.

Willow charcoal seems to be the best product for human use, and no doubt the peculiar curative property of the willow is represented in a chemical quality in its charcoal.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are pure willow and sweet honey blended by tremendous power and compression into a very palatable lozenge. Two or three lozenges eaten after meals will prevent the process of digestion from producing noxious gases. They will vivify a lazy liver and aid every organ which is most likely to be overcome through its contact with impurities.

They cleanse the stomach and intestines, bring purity and sweetness out of fermentation and decay and aid digestion by allaying gas. They will aid you and your stomach. The beneficial effects are made evident after each meal when you use charcoal as Stuart prepares it. To allay gas at night they are excellent and one arises in the morning without that terrible nauseating bad breath which destroys appetite and renders one miserable.

All druggists sell Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price twenty-five cents, or send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Flexible Rubber Plates

Have many advantages over the old thick, cumbersome, ordinary rubber plates and even over gold plates, being much thinner. These plates are flexible, only a trifle thicker than heay writing paper, fit closer and adhere better to the Particles of food and small seeds cannot get under them. They will last longer, are stronger than any others and will they will give first, being flexible. Dr. Scuffman's own process and made only by us.

I have always heretofore shared with most people the dread of a dentist's chair. But now am sure I shall not dread the ordeal again, for at your office I can truthfully say, "I was not hurt at all." Even the bridgework which I had dreaded was painless and most satisfactory.
MRS. EARL ROGERS.

It gives me great pleasure to state that Dr. Schiffman extracted an impacted wisdom tooth for me, which had been giving me great annoyance for years. It was extracted absolutely without a particle of pain to me. It was easily worth 100 times the amount paid.
ROBERT MARSH,
Of Robert Marsh & Co., H. W. Hellman Bldg.

Dr. Schiffman placed bridgework in my mouth which has proven, after five years' use, to be a perfect piece of work and durable. Is now quite as serviceable as original teeth. A very difficult tooth was pulled before this bridgework was put in, and "it didn't hurt a bit."
C. S. SPRECHER,
Printer and Publisher, 115 Winston st.

Dr. Schiffman extracted twenty teeth for me, and did it absolutely without pain. I have had a great deal of experience with other dentists, and can truthfully say that Dr. Schiffman's method is best of all. I highly recommend him to everyone.
T. B. ROSECRANS,

For all the past fourteen years Dr. Schiffman has been doing my dental work. In all they extracted and replaced by means of crown and bridgework some twenty odd teeth. The work is very satisfactory and I highly recommend him.
H. A. WITTICK,
81 Mary st., Pasadena, Cal.

Have had molar tooth extracted by Dr. Schiffman. It was a complicated task, but work was done very successfully and I heartily recommend Dr. Schiffman to any needing dental work.
REV. W. E. BLAIR,

Dr. Schiffman has just filled a tooth for me and he also put in a crown and a bridge about five months ago, all of which has given me complete satisfaction. My work was all done painlessly.
S. E. MILLS,
No. 520 Ave. 20.

Dr. Schiffman extracted two worthless teeth for me and replaced them by bridgework, which was done to my entire satisfaction and without any pain whatever.
MRS. JUSTICE J. ROESE,
302 E. 48th st.

I have been treated by Dr. Schiffman for years. I have tried all the different methods, and I can say unhesitatingly no dentist or physician has ever operated with such success or skill. In extracting my teeth he did it without any pain to me. It is a great pleasure to me to recommend him and his methods of treatment.

SEEKS PEACE AND PURSUES IT.

Japanese Consul at New York Tells College Students His Country Dreads War.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—That the desire of Japan is international peace was emphasized last night by Kokochi Midzunov, Japanese Consul-General to New York, in an address at Columbia University yesterday. He said:

"To me, and to my people, the most valuable asset of Japan is her desire for international peace—that intuitive and inherent instinct born in every heart—the one element that marks the chief, if not the sole distinction between human and brute creation.

"To the close observer of Japan today it will be seen that this earnest advocacy of international peace is paramount. It is this national love of peace that I believe will be the support of the further advancement of her civilization and the nucleus of her strength in the future."

BIG HAT STARTS MELEE.

Stubborn Ticket Agent and Obdurate Messenger Delay New Yorkers in Homeward Rush.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A thirty-six-inch hat, destined to be worn by a bride, an obdurate boy and an equally obdurate ticket agent, in the subway, were the means of tieing up a rush-hour crowd at Twenty-third-street station for twenty minutes last night.

Israel Cohn, the boy entrusted with the safe delivery of the hat, tried to enter the subway, bearing it gingerly in the crowd, but the ticket agent thought otherwise. Not even the boy's argument that "if it was on the lady's head it would go through" could move the determined agent. Meanwhile the impatient crowd grew in proportions and lost its temper. Finally the police were summoned and the ticket agent arrested.

The hat, in the melee, was almost a total wreck.

EXPLORER MEETS EMPRESS.

Sven Hedin, Swedish Traveler, Presented to Mikado's Consort at Imperial Garden Party.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—The Imperial Garden party today was attended by about 1500 people including many foreigners and all the members of the diplomatic corps.

Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer, was presented to the Empress and there were a number of other presentations by the British embassy, including H. C. Lowther and Mrs. Lowther, who have returned from abroad, and Mrs. Hughes, the wife of the new physician to the embassy. No Americans were among those presented at the court.

Sven Hedin, who has recently returned from explorations in unknown portions of Tibet, has received much attention since his arrival in Tokio.

MIKADO AT MANEUVERS.

Japanese Ruler Will Start Today for Capital to Witness Great Naval Review.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—The Emperor is attending the large military maneuvers at Nara, where 50,000 Japanese troops have been engaged in extensive field movements and battle tactics.

At the conclusion of the maneuvers which end tomorrow, the Emperor will go to Kobe to attend the big naval review on the 17th. The greatest gathering of Japanese warships since the close of the Russo-Japanese war, with Admiral Togo, the hero of the battle of the Sea of Japan in command, will pass in review before the Emperor.

LAWYERS CHANGE SIDES.

Firm Engaged in Prosecution of H. Clay Pierce Is Secured by the Defense.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GALVESTON (Tex.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Interest in the H. Clay Pierce case was revived today when it became known that the law firm of Gregory, Botts & Brooks, which had been active for the State in the bitter prosecution of the case and also against the Waters-Pierce Oil Company was now retained to defend Pierce in his trial for false swearing.

It was admitted today that the firm had been retained by Judge James H. Robertson, leading counsel for Pierce, to assist in the defense. No explanation was offered why the State was unable to retain this firm to prosecute Pierce.

Botts said he and his associates would first attack the validity of the indictment. It is understood Pierce's counsel plans to have the case thrown out of court on a defective indictment and that they have practically assured their client he will never have to stand trial.

PASADENA.

ANXIOUS WOMAN HIS UNDOING.

HER INQUIRIES UNPLEASANT FOR CAPT. HARVEY.

Civil War Veteran Lands in Jail on Charge of Falsely Representing Himself as United States Secret Service Officer—Weather Bureau to Be Established on Mt. Wilson.

Office of The Times, No. 28 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, Nov. 15.—A woman's anxiety has proved unpleasant for Capt. W. R. Harvey, aged 72, a veteran of the Civil War. Harvey was arrested last night at Lamanda Park by Detective Schultz and Deputy Constable Bush, on a charge of falsely representing himself to be a Secret Service officer. The name of the woman in the case is withheld by the officers.

Harvey has, it is said, been collecting subscriptions in both this city and Pasadena for the purpose, he stated, of sending back East a destitute widow of a Civil War officer. It is asserted that he repesented himself as both a United States Secret Service official and a Grand Army man. He was often in the company of a woman of Lamanda Park. Two days ago he sent her word from Los Angeles to explain why he had not kept an appointment with her. He said he had been shot in the pursuance of his duty, and would be unable to come out.

The woman went immediately to Los Angeles and hunted through all the hospitals. Being unable to find Harvey, she went to the United States Secret Service Bureau to inquire for him. The officials there promptly send out word to arrest him should he return here. He was caught at Lamanda Park last night, and brought here. He will be removed to Los Angeles today.

RUN DOWN BY AUTO.

The police are on the look-out for the party driving automobile No. 1972, which ran down T. Tannaka, a Japanese servant living at No. 229 South Orange Grove avenue, early last evening. The automobile came through the main street at a more than ordinary rate, and struck the Japanese, whose jaw bone was bruised and his cheek lacerated. The driver put on all speed possible, and was soon out of sight.

ELEVATED BUREAU.

A weather bureau is to be established at once on Mt. Wilson. A. G. McAdie, district forecaster in San Francisco, went to the peak yesterday. The new bureau will be fully equipped and be in charge of Prof. George E. Hale of the Carnegie Solar Observatory.

INSTALLATION PUBLIC.

Although invitations were sent out to those officially connected with Throop Polytechnic Institute and heads of colleges and universities throughout the country for the installation of Dr. James A. B. Scherer, Thursday evening, at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, the general public is invited to attend. Admission is free to all.

CLEAN, FAST GAME.

Pasadena High School defeated the Harvard Military Academy in a desperate, but clean and fast football battle yesterday afternoon by a score of 10 to 0. Thorpe, quarterback of Harvard, was the only man to be laid out, and after a two-minute rest to get his wind back after a hard tackle by Rich of Pasadena, he went back into the game. Not one minute of time was taken out during the first half, nor was either team able to approach nearer to the opponent's goal than the 20-yard line. Two attempts to make field goals, one by each team, failed.

In the second half the High School boys played the more aggressive and determined game. Within ten minutes after Harvard put the ball in play, Pasadena forced the ball across Harvard's goal line. Wachob failed to catch a "kick-in" for a better chance at the goal. The score stood 5 to 0 in favor of the home team.

Harvard again put the ball in play and Horace Heaton distinguished himself by a 30-yard run down the field, which brought Pasadena within striking distance of the Harvard goal. Smith and Card made heavy bucks, and, on the last chance, Wachob, the big 190-pound fullback of the High School, pounded through the Harvard line and fell with the ball behind the goal. Seifert failed to kick a goal.

The teams interchanged down the field, Thorpe and Capt. Davids making splendid runs. The game ended with the ball in the middle of the field.

The line-up of the teams:

TO HOLD ELECTION.

The Pasadena branch of the Los Angeles County Medical Society will hold its regular monthly session in the Board of Trade rooms, Monday night. The annual election of officers will take place.

MORE TIME TO PLEAD.

Mrs. Augusta Barts and her daughter, Nina, when arraigned before Justice Robert McDonald, yesterday morning, on a charge of defrauding the La Solano boarding-house in this city, were undecided as to their plea, and will appear again Monday morning. Meantime, they will be occupants of the County Jail.

"MADE IN CALIFORNIA."

An inexpensive, simple automobile for the average man's use, is to be built by a mechanic named Waldemar Hansen of this city. The machine will be called a "buggybout."

READY FOR ENDEAVORS.

Preparations for the State Christian Endeavor Convention, which will be held here in June, are being made by the leaders in the several societies here. H. H. Godber, State president, yesterday named the following heads of committees: John D. Mersereau, general chairman; Miss Mable Merrill, secretary; W. S. Windham, treasurer; Mrs. A. B. Williams, superintendent of entertainment; Mr. Khrist, decorating; Lucies Jarvis, traffic; I. J. Bailey and MacD. Snowball are other members.

INSURANCE MAN DEAD.

William Marshall Wicker, aged 71 years, for the greater part of his life associated with fire-insurance companies, died here yesterday at the family home, No. 285 South Los Robles avenue. He was well known throughout the country as an adjuster of fire losses. For many years he was a resident of Chicago. With his wife and an unmarried daughter he had resided in Pasadena for the last three years. The funeral will be held at 9 o'clock Monday morning at the undertaking rooms of Van Nuys, Warren & Salisbury. The remains will be taken to Cincinnati for interment.

EASY CLIMBING.

To escape the heavy grade at Hotel Raymond hill, residents of South Pasadena as well as automobile people are urging that Marengo boulevard be extended over Marengo avenue in South Pasadena to Huntington drive. Considerable grading would have to be done and concessions received from the Southern Pacific Railroad Company for a public road through Garfield Park. Marengo avenue is a splendid asphalt boulevard.

Dr. John Willis Baer of Occidental College will leave here shortly after Dr. James A. B. Scherer's installation as president of Throop Institute, to attend a meeting of the executive commission of the Presbyterian Church.

Rev. James A. Lash, pastor of the Lake Avenue Congregational Church, will have charge of the closing "worldwide prayer meeting" of the Y.M.C.A. here today. Special music has been prepared for the occasion. Messrs. W. L. Jones, Royal Ward and Elmer Laws will participate. The meeting is to start at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. E. S. Chapman, State Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, will speak at the First Congregational Church, this morning on the subject of temperance. Miss Glenn Will, his assistant, will speak at the First Friend's Church at the morning service.

STILL IN OFFICE.

Santa Monica Park Commissioner Remains in Spite of Requested Resignation.

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 14.—The Park Commission stew is still stewing. The City Council has requested the resignation of E. H. Sweetzer, one of the commissioners. In a letter to Mayor Dudley Sweetzer says he will cheerfully resign if the Mayor indicates that this action would be advantageous to the interests of the city. The Mayor has not so indicated. On the other hand, he says he does not think it would be showing due appreciation to ask for the resignation. There is everything to indicate that the Mayor has no thought of asking Sweetzer to step down and out.

Mary, wife of George H. Kerr, died at the family home on East Oregon avenue this morning. Deceased was 33 years of age and leaves five small children. Her ailment was tuberculosis.

The directorate of the Merchants' National Bank has been strengthened by the addition of W. H. Holliday, Marco Hellman and M. Hamburger of Los Angeles and P. R. Stahl of Centralia, Wash. The last named has purchased property here, will build a residence and make his home in Santa Monica.

Miss Elizabeth Marshall has arrived here from Brattleboro, Vt., and will make her home here. She is a sister of Oscar Marshall of Second street.

FUNERAL AT HOLLYWOOD.

Remains of Mrs. De Forest Reichard Laid at Rest in Pale Lavender-colored Casket.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 14.—The funeral of Mrs. De Forest Reichard was held at 2 o'clock today, service being at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. Rev. J. Arthur Evans read the short burial service. The beautiful pale lavender casket was covered with flowers and hundreds of beautiful blossoms were placed at the foot of the pulpit steps. The pall-bearers were Messrs. F. M. Douglass, Edward Winterer, E. R. Hubbard, Dr. Anstruller Davidson, of Hollywood and A. P. Kerckhoff and L. L. Ratekin of Covina. The interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

The preliminary games in the "All Hollywood" tennis tournament were played today on the Hollywood Club courts. The finals will be played on Thanksgiving Day. The result of today's play assures some very exciting matches. In the preliminaries the greatest interest centered in the ladies' singles. In this event Miss Ruth Anderson won from Miss Mildred Taft, 6-1, 6-1. Miss Mary Squire won from Miss Anderson, 6-4, 8-6. Mrs. La Fon won from Miss Forshaw, 6-2, 6-1, and Mrs. La Fon won from Miss Johnson by default. In the ladies doubles Miss Mildred Taft and Miss Mary Maple won from Mrs. Zahn and Mrs. La Fon, 6-4, 6-1. In the mixed doubles Miss Taft and George Eastman won from Mrs. La Fon and G. G. Greenwood, 6-0, 6-1. Miss Anderson and Frank Hoover won from Miss Forshaw and Dr. Deering, 8-6, 6-3, and from Mrs. Zahn and C. E. Royce, 6-4, 7-5. George Eastman won from Homer Brower in the men's singles, 6-0, 6-1.

COLORING.

ORANGE CROP IS IN FINE SHAPE.

POMONA TREES GROAN UNDER WEIGHT OF FRUIT.

So Much Attention Has Been Paid to Fumigation in Valley That Little Scale Is Noticeable—Winery Man Who Broke Liquor Ordinance Is Refused Naturalization.

POMONA, Nov. 14.—The cirtus fruit crop in this locality is in excellent condition, well-sized and commencing to color up. A number of groves are so laden that it has been necessary to prop up the trees to keep the limbs from breaking under the weight of fruit. So much attention has been paid to fumigating the groves in Pomona Valley that very little scale is now noticeable. It is the intention of all local horticultural clubs and intelligent citrus fruit growers to continue the agitation for fumigation in order to obtain a "clean" citrus district. Inquiries of the local independent shippers and of the Pomona Fruit Growers' Exchange, the Claremont Citrus Union, the Indian Hill Citrus Union, at North Pomona, and the San Dimas Citrus Union, develops the fact that there will be no early Thanksgiving fruit shipped from this valley this year. There is a decided disposition to discourage the shipping of fruit that is not well colored, and that has not some semblance of a palatable quality. It is known that this rushing off of unripe oranges to eastern markets has been detrimental to the reputation of Southern California fruit in past seasons.

NATURALIZATION REFUSED.

Because he was convicted of violating the anti-saloon laws of this city and owing to the fact that no discrimination is made in the United States Federal courts dealing with citizenship matters, Jules Hugues, who conducts a winery on South Garey avenue, here, has been refused naturalization and citizenship by the Los Angeles Federal court. The law provides that every applicant must show a good moral character for five years preceding the date of application for papers and must keep the laws of the land. Although instances where citizenship papers are refused for selling liquor contrary to ordinance in dry towns are not uncommon in the East, this is one of the first cases in this State.

EPWORTH CONVENTION.

With an early morning prayer-meeting, led by Howard Ulery of this city, today's sessions of the Pasadena District Epworth League convention opened. This was followed by a praise service, after which J. Ransome Casey spoke upon the morning watch. Tulley C. Knoles of U.S.C., considered the subject: "Our Duty as Leaguers in the Social and Political Life of Today." This was followed by a discussion led by M. E. Hill of Upland, and a vocal solo by Mrs. Lauriston Smith of Pasadena. "The Place of Young People in Missions," was considered by Mrs. Florence Sherman of Los Angeles, and the discussion was led by O. C. Laizure of that city. A business session followed. Luncheon was then served in the church banquet room, and the degelates were given automobile rides to Ganesha Park.

The "departmental" conference this afternoon was conducted by the different district vice-presidents. "The Christian's Ideal of Getting and Using Possessions" was considered by H. M. Baird of Los Angeles, the discussion being led by Rev. W. M. Harkness of San Dimas. An excellent annual address was given by the president, Will S. Himrod, and a round-table was conducted by Rollin S. Tuttle. The newly-elected officers were installed by Rev. Dr. S. A. Thompson of Los Angeles, the district superintendent. They are: M. E. Hill, Upland, president; Miss Bertha Davenport, Monrovia; Miss Elaine Anderson, El Monte; Miss Eva Wood, North Pasadena; Dr. W. L. Lowder, Los Angeles, vice-presidents; Mrs. J. C. Schneider, San Dimas, secretary; H. C. Thatcher, Pomona, treasurer; Miss Bessie Leebrick, Covina, junior superintendent. The convention came to a successful close with a consecration service, led by Oliver O. Clark and Rollin S. Tuttle.

FUNDS FOR NEW HOMES.

The Mutual Building and Loan Association has on hand over $27,000 worth of loans for new houses to be erected here in the immediate future. The new Home Builders' Association also has numerous applications for funds for homes on file.

A. H. Garrison, who recently sold his new house on Williams street in the Ganesha Park tract to Louis Ferrell, has purchased two more lots in the tract west of Hamilton avenue, and has commenced the erection of another house on one.

The new city stables, plans for which have been drawn by Ferdinand Davis, will be erected north of the Southern Pacific Railroad tracks and west of White avenue, near the gas works.

GLENDORA.

GLENDORA, Nov. 14.—The organization of a gas company was the chief subject discussed at the meeting of the Board of Trade last evening. Z. T. Bell of San Bernardino, a gas construction engineer, presented estimates of the cost of a plant. The board decided to undertake the formation of a company with a capital of $30,000. A committee was appointed to secure subscriptions and further investigate the situation. The members are prominent business men. C. S. Whitcomb, C. A. Weaver, W. S. Taylor, W. P. Nye, and J. A. Jones.

The Seventh Day Adventists have rented the Haas building, corner of Bennet and Sierra Madre avenues, and will hold regular services.

COMPTON.

COMPTON, Nov. 14.—A largely signed petition will be presented to the trustees, Monday evening, asking for a special election to vote on the disincorporation of a strip of land forty rods wide, and extending north from the corner of Lemon and Temple streets to the city limits. The strip referred to adjoins the proposed automobile road between Los Angeles and Long Beach. If the election carries it will have the result of placing the road outside the city.

Palm street, between Oleander and Pomegranate, is being graded.

H. B. Schildwachter has just returned from a cattle-buying trip at San Jacinto and neighboring towns.

D. W. Imbler is building a five-room cottage to cost about $1500, on his ranch, West Orange street.

J. M. Mayo is putting up a [illegible] cottage on East Orange street.

There was a large attendance at the Pathfinder Club meeting, yesterday afternoon. The address by Prof. Hoose, and the reading by Miss Wright were much enjoyed, as was also the whistling solo by Miss Ethel Kent. Miss Cone, Miss Morrison and Miss Kent were appointed delegates to the district convention which meets at Venice, and a number of other members will also attend. The billboard nuisance was discussed, and the trustees will be asked to pass an ordinance doing away with it.

CANTEEN DISAPPEARS.

Name Will Now Become but a Memory at the Soldiers' Home—Big Gun Firing Stopped.

SOLDIERS' HOME, Nov. 14.—Removal and remodeling of the canteen building, which had been under consideration for some time, has, with approval of the president of the board of managers, finally been decided upon. The contract was awarded to Crookshank and Somers of Los Angeles yesterday, for $6480, and work was begun today. When settled in its new location near the postoffice, the name "canteen" will have become a memory, as the building will thereafter be known as "hotel and post store." In the former, relatives and friends of members, so desiring, can find accommodations when visiting the home, without the necessity for hurrying away at sunset.

Pending the removal and completion of the building, the post store will occupy temporary quarters in the basement of barrack G, just north of the hospital.

COMPLETES INSPECTION.

Col. W. E. Elwell, inspector-general and medical director, N.H.D.S., completed inspection of this branch and left for the East yesterday. Before going he made several recommendations looking to the further comfort of aged veterans. Firing of the big gun, heretofore a feature of exercises attending the lowering of the flag at "retreat," has been stopped. The inspector decided it was a cause of unnecessary distress among the more nervous of the home.

Col. Elwell also directed an examination of veterans of the Philippine insurrection, with a view to transferring to the National Home's Sanatorium those afflicted with tuberculosis, and patients, it is thought, may be benefited by the change. Surgeon McNary has already completed the examination. About thirty of these young veterans will leave for Hot Springs as soon as arrangements for their comfortable transportation can be completed—probably in about three weeks.

HONORABLY DISCHARGED.

General Orders, No. 37, just issued, named forty-eight veterans who, upon their own application and representation that they are able to support themselves outside the home, are honorably discharged. Most of these men have nearly, some quite, reached the allotted span, 70 years, and but six of the number are receiving the maximum rate of pension.

Jacob Lauppy, aged 65, while awaiting the signal to enter the dining hall for breakfast, yesterday, lost his balance while resting on the balcony railing and toppled to a brick wall ten feet below. As he struck on his head it was thought he was seriously injured; but the surgeon found nothing worse had befallen than a gap in his scalp, which a few stitches repaired.

FOR NEW ELECTRIC LINE.

Venice Promoters Plan Road to Run from Beach Through "Back Country" to Palms.

VENICE, Nov. 14.—Provided the property owners in the "back country" show a disposition to subscribe for stock in the enterprise, a standard-gauge electric line will be constructed and placed in operation at once throughout the level country to the east of the seashore. The plan is to operate the line as a loop, connecting with the Los Angeles-Pacific Company's trolley line at Windward avenue and reaching the interior residence district. Arrangements have been completed to secure the building material and the cash is ready to finance the proposition if the people who are to receive the benefits will become stockholders. The road can then be bonded for the rolling stock and equipment.

The ultimate object of the proposed railway is to reach Ocean Park and Palms, from which it would be but a brief span to the westerly limits of Los Angeles at Vineyard, where connection for the center of the city could be had with the yellow cars of the Huntington lines, and the olive green coaches of the Harriman road.

Coronado has right rates.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, Nov. 14.—Work has been commenced on a $6000 bungalow for O. J. Fast in Coeur d'Alene. A residence to be erected at the same outlay is being constructed on Short Line Beach for Miss Mary Fie, and Mrs. Charlotte Mahar is constructing a $4000 home on the Strand.

The Santa Monica Bay Italian Band, consisting of thirty musicians, and directed by Francisco Gregoire, will go to Los Angeles Monday to begin a week's engagement in Central Park, in connection with Prosperity Week festivities.

"Hotel del Coronado" leads all.

TAFT JOLLIFICATION.

Swedish-American Republican Club Celebrates the Recent Victory, in Which They Had a Part.

The Swedish-American Republican Club celebrated the election of Taft with a jollification at Burbank Hall last night. They had a genuine Swedish feed, with a few tasty American dishes thrown in, and they all enjoyed themselves to the full. James S. Bergeman was toastmaster, and introduced the president, Charles O. Nelson, as the first speaker. The applause indicated that the speech was a dandy, and that was the only evidence the reporter had.

James D. Reymert spoke in English, upon the political situation, or was announced so to do, but he said he didn't know there was one, as he understood that it had been wiped out at the late election. Emil Lind wound himself up for about an hour's talk in Swedish, and created a lot of fun for his countrymen.

The last speaker was Secretary Bergelin of the club and he, too, was received with great enthusiasm. As Reymert expressed it, the first step of a Swede when he comes to America, is to become a citizen of his adopted country, and their enthusiasm over the election of Taft indicates their deep interest in political affairs.

LONG BEACH.

CROWD CHEERS AT LAUNCHING.

GREAT SHIPBUILDING INDUSTRY IS INAUGURATED.

First Steel Hull Vessel Ever Built on Coast, South of San Francisco, Glides from Ways of Craig Plant. Christened With Champagne by the Mayor's Daughter.

LONG BEACH, Nov. 14.—The first steel hull vessel ever built on the Pacific Coast, south of San Francisco, was launched from the ways of the Craig ship plant at high tide this afternoon, amid the blowing of a score of whistles and the cheers of 1500 people.

It marks the opening of a mammoth shipbuilding industry for Southern California, made possible by the citizens of Long Beach, who gave $100,000 for the site donated for a plant.

The new vessel is to be an electrical dredger, and will be used in completing the work on the Los Angeles Dock and Terminal Company. It is 110 feet long, 35-foot beam, and 7½ feet deep. It has fourteen watertight compartments, and is equipped with modern machinery. The contract was let on June 18, and work was begun twenty days later. It is named "C. H. Windham," in honor of the Mayor of this city, who is also an officer of the dredging company.

The launching was a novelty in that the vessel glided into the water sideways, instead of bow on. President Craig, on an elevated platform, counted three, swung his hat, and then two men at the "trips" cut away the cables, and the hull glided toward the water. As it started, dainty Marta Windham, daughter of the Mayor, smashed a bottle of champagne, which hung from ribbons of the national colors, against the side of the ship and said, "I christen thee Charles H. Windham." The dredger will at once receive the balance of her upper works and machinery.

The ways just vacated will be occupied by the hull of the ocean-going tug which the Craigs will build.

Relative to the mix-up in the school district caused by the attempt of Belmont Heights to annex the whiplash strip, County School Superintendent Keppel today submitted an opinion as to the liability of Belmont Heights for bonded indebtedness should the proposition carry. He holds that Belmont Heights school district will be liable for the debt of the new school.

The Skid Blabner, Frank Garber's yacht, left West Long Beach this afternoon for San Diego, to go on the ways for the purpose of having one of her screws changed to suit the engines just installed.

TO WELCOME COMMITTEE.

Tomorrow afternoon the members of the Chamber of Commerce will be present at the Pacific Electric station to welcome the California Promotion Committee. A trip to the Craig plant, drawbridge and harbor will be enjoyed, and then the visitors will be escorted to the band concert at the Auditorium. Chief Clerk Stanley notified the chamber today that Hotel Virginia would be open for inspection during the afternoon.

On Monday the extension of the rural route delivery will go into effect. Route No. 1 embraces territory around Alamitos Bay and Naples, and No. 2 runs north and east to Wilmington's limits. Three new carriers will be added to the city delivery force.

SUES FOR FEE.

Ethel Harrington, better known as "Polly Pry," has been sued in Justice Brayton's court for $75 by Attorney David Taylor, who defended her after her arrest, a year ago, on a charge of extortion. For several days after her arrest prominent men were very uneasy, because she threatened to tell all she knew. Taylor secured the woman's release, but has never received his fee. Hence the suit.

Word was rceived here today of the death at Washington, D. C., of L. S. Mace of this city, who went there in August, and was taken ill with typhoid fever. He was 40 years old, and leaves a widow and seven children.

GERMANS AMAZED.

Noted Travelers from Abroad High in Their Praise of Development They Find Here.

The development of the West, in marked contrast with the standstill of the East in the past five years, was the cause of much comment on the part of Prof. Dr. P. C. Duisberg, director of the Frederic Bayer & Co. pharmaceutical and dye factory of Elberfeld, Germany, the largest of its kind in the world, which employs nearly 8000 men in various capacities and partly controls the American trade in dyes and other products. Dr. Duisberg is staying at the Alexandria, and is accompanied by his wife; Dr. W. Wolff, also head of a similar concern; Mrs. W. Wolf, Baroness Dunst of Manheim, and H. C. A. Seebohm, nephew of Dr. Duisberg, and American representative of the Elberfeld factories.

Next to Washington, D. C., Los Angeles stands highest in the estimation of the foreign tourists, who have been in nearly all the largest cities in the East and Middle West. Dr. Duisberg was here five years ago, and based his comparison of conditions now with those of that time.

"The greatest changes in the United States, as I have been able to discern them," he stated, "are in the West. The energy one meets in all parts of this magnificent country finds its highest development on this side of the Mississippi. The factories of the East appear to be doing a big business, but it is not of the kind which reaches out and grows. The only company which in the minds of the German people is making big forward steps, and which should be typical of all other industries in this land, is the company which the people here seem to fear and hate, the Standard Oil Company.

The ladies of the party are enthusiastic over the beauties of this city, and would willingly remain here. The diversity of the architecture came in for the usual remarks.

"Nowhere in this country is wood used so ingenuously for building purposes as here," said Dr. Duisberg, "and none of your homes are unsightly, as are some of the large structures in other cities."

SAN DIEGO MAN MAY WIN.

City Attorney Objects to Check Offered by Lowest Bidder for Reservoir Construction.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—City Attorney Puterbaugh has found a way by which the contract for constructing the University Heights reservoir can be awarded to a local contractor, although the latter's bid is not the lowest.

In an opinion, the City Attorney says that the certified check accompanying the bid of the American Light and Water Company, which was the lowest, is made out and signed by Henry C. Ulen, Jr., as president of the corporation, while the proposal to carry out the contract is submitted in the name of F. K. Lowry, as "bidder." Mr. Puterbaugh states that F. K. Lowry does not sign the name of the corporation as an official, that the check is not indorsed to his satisfaction, and that the city has the right to reject the bid of the American Light and Water Company, which is a Los Angeles concern, if it sees fit.

The matter of the contract will come up at a meeting of the Board of Public Works Monday night. In the meantime petitions are in circulation asking that body to award the contract to a local man, Stephen M. Brown, whose bid is $97,713.91.

WOMAN MAY DIE.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sackett, 75 years old, was hit by a runaway horse while crossing G street yesterday afternoon, and received injuries that will probably cause her death. She came to this city three years ago. A daughter lives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

SCHOOL ASSURED.

The faculty of the State Normal School has decided to inaugurate a summer session, which will begin the latter part of June and continue for six weeks. As the session is not authorized by the State Board of Education, teachers have volunteered their services. President Samuel T. Mack will go to Sacramento Saturday to urge upon the State board the wisdom and importance of maintaining a summer school here.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.

BARGAINS WITH COURT.

Elsinore Lawbreaker Offers to Plead Guilty If Fine is not Over Seventy-five Dollars.

ELSINORE, Nov. 14.—The case against John Robinson for violation of the city liquor ordinance came up this morning before City Recorder Harrison, Walter C. Maloy representing the accused.

Robinson said his parents and brothers were anxious for him to settle the matter, and that if the court would agree not to fine him over $75, he would plead guilty. This Recorder Harrison agreed to. Attorney Maloy then said, in behalf of Robinson, that as he was not the principal in keeping the liquor-selling place, and in consideration of him not being now engaged in that business and promising not to engage in it in the future, the court should remit the fine during good behavior or impose the minimum of $25.

Robinson inquired what they were going to do with the barrel of beer which has been in the City Jail since July 4.

W.C.T.U. WORK.

At the meetings held here this week by the State and county superintendents of the W.C.T.U., Mrs. Griffith and Mrs. Keyes, thirteen new members were added to the local organization. Mrs. J. T. Kuhns was appointed superintendent of scientific instruction work; Mrs. Wert Kirkpatrick, superintendent of the flower mission; Mrs. L. H. Young, superintendent of soldiers and sailors, and Mrs. Maurice Walton, press superintendent. A meeting was held at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage to plan a reception for the school teachers and the new members.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church has elected officers as follows: Miss Beatrice Clark, president; Mrs. S. M. Quimby, first vice-president; Mrs. Howard Clewett, second vice-president; Mrs. J. T. Kuhns, third vice-president; Mrs. W. P. Kirkpatrick, fourth vice-president; Miss Josephine Gibson, secretary and treasurer. The San Diego District Epworth League Institute will be held in Riverside, November 27-29. The delegates from here will be Misses Beatrice Clark, Josephine Gibson and Elsie Longstaff, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Quimby and Rev. Maurice Walton.

The County Teachers' Institute will convene Thanksgiving week. The children of the county will have a vacation at that time.

OXNARD, Nov. 14.—Mrs. T. R. Bard entertained on Thursday with a reception in honor of Miss Bard, sister of Senator Bard.

Mrs. A. H. Wineman has left for Yakima, Wash., where she will join her husband in a tour of that part of the country.

Mrs. L. K. Hope has returned from an extended visit to St. Louis and Washington.

Among Ventura people who attended the sacred concert at the Auditorium Wednesday night for the benefit of the Santa Clara Church, were Misses Daly, Cullinan and Wagner, and J. B. McCloskey.

Mrs. Evelyn Scarlett has left for Berkeley, where she will visit indefinitely with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Kennedy. She was accompanied north by her children, and Miss Lottie Gandolfo of Ventura.

Mrs. T. B. Blackburn has returned from an extended visit in Chicago.

HEMET.

HEMET, Nov. 14.—The Phaque Vaudeville Company, of home talent, played to a large audience at the operahouse last evening. The bill was the best presented here, and included a poppy song by thirty little tots, a poppy dance by nine young ladies, a selection from the "Ham Tree" by V. H. Wilson and H. A. Branner, a solo by the "Lady Baritone," who appeared in a directoire gown, a solo by H. N. H. Woodcock of Los Angeles, several selections by the Botterell Orchestra, and a farce, "In for a Holiday." The entertainment was given for the benefit of the free library, under the auspices of the Woman's Club.

HANDSOME UPLAND HOMES ARE WITHOUT PROTECTION.

Owners of Choice Residences in the Eastern Part of City Are Anxious. Lemon Growers of Cucamonga Organize Exchange—Grape Juice Company Holds Annual Meeting.

UPLAND, Nov. 14.—Fire protection for the extensive property holdings in the eastern part of this city is needed. Some of the handsomest homes here are being erected in this section, especially in the vicinity of the Pleasant View tract, and owners demand fire protection. The Citizens' Water Company may be asked to place larger service pipes, so that a better pressure may be secured.

NEW EXCHANGE.

Lemon growers at Cucamonga have organized an exchange of their own, and have severed their connection with the exchange of this city. It is said many of the members were reluctant to do this, but it was deemed advantageous. Directors of the newly-formed association at the vineyard village are: J. G. Stobe, H. Johnson, J. Maddock, G. H. Thayer, W. H. Horsch, G. P. Dedig and C. T. Brown. O. H. Stanton is secretary, and Horace Little of this city, will serve as foreman.

The California Vineyards and Improvement Company of North Cucamonga, otherwise known as the Grape Juice Company, has just held its annual meeting. The company has manufactured 22,000 gallons of grape juice the past season, nearly all from the Muscat grapes, and enjoys a splendid sale of its product. The juice of the Muscat is especially popular in the eastern market.

D. D. Schlatter of Hermosa has sold his fifteen acres of oranges, mostly young trees, to Mr. Ely, recently of Corona, the consideration being $12,000.

MANY ATTEND "AT HOME."

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Nelson, on Upper Euclid avenue, was the scene of a pretty "at home." Mrs. Nelson was assisted in entertaining by her daughters, Mrs. E. W. Fleming, of Los Angeles, Mrs. Carhart, Mrs. Barnett and Miss Longstreet. Dainty refreshments were served in the diningroom. About 150 ladies attended. Mr. Nelson is president of the Board of Trustees.

At the Baptist parsonage at San Bernardino, on the 12th inst., Miss Agnes Hargroves of this city, and William C. Carse of San Diego, were married. After a short time spent here at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carse will proceed to San Diego, where the groom is connected with the police department.

At the home of James Dundas, on Euclid avenue, the same day, Mrs. Fannie Dundas became the wife of Fred Huxtable, both being residents of this city.

The Trustees have arranged with the Ontario Power Company for the running of a power line to Marble Cañon, north of this city, to operate the stone crusher, which the city will soon have in operation there. It will prepare the material for the work of macadamizing the streets of this city. Lime rock, which is found there in large quantities, is to be used.

MODERN PACKING-HOUSE.

Nine Fruit Growers of Escondido Unite to Erect Building for Their Exclusive Use.

ESCONDIDO, Nov. 14.—A modern packing-house, 118x128 feet, with a sweat house 22x28 feet, the fomer having a capacity of twenty-four carloads and the latter two of fruit, have been completed by the Escondido Fruit Growers' Association, which is receiving its first lemons. C. S. Johnson, formerly with Leffingwell, near Whittier, and later with the Whittier Citrus Association, is the manager.

The association is composed of nine growers in the valley, who will have the building for their exclusive use in packing and shipping lemons and oranges, the marketing, however, being done through the Southern California Fruit Exchange. It expects to market 125 carloads of fruit this season, of which 100 carloads will be lemons. The directors are: A. W. Wohlford, president; W. L. Ramey, vice-president; W. W. Prior, W. D. Wooldridge, Albert Bevin. F. E. Boudinot is secretary of the association. The nine growers in the combine have approximately 200 acres of orchard.

COLTON.

COLTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Dr. B. B. Porter, an old resident of this city, passed away at his home on West I street at an advanced age yesterday. The remains will be buried tomorrow. Rev. Dr. Murkett will have charge of the services at the residence, and the Masons at the grave. Interment will be at San Bernardino.

A man giving the name of John Lane worked numerous citizens yesterday by pretending to some to be deaf and dumb, and posing to others as a member of several secret orders. When his graft was discovered about twenty citizens escorted him to jail.

HOME RANCH SALES.

The Percy H. Clark Company, in the last two weeks, has closed deals for acreage in Kern county valued at $50,000. Sixty per cent. of the sales were made the day after the election. These include about 18,000 acres on the Home ranch at prices ranging from $15 to $42 an acre.

Tenants Who Carry Off Their Farms.

The modern farmer was applying electrical massage to a cart horse's sprained knee. During the intervals of rest, he talked farm talk.

"There are tenants," he said, "who, when they move, carry their farms with them as the tortoise does his house. These people are the Norman French, the world's best farmers.

"Where you or I would require twenty or thirty acres of land to keep one family, the French farmer will keep a family on a quarter of an acre. If he chose to cultivate twenty or thirty acres, he would become a millionaire.

"His secret lies in the perfection to which he brings his top soil. What with fertilizing and watering and clearing, his top soil is the blackest, finest, richest soil on earth. His top soil is to the French farmer what her voice is to the prima donna.

"And when he rents he contracts that on the termination of his lease he may carry off eighteen inches of the top soil with him.

"When you see a French farmer moving, one small cart carries his household goods and in seven or eight enormous drays his top soil lumbers on behind."—[Philadelphia Bulletin.

COLLEGE MEN IN HILARIOUS MOOD.

JOINT FEAST OF STANFORD AND CALIFORNIA ALUMNI.

Every Move in Big Football Game in North Watched on Electric Shadowgraph and Songs and Yells Split Air—Affair so Successful, Will Be Repeated Yearly.

The long-mooted question as to whether Stanford and California men could remain in the same room for a short time and not give occasion for a general police and fire alarm was settled last night, when the members of the local alumni associations of the northern universities held a joint banquet at Levy's and received the returns of the football game in the north. The affair was such a success that it probably will be repeated annually.

Two hundred persons were at the tables, the Stanford alumni being slightly in the majority. All the cardinal classes were represented, the first graduating section, the class of 1895 having six members present. Frank Kelsey of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, California, '79, was the oldest person in the assemblage.

Upon an electrical shadowgraph, designed by R. H. Manahan, Stanford '97, and Clem Copeland, Stanford '96, the plays in the big game were shown, and deafening cheers were given by the two factions as their respective teams gained an advantage. When the winning tally was flashed, the Stanford men performed a serpentine dance around the room, while the Berkeley alumni gave the old college yells and songs.

The California men were grouped on one side of the room and the Stanford alumni on the other. At the head of the center table sat the presidents of the associations, Dr. John A. Colliver, Stanford '97, and Max Lowenthal, California '81. Between them, dressed in a cardinal sweater, was the mascot of the banquet, Master Eric Waite, son of M. P. Waite, Stanford '00. The Stanford men wore huge cardinal chrysanthemums, and the California alumni were decked with yellow flowers.

The affair was very informal and the college men had been instructed that dress suits were tabooed. Frank Harry Mayberry, California '89, and M. P. Waite, Stanford '00, armed with stuffed clubs, paraded around the tables and carried all violators of the rule to an improvised platform, where they were required to perform various "stunts."

Hilarity reigned supreme. College yells and songs split the air continuously. After the last course had been served, the company clapped hands on shoulders and circled about the room, yelling and shouting.

Several stunts symbolic of college rivalry were worked and volleys of cheers were evoked. A mechanical California bear attempted to attack a Stanford "bunny," but the cardinal pet spit fire just as he was overtaken and routed the enemy.

Yvonne Lamour Ross and Yólande Fiatte, accompanied by Mrs. Adella Ross, sang several songs that were heartily applauded. The men joined in the choruses with vim and assisted the pianist by thumping their mugs on the tables.

The joint session was first suggested by the California Alumni Association, and the Stanford men readily assented to the plan. On account of the victory of Stanford over California, the cardinal men were in a better position to enjoy the celebration, but the blue and gold alumni gave no evidence of their disappointment. At any rate, they made as much noise as their victorious rivals and good-naturedly received jests. Corncob pipes were passed around and smoked as tokens of peace.

President Colliver and Secretary A. J. Copp, '02 of the Stanford association, and President Lowenthal and Secretary Walter Schmidt, '97, of the California club, made the arrangements for the banquet. Ed. Lyman, Stanford '04, who will probably be the next president of the local alumni association, and George Dryer, '00, were the Stanford committeemen. Russ Avery, '93, and Harry Mayberry assisted the California officials.

PROHIBITION IN MAINE.

Drink not from a Glass, but from Gas Jets and Other Useful Fixtures.

Eben W. Sears of Lynn, has returned from his vacation in Lewiston, Me., with a remarkable tale of the way liquor is served in the Prohibition State. Sears says that a friend took him into a place where several men were drinking and ordered some beer. The room was without furniture or fixtures save for one table, a few chairs and the gas jets.

While Sears was wondering where the beer was to come from the proprietor stepped to a gas jet and turned it on, whereat the amber fluid flowed forth as from the spigot of a keg. The proprietor filled the glasses of Sears and his friend, and then two others customers drew forth two mugs of ale from another gas jet. After that he produced a glass of whisky from a third jet.

Seeing that there were several more gas jets in the room Sears, as a test of the proprietor's resources, was about to call for a Martini cocktail when suddenly there were alarums and scurryings without, followed by a noise like a squad of liquor deputies.

Instantly the proprietor sprang to a corner and pressed an invisible button. Wondering what the effect of this might be, Sears turned on the beer gas jet, but nothing came forth.

"The gas is shut off," said the proprietor with a wink. Sears was unable to learn where the liquor came from. He says he thinks the proprietor had tanks in the walls.—[Boston Herald.

Consultation and examination free for any disease whether you take treatment or not.

Lost Hearing Restored in Two Weeks

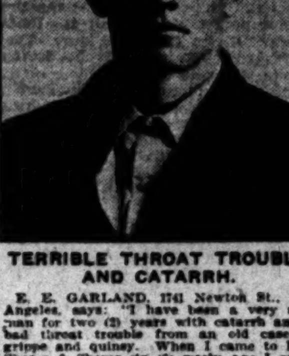
H. P. CAULK,
1020 Wall St., Los Angeles.

Mr. Caulk says: "I have been a great sufferer from catarrh for fifteen (15) years, affecting my nose, throat and head with all the usual symptoms. It finally got so bad that it affected my hearing. Five years ago I noticed that I was getting deaf. My right ear got so bad I could scarcely hear a thing out of it. The other ear was also affected. They would also roar, especially when I would take cold. This was my condition when I came to Drs. Shores & Shores six (6) weeks ago. Their treatment helped me from the start. IN TWO WEEKS MY LOST HEARING WAS RESTORED, and the roaring noises in my ears has ceased, and my catarrhal troubles are wonderfully improved in every way. MY HEAD FEELS PERFECTLY CLEAR. I take great pleasure in recommending Drs. Shores to all sufferers from deafness and catarrh, for their treatment has done wonders for me. Any one doubting this testimonial is at perfect liberty to call on me and I will gladly verify the truthfulness of this testimonial."

(Signed) H. P. CAULK.

$3 WE ALSO CURE BY MAIL $3

Do not despair because you live at a distance from the city. Drs. Shores' new system of HOME TREATMENT makes it easy to get expert advice and treatment at home. Their new symptom blank covers every symptom of disease, which enables them to diagnose the case and tell you what the trouble is, what can be done for you. WRITE for their new symptom list and take advantage of the grand special offer. CONSULTATION FREE, whether you take treatment or not, the advice costs you nothing.



TERRIBLE THROAT TROUBLE AND CATARRH.

E. E. GARLAND, 1741 Newton St., Los Angeles, says: "I have been a very sick man for two (2) years with catarrh and a bad throat trouble from an old case of grippe and quinsy. When I came to Drs. Shores & Shores six (6) weeks ago I could scarcely speak above a whisper, and my throat was so bad it hurt me so I could scarcely eat, it was so painful. I had lost thirty (30) pounds in weight, and was very weak and run down. Drs. Shores & Shores' treatment helped me from the first. IN NINE (9) DAYS I could eat a good square meal, the first in a year. I have steadily improved, gained in weight sixteen pounds, my catarrhal troubles are much better, and my throat does not pain me any more, and I can now do a good day's work as a carpenter, thanks to Drs. Shores' skill. Their treatment has worked wonders for me, and I recommend them to all afflicted as I was. Any one doubting this statement is at perfect liberty to call on me and I will gladly verify this testimonial."

(Signed) "E. E. GARLAND."

READ THE TESTIMONIALS OF YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS, THEN COME AND SEE THE DOCTORS WHO CURE.

START RIGHT—YOU MAY NOT HAVE A SECOND CHANCE.

Sick people should remember that a mistake in selecting their physician cannot be reckoned by the MONEY LOSS ALONE—for in serious ailments if a mistake is made there may be no time to RECTIFY THE ERROR.

Disease does not wait—and people who try first one doctor and then another—always concluding that if one doctor fails they can still secure another—must remember THEY MAY NEVER HAVE THE SECOND CHANCE—and should be sure the FIRST TIME that the physician selected is the most competent and is the most successful doctor, regardless of his charges.

CATARRH OF THE HEAD AND THROAT.

This form of catarrh is most common—resulting from neglected colds—quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is your nose stopped up?"
"Does your nose discharge?"
"Is your nose sore and tender?"
"Is there pain in front of the head?"
"Do you hawk to clear the throat?"
"Do you sleep with your mouth open?"

You can be easily cured now—don't let it run into complications.

CATARRH OF THE EARS.

Catarrh extends from the throat along the eustachian tubes into the ears, causing partial or complete deafness. Quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is your hearing failing?"
"Do your ears discharge?"
"Is the wax drying in your ears?"
"Do you hear better some days than others?"
"Is your hearing worse when you have a cold?"

Don't neglect this until your hearing is irreparably destroyed.

THE BRONCHIAL TUBES.

When catarrh of the head or throat is neglected or wrongfully treated, it extends down the windpipe into the bronchial tubes and after a while attacks the lungs. Quickly cured with little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Have you a cough?"
"Have you a pain in the side?"
"Do you raise frothy materials?"
"Do you spit up little cheesy lumps?"
"Do you feel you are growing weaker?"

Don't risk neglecting these warnings—stop the disease before it reaches the lungs.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

Catarrh of the stomach is usually caused by swallowing poisonous mucus, which drops from the head and throat at night. Quickly cured at little cost by Drs. Shores' famous treatment.

"Is there nausea?"
"Do you belch up gas?"
"Are you constipated?"
"Do you bloat up after eating?"
"Is there constant bad taste in the mouth?"

Now is the time to be permanently cured. Drs. Shores are curing hundreds every year.

LIVER DISEASES.

Are you irritable?
Are you nervous?
Do you get dizzy?
Have you no energy?
Do you have cold feet?
Do you feel miserable?
Is your memory poor?
Do you get tired easily?
Do you have hot flashes?
Is your eyesight blurred?
Have you pain in the back?

KIDNEY DISEASES.

Results in two ways by taking cold and by overworking the kidneys in separating from the blood poisons which affect all organs. Quickly cured with little cost by Dr. Shores' famous treatment.

"Do your hands and feet swell?"
"Is it noticed more at night?"
"Is there pain in small of back?"
"Has the perspiration a bad odor?"
"Is there puffiness under the eyes?"
"Do you have to get up often at night?"
"Is there a deposit of urine if left standing?"

Don't neglect these signs and risk Bright's Disease killing you. Cure it now.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

Are you nervous?
Have you no energy?
Is your memory poor?
Is there a feeling of unrest?
Is your mind often confused?
Do you often have a lump in your throat?
Are your hands often wet with perspiration?

These symptoms result when the disease poisons affect the nervous system. If you have any of them, don't risk your health by neglect. Drs. Shores have cured hundreds—they can cure you.

STRICTLY RELIABLE.

If you suffer from CATARRH or CHRONIC disease, just as sure as you read these lines, just as sure will DRS. SHORES & SHORES cure you IF YOU ONLY TRY (except, of course, you, by neglect or improper treatment, have allowed your disease to become incurable.) DRS. SHORES are experts in treatment and cure of Deafness, Catarrh and all forms of Nervous, Private and complicated chronic diseases.

GOOD HEALTH AT SEVENTY-SEVEN.

Mrs. S. J. Edwards, Union City, Tenn., writes under date of November 7, 1904, the following:

"On the 7th day of February, 1905, if I live, I will be seventy-seven years of age. I enjoy the best of health, thanks to Peruna, and have not had a spell of sickness since I began using it five or six years ago.

"I consider it the grandest medicine on earth, and whenever I feel a little badly a few doses of Peruna put me right.

"I can do as much work as I could forty years ago. I think all old people, who feel the effects of age, should benefit their health by using Peruna."

ILL THE BEST PART OF HIS LIFE.

Mr. J. R. Prince, R. R. 2, Cattaraugus, N. Y., writes: "I am not very well satisfied with the picture I am sending you, but when the reader looks at this picture if he could only realize that the original had suffered for forty-five years, the best of life, until your kind advice and prescription cured him, he would know from whence these wrinkles came. Nex month I shall be sixty-six years old.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Mrs. Martha Avery, 28 Graham st., Leominster, Mass., writes:

"Four years ago I had nervous prostration. I employed several doctors. One would say I had catarrh of the stomach and bowels, another nervousness and another enlargement of the liver. My stomach was in a bad shape. There was nothing which seemed to do me much good.

"I tried other remedies, but did not gain my flesh until I commenced taking your Peruna, which built me right up. I have taken several bottles, but have not taken any now for about six weeks.

"I am seventy-three years old. I never expect to be entirely well or young again, but I am thankful for what Peruna has done for me."

FEELS TEN YEARS YOUNGER.

Mr. Henry Merz., 1503 West Franklin st., Evansville, Ind., writes: "When I first wrote to you I had bronchial trouble for four years, and had tried several doctors, but they could do me no good. I had pain and rattling in the chest, cough, expectoration, especially at night.

"I took Peruna and can now say that I am entirely well. I feel ten years younger since using Peruna. I recommend Peruna to all my friends, for I was in bad condition.

"I am an old soldier and am seventy-seven years old."

Fur Fashions Are Ready Now

—ready, as they have never been before. It is an exhibit of which Los Angeles and The Unique may well feel proud.

The furs are from "Revillion Freres," the most notable furriers in all the world.

The styles are distinctive and exclusive, and every piece is absolutely guaranteed to be of the very highest quality, and to give reliable and honest service.

Every new shape that is shown on Fifth avenue is shown here—and in all the fashionable furs—mink, lynx, Hudson Bay sables, pointed fox, ermine, white fox, isabella fox, pointed wolf and blue wolf.

The showing of muffs is exceptionally fine. The new pillow and rug effects are shown in all the various furs.

We shall be glad of an opportunity to show them to you.

Charming New Garments Just Opened

Some of the most beautiful garments we have shown this year, just came in Saturday, and will make their initial appearance here on Monday.

These garments have not been shown, even on Fifth avenue, for more than a week or ten days.

There are princess dresses of chiffon broadcloth, beautifully embroidered. They come in champagne, catawba, old blue, wisteria, Nile green, lavender, mauve, chocolate, navy, black, peach and pearl—with coats to match. They make very clever combination suits.

Some smart new tailored suits came, too. They are entirely new effects, and very special values at $25, $35 and $40.

And an elegant new line of dresses in satins and cloths, in every new shade—$25 to $75.

HANDS OFF!

OUR HARBOR NEEDS NO STATE CONTROL.

Only Friendly Legislation Asked for Local Cities to Run it.

Legislative Committee, Ready to Recommend Commission and Million and Half in Bonds for Great San Pedro Maritime Mart, Will Be Opposed in Conference Here Tomorrow—Offer Too Late.

SAN PEDRO HARBOR—the harbor of Los Angeles—is coming to its own. This sheltered inlet, with its broad sheet of blue water, its miles of salt flats and marsh lands, and its comparatively unvarying tides is taking its place as one of the maritime marts of the world's commerce.

Last to accord the recognition it should have received a half century ago, the State of California and the great commercial interests of the Occident and the Orient are now vying with each other to do it honor, and to lend a helping hand in its development.

In the Chamber of Commerce tomorrow morning will be held the San Pedro conference which our legislators struggled for three decades ago—and struggled in vain. Now it comes unsolicited. A legislative committee appointed by the State to investigate the needs of its coast harbors will be in session to consider San Pedro. This committee has already signified readiness to recommend the appointment of a State Harbor Commission for this port; also a bond issue of at least $1,500,000 for harbor development here.

Committees representing the business and commercial interests of Los Angeles county will meet with this committee for the purpose of declining the proffered State commission, and the money which the legislative committee is willing to recommend.

Capt. Amos A. Fries, Corps of Engineers, U.S.A., the engineer to charge of the government work at San Pedro Harbor, has advised strongly against a State harbor commission for that port. In this the Municipal Harbor Commission and the Chamber of Commerce concur.

Thirty years ago, State control was sought almost on bended knees of unfriendly machine-bossed Legislatures, and denied. The State has looked quietly on while private interests have usurped privileges which it should have protected; then Los Angeles county was represented by a delegation of three members in the State Legislature, and the appeals for State aid for the magnificent but undeveloped harbor at San Pedro were treated with scorn.

Now conditions have changed. San Pedro Harbor is backed by the most populous county in California. Its shore line marks the southern limits of a great commercial and manufacturing city, with a population of 300,000. It is the gateway through which must pass the commerce of Southern and Central California, Nevada, Utah, New Mexico and Arizona.

Vessels of twenty-five-feet draught ride easily at anchor in the inner harbor. Great transcontinental railways are fighting like gladiators for coveted places on its water front. Manufacturers are offering fabulous prices for what was considered ten years ago worthless salt marsh, and the United States government reports show lines drawn and improvements planned for San Pedro as one of the world's greatest harbors.

The tardy recognition from the State appears to come too late. The State bonds which the Legislative Committee favors mean in reality only State credit; and San Pedro Harbor does not need credit from the State, that of the city and county of Los Angeles is amply sufficient.

ONLY FRIENDLINESS ASKED.

The only assistance which the Los Angeles delegation will ask of the State Legislature for San Pedro Harbor is friendly legislation, which will enable the cities and towns of Los Angeles county to unite under a single government, and the different municipalities to unite when such action is mutually desired.

The $1,500,000 which the State proposes to furnish in bonds means only lending the State credit to that amount. The money would have to be paid back to the bond buyers in seventy-five years from the money received in harbor dues at San Pedro; the people of the State at large would pay nothing.

In order to receive this money it would be necessary for us to consent to the appointment of a State board to control the harbor; this of itself would place the harbor in control of the northern part of the State, and would require us to go to the State Legislature for permission to make harbor improvements at San Pedro.

San Francisco and San Diego are now State harbors, but San Francisco is growing restive under State control. At the time San Francisco Harbor was taken under the control of the State it meant practically local control; then almost three-fourths of the population of the State was about San Francisco Bay, and the control of the State Legislature was there.

STATE CONTROL PUZZLING.

During the last decade these conditions have changed; the center of population is shifting to the south, and San Francisco finds it difficult to make the rest of the State understand just what are the needs of San Francisco Harbor.

This is evidenced in the voice of protest that has been raised here in Los Angeles county over the proposal of the Legislative Committee to recommend $1,500,000 in bonds for San Diego, $1,500,000 for San Pedro and $10,000,000 for San Francisco. When bonds are voted the people expect as a matter of course that they shall be redeemed out of the State tax money.

Harbor improvement bonds are not so paid. They extend over a period of seventy-five years and are redeemed by the money collected in harbor dues. The taxpayers of Los Angeles county exercise by reason of State control jurisdiction over the harbor of San Francisco, but they do not pay for the maintenance of the harbor there.

The result of the last State election shows pretty conclusively, however, that it is not easy to make this plain to the average voter of the State. Just now San Francisco would fare better if the control of her harbor rested with the government of San Francisco city and county instead of the government of the State.

UNCLE SAM ENCOURAGES.

It is from the United States government engineers that the most encouraging reports come concerning the possible development of San Pedro Harbor. The first money expended by the government there has accomplished so much that it will be easier to secure other appropriations.

A gratifying earnest of the good faith of the government comes just now in the announcement that it has under contemplation a magnificent improvement for the tide lands about Dead Man's Island.

FILL FOR NAVAL BASE.

The government controls fifteen acres of submerged land lying east of the island. It is proposed to fill this with the soil, rock and shells displaced in dredging the channel, and to make of the whole a government reservation, where shall be located a quarantine station, and the beginning of the naval base which Uncle Sam has in view in all its San Pedro Harbor developments.

Public wharves, docks, slips and possibly warehouses are needed badly for the further development of San Pedro Harbor, but the civic and commercial bodies interested recommend that these be under the control of the consolidated cities of Los Angeles, Wilmington and San Pedro, rather than under the jurisdiction of the State.

TO LOS ANGELES DOCKS.

Los Angeles has already secured frontage on the inner basin; this in itself assures municipal docks and warehouses, since by extending the channel which the government is now dredging in the inner basin deep-sea vessels can be brought to the city docks of Los Angeles, which already has become a harbor city.

This much has been accomplished through the medium of the "Shoestring" strip.

But this is not a hundredth part of what is expected to come later. The sentiment for consolidation in San Pedro and Wilmington appears to be almost unanimous; the opposition manifested a year ago neither began nor ended with the people there. It is now admitted to have been a foreign sentiment manufactured by certain interests which were not yet ready for the people to assume control of the great free harbor.

CAPT. FRIES'S VALUABLE WORK.

Capt. Fries has rendered valuable assistance in pointing the way to public control of San Pedro Harbor. In the cities of San Pedro and Wilmington he is so highly regarded that a suggestion from him carries great weight.

Capt. Fries spent the greater part of Friday reviewing the work accomplished on the outer and inner harbors, and preparing suggestions for San Pedro Harbor Development Scenes.

The Federal government is doing a stupendous work of improvement here, and State politicians seek to wrest control from Los Angeles city and county.

HEARTLESS.

GRAVES DESPOILED BY FLOWER GHOULS.

TAKING advantage of the great call for fresh-cut flowers for street sales, a gang of young criminals is pilfering the local graveyards to supply the demand.

Ofttimes well-dressed women, gay and happy, enter the theaters to attend matinées, wearing at their waists beautiful flowers that ought to be resting above the dead, asleep in the earth. Of course, the wearers do not know this.

The small cemeteries of the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles appear to be the particular prey of the flower ghouls. Sorrowing relatives visit the graveyards every morning to place the finest blossoms to be had upon the little mounds and headstones. They weep and then depart, while the petty thief awaits his chance, purloins the fresh-cut flowers, and when he has collected enough to make business interesting he comes into the city and either peddles the loot or sells it to a small stand.

This grewsome work, according to women who have complained, has been going on for some time. In the large cemeteries the thieves have had difficulty in getting away with the flowers, but in several instances have managed to carry off bundles.

The most choice products of the beautiful gardens of the city are frequently used to decorate graves. Great bunches of chrysanthemums, carnations and roses are daily placed on graves. These often disappear within an hour after the mourner has departed, and within another hour the grave blossoms may be flaunting from some woman's beautiful gown on Broadway.

Petty thievery of all kinds has been reported from various cemeteries.

Rosedale has a large force of men constantly on duty, but even there it is occasionally necessary to employ an officer to track a petty thief.

"Some time ago, we had a flower thief at the cemeetry," said S. M. Sinsabaugh, secretary of the Rosedale Cemetery Association, yesterday.

"This thief, however, did not rob the graves of blossoms, but confined his attention to a number of beautiful pansy plants we had on the grounds. He took them as opportunity offered until the loss became noticeable. We set a watch for him, and he was finally apprehended.

Other reports of losses of fine jardinieres have been received. Cemetery officials explain these losses by stating that it is necessary to remove all flower pots and jardinieres from the graves, so that the lawn mower can do its work.

"It would be a hard thing for a man to get away with fresh flowers from Rosedale Cemetery," said Secretary Sinsabaugh.

"If a person is seen carrying flowers about the graveyard, nothing is said, but the employés do not allow any flowers to be carried from the park. However, the acreage is large, and some one might manage to get out with cut flowers. We have had cases of criminally inclined people taking the flowers from one grave and carrying them to another near by. A mother will frequently do that sort of thing, seeing handsome flowers on a mound, and wanting them to be placed above the head of her child.

"As to the disappearance of jardinieres, I think that any one who has lost one in Rosedale can secure it by calling at the office. We do not allow pots or jardinieres of any kind to remain on the graves.

"It is imopssible to run the lawn mowers over these things, and proper receptables are placed to contain flowers, so that we collect all this miscellaneous assortment of pots and store them away."

WORTH MORE THAN GOLD.

Tiny Dog, Now Here, Valued at Twenty-five Dollars an Ounce, and Weighs Twenty.

A dog worth $25 an ounce does not need to have very many ounces to be a thing of great value. And Beach, a toy terrier, owned by J. E. Wright of the London Daily Mail, who has been sojourning in Los Angeles, is the tiny piece of nature that is worth his weight in gold—and then some.

Beach is not the littlest dog that ever was, but he is perhaps the littlest dog that now is. A titled lady of England once owned a toy terrier weighing eleven ounces, and it lived to a respectable dog age. The one owned by Mr. Wright weighs twenty ounces and is valued at $500. He is six months old, and Mr. Wright picked him up in Mexico for a small price and determined to take him back to England when he goes.

But so small a dog is not to be cared for like the ordinary canine. So Mr. Wright made him a pocket pet. Too little to trust on his own four feet, his owner had a pocket improvised inside his coat where Beach nestles, and from which he emerges to sit in state on his master's hand and receive the homage of dog fanciers.

In order that his Lilliputian dignity may be properly maintained, Beach has a wardrobe, consisting of blankets, sweaters and shoes. In addition, he ewars a collar of solid gold weighing four pennyweight, and even this is regarded as a little too heavy for his constant use

RAILROAD RECORD.

GASOLINE AND TROLLEY CARS.

Two Short Lines Here Soon; La Habra Route.

Interurbans in Valley of San Joaquin.

Santa Maria New Road With Ancient Equipment.

The success of the Huntington and Harriman electric interurban lines in Southern California is encouraging small traction systems all over the State. The next six months is likely to see a number of new lines start, some electric and some gasoline motors. South of the Tehachepi two are planned, the first, the Redlands and Yucalpa Valley, having its material on hand, and the other to run from Tropico to Burbank. Both important feeders to main routes. Both tap regions of agricultural and horticultural wealth. The San Fernando Valley, right at the city's gate, has received little attention from the great interurban railway systems. The Burbank line will connect with the Huntington lines at Tropico, is independent, and will use gasoline motors, as will the Redlands line. At present Burbank is entirely dependent upon the steam roads.

The Santa Fé is working on the California and Arizona Railroad, the great cutoff, on the west side of the Colorado River, that will open an immense territory in Eastern San Bernardino county rich in minerals.

This winter the Southern Pacific will complete the route along the border of Lower California, that will mean trains through the Imperial Valley to Yuma and the East. The first of the Espee motor cars are expected. About forty have already been ordered for the State, and some will probably come here. All this is in addition to general improvements, many small in themselves, that the company is carrying out, such as relaying tracks with heavier steel, reballasting, and the work on the Mojave to Keeler line, which should be near completion by spring, and followed at once by broad-gauging the route from Keeler north to the junction with the Goldfield road.

HUNTINGTON-HARRIMAN LINES.

The Pacific Electric's La Habra line is now complete and in operation. For some time it has been run with the steam locomotive from Los Nietos until the trolley wires could be strung. The plan has been to run a car from Sixth and Main streets to Los Nietos as a trailer to a Whittier car, and there couple it to the engine for the run down the valley. The wires are now up, and the following schedule is in effect: Cars leaving Sixth and Main streets at 7:50 and 11 o'clock a.m. and 2 and 4:55 p.m. There is no call for very frequent service now, and this leads to confirmation of the popular belief that an extension to Riverside is likely in the very near future, with probably connections for other points.

The extension from Santa Ana to the beet-sugar factory is completed, and to be put into regular use as soon as the sugar factory is sufficiently busy to afford business.

But for the Wilmington trustees the Pacific Electric would undoubtedly have its tracks laid to complete the line from San Pedro to Balboa Beach, which needs only this line between Long Beach and Wilmington. The rulers of the little town, however, show no sign of any weakening, and the railroad will not give in on the fares. The end of the contest, each party waiting for the other to move, does not seem to be in sight.

In a general way it is believed that Mr. Huntington will be ready to move in some big projects before long, such as the building of the much-needed trestle and elevated yard in the rear of the depot at Sixth and Main streets.

The Los Angeles Pacific is showing no disposition to move rapidly in the matter of double-tracking the old Espee line to Santa Monica or from North Beach to the Long Wharf. Its attention is concentrated on the Hill-street tunnel for the moment. The Hollywood and Colegrove lines will doubtless be broad-gauged this winter.

The Malibu ranch line, the "road of mystery," has completed the mileage it must build each year, and is resting. Speculation is endless, but it is always said by those interested, to be independent. It is believed by many that it will be completed as such, and then be sold to any who will buy. It will connect at each end with the Harriman lines, the Los Angeles-Pacific at Port Los Angeles and the Southern Pacific at the north terminal, and, if acquired by them, would afford a shorter route to town for the Coast Line, with an easy entrance to the heart of the city via the subway.

LINES UP THE STATE.

But it is not only south of the Tehachepi that interurban railroads are planned or have been built within recent times. The central San Joaquin valley is likely to be a network of such lines in a few years. Preliminary work is being done on a road to connect Fresno with Hanford, via Kingsburg, Selma and Fowler. The promoter is F. S. Granger, who is backed, it is said, by San Francisco, New

BUY AND BOOST!

HOME GOODS, LIVELY WEEK.

Industrial Jubilee Has High Educational Value.

Local Patriotism in Trade Means Prosperity.

Period of Features in a Land of Plenty.

With a ten-minute blast from a thousand factory whistles, Prosperity Week will announce itself at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning. It will be the voice of salutation from the home people who make things for home people; the salutation of busy hands to other busy hands; an invitation to join in the industrial jubilee that is intended to teach the lesson of local patriotism and its inevitable prosperity.

The early salute will preach the doctrine that the 1811 factories of Los Angeles city, which represent 482 separate lines of manufacture, deserve the support of every resident of the city. Those who have found the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce's industrial list a convenient hand-book not always have stopped to analyze what its value is. That there are 1811 factories and 482 lines of manufacture are followed is not thoroughly known. But those who think of articles they need have only to consult the index to this list to find that nearly everything required in commerce or domestic life is found in the home-made market. The lesson of Prosperity Week is "Buy," because the goods are made here, and "Boost," because there arw no better. From this came Dr. Barnum's slogan: "Buy and Boost Home Products."

EDUCATIONAL IDEA.

The week is designed to be educational in depicting the industrial activity of the great city and inspiring that local patriotism which buys the product of its own hands. In addition it is a public means of congratulating the city on its general prosperity, its substantial and growing commercial life and its promising future. But the principal value is educational. By the great parade of Southern California manufactured products of Wednesday and the open house kept by the factories Thursday, the public is to be shown why home-made goods deserve patronage.

The slogan will be in evidence everywhere. One hundred thousand buttons, the same number of window placards, twenty thousand pennants and hundreds of special window displays will impress it. It will arouse every nook and cranny of the city. And its echoes will last a generation. In addition a large number of downtown stores will maintain exhibitions of "made in Southern California" articles differing with the lines of business which merchants engage in.

But the Prosperity Week idea, suggested by Miss Frances Holmes, had its prototype. As far back as 1894 that mighty crusader of prosperity for Southern California, Frank Wiggins, had a similar idea, and it was embodied in the Chamber of Commerce float in the Fiesta parade of that year. The indisputable evidence of it is the photograph which has survived and is printed on this page. That is was prophetic, Prosperity Week will demonstrate. And the necromancer of boosting, the only Wiggins, is the prophet to break the rule and be honored in his own country and time. But this does not detract from the value of Miss Holmes's idea, for it means an annual week of industrial evangelism to stimulate home patronage.

THE OPENING DAY.

Beginning tomorrow, with its exulting blast of whistles, the buttons will be on tap everywhere. They bear the slogan that is to identify home products. They will be distributed from a hundred places. At 10 o'clock the comic band will be sent out in the business district to herald the exuberance of prosperity. In the afternoon the band will visit the residence sections, while at Central Park there will be a band concert by the Santa Monica Bay Italian Band and an address by Lee C. Gates. On the same day the art exhibit made up of paintings by Southern California artists will open at Blanchard Hall and remain open all week.

In the evening the Chamber of Commerce will exemplify patronage of home industries, when the directors will occupy boxes and the membership the main floor at the Auditorium, where "The Searchlight," a play written by Richard Barry of Monrovia, formerly a member of The Times staff, will be produced.

At the same performance the yellow badges will appear. They identify those who have made the pledge: "I have pledged myself to buy only home products this week. Such a pledge will soon open the eyes of those who take it that inquiry will reveal that every article required is made here at home.

Tuesday will duplicate Monday's programme with the comic and Santa Monica bands. In the evening there will be a concert at the Shrine Auditorium, tendered by the Chamber of Commerce to the Retail Clerks' Association, to which admission may be gained by tickets distributed by the members of the association. Mayor A. C. Harper, President G. H. Stewart of the Chamber of Commerce and F. Tyrrell will make addresses. The musical numbers will include Madame Genevra Johnstone-Bishop, the Nowland-Hunter Trio, Lottie and Agnes Buisseret and Fred McPherson, May Orcutt, Nuncie Bittman, Helen Goff and Enid Lynn.

FACTORIES PARADE.

Wednesday is to be the day when the mountain comes to Mahomet, for the factories will unite in a parade three miles long, showing the products of their work. This is to be one of the biggest educational features devised for the stimulation of home buying and will be representative of the hundreds of diverse manufacturing interests here. It will also be an occasion when the factories will vie with each other in distributing souvenirs intended to commemorate the day and the product of each shop. For instance, F. W. Braun, who manufactures metallurgical appliances that have carried the name of Los Angeles over the world, particularly gold melting furnaces, will distribute thousands of miniature gold bricks, just as they come from the mines, as souvenirs of his success. Others will have equally clever devices and all will use the buttons that bear the "Buy and Boost" slogan.

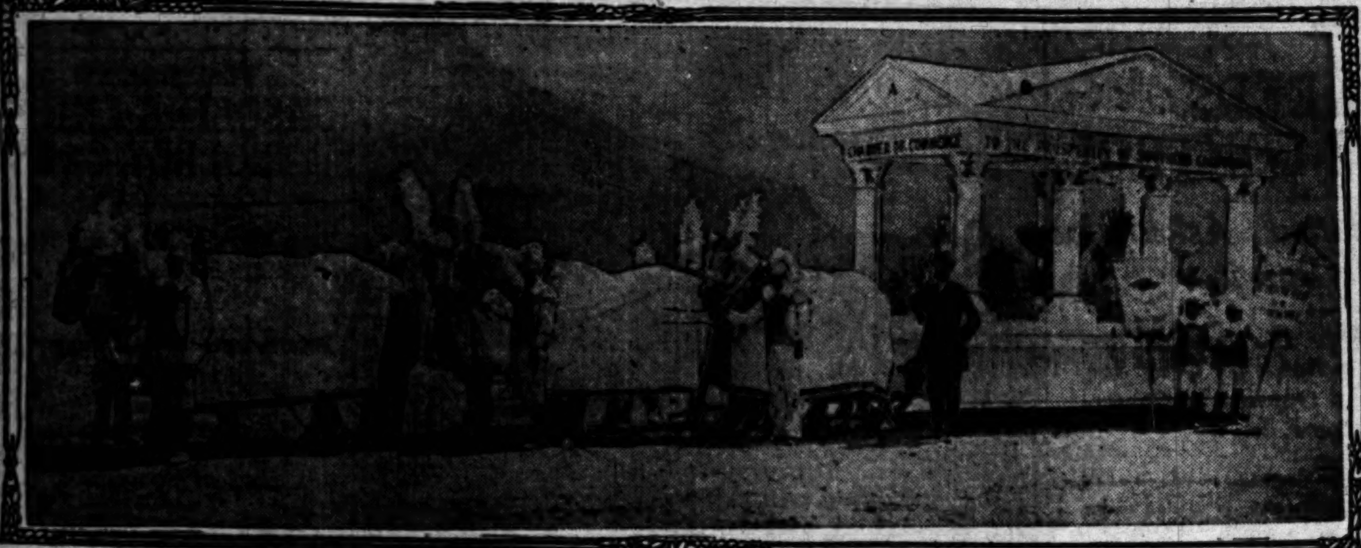
The parade is to move at 1:30 o'clock, and, being three miles long, will follow a wide line of march. It might have easily been ten miles long, but the Chamber of Commerce confined it exclusively to Los Angeles and its factory products. It was the certainty of its educational value that brought offers of coöperation from a score of surrounding cities, but the chamber thought it inadvisable to expand beyond the local limitations. Hence San Pedro, Monrovia, Redondo, Santa Ana and Colton have arranged similar one-day home-product celebrations as incidents of the great week here. And Colton's generous offer of her band for the big parade has been accepted.

The parade will not prevent the comic band from its periginations, and in the evening Donatelli's Band and Manuel Bonardeau, baritone, will give a concert at Central Park.

SEEING THE FACTORIES.

Thursday Mahomet is to go to the mountain, for it is "Factory Visiting Day." Having seen the finished product of the factories, the public is to be admitted through an "open house" procession to all the humming hives of industry. It is to be another form of education, teaching where and how the articles are made, how the making of them keeps thousands of families in happiness, and showing the mutuality of the maker and the buyer in prosperity. To make the tour easily the Chamber of Commerce has arranged for "seeing the factories" automobiles which will leave its building beginning at 8:30 o'clock and continue to make trips until 5 o'clock.

A concert by the Symphony Orchestra at Shriners' Auditorium will be the afternoon feature of Friday. As usual the comic band will be at large and a concert at Central Park at 2:30 o'clock by the Santa Monica Band will be additional features. Saturday will be the closing day, with the usual band concerts at the park and a special day at the Chamber of Commerce exhibit, though this famous museum of Southern California products will be open every day.



Chamber of Commerce's original prosperity idea. A Fiesta float fourteen years ago.

ART AWAKENING.

MELODY RIVER TO FLOW HERE.

Popular Concerts Arranged for Children.

To Encourage Talent and Cultivate Taste.

Grown-ups Also Will Share in the Benefits.

"Art for man's sake" is the terse summing up of the most far-reaching scheme of the encouragement of home talent, and the cultivation of home taste that the "Prosperity Week" idea has inspired.

It is a coöperative plan by which the musical artists of Southern California expect to find audiences worthy of their best efforts.

This clever idea was originated by the president of the Gamut Club, Charles Farwell Edson, is backed by that body of 200 members, and has the approval of the Chamber of Commerce.

The entering wedge will be a series of six popular concerts, to be given by leading musicians for the benefit of the children in the grammar grades of the public schools, the nominal fee of $1 for the series being charged. The first one will be on November 25 at Temple Auditorium. Simpson's Auditorium was originally engaged for the purpose, but it was soon realized that it would not be large enough, for already 1500 children have bought season tickets.

Friday morning five Polytechnic High School boys visited all the school buildings to dispose of tickets. It looks now as if every seat would be taken for the opening concert.

Charles F. Edson, who is promoting the musical renaissance in Southern California.

The money realized will be put right back into the schools, for each will be visited by the best local artists, who will sing and play the strong, simple things that children love. They will leave no part of the city untouched by this musical awakening, and this sunny corner of the earth will vie with Italy and other artistic centers of the Old World, where every child is dowered at birth with a perception of the beautiful, and where fine music and real art are almost as cheap as the air breathed.

First, the children, then the fathers and mothers are to be reached. If Johnny goes home and says, "I heard a corking good concert at school today. That fellow was just all right," then Johnny's father and mother will want to hear the 'corking good" concert, too.

Not Los Angeles alone, but all Southern California is to be reached through this coöperative plan, but this city will, of course, be the musical, as well as the commercial center of the Southland.

"We intend to reach every high school between San Diego and Santa Barbara," declared the artist-promoter, Mr. Edson. Redlands has already engaged three of the series of concerts for the Spinet Club of that city, the oldest musical organization in Southern California outside of Los Angeles. The club was interested immediately in the matter.

The Riverside Superintendent of Schools wishes to include the High School, as well as the grades, and his idea is to use the money realized in buying some beautiful object of art for each school. The Glendale High School, the San Bernardino High School, and the Woman's Club of San Bernardino, are all considering the proposition.

Of the series of concerts which will be given in Los Angeles, five will be supplied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clifford Lott, Mr. and Mrs. Thilo Becker, the Krauss Quartette, the Orpheus Club, Charles Edson and accompanist. The sixth is to be left to the vote of the children.

All of this musical interest is to lead up to a grand May festival as a climax. The scheme, once established, is intended to be a permanent one.

"Art for man's sake," is the slogan of the movement, but man, please understand, means the one behind the instrument, as well as the one in the audience. Southern California has called to herself the talented children of many lands, but there has been a sad dearth of appreciation.

The dates of the concerts for the grade are as follows: November 25, December 16, January 13, February 17, March 17, and April 21.

SOCIOLOGICAL.

Great wealth is not a total evil, no matter how much the opponents of trusts and industrial combinations may declare to the contrary. Were it not for the generosity of the men who are connected with the so-called "trusts" there would not have been the educational advance in the United States that has distinguished the past quarter century. Johns Hopkins, the first university in this country to really deserve the name, was founded by the munificence of one man. The University of Chicago has been made possible by the gifts of John D. Rockefeller. Syracuse University is under great obligations to Mr. Archbold of Standard Oil fame. The Carnegie Institute and a countless number of other educational institutions, would hardly have been known had not the steel trust come into existence. The Rockefeller millions have also been poured into the treasuries of religious societies, enabling such organizations to do work that would otherwise have gone undone. Yet in spite of all the good now being accomplished by such distribution of wealth there are those who would refuse such gifts. At a meeting of Methodist preachers of New York City last week, former Atty.-Gen. Frank S. Monnett of Ohio said that the Methodist church had laid itself open to being called the "Church of the Holy Petroleum" for having taken "St. Carnegie's" or "St. Rockefeller's" gifts.

Looking in a different direction, H. H. Rogers has spent $31,000,000 on a railroad in Virginia in order to connect certain coal fields with the markets, and Henry M. Flagler has put $25,000,000 into railway lines in Florida. David Moffatt is building a railroad across the Rockies from Denver. It may be a crime to accumulate great wealth, as some who have never been able to acquire a competence may argue, but there are public enterprises without number that would have died in the suggestion had it not been for the enormous expenditures of single individuals.

Charles D. Lewis, editor of the Sociological Review of Philadelphia, startled the members of a woman's culture club of that city recently by a denunciation of the lives led by society girls of the present day. They should do their share of the sewing, mending, dish washing and cooking for the family, instead of gadding about in automobiles and spending much precious time at matinées, eating chocolate candies with foolish young men in swallow-tailed coats. Just how his audience felt when he concluded his remarks is not recorded, but the president of the club managed to remark that he was a little too radical in his views and his discourse would stand some modifying. The average culture club member does not like to hear anything about sewing on buttons and washing dishes. They prefer to do these things unheralded.

UNCLE SAM'S CASH BOX.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

Uncle Sam's interest-bearing debt neither increased nor decreased in October, its total being $897,253,900, including the $54,631,980 bonds issued in connection with the American Panama Canal construction. That amount is practically an investment, sure of good results in the future.

The "cash in Treasury" at the close of business, October 31, was the largest yet—$1,770,503,682, consisting of:

Gold coin and bullion	$1,039,298,182
Silver coin and bullion	517,990,265
Minor coin	2,665,449
Total metallic money and bullion	$1,559,953,896
Gold certificates	$ 43,571,490
Silver certificates	4,893,158
National bank notes	22,642,191
United States notes	3,686,960
Treasury notes of 1890	13,775
Deposits in national banks	131,693,492
Deposit in Philippine treasury	4,029,618
Sundry items	19,113
Total	$1,770,503,682

That total of cash on hand is within $24,000,000 of being enough to pay Uncle Sam's entire interest-bearing debt twice over.

Another cause of congratulation is the fact that $700,000,000 of that debt of $897,000,000 draws only 2 per cent. interest and $78,000,000 only 3 per cent. The remaining $119,000,000 draws 4 per cent. until February 1, 1925. $646,000,000 of the 2 per cent. debt. does not fall due till April 1, 1930—more than twenty years hence. About $64,000,000 of the 3 per cent. debt was redeemable if desired, August 1, 1908, and the other $14,000,000 is redeemable after November 20, 1908.

Uncle Sam's money in circulation on November 2, 1908, was $3,098,498,021, an increase of $20,000,000 in October, of $222,000,000 in twelve months, and of $2,282,000,000 since our Uncle resumed specie payments on January 1, 1879, rather less than thirty years ago.

Lives of great men all remind us that it is the same in the end whether a man sat on a throne or a tack.

There probably never was a woman born who had not ambitions, at some time or other during her life, to be an actress.

It is said that there will be an Ohio man in Taft's Cabinet, but very few people have picked Senator Foraker as the person.

If civil war arises in China and they all get into it, we think the world can look forward to what might be called a hot fight.

A Chicago woman has been missing for the past six years. Perhaps she has merely married the vice-president of something.

A scientist says that man is descended from a plant. Perhaps that explains why some men are often referred to as daisies.

Mr. Bryan still has the means of making a livelihood in his possession. He makes a living—and something besides—out of words.

The man who has no desire to dye his whiskers or to shave them off when they start to turn gray may be put down as happily married.

As far as we have been able to ascertain, the recently defunct Emperor of China could never have made a living as a laundryman.

News comes from Russia that Mr. Taft is very popular there. The country where Mr. Taft is not popular has not yet been heard from.

However, the balloon business has not yet reached that stage where the bags can cross the continent without coming down occasionally to rest.

The fact that T. Roosevelt is supporting Elihu Root to succeed Tom Platt will at least cause some of the politicians to stop and think awhile.

"The man who makes an automobile cannot afford to afterward keep it," says Debs. Is he worse off than the man who makes the money in the mint?

According to John A. Johnson there can be no new Democratic leader until William J. Bryan relinquishes his claim. Now, what d'ye know about that!

On the other hand it is rather humiliating to acknowledge that war will be prevented in the future wholly because of the fact that it will cost too much money.

The reports that turkey will be scarce at Thanksgiving does not, perhaps, take into account the various cold-storage mausoleums throughout the country.

Even though it be true that there are women "who would sell their souls for clothes," think of all the men who would then sell their souls for the same women.

We notice that a large number of young men in various parts of this country are engaged in kicking the stuffing out of one another under cover of a game called football.

Lawyer Ach declares that he will never take part in another criminal trial. It is certainly bad business, but somebody must do the dirty work, and why not lawyers?

Sir Alfred Harmsworth says the world, as seen through the newspaper, is a strange place. And yet it must bear a strong resemblance to home to many of the readers.

We are in nowise surprised to learn that Gen. Castro's announcement that he will be a candidate for reëlection has been closely followed by his order to mobilize the army.

Rainbow-chasers are seldom considered as available persons to fill positions as bank cashiers or bridge builders, and yet the world cannot afford to lose its rainbow-chasers.

History sharps are asking the question: Will Taft be the twenty-sixth or the twenty-seventh President? What's the difference so long as he will be the next President?

Every time we take a good hard look at Los Angeles we can't help but think of people who used to have truck farms between First and Tenth streets and didn't hold on to them.

We trust that the next ruler of China will rearrange the language of the country so that people living in different townships will be able to carry on a conversation with one another.

It may be remarked that while the W.C.T.U. and other organizations have turned their attention from Utah the Mormons have quietly put a few extra cinches on their hold of the State.

Mr. Taft could make no better move than to spend a few months in Southern California prior to his inauguration. The result would be to tone up his system and to put his soul in tune.

Several new volumes of poetry have been placed in the library of the British House of Commons. They will be good to retreat to when the suffragettes are flinging rocks at the front door.

Women are beginning to count up the number of Christmas presents they are to make this year, and their husbands may as well begin to count up the dollars it will require to meet the bills.

The same people who said Uncle Joe Cannon would not be reëlected from his district are now saying he will not be reëlected Speaker of the House. But Uncle Joe he just smiles and lights another stogie.

A WORD FOR KWANG HSU.

Cold is the heart beneath the imperial yellow jacket and cold is the world's requiem for the Emperor Kwang Hsu. "A sovereign feeble in mind and body, dominated all his life by the all-powerful influence of the Dowager Empress." This is the verdict of the West in the case of the ruler of far Cathay. But as he lies on his magnificent bier, awaiting the last mournful journey to the tomb of his ancestors, he cares not for the judgment of either the Orient or the Occident. "He hath outsoared the shadow of our might."

History, which often has a way of overturning contemporary opinion, may say kinder things of Kwang Hsu than those we read today in the majority of American newspapers. Weak in body and weak in mind as he may have been, the dead Emperor yet played a part in the work of Chinese reform. Those who know China best say that in the past decade she has made more progress—as the West measures it—than in the two preceding millenniums. The change has been so swift, so startling, so kaleidoscopic, that the outside world has been unable to comprehend it.

Shall we give the Dowager Empress praise for this? She has fought might and main against progress. The concubine, used to chains, would have kept China bound forever. The leader in Chinese advance has been Kang Yu-wei, the modern sage. He, ten years ago, carried the torch of progress into Peking—that Peking which then typified decay. He enlisted the sympathy of Kwang Hsu, the poor Emperor of whom today it might almost be said there is none so poor to do him reverence. Kang Yu-wei's torch lighted the ardor of the Emperor, who eagerly warmed himself at the fire of reform. And when the Dowager Empress would have given Kang Yu-wei to the torturers, Kwang Hsu warned him in time so that he was enabled to escape to this land of liberty.

On this continent the Chinese Reform Association was started. It began life in a little room in an evil-smelling quarter in Vancouver. Its influence spread all over the continent until today, in every town where Chinese congregate, a branch is to be found. From here money has been sent across the ocean to aid in the battle for reform on Chinese soil—and what a battle it is; a fight against centuries and millions. That success is attending it is evident and the result will be the renovation of our oldest civilization. Even the pallid and silken-clad dandies who fill the balconies of the Soochow Road, the Palais Royal of Chinese Shanghai, talk of reform as they smoke their ivory pipes. And when the drones talk the workers work.

China, then, owes much to Kang Yu-wei, and the latter owes his life to the man who now has joined the innumerable caravan of the departed. The influence, therefore, of Kwang Hsu upon reform must be measured not so much by the Emperor's own life as by the career and success of the man he saved from execution ten years ago.

It is worth while quoting a remark made by Kang Yu-wei when he found a haven in Vancouver after his hurried flight. Said he: "Only by a return to a belief in a living God can China once more take her proper place among the nations." China, with its dead religion, has been moribund for centuries. Those who accepted the divine command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel," are helping Kang Yu-wei and his fellow-reformers to hasten the coming of that "Savior of Society" who the Chinese believe will appear, overthrow the hated Manchu dynasty, and restore the empire to its old-time greatness.

NEW CAREER FOR TRIM YOUNG MEN.

There has been a good deal of comment over the change in the distribution of tickets in the matrimonial lottery—a change that gives the elderly (not to say old) lady a chance at the trim young man, instead of limiting her prize to the untrimmed old man.

This modern innovation should be looked upon seriously as opening a new and brilliant opportunity to these youths. In view of present achievements, under more favorable matrimonial conditions, they have a rising value as social, yes and as racial assets. It is a matter for congratulation, instead of the unseemly mirth with which it has been regarded.

The market was never so good for Prince Charming as at present. The demand is brisk, the price that may be obtained is practically unlimited. All the effort necessary for the young man whose "face is his fortune" is the cultivation of his natural charms. He need not now bother about overcoming the rich papa's objections to his courtship of his daughter. He need only wait, and he will have a much better chance if the old lady is romantically inclined.

Young men who are good looking but lack the "get up" to hustle for a living, should be encouraged to primp and display themselves within the range of vision of sentimental old ladies who are able to take care of them and provide for them properly. If the prince will cultivate his natural charms, and display them advantageously, with a soupcon of coyness and a spice of coquetry, the lady will do the rest. He can live in her house, ride in her carriage or automobile as he prefers, play in her back yard, enjoy her bank account, and be as pampered as her pet poodle. He may even become a greater favorite than the latter.

There is no stronger evidence that "the world do move" than the change in the personnel of the rich old lover and the poor young person upon whom gifts and favors are lavished. There is, however, an even greater change in the sentiment of the latter.

In the days when the rich old suitor was a man, the maiden, never so gentle, would refuse his offers with scornful words and frowning face. Only under irresistible coercion from parents or guardian was Lady May forced to wed with masculine December. November was also taboed, and even September was in her black books as a lover. To win her favor he must be young and with a heart as fresh and life untried as her own.

The old songs like "A Maiden's Heart Was Given to a Miser for His Gold," have lost their appeal. The listener used to feel like leading a rescue party to free her from an enforced contract. It was a day when even "love in a cottage" was synonymous with happiness. It was the youth and maiden who could adventure "all for love and the world well lost" who were looked upon as fortunate.

But under the influence of the radically changed sentiment, the listener to such a song today would say: "Well, for goodness sake! If the girl wants to marry a young man, why don't she go to work and make a fortune to get him? Twenty-five or thirty years of successful money-making will enable her to suit herself!" And why not?

> Came an old lady with flaunting feathers,
> Beckoned to the fairest young man,
> And he followed where she led him.

Doesn't that sound nearly as well as Longfellow's way of saying it?

GOV. HUGHES'S NEXT FIGHT.

Gov. Hughes of New York has made his way so greatly on his own merits and by his own efforts that he is little beholden to any party, or clique in a party. He won his great battle against crooked race tracks against a large opposition in his own party. Had not the vote of New York for Taft depended so greatly on the renomination of the Governor, it is not probable that he would have gotten the nomination.

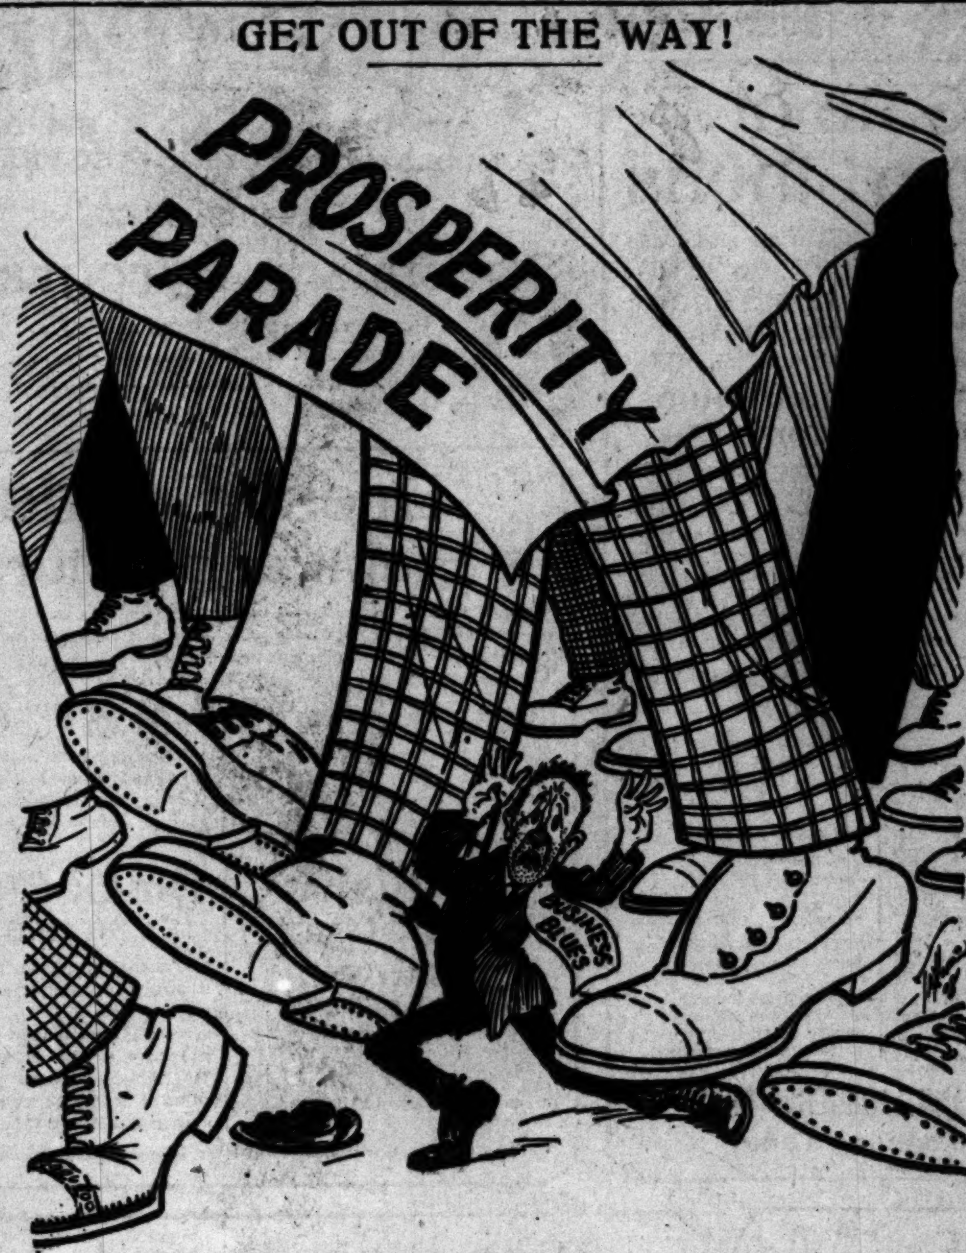
Gov. Hughes is about to launch his political skiff in a sea more hazardous than any on which he has yet sailed. He proposes to make a fight for the direct primary and for the Massachusetts form of ballot. He will not be able to enlist the influence of the churches for these so-called reforms to the extent that they stood with him for the real reform against crooked race tracks. Any one who sees a moral quality in the mere form of election ballots is a zealot and that is not a common type in our country. At least as many good men oppose the direct primary as advocate it, and there are as many corrupt politicians who wish the direct primary as oppose it.

The simpler political means we use, the better. How the Massachusetts ballot simplifies the voter's duty is hard for some to see. The direct primary works badly at least as often as it works well. It is not unlikely to result in putting ten or more candidates in the field for one office. The one who receives the largest vote may fail to get a quarter of the total vote, yet the three out of four who rejected the man at the primaries would have to vote for him at the general election. Will they do it? Look at Oregon, if you wish to see the muddle that this complicated method produces.

In New York it is said that Gov. Hughes will have to fight a net majority of all parties to force through his plan. Will he succeed? If he fails will he be as strong to fight palpable wrong as he is now?

These are problems so able a man ought to be able to look at from a practical point of view.

GET OUT OF THE WAY!



W. J. BRYAN, EVANGELIST.

Some person of keen mind and deep penetration suggests that our friend, W. J. Bryan, dreamer, sentimentalist, eloquent prose poet and perpetual preacher of what he deems the only moral righteousness, has mistaken his calling in life and missed the opportunity of being the greatest man of his generation, only to fail in a line of effort for which he was as conspicuously lacking in fitness as he was conspicuously gifted in the other.

Well, it is not too late yet. Mr. Bryan is but 50 years old and should have before him today from twenty to thirty years of great usefulness if he should turn his talents into the right course. The country has many abler lawyers than Mr. Bryan, many abler statesmen and many abler editors, too. But America has not in all its wide borders a single evangelist of overtowering power. There are many faithful pastors, profound theologians, eloquent preachers, but not one who rises above his fellows like Shasta among the other peaks in the range. Should the gentleman from Lincoln, Neb., feel the divine afflatus and take holy orders, he might prove a very Chrysostom among the preachers—or as he has so deep a prejudice against gold we will call him the Argyrostom.

Some admirers of our talented fellow-citizen may think our judgment harsh which holds that he is a failure in law and politics. Our feelings are not unfriendly. The judgment is based on a calm and comprehensive review of his career. He has accomplished nothing in the practice of the law; and the verdict herein passed on him as a statesman is merely that of the majority of our people, who have seen nothing in his doctrines but vagaries.

But would not such a habit of mind unfit him for the pulpit? No. Law deals with statute enactments as they are and demands the closest attention to literal construction of acts of legislative bodies. Statesmanship deals with the life that now is, with the materialities of a world of fact. These things fail to appeal to Mr. Bryan. His is the poet's soul and his "eye in a fine frenzy rolling" misses the material significance of tariff protection as it affects daily life of the American people. Like a veritable John the Baptist come from the wilderness, he thunders against this political principle as a robber, as a violator of the divine command, "Thou shalt not steal." He is impatient when appealed to upon the economic law that no legislative act can change and make 50 cents' worth of one metal equal to 100 cents' worth of another merely by stamping "100 cents" on the inferior piece, a stamp on the superior metal, too. He talks of the heaven-given value of silver and says that whoever with ruthless legislation interferes with it, when bent on its heaven-sent mission of benevolence, is like unto the man who would turn the limpid mountain stream aside from its purpose and convert the verdure on its banks into barren sands of the desert, and cause men and beasts on the plain to perish of hunger and thirst.

Here is the soul of the prophet which will not turn his gaze upon this earth with all its sordid vanities, but soars above the clouds and catches the inspiration of the angels' song. With his heart made free from things of flesh and sense, it is a house swept and garnished for the indwelling of a heavenly spirit, and for meditation on the life above.

In fact, Mr. Bryan is an unordained evangelist as he is. His talk is all along the path of the Decalogue and discovers in his mind a lofty contempt of the Constitution of the United States. When discussing economic subjects, such as railroads, bank deposits, capital and labor, he never concerns himself for a moment about the laws of political economy. Free trader that he is, he never shows the least acquaintance with the writings of Richard Cobden. The views of great financiers irk his soul. He despises all that "captains of industry" say. He never has a word about financial theories. The Gresham law is X to him in the great equation of life. The burden of his argument is that money is "tainted," wealth is "predatory," fortunes are "swollen," "coal barons" are "thieves" whether they come to the mines by day or by night. His pleadings are all on a high moral plane. He will not descend to discuss equities. Philanthropy, compassion, brotherly kindness, charity and these things which are the very essence of the religious spirit, are the only things that appeal to Mr. Bryan.

Really, he is not only out of place in politics and statecraft, but his interference with such things is a subtle violation of the Constitution. That organic system of national law, so admirable from the point of view of the statesmen whose feet must cling to earth, divorces forever the church from the state. Mr. Bryan's meddling with statecraft is a clandestine attempt to join together what the Constitution has put asunder. Law deals with crime, religion with sin. The church has often fought the state bitterly for making a crime of virtue and for legalizing vice. The state deals solely with things of time and sense. In a way, statecraft has no concern in pure morals. So long as a man obeys the statute law he is a good citizen in the eyes of the statesman. He may be a moral leper in the eyes of the church. Laws of political economy are the statesman's scripture. The evangelist appeals to the inspired Word. Immutable laws of morals are the basis of religion. Considerations of plain expediency concern the human lawgiver.

There is much talk in our day about the need of some one to "awaken the moral conscience of the American people." There always has been need of such a person, of a host of such. Nor has America ever lacked men to do this. Think you the Puritan fathers were all saints? Think you they all fell because there was none to awaken their "moral conscience?" Cotton Mather kept the conscience awake in his time. So down to Father Finney, who took sinners in his great, strong hands and shook them over the flames of the abyss until they were not only morally awake, but shrieked for pardon and begged to be saved from the wrath to come. The pulpit, from the Mayflower to the Torrey Tabernacle, has kept the "moral conscience" of the American people pretty wide awake and alert to escape the clutches of old Satan. And so the pulpit will in all time to come.

And the "moral conscience of the people" has not suffered a jot from leaving this awakening business where it belongs—with the clergy who stick to their pulpits and commit politics to the politicians. George Washington had a pretty live conscience and lived soberly and righteously in this present world. He never preached. Thomas Jefferson was a great statesman. From his pen flowed the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution. He never preached. Abraham Lincoln's conscience was as white as that of an angel in heaven. He was great in statecraft. He never preached. William McKinley knew the economic principles that underlie tariff protection. He appealed to these laws and in public office abstained from dragging in the Ten Commandments.

We think "the moral conscience of the American people" has always been kept fairly well awake by the evangelists whose tongues were touched with live coals from the altar of heaven, evangelists speaking in tones of earnestness and sincerity. And the statesmen of the country have guided the destinies of the nation safely through difficulties to pretty good success by keeping their feet on terra firma and their minds on the Constitution. We have statesmen now who never preach, who stick to the statute law, and act through courts of law. The people mean to be honest and to do right. But while we have little use for preacher statesmen or for political preachers, and while the conscience of the people is not and never has been very drowsy, we need a few good evangelists to press on the good work.

Beecher has so far had no successor. Let statecraft be left to Charles E. Hughes, Elihu Root, Joseph G. Cannon and others like them, who never preach. Let Mr. Bryan and his kind serve their day and generation beautifully by doing the work for which they seem to have a special calling, the work of the evangelist, so that while the courts shall see that the statute law is obeyed the preacher may keep the moral conscience still alert.

[illegible] Hsu is dead again. [illegible] trouble is, he dies so often. [illegible] once in a while he's dead. [illegible] it should be that he has really [illegible] (positively dead) it will have [illegible] significance to the world.

[illegible] gentlemen like Kong Yu [illegible] voluntarily lived in exile— [illegible] fugitives—a price on their [illegible]

[illegible] secret armies have lain wait- [illegible] in China for the death of this [illegible] old woman.

[illegible] old Tsi An has cheated them [illegible] all. She is reported to be dead— [illegible] she has carried the poor little Em- [illegible] across the dark river with her.

[illegible] Jap.

[illegible] in San Francisco a few days [illegible] met a man so marvelously [illegible] that his little "bun" ought to be [illegible] in history.

[illegible] entered on board the train in [illegible] of a porter from his hotel. His [illegible] dinky cap was over one eye, so [illegible] to glare down his nose like [illegible] China.

[illegible] said it was breaking his heart [illegible] good-by to the hotel porter; so [illegible] on the porter's neck and wept; [illegible] as he wept, he kept shoving out [illegible] to the porter, so the grief of [illegible] was mutual.

[illegible] train porter looked on hungrily [illegible] to get in somewhere. The [illegible] man told him, very tenderly, [illegible] in time, he would learn [illegible] him, too, but it would never [illegible] as between the hotel por- [illegible] himself. [Fresh weeping!]

[illegible] morning the gentleman with [illegible] emotions was swearing fe- [illegible] at the poor porter, who was [illegible] around corners to keep out [illegible]

[illegible] in my life have I seen so [illegible] hoboes as along the road between [illegible] and San Francisco.

[illegible] along the roadbed are [illegible] strewn with the ashes of the [illegible]. You can see them "mooch- [illegible] every country road.

[illegible] Dream.

[illegible] after the earthquake, I saw [illegible], and the prospect was [illegible]. The air was filled with [illegible] clouds of brick-dust, gaunt skeletons of buildings reared up here and there from acres of ashes and twisted iron.

Today, San Francisco is a finer and more splendid city than ever before in her history. The miracle of completely building a great city in two years and a half, never occurred before—even in fairy stories.

You know even Aladdin couldn't produced "Class A," steel re-enforced, fireproof buildings.

It is one of those things called "open secrets" that Schwab is fairly itching for a row with the union miners in Nevada.

He, like Mr. Calhoun in San Francisco, has been one of the fairest employers of labor in the country. In both cases, the strikes were committed wantonly and dishonorably—and have been terribly punished.

Union labor has a worse blow coming than either of these strikes, however.

For many years, yes, centuries, the strongest, cruelest union has been the glass blowers. They had the barbarous "apprentice rule" down so fine that none but the sons of glass blowers could become glass blowers—our blooded aristocracy!

By creating an artificial scarcity of labor, they forced wages up to an impossible figure—sometimes as high as $20 a day.

They became so haughty as to refuse to blow small panes of glass—not enough money in it.

The result was, some ingenious Yankee became "mad clear through." He set about to invent a machine that would blow glass.

Lately, this machine has been perfected. Glass is now blown so cheaply by this machine that glass men say the manufacturers of "hand-blown" are facing ruin. There is one way out of it—the wrecking of the union and union scale of wages.

There is a good deal of poetic justice in the "competitive system" so abhorred by our Socialistic friends.

Race Hatred Made to Order.

Sincerely do I hope that our colored people will not allow themselves to be "worked for suckers" by the advance agent of "The Clansman."

That energetic individual has, I find, been trying to stir up the colored people in San Francisco—but with small success. It seems that we "bite" a little easier.

About 98 per cent. of the colored brethren who have been petitioning Mayor Harper to stop "The Clansman" haven't a very clear idea whether "The Clansman" is a play or some new sort of a carpet cleaner.

Permit me—I will enlighten them.

Somewhere in the South is an unsuccessful parson named Dixon, whose intellectual caliber seems to be naturally that of a hoer of sweet potatoes.

But heaven help us, he writes books! They are about the worst ever written. With great craft, he seeks to write books that will be very fierce and unfair and rankly sectional; but he only succeeds in being ridiculous—and popular.

Ordinarily, a play like "The Clansman" would last about a minute. My respects to the advance man for keeping the thing alive. Whatever salary he gets—why, it ought to be more.

A Latter-Day Cavalier.

One of the most appealing characters I ever met is Thornwell Mullally—the Yale man who manages the United Railroads.

His indictment was one of the most fatal mistakes of the graft prosecution—as they have virtually admitted.

You see, it's this way—Mullally happened to be born about four centuries too late.

He was intended to be a strong young knight with a black plume and to go riding over the world—fighting for those not able to fight for themselves.

But there aren't more knights—there are only corporations, managed by inoffensive fat persons. So Mullally had to become a part of a corporation.

Yet it happened that a good deal of knighthood and of picturesque daredevil fighting has come his way since he left Yale and went into a stuffy New York law office.

The day of the earthquake, he hurried out of his rooms at the Palace Hotel and jumped into an automobile. Pulling up at the car barns in a distant part of the city, he ordered the men out with fire hoses to spray the roof. They looked at one another with astonishment.

"Do as I tell you," said Mullally. "This city is going to catch fire and burn until it is tired." And so they saved the car barns.

From that day on, Mullally has lived almost the life of the general of an army.

In the terrible days of the strike, the pale motorman on the first car out always faced the mob with this handsome, gallant young Irish lawyer at his side.

I have seen a good many brave men but never one before or since like Thornwell Mullally, who faced death or a pretty woman with the same gentle half-deprecating smile.

Time and again, I have seen the strikers themselves stop rioting and cheer his automobile as he went by.

I don't know anything of the rights and wrongs of the United Railroads bribery case—but I believe its enemies have accused a Chevalier Bayard by mistake.

THE PUBLIC SERVICE.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

This week marks the beginning of the open season for charter-revision faddists; the Council will hold daily sessions to consider proposed amendments which will be submitted to the people at a special election to be held in February.

The trial of the contest instituted in the name of Lucille Bedford to break the will of her grandmother, Mrs. Susan G. Mitchell, will be begun in Judge Wilbur's court tomorrow morning.

Judge Wilbur gave judgment yesterday for C. G. Steele in his suit against the trustees of Savannah school district to compel them to erect a new building on the present school site.

Sam Schenck and Paul Schenck yesterday filed injunction suits in the Superior Court against the Pacific Sugar Company, the Pacific Securities Company and their directors to annul assessments on stock of those corporations.

AT THE CITY HALL.

OPEN SEASON FOR FADDISTS.

COUNCIL WILL DEVOTE WEEK TO AMENDING CHARTER.

Municipal League Proposals and a Score of "Alternates" Will Be Considered—Special Charter Amendment Election to Be Held in February.

Monday marks the open season for charter revisionists. The Council has arranged to hold daily sessions in order that all the fads and faddesses may have an opportunity to show goods.

There will be discussions of government by commissions, omissions and intermissions, the Mayor's salary will range all the way from $10,000 a year to a labor of love, and the Council will at times consist of two houses and a score of members, at other times it will cease to exist.

City Attorney Hewitt announced yesterday morning that he will report to the Council tomorrow that the Municipal League petition for an election on six league amendments is "sufficient" to require the Council to call a special election; he will report further that it is within the jurisdiction of the Council to submit alternate amendments.

Discussing these alternate amendments will open the gates for a flood of faddist proposals, some harmless, others vicious, and all ridiculous. There appears to be a good deal of buncome about some of the Municipal League amendments.

The league has presented six separate proposals. Two of them make special charter provisions for assisting in the control and development of San Pedro harbor. These provide for municipal docks and a municipal highway leading down to the water front.

There is another which provides machinery for selling or leasing surplus water to other cities and for irrigation purposes; this is to cover the disposal of the extra water after the Los Angeles aqueduct is completed.

A minor amendment provides that the city may pay the premium on the surety bonds of its employés.

The Municipal League amendment about which the heaviest storm will rage is the one that seeks to abolish ward lines and elect councilmen at large. An alternate amendment to this will provide for the election of nine Councilmen by wards as at present, and six Councilmen at large.

Several members of the Council held an informal conference in the City Attorney's office yesterday morning to discuss alternate amendments. One that appears to meet their general approval provides for a horizontal increase in pay for city officials. The Mayor is to receive not less than $6000 a year, the Councilmen are to receive at least $200 a month each, and the pay of police and fire chiefs and captains is to be about doubled and placed in the charter.

The most interesting debate this week will be over the proposal to adopt the English form of government in which the Council is the whole administration. An alternate amendment is considered which will abolish the appointive positions as police, fire and park commissioner, as well as commissions of the department of public works, and fill these places with Councilmen.

This amendment has the approval of a majority of the members of the Council, but there are a number of details which are still to be worked out. The amendment is the opposite to the Municipal League programme which took all the commissions away from the Council and gave them to the Mayor.

At the conference yesterday the Councilmen agreed to meet Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week to consider proposed charter amendments. City Attorney Hewitt says that he can present the necessary ordinances so that the election can be held in time for the amendments to be ratified by the Legislature.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

DRAMATIC TALE IS ANTICIPATED.

WILL TRIAL RECALLS DIVORCE AND SUICIDE.

Question at Issue Little Daughter's Right to Share Materially in Large Estate Left by Grandmother—Undue Influence and Mental Incompetency Among Charges.

At the trial of the contest of the will of Mrs. Susan Glassell Mitchell, which will probably be begun in Judge Wilbur's court tomorrow, it is anticipated that dramatic family history will be reviewed. The question at issue is whether 4-year-old Lucille R. Bedford, whose mother committed suicide after securing a divorce, shall have an important share in the $250,000 estate of Mrs. Mitchell, who was her grandmother.

The court, last Friday, denied a motion by the contestant for a continuance because of the absence in Europe of Mrs. Mitchell's sister, Mrs. Louise Shorb, said to be an important witness.

On grounds of undue influence and mental incompetency, Attorney C. F. McNutt, as guardian ad litem of little Lucille, brings the contest of the will of October, 1907. By it Mrs. Mitchell left practically all her estate to her daughter, Mrs. Lucie Lambourn, cutting off her granddaughter with $5.

Behind the contest instituted in the name of the grandchild, is her father, Charles A. Bedford. He was formerly keeper of a dance hall at Prescott, Ariz., where he married Mrs. Mitchell's second daughter, Eileen, in July, 1901. Their life together was unhappy.

Soon after the birth of the child she was brought to Los Angeles and in December, 1906, her mother secured a divorce on the ground of desertion, and soon committed suicide. The daughter remained with Mrs. Mitchell and her aunt, Mrs. Lucie Lambourn.

Mrs. Mitchell inherited a considerable estate from her father, Andrew Glassell, and it is asserted by the contestant of her will that a portion of this was held by her in trust for both her daughters and their heirs. This is denied by Mrs. Lambourn.

After Mrs. Mitchell's death, Bedford filed a petition for the guardianship of Lucille. This was contested by Mrs. Lambourn, who asserted that he was not a proper person to have the custody of the child. Judge Wilbur, last July, decided in Mrs. Lambourn's favor.

Mrs. Mitchell made several wills. Before the marriage of Mrs. Bedford, she divided her estate equally between her two daughters, with a provision that Mrs. Bedford should enjoy the income of her share during her life. After the marriage, she made another will, making certain provisions for Bedford, but after the divorce, she made still another will, dividing her estate between her two daughters and making provision for her grandchild, Lucille.

Negotiations had been under way with Bedford by which he had agreed, it is said, to allow Mrs. Mitchell to adopt his child, and in view of this fact, Mrs. Mitchell, in the spring of 1907, made a will dividing her estate between Mrs. Lambourn and her grandchild. But Bedford finally refused to consent to the adoption.

Then a will was drawn in August, 1907, by which the Los Angeles Trust Company was made trustee for Lucille's share. Finally, the will of October, 1907, was signed, by which Lucille was cut off with $5, Mrs. Lambourn being instructed to make all proper provision for the child. Friends of Mrs. Lambourn assert this action was taken by Mrs. Mitchell because the latter was determined that Bedford should never enjoy any of her money.

The contestant of the will alleges that for many months before her death, Mrs. Mitchell suffered with a painful disease and that she was mentally affected when she signed her last will; that Mrs. Lambourn used every measure to take advantage of her mother's weakened condition to secure her entire estate for herself, and that Mrs. Lambourn was actuated by selfish motives in seeking to bring about the disinheritance of Lucille.

Mrs. Lambourn absolutely denies these charges and says that her mother was fully competent and uninfluenced at the time she signed the will in question.

TRUSTEES ACCUSED.

CONTEST OVER SCHOOL SITE.

Although Judge Wilbur yesterday said that he will delay formal entry of judgment until Friday, he announced that he will grant the writ of mandate asked by C. G. Steele, a resident of Savannah school district, to compel the school trustees to begin without delay the erection of a $10,000 schoolhouse on the present site.

The court stated that he will authorise the trustees to acquire as much adjacent ground as may be required, but held that they are without authority to erect the building, as they voted to do last June, on a new site in the Huntington tract, about three-quarters of a mile from the old one.

In his suit, Steele asserted that at an election of householders of the school district, in June, the vote was against accepting the new site, and at another election, in October, there was the same result. The erection of the new building was to have begun in July, and feeling has run high. Those opposing the change asserted that the trustees voted to accept the new site, despite the adverse vote of the householders, because of property interests, and not out of regard for the welfare of the district.

The trustees assert that the new site is more advantageously located, and is in every way better adapted to the school needs of the district than the present site.

BUSY DIVORCE MILL.

TURNS OUT FOUR DECREES.

Four women and one man applied to the Superior Court yesterday for divorces on the grounds of desertion, and the prayer of each was granted, except that of one who had not acquired legal residence in the State.

Mrs. Adelaide Walter said she came to Los Angeles over two years ago from Ohio, where her husband, Fred Walter, lives. She was an invalid, and soon after she arrived Walter signified that he intended to desert her. She corresponded with him until last March, but he has furnished her little money for her support. Judge Monroe decided that she has not acquired the necessary residence and denied the decree.

Mrs. Hattie Wadsworth was granted a divorce from L. D. Wadsworth, whom she married in 1903, and who left her four years later, saying that he was going to the dogs and was not fit to live with her. Testimony was given before Judge Bordwell that the defendant was arrested for a misdemeanor, some months ago, and jumped his bail. The plaintiff said that about two years ago he began to drink heavily, lived for a time with another woman, and finally disappeared.

Mrs. Helen I. Bishop was granted a divorce from Thomas R. Bishop, Jr., by Judge James. She said that five days after her marriage in April, 1907, Bishop left her because he was infatuated with another woman.

Mrs. Gertrude Blake secured a divorce from Raymond Blake in Judge Monroe's court. She stated that Blake lost his position in Los Angeles in April, 1903, went to Calaveras county, corresponded with her for a time, and then she heard no more from him.

Guy C. Chase was granted by Judge James a divorce from Mrs. May Chase, who came with him to Los Angeles from Ohio about four years ago, and returned East two years ago. Chase testified that the woman refused to return to him, saying that she cannot be happy in Los Angeles.

STOCKHOLDERS SUE.

THINK ASSESSMENT ILLEGAL.

Two injunction suits to declare void assessments on stock of the Pacific Sugar Company and the Pacific Securities Company, and to restrain sale of stock for non-payment of assessments, were filed in the Superior Court yesterday.

In one action Sam Schenck, who says that he holds 500 shares of stock of the Pacific Sugar Company, sues that corporation and Nathan Cole, Jr., A. C. Harper, E. S. Field, W. C. Petchner, H. C. Buhoup, and Donald Barker, directors. He says that on August 14 Cole, Field and Petchner, in the absence of other directors and without giving the notice required by law, held a meeting and voted an assessment of $3 a share on all stock. The plaintiff says he has not paid the alleged void assessment, and that the sale of his stock to satisfy the assessment is set for November 16. He asserts that the Pacific Sugar Company has a capital stock of $2,500,000, and that before June 17, it owned a plant at Visalia which, in that month, it sold to the Pacific Sugar Corporation for 23,778 shares in that concern, and the assumption of all debts. It is alleged that the stock has never been delivered and that the Pacific Sugar Company now has no other property.

The second suit is filed against the Pacific Securities Company, Nathan Cole, Jr., W. C. Petchner, E. S. Field, H. C. Buhoup and H. C. Newitt, directors, by Paul W. Schenck, a holder of 250 shares, and Sam Schenck, a holder of 700 shares. They assert that the defendant has 10,951 shares of the Pacific Sugar Company, 25 shares of the Pacific Sugar Corporation and $1,275,000 capital stock. It is alleged that the directors on August 14, called a meeting without legal notice to stockholders and levied an assessment of $3 a share on stock. The court is asked to declare this assessment void and to protect the plaintiffs' stock from sale on November 16.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

EXTORTION CHARGE. Argument was concluded yesterday and decision reserved until Monday morning by Justice Selph on the motion to dismiss a charge of extortion lodged against A. A. Talmage by Dr. Ray D. Robinson.

DEPOSITION. Mayor Harper appeared yesterday morning before A. E. Bagley in answer to an order to give his deposition in the libel suit for $100,000 that he has brought against E. T. Earl and the Evening Express Company. A few questions were answered, in strict privacy, and the hearing was then adjourned to the 24th inst.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk yesterday by the Jacob Rancho Water Company, capital stock, $45,000.

CONDEMNATION. The city of Pasadena yesterday filed in the Superior Court against Jessie L. Metcalf and others a suit in condemnation proceedings to open Maple street through to Holliston avenue.

SEEKS HEIR. Public Administrator Frank Bryson desires to get information of the whereabouts of relatives of Mrs. Inez Lee Thurber Torry, widow of a Dr. Torry who formerly practiced dentistry in New Orleans. Mrs. Torry died of heart disease at the lodging-house of Mrs. Mockler, No. 917 South Broadway, last Sunday. She left about $1000 worth of diamonds, now in the possession of the Public Administrator, and pawn tickets representing considerable wearing apparel. The dead woman was in receipt of an annuity of $150 monthly from relatives in New Orleans. She had lived here several years and had a daughter named Polly, 19 years old, who was married about a year ago to a man said to live near Castiac.

EJECTMENT. Judge Conrey yesterday gave Mrs. Belle Robinson judgment in a suit against the Salt Lake Railroad to recover $900 damages and possession of the Jack Taylor House at East San Pedro, from which she was ejected by the company in September, 1907, owing to a dispute over leasehold rights.

FALSE SENTENCE. J. E. Wooley, who pleaded guilty to obtaining $300 by false pretences from Mrs. Ida M. Stone in October, 1907, by the sale of stock in the non-existant Goldfield-Richmond Mining and Development Company, was sentenced by Judge Jamison yesterday to five years in San Quentin.

BURGLARY. Warren Lamson, who burglarized the Diamond Coal Company's office October 15, was sentenced to three years in San Quentin by Judge Jamison yesterday.

BAD CHECK. Frank De Merritt yesterday pleaded guilty to issuing a worthless $40 check on the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, October 10, and applied to Judge Jamison for parole. Hearing was set for November 23.

ROBBERY. The second trial of Benjamin Wyatt, charged with robbing W. L. Sibley of $20 in Santa Monica Cañon last March, was set by Judge Jamison yesterday for November 17. A jury in his case disagreed and were discharged late Friday evening.

INFORMATIONS. The District Attorney yesterday filed in Judge Jamison's court informations against Sanford Brent, assault to murder; John Silver, assault to murder; J. Frank Ware, assault with a deadly weapon; Pedro Gonzales and José Lecon, grand larceny.

GOES NORTH. Judge Monroe will sit the better part of this week at Santa Barbara in a case in which Judge Crow is disqualified. Judge Crow will sit for Judge Monroe in Department Six until the latter's return.

HABEAS CORPUS. Judge James yesterday heard argument in the habeas corpus proceedings brought by James Boyd, sentenced to ninety days in the County Jail on the misdemeanor charge of wearing the badge of a secret order without right. The case was continued to Wednesday morning.

WOMEN MAIL CARRIERS.

Five in Los Angeles County and Thousands in Service, With More Joining.

Women are rapidly entering the postal service near Los Angeles as rural free-delivery carriers, and the assertion in an afternoon paper that an Ohio woman is the only one in the service has brought out a protest from the five women carriers in this county. In fact, Mrs. S. E. George, one of the first and most efficient of the rural carriers in Los Angeles county, is secretary of the association of rural carriers. Whenever there is a particularly hard route to "break in" near this city Mrs. George has been generally selected to do it.

As a matter of fact, according to the records, there are 40,000 rural free-delivery carriers in the United States, or 12,000 more than the number of city carriers. Of these between 4000 and 5000 are women, and more are every day becoming identified with the post-office service in this department. At the last convention of rural carriers, in Omaha, Neb., last month, there were three women delegates. Southern California, especially, without its blizzards and ice and snow, is particularly adapted for the service of the rural-delivery routes by women carriers.

BURGLARS IN ICE PLANT.

Burglars entered the offices of the Los Angeles Ice and Cold Storage Company at Seventh street and Santa Fé avenue Friday night and rifled the desks. They secured $2, a revolver, two pairs of eyeglasses and a fountain pen. The loss was discovered by a woman who reached the offices early yesterday morning to sweep.

FOUND DEAD IN BED.

Mrs. Ellen Turner, 50 years of age, of No. 844 West Tenth street, was found dead in bed yesterday morning. She went to her room Friday night, apparently in the best of health. Apoplexy is supposed to have caused death. The remains were removed to the Booth and Boylston morgue, where the inquest will be held.

Holiday Opening

Fashions in Jewelry change just as they do in every other commodity. We constantly have in mind this fact and are always on the lookout to follow the trend of jewelry fashions. We know that the people of Los Angeles desire to choose holiday gifts from a jewelry stock that is up-to-date—it has been our endeavor to provide a stock that will meet that demand.

Tomorrow we open the holiday season with a collection of gift jewelry which will meet with the approval of every buyer.

We urge early holiday buying — it means a greater assortment and relief from the crush which comes later.

Diamonds

Our Diamond Department is in charge of Mr. R. W. Woodley, who has been in the jewelry business for twenty-four years, and a diamond expert for twelve years. Mr. Woodley will gladly show our stock of first-water stones.

Made in Los Angeles
A "California" Home Industry of Unusual Interest

Prosperity Week will indeed be a week of education for the people of Los Angeles. Not only will its enthusiastic observance inspire us to support our home industries, but it will bring to our attention much that is made here, about which we know absolutely nothing.

Those who have not had occasion to visit the California's workshops cannot realize how extensive a "Made-in-Los Angeles" feature we maintain here.

The entire sixth floor of our building is given over to the making of furniture and upholstery. Here, with the best of lighting and under perfect sanitary conditions, a large force of skilled craftsmen is constantly engaged. Here the rough woods and materials are transformed into all sorts of distinctive home furnishings for our large clientele.

We specially invite all who are interested in exclusive "Made-in-Los Angeles" Furnishings to visit our workshops. You will find much to make your visit interesting, and that will add to the many revelations of Prosperity Week.

In one of our windows we are showing some splendid pieces of high-grade furniture, the output of our own shops—purely Los Angeles home products.

The slogan of this house is "Buy and Boost Home Products."

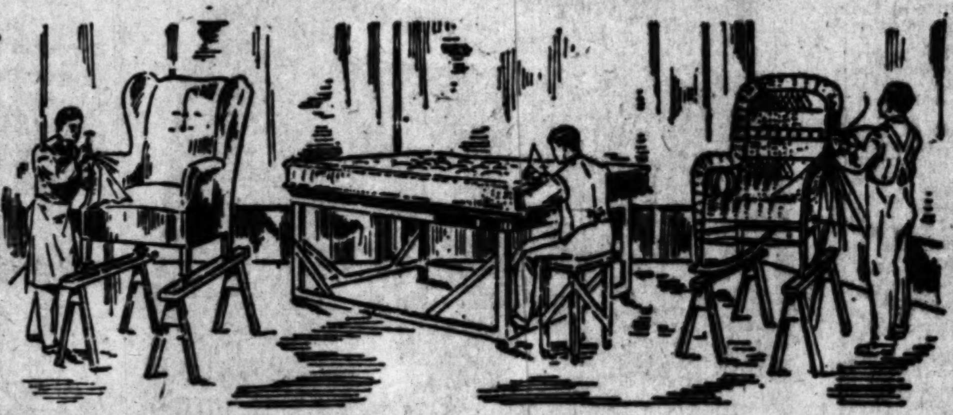
See How We Make Our Own Line of Superior Mattresses

AND SEE HOW WE DO FINE UPHOLSTERY WORK

We will "demonstrate" in a forceful, practical and interesting manner, this week, our process of making superior mattresses. We'll show you just what they're made of, and exactly how we make them. A few moments before our windows will be well spent. Special prices this week, as well, to make it a particular object to "buy and boost home products." Don't fail to see this exhibit.



See How Furniture of Reed, Willow and Rattan Is Constructed

Chairs, Rockers, Tables, Etc., Best for California Climate

Come and see how the pretty, artistic willow, rattan and reed furniture is built. This is a line peculiarly adapted to the requirements of Southern California homes. It is becoming increasingly popular with all classes. Whether you desire the more ordinary styles of the plain reed, or the most artistic patterns of the Willow Craft, you will find them all here. All at a reduction this week.

Big "HOME PRODUCT" Sale This Week at Special Prices

All at 15% Off This Week

Included in this week's special offering will be found upholstered parlor furniture, Turkish leather chairs and rockers and upholstered couches; also all willow, rattan and reed goods. In mattresses will be found all grades—excelsior cotton top, cotton, floss, combination floss and cotton, cotton felt, and hair in all the different qualities; also pillows. All goods mentioned—not only "home products," but everything in these lines—on special sale this week, at 15 per cent. less than usual prices.

Our Two Great Stores Overflowing With New Goods---New Styles You Should See Before You Buy

Ten big carloads of the handsomest, "classiest," choicest furniture ever sent out by the leading Eastern makers, were received and placed on our sales floors during the past week. New designs in dining tables, late styles in bedroom furniture, and a big variety of the newest patterns in iron beds, including the improved "chill-less" products; (made with smooth joints.)

You'll find an assortment at Barker Bros. that you cannot begin to duplicate in any other store—in fact, an assortment as large as in any other two stores combined. Remember, we carry furniture in all grades—as cheap as it pays to buy, to the most elaborate and most elegant that is made. You can select practically everything you need to furnish the most modest bungalow or largest mansion here at lowest prices.

We Are Never Undersold on Carpets & Rugs

We carry only the most reliable weaves. Every yard of carpet we sell is guaranteed for service. Our prices are the very lowest at which dependable floor coverings can be sold. We have everything in carpets, Oriental and domestic rugs, mattings, linoleums, etc.

A Liberal Policy Equal to All Demands

We are big enough in resources to meet the demands of all classes of trade—to sell to the most extensive buyer or the purchaser who seeks but a single article, adapting our terms to suit the requirements of the individual, either for spot cash or on a liberal accommodation basis.

SIDELIGHTS OF BIG PEOPLE.

Judge Taft's Legal Repair Shop in the Philippines.

Some years ago, when the former Secretary of War was Governor-General of the Philippines, relates Success Magazine, he was called upon one morning by Rev. Henry Steuntz, a missionary of the Methodist church, now a bishop. The missionary was in trouble. He had raised the money to build a church and had purchased the site, only to find that, under an old Spanish law still in force, no such building could be erected unless the same was to be dedicated to the Catholic church. It was a law handed down from the good old days when church and state traveled hand in hand in the Spanish possessions.

The Governor-General heard the missionary's statement, and said, "Wait a few minutes."

Turning to his stenographer, Mr. Taft dictated a few lines and then handed the type-written sheet to the missionary, saying, "That's all right; now go ahead and build your church."

A few days later the popular Governor-General found tacked to the front door of his palace a huge placard bearing the words in big letters: "Legal Repair Shop; Old Laws Repaired While You Wait."

The joke was public property in Manila for some days, none enjoying it more than the genial Governor-General himself.—[Exchange.

Senator Beveridge.

"The simplest propositions," said Senator Beveridge in a recent address, "must be set out with the utmost care in the wording, or misunderstanding, dissent, even anger may result.

"Thus, as a train was moving forth from a Cincinnati station, a man stuck his head far out of the window.

"'Keep your head in there,' a station attendant shouted in warning, 'or it will be knocked off.'

"'Knocked off!' shouted the passenger. 'Knocked off, eh? Well, it won't be knocked off by anybody the size of you, you bandy-legged shrimp!'"—[Exchange.

Dr. Weir Mitchell.

Dr. Weir Mitchell, whose brilliance in medicine is only excelled by his brilliance in literature, is noted in Philadelphia for the detestation that he has for bores.

Only a bore can ruffle the gracious and gentle suavity of Dr. Weir Mitchell's manner, and even with bores his reproofs are delicate rather than rough.

They say at the Franklin Inn, Philadelphia's literary club, that a bore accosted Dr. Weir Mitchell one day on Chestnut street and insisted on walking with him to the Philadelphia library. During this walk the bore's flow of talk was incessant. Dr. Weir Mitchell walked on amid the deluge, frowning silently.

But as they turned down Juniper street, a man across the way stretched out his arm and yawned as if to dislocate his jaw.

Dr. Weir Mitchell took the bore's arm and nodded toward the yawning man.

"Hush," he said. "Don't speak so loud. People can hear you."—[Minneapolis Journal.

Col. Gilbert Pierce.

Col. Gilbert Pierce, the late Minister to Portugal, once picked up in his arms a young lady who stood hesitating at the corner of a street in an Indiana village, unable to cross it, because a shower had filled it with a rushing torrent of water. The young lady submitted without protest while the colonel strode gallantly through the torrent until he deposited his fair charge on the opposite sidewalk, with dry feet. "Sir!" she then said, indignantly, "are you aware that you have insulted me?"

"I was not aware of it," replied the colonel; "but seeing that you are right, I beg to make amends."

So saying, he picked up the protesting damsel and restored her to the point where he had first made her acquaintance.—[The Argonaut.

George Grossmith.

Long after his father's death the London tax commissioners, by mistake, sent George Grossmith a notice assessing the income of the deceased at $10,000. Mr. Grossmith returned the document to the proper quarter, with the following note written across it:

"I am glad to learn my father is doing so well in the next world; $10,000 is a great deal more than he ever made in this. Kindly forward this notice to his new address, and remember me affectionately to him."—[Musical Home Journal.

UNIVERSITY IS BANKRUPT.

Creditors of Nevada State Institution Clamor for Payment Which Is Impossible.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

RENO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The University of Nevada has been unable to pay its bills for several months and tradesmen have begun to clamor for settlement of accounts which they claim are long overdue. The regents meet every four weeks and pass the bills without comment.

Since no funds remain in the treasury, excepting moneys to pay the salaries of the professors and the actual necessities of the institution, the treasurer does not invite the presentation of claims.

Although Nevada's public school system is said to be backed by more money than any other State in the Union, no means of providing great resources for the university has ever been devised.

The Legislature every two years allows an appropriation which, time after time, has fallen short of the university's needs. The campus improvements have aided in the deficit this year.

WHOLESALE PIGEON THIEVES?

Charged with stealing 1200 pigeons during the past four months, four negro boys were arrested yesterday by Patrolman Watson of the University station. The boys, Robert and Thomas Lemar of No. 1642 Tarleton street, George Beeks of Ninth and Santa Fé and Leroy Brashear of No. 1224 Birch street, were sent to the Detention Home. The boys, when pursued by the officers, crawled under the Lemar home on Tarleton street, where they were captured.

LOMITA

FARM LANDS Near San Pedro

When you buy Lomita land you get fine, general purpose soil, large water supply, close-in location, the advantage of the best markets, and a future value unmatched by any other farm property in the State. This is fertile soil famed for the production of vegetables and fruits. Besides affording a big revenue on the products of the ranch and providing a charming and healthful home location, Lomita lands will prove the foundation of a fortune for the early buyers. Dredging is going on now at the West Basin, and the millions which will be spent at San Pedro will enhance the values of every foot at Lomita. The new boulevard cuts through Lomita, the Shoestring strip practically adjoins it and the electric car station is only at Weston street. If you really intend to buy land for gardening, for fruit, for poultry, for suburban home or for pure investment, you make the mistake of your life if you let this opportunity pass you by.

THE INTRIGUES OF SAN FRANCISCANS.

Wonderful City of the North Where Everybody Seems to Be Reaching Out for a Brick—Dick Cornelius in New Conspiracy—Funny Scraps.

BY HARRY C. CARR.

[STAFF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 12.—Petty intrigues seem to be the natural diet of San Francisco.

A brilliant young newspaper man of that city said the other day: "If the Almighty were to send one of his head angels down here to distribute halos to every one in San Francisco, he would be greeted by an enraged yell of 'fake.'"

To tell the truth, San Francisco business men do not especially deplore these miserable conspiracies—they seem to rather like them. But to an outsider, they are sickening.

This would be so fair and so wonderful a city without them.

To have seen San Francisco stricken and shattered in her ashes two years ago; then to have seen her yesterday is to marvel at the people who did it.

The San Francisco of today is the most splendid city in the world. In place of the Market street of former years is a majestic cañon whose walls are giant skyscrapers—new and strong and splendid—the highest product of brains and money.

That this wonderful city could have been built in two years by men engaged in two hundred childish conspiracies strikes one as more remarkable than the feat itself.

It strikes you the same as when you read of the "oldest inhabitant" who is 108 years old and says he has consumed three quarts of whisky every day of his life. You wonder how old he would be if he had forsworn the whisky.

If San Francisco merchants "got together" as our merchants do, what might not that city achieve!

RIDICULOUSNESS OF IT.

Most of the intrigues are utterly ridiculous.

They say when a public committee is appointed in San Francisco, the Catholic member draws away indignantly.

"What," he snorts, "me serve wit' an A. P. A!"

The Higher Up won't serve with the graft prosecutor sympathizer and the rest of the committee raise a cry that the Native Sons are hogging it all.

The Balkan States are not a circumstance for war clouds.

One instance of the petty warfare that rends San Francisco, end to end, is the present trouble over the Sutter street trolley franchise.

Almost the entire length of San Francisco there lies a strip of barren desolation and ashes. It marks the line of the Sutter street cars.

The cause of this diseased strip in the midst of all the building is a municipal quarrel that a girls' Sunday-school class would be ashamed of.

Some years ago, the street car lines of San Francisco were owned by various different companies, holding various franchises.

One of these was the old Sutter street line. It had a franchise down Sutter street, and a franchise from the junction of Sutter and Market down to the ferries.

As there were already two tracks down this part of Market street, the Sutter street line had to build two new tracks flanking the two already there.

In those days, trolley cars were unheard of. The franchise only called for horse cars or cables.

After the earthquake, the United Railroads Company got electric franchises for all the roads they had bought up, and consolidated—but the company forgot those two extra rails.

THE LITTLE JOKER.

It is exactly as though Mr. Huntington had secured a trolley franchise for his Long Beach cars from the city to the beach—but had neglected to state that, while running down Main street from the Pacific Electric building to Ninth street, the motive power would be electricity.

Can you imagine what would happen to the City Council that would force Huntington to stop the Long Beach cars at Ninth and Main streets and transport the passengers down Main street in horse cars?

That is just about what the San Francisco Supervisors have done.

The Sutter-street line which was the finest in the city has virtually been put out of business. It is obliged to turn back now at Market street—horse cars of ancient vintage now transport the Sutter-street passengers to the ferry.

It is asserted that the Supervisors are trying to force the United Railroads to allow the Geary-street cars (a municipally-owned road) to run over the company's private tracks to the ferry.

A no less infantile fight has come up over a piece of track 100 feet long at Post and Market streets.

After looking into these things, one begins to understand why Mr. Huntington sold out his San Francisco holdings in disgust and emigrated southward.

When he got to Los Angeles, a committee from the Chamber of Commerce kept shaking hands with him long enough for the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to hurry around and lock him in.

CAPITAL ANTAGONIZED.

In San Francisco, when capital enters, every one seems to reach for a brick. The only thing that consoled them for the earthquake was it made so many loose bricks.

One of the hotel men in the Sutter-street district told me that the stopping of the Sutter-street cars is ruining that district.

In Los Angeles, the only paper that dared to "knock" the Owens River scheme was ruthlessly slaughtered; the other day in San Francisco, a committee of the most noted business men in that city fought fiercely against Hetch-Hetchy.

It is laughable, but politicians tell me that Hetch-Hetchy carried so sweepingly in San Francisco, not so much because the voters WANTED Hetch-Hetchy, but because they were FOR anything that would hurt the Spring Valley Water Company.

When anything comes to a vote in San Francisco, the sovereign voter cries: "I'm agin it; what's it about, anyhow?"

This goes into every phase of San Francisco life. Like Mary, that illustrious sheep fancier, wherever the San Franciscan goes, his ax and his intrigues follow after.

Mayor Taylor has appointed a Committee of Seven to report "on certain rumors" relating to the graft prosecution.

Already a furious dispute has risen over the personnel of that committee.

Mr. Kent, the capitalist, is, perhaps, the best known man appointed.

"He is the honored donor of Muir Woods to the government," says one faction.

"There was a string on the gift," cries the other side.

Even the killing of the rats, suspected of carrying bubonic plague, has caused a fierce row.

"The rats have fleas, and the fleas have bubonic plague," says the one faction.

"Show us some human beings that have taken the plague from them," snort the opposers of the rat massacre.

"We will show you rats dying of the plague, although no humans have it."

"Let the rats die of it, then. We haven't any rat friends."

The rat hunters cry, "The doctors demand it."

The opponents: "They are grafters."

Rat hunters: "Dr. Blue of the government service is no grafter."

Opponents: "He's after a reputation."

These quotations are not imaginery, but are actual quotations on both sides.

Even the outrages committed at the time of the street-car strike are being revived.

One newspaper has set up a cry that the United Railroads committed the outrages [dynamite, etc.,] themselves, and ought to be "investigated" by the Legislature.

One of the shining lights of that newspaper was thereafter promptly blackballed by the finest club in San Francisco and an official of the United Railroads elected in his place.

A NEW CONSPIRACY.

Officials of the United Railroads complain that "Dick" Cornelius is conspiring to unionize their men again. Meanwhile, the other faction holds Cornelius in a good job under the city government, where he can manufacture and incite another civil war at his ease.

When the jury bribing and the dynamiting episode came up in the Ruef trial, about half San Francisco rose up and yelled: "Burns plot." The other half yelled: "Higher Up's plot."

Even the police department is ripped wide open down the middle. There are a "Burns faction" and an older faction, who resent the appointment of Burns. Each faction cheerfully tries to undo the work of the other.

Even the hotels "have it in" for one another. Half of them say the other half are mere bawdy houses.

During the medical examinations which have stirred up such a scandal, it was instinctive that the Cooper students should get up a clique against the Los Angeles students.

To go into the union-labor question would be, of course, to expose a thousand feuds, both inside and outside. Nearly every union has industrial indigestion—in addition to which there are two broad warring factions.

But, for the love of heaven, let us pass up the unions.

There is a reason why San Francisco is in a continual turmoil and why Los Angeles is a happy family. And I imagine the reason is not because Los Angeles is all virtue or San Francisco is all—otherwise.

San Francisco is, perhaps, the only city in the State that can fairly be called "Californian" in the old sense.

Los Angeles has all the instincts of a Middle Western town. It thinks like the Middle West—it acts like the Middle West, and it looks like the Middle West.

Although it is, perhaps, larger than San Francisco [Look out! The brick!] it still has a good deal of the Middle Western "neighborhood idea."

The "get-togetherness" of Los Angeles is a remembrance of the prairie days, when our fathers went around and helped "raise" one another's log houses.

A COMPARISON.

If Los Angeles is the overgrowth of a "neighborly" prairie town, San Francisco still has the rough independence, friendliness and turbulence of an overgrown mining camp.

Los Angeles is peacefully and mutually helpful because we are all strangers together in a new country, and we find it pays to keep peace. San Francisco fights because fighting is rather good fun.

It may be costly; but San Francisco never counts the cost—of anything.

Every Man Read This

This treatment is said to have acquired a wonderful reputation throughout the East, owing to its peculiar propensity to fortify the nerve force and generate health and a consequent personal magnetism, so essential to the happiness of every normal human being. It is claimed to be a blessing to those who are physically impaired, gloomy, despondent, nervous and who have trembling of the limbs, dizziness, heart palpitation, cold hands and feet, insomnia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing and general inability to act rationally as others do. Also of vast benefit to writers, professional men, office workers and the victims of society's late hours and overindulgence in wines, liquors, etc.

By preparing the treatment at home secretly, no one need know of another's trouble, while the ingredients are much used in filling various prescriptions, so that even the purchase of them separately need occasion no timidity.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound, and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand 2 hours; then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene; mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one at night.

This contains no opiates whatever and may also be used by women who suffer with their nerves with absolute certainty of prompt and lasting benefits.

Passenger and Baggage Car of the Visalia Electric Railroad at the Southern Pacific station at Visalia.

it can be cut off when not in use.

The passenger service is a great convenience for travelers to Santa Maria. Guadalupe is the nearest Espee station ten miles away. Formerly a stage met each train and carried passengers for a dollar over as bad and dusty a road as could be found. No one would make the trip except under absolute necessity. Baggage cost extra. The electric cars meet each train, making about six round trips a day.

But while a decided improvement the service is still bad, very bad. The coaches are old ramshackles used for years on the steam road. They are still coupled with link and pin and recently the company was heavily fined in the United States Court at Los Angeles for thus violating the Interstate Commerce law. The nine-mile run takes about an hour, fare is 90 cents, or 10 cents a mile. How such a charge can be made under the law is not plain. Baggage is carried free.

The route is along the county road. Guadalupe station is on the west side of the Southern Pacific track which the county road crosses just a little south of the depot. The two companies have been unable to agree about the crossing and the cars now stop about a quarter of a mile away and a stage carries passengers and baggage to the steam train. Possibly the Espee will agree to let the cars run along the east side of its right of way and stop opposite the depot. Then the passengers will walk across the tracks. However, there is an area of beet land west of the railroad to which the Pacific Coast line has already laid rails which come up to the east side. To use these and serve the country there some kind of crossing must be arranged.

The electric line is no evidence of overwhelming progress on the Pacific Coast Railroad's part. In fact a more unprogressive corporation could hardly be found in the country, east or west. Local capital, however, was preparing to install a trolley system and fearing the effect of this upon its own business it put in a higher bid for the franchise. The present line was completed last spring. If the company were really progressive it would electrize its main line between Santa Maria and Orcutt, the oil fields town, and maintain a frequent service that would certainly be well patronized, extend its steam line into the eastern extension of the oil district in Cat Cañon, put down a good track and buy coaches of more recent date than Noah's ark.

County Casts a Larger Vote Than Any Other.

San Francisco County Beaten Most Surprisingly.

Southern Legislators Will Be Dominant.

Los Angeles county has surprised even its own citizens by the mammoth vote cast in the Presidential election. Complete returns, as announced officially yesterday by the Board of Supervisors, show that in the county 75,103 votes were cast. Of these, 43,328 were in Los Angeles city and 31,775 in the outside precincts.

In the State election two years ago the vote was considered unusually heavy; then the total vote for city and county was 50,329. This year Los Angeles county has the double honor of winning the State banner for the greatest Republican majority and for casting the heaviest vote of any county in the State.

Unofficial reports from the north place the vote of San Francisco county at 63,000, or 12,000 votes less than that of Los Angeles county. Politicians are deeply interested in the election returns showing the total vote cast, as it presages a radical change in the complexion of the State Legislature after the apportionment which will follow the Federal census of 1910.

LEFT AT POST.

Ten years ago San Francisco cast twice the number of votes cast in Los Angeles county. She received on this basis eighteen Assemblymen to nine for Los Angeles, and nine Senators to five for Los Angeles. The vote in San Francisco has not fallen away, but that of Los Angeles county has more than doubled. As soon as the next legislative apportionment is made Los Angeles will have a larger county delegation in Sacramento than San Francisco will have.

This means a great deal to the politicians. Where the balance of power was held formerly by the water front in San Francisco, it will now veer toward the "long hairs" from the Prohibition wards and cities of Los Angeles county. This will necessitate a marked change in the personnel of the lobby at Sacramento.

There will not be party prohibitionists in the Legislature from Los Angeles county, as the genuine prohibitionists here are Republican on State and national issues; it will simply mean that the Republican delegation to the Legislature from this county will be opposed to the liquor interests and the liquor lobby.

NO REPUBLICAN APATHY.

Republican and Democratic leaders alike are surprised at the heavy vote in the national election in Los Angeles county. Each estimated the number of votes likely to be cast at about 65,000. The result shows that the supposed Republican apathy did not exist.

In the county the vote was heavy, especially in the fruit districts. This indicates that the citrus interests were careful that Los Angeles county should vote "right" on the tariff.

Completed returns on the vote cast on Senate Constitutional amendment No. 26, relating to the mortgage tax shows, in favor of it, Los Angeles city, 9408; county outside the city, 5622; total in favor, 15,030; against it, Los Angeles city, 13,391; county outside the city, 10,001; total against, 23,402. Majority against in Los Angeles county, 8372.

ROOT WILL RETIRE.

Does not Want Place in Taft's Cabinet and Is Urged for United States Senator.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It is now understood Elihu Root does not wish to remain a Cabinet officer longer than the remainder of President Roosevelt's term, and that he will not accept a place in Taft's Cabinet. Taft is said to have indicated that if he cannot have Root as one of his department heads, he would like to have his support and counsel in the Senate.

At the same time Taft will adhere to the policy of non-interference in New York State affairs, and not seek to influence the choice of a United States Senator to succeed Thomas C. Platt. Root is being strongly urged for Senator.

Those friendly to him say he would accept a Senatorship if it came to him in a dignified way, but he is not an active candidate, and would not engage in any scramble for the office. His preference is to retire to private life and resume the practice of law.

ELECTROPODES
A NEW ELECTRIC TREATMENT

ELECTROPODES

Increase The Nerve Force

Nerve weakness is the cause of all worry. Your vitality, energy and power depend entirely upon your nerve force.

Nerve weaknesses are hot beds in which rheumatism, neuralgia, headaches, kidney trouble, back ache, weak heart, sleeplessness, lumbago, stomach and liver troubles all grow and thrive.

Nerve weakness and worry write failure in a man or woman's face and bar the road to success.

If you are suffering from any of these disorders, you must increase your nerve force, you must give to the nerves that which has been drained away by disease. To increase this essential nerve force you must use electricity, and the only way this can be done is by wearing Electropodes.

Electropodes are insulated metal insoles worn in the shoes. One is of copper and the other of zinc, making the positive and negative elements of a galvanic battery. The positive is placed in one shoe and the negative in the other, the nerves acting as a connecting wire between the two poles. All the blood, nerves and tissues of the body are thus fed a mild, soothing current of electricity the entire day. The current flows up through the limb and body down the other limb to the copper under the other foot.

The electric current from the Electropodes restores the proper circulation of the blood, which is of vital importance to people with weak heart action.

Electropodes build up the inside nerves, thus curing kidney, liver and stomach trouble. They make cold feet warm, they remove all bad odors from the feet and armpits, purifying the entire system. They ward off impending paralysis and restore to health 90 per cent. of the sufferers who wear them, who are afflicted with chronic ailments. If Electropodes do not accomplish all we say your purchase money will be refunded.

$1 PAIR

You will never regret buying a pair of Electropodes. So great has been their success that we positively guarantee them to cure — otherwise your money is refunded. Your druggist sells them. Ask him about Electropodes. He'll tell you that their record of cures is simply wonderful.

Your Druggist Will Sign a Contract With You

Go to your druggist tomorrow. Pay $1.00 for a pair of Electropodes and he will give you a contract, agreeing to refund your money if they fail to cure rheumatism in any form, nervous prostration, nervous headache and all nervous ailments.

You take no risk in buying and trying a pair of Electropodes, as your money is positively refunded if they are not satisfactory or fail to cure. If your druggist has not got them, send us his name and address and we will see that you are supplied.

MINES AND MINING—Activities in the Ore Districts of the Great South

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

COAL FIELDS EXIST NEAR LOS ANGELES.

Orange County Shows Commercial Product in Paying Quantities—of Fair Domestic and Steam-Producing Quality.

BY SIDNEY NORMAN,
Mining Editor of The Times.

DOES commercial coal exist in paying quantities in Southern California? It is a question which has an important bearing upon the commercial life of Los Angeles and is, therefore, of more than passing importance. At the present time our fuel supply is brought from Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Oklahoma, and the prevailing freight rates from these remote points are a serious tax upon the consumer. It is true that large measures are now being opened up by the Stone Cañon Coal Company, in Monterey county, midway between here and San Francisco, but as yet, no appreciable amount has reached the local market.

The Orange County Coal Mining Company, owning property in Orange county, within thirty-five miles of Los Angeles, fourteen miles from Santa Ana, ten miles from Orange and less than seven miles by a good road from McPherson on the Southern Pacific Railroad, claims that it owns the only operated coal mine in the southern part of the State, and when I was accorded an opportunity of examining it last Sunday, and answering the question of local coal supply for myself, I was only too glad to avail myself of the opportunity.

As the result of my visit I can say, briefly, that commercial coal in paying quantities does exist in Southern California, and, what is more important still, practically within sight of this city. It is true that the measures, so far as developed, are by no means large, and that the coal is inferior in some respects to outside products, but, nevertheless, it is a good steam and domestic article that, when properly mined, should exert considerable bearing upon the price of fuel in this city. It has been claimed that the product is a semi-anthracite, but, according to the best expert opinion obtainable here, it is in reality a dry, free-burning bituminous coal.

The property of the company consists of 100 acres secured from the owners of the old Spanish grant known as Rancho de Lomas Santiago, ten miles northeasterly from Orange. The contour of the country suggests that the low sandstone hills in which the coal vein is found has been made by a gentle upheaval of the formation. There has been no shattering of the sedimentary rocks and the coal will probably be found at comparatively slight depth in bedded form in the valley below. The vein is from three to four feet wide on the surface, dips at an angle of from 46 to 47 deg. to the southwest, with the hills, has a roof of sandstone that will stand with but slight timbering and a floor of shaly slate.

MINED YEARS AGO.

As I understand it, the coal has been known to exist for many years, and ten or twelve years ago was mined in a more or less half-hearted and primitive way. As a result, between 20,000 and 30,000 tons were extracted from the surface workings and shipped for consumption to Orange and Santa Ana. It is also said that the output sold for $5 a ton as it came from the mine, or $6 screened.

On the west end of the property a tunnel was run 200 feet, catching the vein at a vertical depth of perhaps 75 feet. Drifts were carried 900 feet to the west and 800 feet to the east, every foot of the way in a coal seam of equable width. At the point of intersection the vein shows about thirty inches wide, with strata of clean coal mixed with slate. In some places in these workings the vein is over three feet wide, with as much as fifteen inches of clean coal on the roof. A smaller stratum follows the floor with an average width of possibly six inches.

On the east end of the ground a semi-crosscut tunnel strikes the vein at 75 feet in and at a vertical depth of 60 feet. A drift has been run 600 feet to the northeast and the vein maintains its width and general characteristics for that distance. At the 800-foot mark a winze has been sunk thirty feet and at this, the lowest point in the workings, the vein is from thirty-six to thirty-eight inches wide, with a clean streak of coal on the roof from twelve to fourteen inches wide and a six-inch streak on the floor. It was from this point that I secured from ten to fifteen pounds of clean coal, which I submitted to Baverstock & Staples, the local chemists and assayers, for analysis, with the following result:

Volatile combustible	45.04
Fixed carbon	34.24
Ash	18.06
Sulphur	2.16

Heat units about 8800 (B.T.U.)

As said before the product is a dry, free-burning, bituminous coal, running very high in ash, high in volatile combustible matter, and low in fixed carbon. For domestic and ordinary steam purposes, however, the product has excellent commercial value when considered in competition with coals that come from points far removed from Los Angeles, and which are laid down here under heavy transportation expense. It closely resembles the lower grade coal produced in Alabama, Oklahoma and Utah.

AN OPEN MARKET.

The main point to be considered in the handling of this product is the price at which it can be laid down in the local market. The property is excellently situated, within reach of the Santa Fé, Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric railroads, and there seems no possibility of any combination that could close this market. In event of prohibitive freight rates the product could be hauled by automobile or steam trucks to the city limits, and there distributed in the usual way. Although I have not covered the entire distance by road I am reliably informed that it is practically level all the way. There is little question that the coal can be mined, screened and transported at not to exceed $4 a ton, or $5 at the very outside. This would leave an excellent margin of profit and still permit of a retail sale price considerably less than any now demanded on this market.

The matter of opening up the measures at depth presents no difficult feature. The overlying formation of sandstone is soft enough to permit of rapid work, and still strong enough to stand without excessive cost of timbering so long as the vein maintains its present dip of 45 deg. Another attractive feature, which may present commercial advantages in the future, is a stratum of fire clay about thirty feet wide lying next to and above the thirty-foot stratum of sandstone constituting the roof of the vein. While I took no samples of this material, and, therefore, have no knowledge of its chemical constituents, it is evidently of an excellent quality and could be taken out economically in combination with the more important work of extracting the coal.

GOING DEEPER.

In order to open up the measure at greater depth the company is now sinking a double-compartment shaft about 225 feet east of the old workings on the western portion of the ground, and had reached a depth of eighty feet last Sunday. It is estimated that it will have to go to a depth of between 300 and 325 feet before intersecting the vein on its depth. At the 180-foot level a crosscut will be run to the north, and about 225 feet of stoping ground below the old level will thereby be opened up. Another level will be run where the shaft strikes the vein, and the shaft will then be pushed on 100 feet deeper and a crosscut run to the south. At present the shaft is equipped with a whim hoist, but the company is figuring upon the immediate installation of the machinery necessary to carry developments to the lowset point on an economical plan. The vein is plainly traced upon the surface for three-quarters of a mile, and there is no reason to doubt that the ground contains a large tonnage of marketable coal.

The company is essentially a local concern, with a capital of $500,000 in dollar shares, incorporated under the laws of this State. The officers are Dr. J. A. Cronkhite, president; B. A. Kenyon, vice-president, and Herbert J. Miles, secretary and treasurer. That they believe in the future of the property is shown by the fact that two of the directors of the company are working in the mine in the hope of making their investment more valuable, and that without pay of any kind. It is my candid belief that it will make good—perhaps in a small way in comparison with the larger coal mining operations of the country, but still sufficiently large to make an excellent profit by supplying the local market.

IN THE EARTH.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful not of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below.

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate enclosures.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examination of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interest will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Address invariably, The Times.

Copper Glance and Azurite.

TUCSON (Ariz.) Oct. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am a prospector and have found a new ore or mineral for this locality.

I believe sample No. 1 to be silver glance, possibly containing some copper.

No. 2, I presume, is a metal azul, or blue silver ore.

Outcrops are in a crystalline lime formation near the contact of bluish basalt (trap rock.)

This mineral is found about forty miles in a southwesterly direction from Tucson and near the Loma Prieto Mountains.

Your opinion as to class of No. 1 and of No. 2 will be of great interest to us. Yours respectfully,

A. T. S.

ANSWER. Both samples are of mineralogical and metallurgical interest.

No. 1 is a mixture of "gray copper" copper glance, azurite, small blue dumortirite, manganese (dendritic,) molybdate of lead and iron oxides with silver present.

No. 2 is similar to No. 1 with copper present in low per cent.

Lead Values Very Low.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly confer a favor upon my aprtner and myself, and also other prospectors in this district, by giving us a qualitative analysis of the inclosed samples (numbered 1 to 5 inclusive) in the "In the Earth" columns of The Times.

We have located several claims about twenty miles east of Caliente, and about four miles west of the head waters of Caliente Creek.

Nos. 1, 3, 4 and 5 come from a fifteen-foot tunnel in a northwest-southeast ledge, where lead indications were very prominent.

No. 2 comes from a fifteen-foot shaft on the same ledge on the opposite side of the hill. The shaft also contains ore of the same character as No. 5, but seems to be richer in what we take to be lead.

The ledge in shaft (two inches at surface; two feet at bottom) appears to be in place, and is in lime, along a contact of mica schist.

Would like your opinion as to the possibility of this making a mine.

Will you please classify the samples, and oblige, yours sincerely,

G. L. S.

ANSWER. Glad to hear from you. From your description and samples submitted, the prospect is not encouraging.

Samples two and four are the only numbered ones.

No. 2 is granitiferous, carrying biotite, micaceous iron ore and "Peacock Iron."

No. 4 is bog-iron ore with bog manganese (wad.)

The canary-white specimen is a silicate of lime with magnesia; it carries traces of copper, traces of lead, and low per cent. vanadic acid. Forest-rock (dendritic manganese) is with the mass, as, also, iron oxides.

The brown-yellow iron oxide chiefly, will make good paint (pigment) by washing out the silica present. A very low per cent. of lead is in the sample.

The yellow-brown quartzitic specimen is oxydized ore, this should be panned (or assayed) for gold. Manganese is present as, also, titanic iron ore with very low per cent. lead vanadate.

Saponite.

AVALON, Oct. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Inclosed herewith please find sample of rock—or whatever it is. Would you please mail the result of your decision upon it?

It was taken from a rock formation at Catalina.

Awaiting your reply. I remain, respectfully yours,

C. R.

ANSWER. Time will not permit many personal letters to correspondents unless under certain contingencies—loss of specimns, etc.

The sample is saponite (a variety of talc;) used, occasionally, as a breakfast food among the Orinocos.

Chlorides of sodium, potassium, and magnesium, are present as a coating on the mass. With iron oxides and traces of bromine. Please taste it.

Madstone.

DAGGETT, Oct. 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Sample of mineral from a narrow lead about twenty miles north of Daggett. Please name it; with such other information that you may give. Yours respectfully,

F. J. F.

ANSWER. It is a silicated hydrate of alumina, "occurring in soft, smooth, compact amorphous masses, having the appearance of steatite."

Color bluish-white. Of waxy luster. It takes up water. Adheres to the tongue. Streak shining. Of conchoidal fracture. Sp. Gr. 2. "Loses weight when exposed to a high temperature, becomes much harder, and of a milk-white color. Decomposed by sulphuric acid, with separation of gelatinous silica."

The sample is halloysite, and, in the belief of many persons, is a specific for the "bites of mad-dogs," skunks, etc., on the theory, that if the stone be applied to wounds occasioned by such bites, that it (the stone) will "suck out the poison." Rather a doubtful expedient, however.

Hornblende.

OTIS (Yermo P. O.) Oct. 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Inclosed find rock. Please tell me in your "In the Earth" department what it contains. It was taken from ledge ten miles north of Daggett. Respectfully,

R. T. A.

ANSWER. It is an aluminum silicate, in part, with hornblende, iron oxides and manganese dioxide present.

Dolomite and Soapstone.

LOMPOC, Oct. 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I inclose some samples, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, which I would like information on.

I read your article in The Times some time ago on aluminum ore. I was out prospecting and ran across sample No. 1, which I thought might be aluminum ore. This sample has the inky taste you spoke of in your article.

This dike lies between a serpentine belt and a lime formation. Also found No. 2. I did not know but what it might be a formation of calcium. No. 3 is a sample of some kind of clay, it may be of some commercial value. Yours truly,

A. G. B.

ANSWER: No. 1 is a bluish aluminum silicate with microscopical iron pyrite present, and, also, traces of chromic oxide. No. 2 is a botryoidal coating—from a rock—of magnesium limestone (dolomite.) No. 3 is impure soapstone with iron oxides present and of no commercial value. None of your sample are encouraging. Calcium is a metal and does not occur native.

The "inky taste" referred to by you was not detected on analysis.

Chloride of Soda.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This inclosed sample of earth comes from desert two and a half miles from Palm Springs, and seemed to be fine soil. Since then we have dug twenty-foot well and irrigated some of the land, and after ten days the surface turned white, and we think it is alkali, but it may be salt or gypsum.

Would like your opinion as to what the white sediment is.

ANSWER: Your sample is exceedingly small in quantity.

While large specimens are always objectionable, there is a limit to which samples should not go—that is to say, about half an ounce is a typical specimen—your "earth" weighs twenty grains.

Probably the well carries salts in solution.

To detrmine your question it would require one ounce of the soil before irrigation.

Your minute scales are silicate of alumina with chloride of soda (common table salt) and traces of potash present.

Calcite and Porphyritic Rock.

SOUTH PASADENA, Oct. 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] If not imposing too much on your good nature, etc., would you kindly classify the inclosed rock, and say if there is any value attached thereto, and very much oblige.

Yours very truly,

W. K. S.

ANSWER: "Local rock." One of the samples is porphyritic with calcite present. The other specimen is impure calcite. Of but little value.

Spessartite Garnet.

FALLBROOK, Oct. 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please let me know if the inclosed sample is a gem stone, and if it is of any value.

Found near Fallbrook, Cal.

E. C. H.

ANSWER: The specimen is too impure and fissured for gem values.

Magnetite.

SAN BERNARDINO, Oct. 25.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Locality, fifteen miles from Cajon Pass. Magnetite or wolframite? Please reply in your "In the Earth."

Yours truly,

W. B.

Carbon Dioxide.

YERMO, Oct. 26.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I saw in the columns under your charge, of The Times for October 11, that a correspondent from Victorville had sent you a sample of a pink strata lying adjacent to a magnesite ledge, and your answer was that it had commercial value for the manufacture of carbonic acid.

I have the same proposition near Afton, on the Salt Lake Railroad.

Will you please tell me through your "In the Earth" what sort of a process is used, and if the process thus used would entail the loss of the gold, or should the gold be extracted first; and where is carbonic acid manufactured near this locality?

I am a subscriber to the Sunday Times. Thanking you in advance for any information you may vouchsafe.

I am, yours truly,

J. G. A.

ANSWER: Your letter brings up many questions in metallurgy and chemistry, and, to fully reply thereto would call for considerable space.

It is probable that "carbonic acid is manufactured" in Los Angeles.

If your carbonate (of lime or magnesia) carries gold—coarse or fine gold—a process to save the precious metal value would have to be taken into account. Wet methods for coarse gold would not give paying results.

At all events, th egold would be extracted after using the ore for carbon dioxide purposes.

"With oxygen, carbon forms only two compounds, but union between the two elements is easily effected. Thus, when charcoal is heated to a certain degree in the open air or in oxygen gas, it takes fire and burns with the production of an elastic vapor, which is commonly called carbonic acid gas, or, more strictly, carbonic anhydride. This gas is usually obtained, however, by other processes. It exists, combined with lime, in the different varieties of limestone, marble and chalk, and if any of these substances be exposed to a strong heat, the carbonic acid is liberated and the lime remains. An easier mode of obtaining the gas in quantity is to decompose the limestone with hydrochloric or nitric acid."

Now, for illustration, let us "manufacture" carbon dioxide. We pulverize limestone and place it in an apparatus for making the gas. Over the powdered limestone—or marble—we pour some water and add hydrochloric acid. We lead the delivery tube into a dry, empty bottle. The gas produced is heavier than air, and the gas is easily gathered by displacement. The acid acts, at once, on the limestone (or marble,) decomposes it, forms gaseous carbon dioxide, and leaves calcium chloride in solution.

The following equation in plain English (free from technical terms) shows that: Calcium carbonate, plus hydrochloric acid, gives calcium chloride, plus carbon dioxide, plus water. One hundred parts of marble yield forty-four parts by weight of the gas.

"Carbon dioxide is somewhat soluble in water, forming a weak solution of carbonic acid." Such as soda water, etc.

It is probable that your ore is an impure carbonate and carries gold.

Verily, it would require a new process to save the gold and manufacture carbon dioxide.

Carbonate of lime and hydrochloric acid would yield carbonic acid—leavin- chloride of lime in solution. Sulphuric acid could then be added to the chloride of lime solution, and at great trouble, in lixiviation, save some gold. Chlorinate the tailings, as it were; manifestly the process would not pay. The reaction would be a "hot one" indeed; hotter than a certain doctor's porridge.

Nothing personal is meant by the following: Once upon a time a doctor (who was also a ventriloquist) advertised for a boy; a stout little blond answered the ad. in person. "What 'cher want me for, doctor?" asked the applicant. "See that skeleton sitting in the chair?" the doctor replied. "Well, take this bowl of porridge and feed it," ordered the M.D. (A wire from the jaws of the skeleton was so arranged under the doctor's desk that the chin of the skeleton would rise and fall.) The little boy began feeding the skeleton, and it said, "It's too hot." The applicant dropped the bowl of porridge and left the room as quickly as a rooster flies from an open coop.

Now comes a little black-eyed chap, and after the preliminaries were explained, the boy began feeding the porridge to the skeleton, the latter, once more, said, "It's too hot." Then, little black-eyes, with a quizzical look, said, "B'gosh! blow it, you darned old stiff."

ARIZONA.

TAFT'S VICTORY MEANS MONEY.

OPERATORS EXPECT PLENTY OF CAPITAL FOR ARIZONA.

Humboldt Smelter Purchasers Believed to Be Connected With Old Company—United Verde Installs Largest Compressor Engine in the Southwest—Warren Closed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 13.—The election of Taft will mean much for the mines of Arizona, according to President Frank M. Murphy of the Santa Fé branch lines in Arizona. He has stated his belief that capital will now be found in all needful quantity for the development of the mines of the region around Prescott and tributary to the Santa Fé roads, and that prosperity in large measure will come through the happy determination of the United States to turn down Bryanism. The company of which he is already head, is planning for the building of a new railroad north from near Bouse on the Arizona and California Railroad to Planet and Signal, in southern Mohave county.

Eight claims, comprising the Lancaster and Pellet groups of mines, in Copper Basin district, south of Prescott, have been purchased by a Pennsylvania company, headed by W. L. Bennett of Pittsburgh, the price being $30,000, paid in cash.

HUMBOLDT SMELTER.

As one result of the sale of the Humboldt smelter, miners have been put to work on assessment work on about forty unpatented mining claims that form a part of the property bought in. There is a suspicion that the sale, which was for the mortgage and $200,000, was made to parties interested in the old organization. If this be so, it will not incline the miners of Northern Arizona toward entire confidence, as the chief result of the operation of the smelter was the selling of a great lot of stock in a corporation capitalized at $15,000,000. Those who purchased the stock have lost their investment, while many a miner mourns the loss of a carload or so of good ore. There was complaint, as well, over alleged undervaluation of shipments. The purchasers at the sale were Edwin S. Hooley and Thomas Achenbach of New York, represented in Prescott by F. A. Dillingham of New York and Stanley A. Swahey of Chicago. It is stated that the reorganized company will proceed to start the smelter again at an early date, with the expectation of carrying out the original plans. The works are situate in one of the most richly mineralized districts of the world and experts have stated their belief that there should be large return in the working of the silver, gold and copper ores of Northern Arizona.

A second unit of the big power plant at Kingman is well along toward completion, and power will be generated as soon as the boilers are in place. The plant will generate electrical power for all the mining camps of Central Mohave county.

The largest compressor engine in the Southwest was lately set in the works of the United Verde Company at Jerome. It weighs 340 tons, and has capacity for supplying 20,000 cubic feet of air a minute, under fifteen-pounds pressure. The engine is compound, with high and low pressure cylinders, respectively 32 and 65 inches in diameter.

More oil is reported to have been found during the week in the boring of the old well north of Prescott. The bore is now down to 1870 feet.

SYLVANITE SHIPPING.

Sylvanite gold camp, across the New Mexican line, is settling down after its boom. Meals and lodgings may now be obtained at reasonable price by any newcomer, and the new arrivals may come in from Hachita station on automobiles if they desire. There is even a prospect for the establishment of a stock exchange, for dealing in local stocks. Water costs $1 a barrel, but wells have been dug and a water supply system is planned. Sanitary precautions are being enforced by order of a town meeting, which has put health and peace officers in charge of the camp. Ore is being shipped in quantity to the El Paso smelter, and assays running up to $200 to the ton are common. Few sales are being made, the owners generally refusing all offers.

At the Douglas reduction works of the Copper Queen Company, an eighth furnace was lately started, and the reverberatory furnace will be fired up very soon. The smelter output for October was about 8,300,000 pounds of copper.

October's output of copper at the Old Dominion smelter, Globe, was about 3,500,000 pounds, from about 36,000 tons of ore. The new No. 6 furnace is being run, together with four of the old furnaces.

The Shannon Company's output for October was 1,636,000 pounds of copper.

Electric pumps are to be installed in the main mines of the Green-Cananea Company, at a cost of $35,000. This amount, it has been estimated, will be saved in six months by the greater economy in operation. The Cananea Company has abolished the familiar "boleto" and now pays its Mexican employés in cash every Monday.

WARREN CLOSED.

Much speculation has been caused at Bisbee by the closing down of the Warren mine, a property which owns ground considered as bearing bonanza earmarks. It is stated that the management is afraid to go deeper than the 800 feet already attained, as there is a prospect, at 900 feet, of tapping the great water plane of the district. This might mean practically pumping out the district for the mines that lie farther up. The management of the Warren is taking especial care to let no news escape of the condition of the mine, and it is not even known whether the expected sulphide ore body has been struck or not.

Pumps are about to start on the old Santa Rosalie mine, fifty miles from Cananea. The mine has been famous as a producer of high-grade gold ore, and rich returns are being received from assays made of ore hoisted from above the water level. The ore is to be worked on the ground, after repairs have been completed to the company's ten-stamp mill.

Through Sid. M. Kempton, M. P. Wright of Los Angeles has sold, for $50,000, silver, the Certuchena mine, in Tepic, Mexico, to a company in which Col. Epes Randolph is interested. J. P. Casey of El Paso has been engaged as manager for the company. The mine is an old one, with ore expected to return large profit through the construction into the district of the new Harriman Railroad.

COPPEROSITY SOLD.

The Copperosity mines, thirty miles south of Casa Grande, Arizona, have been sold to Davenport, Iowa, capitalists for a sum stated at $400,000. The mines have been worked for twenty years, and at least $250,000 has been spent in their development.

The Black Queen group of eleven claims, near Paradise, have been bonded by Walker & Myers to F. S. Hayward and Herbert Housman for $50,000, payable in eleven months with provisions for continuous development of the property in the meantime.

A $75,000 bond on the Paymaster mine, near Tucson, has not been made good, and the old company has resumed possession of the property.

William L. Austin of Riverside, Cal., and H. S. MacKay of Los Angeles were late visitors to the Four Metals mine, near Patagonia, sampling the property with view to a possible sale.

MINES AND MEN.

BY SIDNEY NORMAN.
Mining Editor of The Times.

Information Needed.

Last week a bank of this city received a cable from its London correspondent asking for information as to the standing of a certain local assayer who had furnished assays upon which a deal depended on the other side of the water and who, I understand, has lived here for many years in pursuit of his profession. There was no knowledge of any kind obtainable among the officers of the bank and a messenger was therefore dispatched to different business men in the city to ascertain the man's standing. This proves two things; first, that the conservative banking houses in England are evidently not averse to handling the mining enterprises of their customers and, secondly, that local banks are woefully lacking in rudimentary information concerning one of the greatest industries centered here. I will venture to say that if the query had concerned a man in any other walk of commercial life there would have been no necessity to gather information on the outside. Last week one deal involving $600,000 was concluded by the representatives of one of the largest operating companies in the United States, and concluded in this city. Surely it is time the banks of Los Angeles posted themselves on the standing of those who are attracting capital to the West to aid in the great upbuilding of the city. We have dealt in real estate for many years and have succeeded in selling every foot of land 'twixt mountain and sea. Let us now turn to the real development of our natural resources. Is it too much to expect the financial interests of the city to do their part?

Still They Come.

In another column of this issue will be found an interview with E. E. Easton, mining engineer, upon the condition of the mining investment market in the East. He goes right to the point and shows in what way Los Angeles may eradicate the antagonistic feeling that has arisen as the result of the innumerable fakes that have come out of the West. He believes that, with a proper encouragement of legitimate mining and an organized campaign of eradication of the faker, Los Angeles may become the greatest mining center in the United States. All these statements bear out what I have been contending for in this column for many months and also furnishes further proof of my statement that Los Angeles is the headquarters of some of the best mining engineers in the United States. More are coming every day and there is no reason, as Mr. Easton says, why this should not eventually be the best mining city on the map. Mr. Easton maintained headquarters in New York for many years, but was attracted here by the advantages offered as a place of residence for his family and by the ease with which the camps of the Southwest and of Mexico can be reached. Associated with him is Henry E. Crawford, also eminent in the profession and who is the special consulting engineer of the Marcus Daly estate, among the largest operators in developed properties in the United States. Another close associate is Wilbur E. Sanders, son of the late Col. W. F. Sanders, first Senator from the State of Montana and a leading figure in the vigilante days. Wilbur Sanders is the author of one of the leading text-books of mine timbering, in collaboration with Bernard McDonald, formerly in charge of the Le Roi at Rossland, B. C., and now director of great operations in Guanajuato. I mention these facts to show that I am right when I say Los Angeles is constantly attracting mining engineers of the finest experience and character. In the name of common sense what reason is there for the employment of the professional shyster, the "60 per cent." promoter, the "whispering, mysterious secret-process man," the "limedyke" engineer, and the rest of the charlatans who have brought the legitimate industry into such disrepute? There is absolutely none, but the asininity of men who ought to know better. The best professional brains are available here; their use will save many a dollar.

Mining Revival.

There is no doubt that a strong mining revival is already gaining daily impetus as an immediate result of the general expansion of commercial activity following the triumphal election of Mr. Taft, and mining men throughout the United States are now confidently looking forward to an era of good times. The copper stocks list shows improvement from top to bottom and there is good cause to believe that the upward movement will be permanent. Copper is gradually crawling back to a reasonable price after its descent to the cellar and the general prediction is that it will reach 15 cents within the next two months. So far as the local situation is concerned it can safely be said that it has never looked brighter. Goldfield is preparing for an almost immediate commencement of milling on a large scale; more attention is being paid to the excellent opportunities presented by San Bernardino county and other promising districts near home; the defeat of the objectionable foreign laws in Mexico is attracting renewed attention in that direction and, what is more important still, Los Angeles is accumulating momentum as a mining center in a remarkable degree. There is a strong disposition to investigate propositions more thoroughly than has been the custom in the past—and that, too, is an excellent sign, auguring well for the future. The news columns of the past week have shown that local capital is again taking interest in the mining fields which should be made among her most important assets and that, at last, we are awakening to the unlimited opportunities which exist on every hand. If, in the impending revival—a revival which is coming as surely as the sun will rise again on the beauties of Southern California—Los Angeles will remember the bitter lessons the faker has taught her in the past and determine to profit by the experience there will be much less antipathy to mining in local circles in the future. All that is needed to turn opportunity into a stream of virgin wealth, that will build up the city as no other industry can, is the ability to discriminate between the good and the bad. The glad hand for the legitimate mining man and the well-swung, hob-nailed boot for the faker will work wonders. When the coming year of prosperity has passed, Los Angeles will have cause to realize that mining

CURES ECZEMA QUICKLY

New Drug, Poslam, Now Obtainable in Small Quantities.

Since its discovery one year ago the new drug, Poslam, has successfully cured thousands of chronic cases of eczema and other distressing skin afflictions. Heretofore poslam has been dispensed solely for the benefit of eczema patients in large jars, sufficient for a month's treatment. This was found to be an inconvenience to many thousands who use it for minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, herpes, acne, scaly scalp, complexion blemishes, itching feet, piles, etc., which require but a small quantity to cure. To overcome this, and in response to urgent appeals, the dispensers of poslam have been obliged to adopt, in addition to their regular $2.00 package, a special 50-cent size, which in future may be found on sale at the Owl Drug Co. and other leading drug stores in Los Angeles, or may be ordered direct from the Emergency Laboratories, No. 32 W. Twenty-fifth street, New York City. In all eczema cases poslam stops itching with first application, and proceeds to heal immediately; chronic cases being cured in two weeks. In less serious skin troubles, results are seen after an over-night application.

Samples for experimental purposes may still be had, free of charge, by writing to the laboratories for them.

man camp, the immediate development will act in favor of the camp.

There is no doubt of the value of a railroad to the camp. It would hasten the boom of Rawhide, for, when a place is easy of access, there the crowds will go. There are many, many leases which would soon be in operation with the knowledge of the railroad coming, and the assurance of construction of a number of mills. The miner of Rawhide has no doubt as to the future of the camp, for the ore speaks to the miner as does opportunity to capital. The only question has been as to an outlet for the production of the mines. Now there is no doubt as to this outlet being provided, for, apart from the possibility of the Gates mill, there are two mills sure for the camp, in addition to the one now being worked by the representatives of Finch and Campbell. A start has been made on the twenty-stamp mill of the Murray lease, and today advertisements were posted for bids for a mill to be put up by the Nevada Ore Purchasing Company, to be built on the flat in the vicinity of the Murray and the Finch and Campbell mills.

PROSPECTS GOOD.

These are the immediate prospects for the camp, and there are more mills to come in the wake of those mentioned. There has been a falling off in the shipments to the smelters for the reason that the losses are too great. It is estimated that from $5 to $20 a ton can be saved on the high grade by waiting for the mills. That was the experience in Goldfield, and the experience has been, in a measure, repeated here.

There was another ripple of excitement this week over the Queen Bethania, where they have struck it again in the Gold Reef lease at the eighty-five-foot level. This is the second time the shaft has crosscut a vein, and the ore taken out of the bottom in the past few days is fully as good as that which came from the thirty-foot level. It is fine-looking rock, and bears every indication of permanency. At the ninety-foot level they are going to crosscut in expectation of catching the vein, which at the thirty-foot went from $40 to $210 a ton.

CAIN MARRIES MEAL TICKET.

Wisconsin Legislator Weds Girl Who Begged on the Streets for Him.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Elmer E. Cain, member of the Wisconsin Legislature, and Catherine Livingston, the girl who confessed that she begged and stole for him, were married yesterday after being tried and fined for disorderly conduct.

The marriage took place in the court of Justice Arns, of "marriage mill" repute, and was attended by the mothers of the principals, the detectives who arrested them in the Randolph Hotel a week ago, and several friends from Wauwatosa, Wis., the home of the two.

An incident of the strange wedding was the waiting of Municipal Judge Dicker, who heard their case, to marry them. After they had been fined Cain promised to return to court at 2 o'clock and be married by the judge. The judge waited long past the hour and expressed fears that Cain had failed to keep his promise and abandoned the girl. It was not until late in the evening that he learned of the marriage.

MITIGATING CONDITIONS.

Man in Workhouse for Non-support of Fifty Children.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TAUNTON (Mass.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Clement Cunha, 63 years old, and father of fifty living children, has been sentenced to the workhouse for one year on charge of non-support and neglect of his four-day-old twins.

Cunha, who is a Portuguese, two days ago reported to the authorities that a woman and her new born twins were starving. An investigation showed Cunha was the woman's husband and he was arrested.

On the witness stand Cunha admitted he had a divorced wife living in New Bedford to whom he had been married eleven years. During that time she had given birth to five sets of twins, two sets of triplets and two sons, eighteen children in all. Another divorced wife who is now in Portugal is the mother of all his other children except the set of twins born to his present wife last year, and a daughter who preceded them.

"How many children all told, have you?" asked the judge.

"Fifty living," was the answer.

SOCIETY FORMED TO EXTEND RESTRICTIONS.

Lord Haldon at Head of Movement to Make Dissolution of Marriage Possible on Grounds of General Scope—One Hundred Thousand Couples Said to Be Mismated.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "There are 100,000 married couples in England, probably, who would like to be divorced, and would be divorced if they had the means," declares the prospectus of a new "divorce society," formed in London, with Lord Haldon at its head, for the purpose of extending the grounds on which dissolution of marriage may be obtained. This is to be done through passing new marriage laws or amending the old ones, so as to "rescue the holiest human relationship from the present monstrous conditions."

The Executive Committee, which, besides Lord Haldon, includes several men and women prominent in London social life—states that the society will begin by agitating for a law which, first, will make marital misconduct the same for both sexes; second, will make one year's desertion or cruelty or inability to maintain a wife, grounds for divorce; third, will declare all children of divorced persons to be wards in chancery until their majority.

"I TOLD YOU SO"

About Dangerous Hair Dyes!

In 1906 and 1907 I published in the leading papers of this country a large advertisement called "Dangerous Hair Dyes," in which I set forth the dangers and disadvantages from the use of strong two-bottle dyes and particularly the lead and sulphur preparations with the thick sediment.

Now does it not seem significant that as soon as the pure food laws went into effect, makers of various preparations, which I warned you against at an earlier date, were forced by the new laws to change their labels and correct their unreasonable claims, and in many cases they have even changed their formulas and no longer claim to restore the color to gray and faded hair.

I have not changed my formula of the truly wonderful coloring preparation called Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer, because it always was, and still is, harmless and good. It will convey to gray or faded hair the color that it originally was in a week or ten days without making the hair appear dyed. It is cleanly, and the treatment is as simple as combing a little water onto the hair. As it contains no lead or sulphur, there is nothing to wash or rub off and it does not make the hair greasy, nor yet harsh,—just leaves the hair to appear as it was in a natural state.

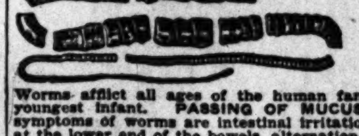
I believe we are selling more of Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer than all similar preparations put together, in spite of the fact that we do not advertise much, and advertise now only because we want the credit for exposing the worthless preparations long before the food and drug laws proved that I was right without the question of a doubt.

On request we will send to those interested a copy of our advertisement referred to above, called "Dangerous Hair Dyes," which gives information worth knowing for those whose hair is gray or faded.

Mary T. Goldman's Gray Hair Restorer is $1.00 per bottle and will be sent direct by express, prepaid, on receipt of price. Address Goldman Bldg., St. Paul, Minn. It is also for sale and highly recommended by Sun Drug Stores.

Stomach and Bowel Trouble?

ARE YOUR CHILDREN PUNY AND ANAEMIC?



Stomach, intestinal, liver worms, tape worms, thread worms, and all other parasites which infest the human body, and are the cause of so many chronic troubles, can be removed without inconvenience or fasting. My treatment is absolutely harmless and can be taken by the youngest child or the most feeble person. Worms afflict all ages of the human family from the oldest person down to the youngest infant. PASSING OF MUCUS IMPORTANT SYMPTOM. The usual symptoms of worms are intestinal irritation, pains in the belly, irritation or itching at the lower end of the bowels, alternation of diarrhoea and costiveness, great thirst, and variable and often voracious appetite. The patient sometimes becomes hungry almost immediately after eating heartily and at other times the appetite is feeble and depraved. There is a fetid breath; the complexion is pale or sallow. There is pain of the bowels and at the pit of the stomach, with occasional purging and a good deal of gastric distress. The head is much affected, sometimes painfully. Worms may also be suspected where there is emaciation, and especially weakness of the bowels, accompanied by discharges of slime and mucus.

I diagnose and tell you whether you have any of these parasites or not. Consultation and diagnosis FREE. Hours 9 a.m. to 12; 1 to 4 p.m.

FAKERS FOLLOW RELAY SYSTEM.

CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCES TO CATCH THE PENNIES.

Increase in the Gentry Who Live by Their Wits, Imposing on the Credulity of Street Throngs at Fifth and Main Mecca—How They Operate.

The winter crop of "catch penny fakers" have arrived, and they did a big business, yesterday, along South Main street, which is their old stamping ground. But the city is growing and the crop of fakers increases every year. Last year they spread to South Spring street, and yesterday some obtained locations as on the cross streets between Broadway and Hill street.

The schemes to catch the unwary nickels and dimes are the same old games, with new faces and another way of "presenting the goods." Some of the old timers have returned but for the most part, this year's crop is a new one.

As usual the center of business was Fifth and Main streets. Here they are so thick as to jostle one another, and they worked the crowd in relays in order to keep from interfering with each other. Each had his own line and among the things for sale were collar buttons, neckties, necktie holders, spring handled awls, polishing powder, cement, roasted chestnuts, and a contrivance to thread sewing machine needles. Incidentally the latter article has been on sale at all the sewing machine stores.

This being a general street car transfer place, a crowd is always present and it is an ideal spot for those who live by their wits.

"Gentlemen—your attention for just a moment," bawled the man with a cement, alleged to come from some place in South America. "I have here a little article"—etc., and etc., for about ten minutes, in which he explains how this wonderful cement can be used to mend anything from a cracked cup to a broken heart. The sum total of reward for this great expenditure of air and energy, was 50 cents, received in exchange for five boxes of ordinary cement costing him but two cents a piece. The crowd seemed to be worked out so far as possible purchasers of cement were concerned, so he gave the wink to the next man in line.

"Now if you will give me your kind attention for a few moments, I will demonstrate to you——" also, etc., etc., and the next man in line spent five minutes in showing a new polishing powder for silver. He is a quick worker, and he managed to sell eight boxes in that time, clearing 45.

Thus it went from polish to the awl, a commodity by which a man may mend his own shoes; then to the collar-button man, who also dealt in necktie holders and neckties.

The people who stood and listened to these never-ending harangues presented curious contrasts. There were laborers from the aqueduct, in for a holiday; well-dressed business men, waiting for a car; small boys, foreigners who nodded in a sheepish way when the faker addressed his remarks to them in a tongue still strange; wiry little Japanese, who chuckled and seemed tickled with what they saw, and the regular hangers on, or "cappers."

The last are a peculiar class of men, from whose ranks the police gather an occasional vagrant, on the charge that he has not worked for the past thirty days. They just stand around. It is understood that they receive a little pay, enough to pay for two 10-cent meals and a 10-cent bed, if trade is good. They form the nucleus of the crowd, and "start" the trade.

In addition to the new crop of street salesmen, there were the old standbys, who never give up their stands, no matter how dull the trade or how many newcomers try to elbow them out of their choice locations. Foremost among these were the purveyors of death to fleas and patent awls. It was a good day yesterday, and both new and old fared well, some selling out their entire stock before the evening rush was over.

PITCHED TO HER DEATH.

Woman Struck by Pacific Electric Car at Road Crossing and Instantly Killed.

Mary R. Dale, 50 years of age, was struck and instantly killed yesterday morning by an inbound car of the Pacific Electric Newport line, between Obispo and Anaheim streets, Zaferia.

The woman was standing near the tracks as the car approached. No stop is made at the road crossing, a mile below the Long Beach junction, and the motorman signaled the woman to get away from the track. Instead she stepped on the rails, and the rapidly-moving car struck her and pitched her through the air twenty feet, killing her instantly.

She was brought to Los Angeles and sent to the Pierce morgue, where an inquest will be held. Mrs. Dale and her mother, Mrs. Edgar, who lives at Zaferia, had intended to leave for Northern California yesterday.

Waiter Committing Suicide, Writes to Girl Friend and Mother—Says Luck's Against Him.

Before committing suicide early yesterday morning by inhaling the fumes of gas, Jesse McGillis, a waiter living at the Model rooming-house, No. 526 San Julian street, scribbled two notes on the stiff bosom of a dress shirt.

One, addressed to Miss Eva Watson, No. 516 San Julian street, is as follows:

"Dear Eva: A sign of hard times. To the only friend I have in Los Angeles. Good-by little girl. With God's help may you prosper. Be a good girl. [Signed] Jess."

To his mother he wrote:

"Forgive this rash act, but I cannot help it under the circumstances. Luck is against me."

McGillis went to his room last night and locked all the doors and closed the transom. Some time during the night he turned on the gas. He was a waiter and came to Los Angeles from Sacramento about a year ago.

GAS ON, FACE NEAR IT.

Mrs. Sadie Wiley, 39 years of age, of No. 124 East Tenth street, attempted suicide yesterday morning by inhaling the fumes from a gas heater.

Mrs. Wiley owes her life to the quick work of roomers in her house and Patrolman Dorsey. Shortly before noon the boarders heard moans and detected the odor of gas. They kicked in the door of the kitchen. The patrolman, who happened to be passing, rushed in and administered first aid. Mrs. Wiley was then taken to the Receiving Hospital in record time in the new police patrol.

When found, her body, clothed only in her night dress, was lying on the floor, her face within a few inches of a small gas heater. Two of the jets were turned on full. The doors and windows of the room were locked.

"[illegible] think of New York?" [illegible] Lisk, suddenly snap-[illegible] of her sister's revela-[illegible] you have been [illegible] good deal?"

"[illegible] in New York this [illegible]"

"[illegible] too soon for you to [illegible]"

"[illegible] to have some!" [illegible] "What are they? Oh, [illegible] so far—noise, [illegible] pretty—he was going [illegible] changed his mind, [illegible]"

"[illegible] season of the year [illegible]," said Miss Lisk; [illegible] gone away to the sea-[illegible] country. Momma has gone to Maine, to fix up our country house, and we shall be following shortly."

Here the door opened, and a tall, elderly man appeared. He had a keen, clever face, and thick snow-white hair.

"Oh, here is poppa!" exclaimed Miss Lisk. "Poppa, this is the Marquis De Sarazin, a Spanish gentleman, who has traveled all the way from Spain in search of a family jewel which has been brought by Aunt Dossie."

"Very pleased to see you, sir," said Mr. Lisk, offering his long hand. "I think you arrived in the Baltic today? You had a pretty big crowd on board."

"Yes, there was not much room to spare."

"A friend of mine, Mr. McWilliam, was speaking of you just now; he told me you had got real well acquainted coming out, and he was anxious to keep his eye upon you and show you around."

"It is very kind of him, I am sure."

"I suppose you are at the Waldorf—it's an amusing place."

"If you want to see sights, you should sit in the Peacock Walk," said Cora, "and watch all the folk go by."

"I'm afraid I have no time for that sort of thing. I want to accomplish my errand."

"And so you have come over after a piece of jewelry?" said Mr. Lisk, surveying him, with his thumbs in the armholes of his waistcoat.

"Yes; my father and I are most anxious to recover it."

"I am greatly afraid," rejoined the other, smiling at his daughters, "that there is a poor chance of recovering anything from Mrs. Van Booss—she gets set on things."

"So that young lady"—looking at Cora—"has been telling me, and preparing me for difficulties."

"Ah, I shouldn't wonder if my little schoolgirl has been giving you a conversational variety turn?" Is there any one so partial and so proud as an American father? "We shall be glad if you will dine with us this evening."

"You are too kind; but I must make arrangements for an early start tomorrow for Chicago."

"Oh, well, in that case, all I can do is to wish you good luck."

"There's the motor outside, poppa," said the elder girl, rising. "I wonder if the Marquis De Sarazin would care to take a turn in the Central Park, and see something of our city? It's a lovely afternoon."

Paul declared that he would be only too happy to avail himself of such a delightful opportunity, and not long after he and the two pretty Americans were whirling round the park, talking and laughing as though they had known one another for years.

The young ladies pointed out to him the principal sights—not forgetting the tame, up-sitting squirrels. They questioned him closely about Spain, bull-fighting, Spanish songs and dances, and were by no means indifferent to his fascinating personality. Nor did his conversation diminish the impression he had produced; indeed, he seemed to them to radiate romance!

After an enjoyable two hours' ride, which included Bronx Park, the charming Miss Lisks reluctantly deposited their companion at the Waldorf.

"We shall be here for a week longer," said the elder, "and when you return, you must come and dine, and bring the necklace with you and let us see it."

"Yes, and tell us all about Aunt Dossie," added her sister. "Give her my love, and tell her she must part with the necklace, much as she loves it!" In another moment the two radiant faces had rolled away up Fifth avenue.

Paul de Sarazin, having consulted a time-table and Pedro, turned into the flower department, and chose two large bouquets of American Beauty roses. To him this responsibility, the selection of floral offerings, was a familiar and congenial task; and presently the flowers, carefully packed, were delivered to a messenger-boy, who was also entrusted with a card, on which was inscribed—

"To Miss Lisk and Miss Cora Lisk, with the homage of P. de Sarazin."

THE GOLDEN WEST.

One-fourth of the World's Gold Output Comes from Alaska and the Pacific Coast States.

[Seattle Times:] Alaska and the three Pacific Coast States produce a little less than one-half of the gold of the United States and one-tenth of the world's supply.

Alaska and the States lying west of the Rocky Mountains produce 64 per cent. of the country's gold.

Alaska, the Coast and Rocky Mountain States with South Dakota included produce all of the $97,200,000 worth of gold with the exception of about $500,000, which is produced in the entire country.

These facts are shown in a late compilation made by the Geological Survey of the United States government covering 1906, the latest completed statistics for the entire country. Taken in connection with a recent report of the world's production of precious metals prepared by the director of the United States mint it is shown that the States in and west of the Rockies, including Alaska, produce almost one-fourth of the entire world's supply of the precious metal. The world's output in 1906 was estimated to be $400,000,000.

One-third of the world's silver production came from the United States and another one-third from Mexico. The commercial value of the silver of the world was $112,000,000 of which $38,000,000 was produced in this country and of it $36,500,000 was produced in the States in and west of the Rocky Mountains.

The tabulation made by the Geological Survey shows that the total gold output of Alaska between the opening of placers in 1880 and the end of 1906 was $123,185,000. The production was inconsiderable until 1892, when it went to $1,000,000. In 1897 the figures reached $5,000,000. The Seward Peninsula, which now produces $7,000,000 a year, was not touched until 1897 and the Tanana—Yukon Valley—now turning out $10,000,000 a year, was a small proposition until 1903. The total output of Alaska in 1906 was $22,036,794.

The gold output of the Yukon territory in 1906, which, of course, is not included in Alaskan statistics, was $5,600,000.

Gold produced in Alaska, Washington, Oregon and California in 1906, was $42,257,794; and in the same territory with Idaho, Nevada, Utah and Arizona was $62,160,667.

While a large part of the gold of Alaska comes to Seattle, the United States assay office in this city also occasions the bringing in of large amounts of Yukon and British Columbia gold. The total amount of gold handled in the assay office between the opening of the office in July, 1898, and July, 1908, was $158,600,000.

Miss Lancaster's "Ladies' Quartette" entertains at the unrivaled 30 cent commercial lunch, 11 to 2 p.m., and 50 cent club dinner, 5 to 8 evenings, in the large dining hall of Pacific Electric Grill, Huntington Bldg. waiting room.

TALKS ON TEETH

BY THE REX DENTAL CO.
(Incorporated.)

Wanted—First Class Dentistry

The most expensive thing in the world is poor dentistry. An ignorant dentist can do more harm in one hour than all the good dentists in the land can repair in a lifetime.

The trouble is that when the harm is done, or when teeth are gone, they are gone forever. There is no such thing as repairing the damage, or feeling sorry, or trying all over again.

Dentistry must be done well in the beginning.

The great specialty of this company is known as the "Alveolar Method" (supplying missing teeth without the aid of plates).

In almost every instance we get the desperate cases. We are the court of last resort.

In a majority of cases we are asked to restore a full set of upper or lower teeth when there are but two teeth left in either jaw to work from.

Suppose we were to bungle such work! When we put this work in the mouth it is in to stay. The Alveolar teeth are as solid as a rock, otherwise they would not work.

Is not ours a dental office that calls for first-class dentistry?

Assuredly yes.

Our business has grown from one office to where at the present time we have magnificently appointed offices in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Oakland, and more in prospect in other cities.

Did this great dental business come by accident, or through giving first-class dentistry to those who trusted themselves to the care of our specialists?

Certainly the latter. Read the following letter, which bears out all we have said before:

God Gave Him No Better

Soldiers' Home, Cal.

Rex Dental Co.,
Los Angeles, Cal.

Gentlemen.—Nine months ago you furnished me teeth, molars, both side, upper and lower jaws. I desire to testify that they have given excellent satisfaction and have well performed the work of natural teeth.

Yours very truly,
THOMAS CAROLAN.

We do not ask our readers to take our unsupported testimony for the work we do.

Every operator in all of our offices is a specialist, therefore your work will be done more quickly and with more comfort to you than you have ever experienced before in any dentist's office.

We invite you to call and allow our examining dentist to look your teeth over. Do not get the idea that by so doing you must have some work done. We cannot tell you what we can do for you until the examination is made. Then it rests entirely with you as to whether or not you will employ us.

The "Alveolar Method" you cannot obtain elsewhere. We own that method.

There is no other plan of restoring missing teeth without plates or ordinary (painful) bridge work, but the "Alveolar Method."

It is wonderful. The next best thing to growing a new set of natural teeth.

If you can't come to see us at this time send for "Alveolar Dentistry," our illustrated book which tells all about the new method.

We send it free.

But by all means come and see us if you are near enough.

That is the best plan.

FREE BRITISH BED.

Vice-Consul Trying to Raise Fund to Buy One at Good Samaritan Hospital.

To purchase, for free use in perpetuity, a bed at the Good Samaritan Hospital, C. White-Mortimer, British Vice-Consul in Los Angeles, has sent circulars to British-born residents of the city seeking contributions of $5 or more. The hospital will give such a bed in perpetuity by the payment of $5000, and the Vice-Consul has already collected $2275.34, of which $750 was given by the Caledonian Society. Mr. Mortimer has paid $2000 to the hospital, entitling British to a bed for 146 days each year, and has an agreement that for each $500 paid forty-six days each year will be added. He also agrees to draw free all wills making bequests of $10 or more to this fund. The bed is needed, the circular says, as there are always sick and indigent British-born people in the city.

FINE AUTOMOBILE GONE.

E. J. Stanton yesterday reported the loss of a fine automobile, taken from in front of the Shrine Auditorium, Friday night. Stanton left the car, valued at $5000, while he attended the Elks' festival. When he sought his car later in the evening it was gone.

WOMEN CROWD INDUSTRIES.

PROVE THEMSELVES SUCCESSFUL AT MEN'S WORK.

A Southern Woman Makes a Success of Operating a Peanut Farm, While Pittsburgh Girls Perform Daily Service in the Iron Foundries of That City.

To bring up and educate six small children on fifty acres of poor land in North Carolina was the task Mrs. Jennie R. Cass set for herself seven years ago.

Beside the farmhouse of five rooms and its cheap furnishings she had one mule and one horse, both too old to have their ages recorded; a cow and a calf, twenty-two chickens and three razorback pigs.

The plows, wagons and other farm implements were about as old as the horse and mule, and in just about as good condition.

"The children just had to be educated, so I set to work to do it," Mrs. Cass said. "My husband had been ill a long time and all of his little insurance money went to pay bills contracted on that account.

"The first step was to decide what crop I would depend on to bring money. As my husband had raised peanuts with more profit than tobacco, I had a leaning that way.

"Among the books and papers I read on the subject of peanut culture none did me so much good as the little bulletin sent out by the United States Agricultural Department. Most of the peanut raisers I had known about had made a point of planting their land one year in corn and the next in peanuts. That was the only effort at rotation of crops, so far as I knew. When I read that this was injurious, impoverishing even the best land, I set out to try the rotation of crops recommended by the bulletin.

"Instead of planting forty acres of peanuts and ten acres in other farm products, as my husband had always done, I reversed the order of things. When the crop of that year was harvested I sowed every inch of land I could in winter oats and rye.

"The next spring when that grain was cut the ten acres which had been planted in general farm crops was prepared and planted in peanuts. After planting enough corn and potatoes to supply the farm I sowed the balance of the land in cowpeas.

"That first crop of peanuts averaged twenty-six bushels to the acre. The day after the crop was carted from the field I had the plows in and that ten acres put in winter oats. The next spring I doubled my acreage in peanuts and also the amount of fertilizer to the acre. The result was an increase in the yield of from twenty-six bushels an acre to sixty bushels.

"The third year I began to experiment not only with fertilizers, but also with different varieties of peanuts. After selecting an acre of as good land as I had on the farm, I planted rows of seeds of different varieties of peanuts.

"In harvesting that year I kept the varieties separate and found that while the Spanish nuts had yielded the greater number of bushels the Virginia running nuts brought the higher price. As I was in the business to make money, naturally the next year my acreage of the best-paying variety was increased.

"I now devote my attention to those two varieties, planting twenty acres of the Virginia running variety and five acres of Spanish. The Virginia nut is much in demand by sellers of the best roasted peanuts, while confectioners all over the world prefer good Spanish nuts.

"For seven years I have not only kept my children at good schools, but also increased the stock on my farm until I now have five blooded horses, a herd of registered cows and a small flock of sheep, from which this year I expect to sell twenty first-class muttons. I raise all the bacon used on my farm, all the butter, eggs, poultry and breadstuffs, besides all the corn and forage for my stock."

Women in Factories.

In a Pittsburgh foundry girls are employed to make simple cores for castings. A quick girl can make 10,000 a day, for which she receives $1. According to the investigator who reported to charities on "Pittsburgh Women in the Metal Trades," this work is carried on in clouds of drifting dust. As the cores are finished they are set on trays, which the women carry across the room to the ovens. A loaded tray weighs from ten to twenty-five pounds. In an electrical factory in East Pittsburgh 650 women are employed on piece work in winding coils for armatures. The fastest make $1.47 a day. The work is so taxing that the employés give out readily. Only twenty-five have been in the factory four years. Three screw and bolt workers in the same city employ 543 women. A bolt trimmer—to use one class of labor as an illustration—stands for ten hours before a machine. She feeds bolts to the mechanism at two-second intervals—16,000 times a day—for a wage of 96 cents.

Bad conditions, these, for women to work under, and likely to have an indirect effect in weakened and stunted children.

Doubtless the employers feel that they are not to blame, that they are forced by competition for cheap goods to hire cheap labor. If any one of them should hold out and refuse to use the methods of his competitors he would be forced to the wall. So it is up to organized society to take a hand and fix the rules of the game. Conditions for the employment of women and children must be determined and enforced by the State. Otherwise society is at the mercy of a demand for cheapness that sacrifices the future of the race.

Women as Drummers.

Women drummers are becoming more plentiful every day, and they are successful, too, says a writer in Leslie's Weekly. One has but to go to the firms employing these "women of the grip" to learn that their sales are as large as, if not larger, than those of the sterner sex. This field for women is comparatively new, but already so many bright and clever women have entered into it who have met with phenomenal success that it will not be long until they will stand equal chances with the "knights," who have for so long monopolized this particularly well-paying business. And we have not far to go in looking for a reason for all this. In the first place, a woman is bound to gain recognition simply because she is a woman, for it is the hardest thing in the world for a man to refuse a request made by a woman, especially if the woman be young and pretty, and, of course, clever. So, before he knows what she is doing, he is placing an order.

In many branches, such as in selling corsets, ladies' waists and underwear, perfumery, millinery, toilet articles and dozens of other things, a woman is better adapted to the business of selling than a man, and she is particularly successful along these lines. A successful woman drummer is always in her element, for she is sure of herself and knows what she can do; it is second nature for her to dilate and expand on the salient features of such of these articles as she may be selling. As a rule these women are quick at repartee, some of them good story-tellers, brimming over with original good humor, and have a thorough knowledge of men's weaknesses.

A LITERARY EXCURSION.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—"Lady Randy's" recollections with which you are familiar in the United States have made their appearance here in book form under the title, "Reminiscences of Lady Randolph Churchill." The British public is more or less familiar with its contents through quotations in the English press from the magazine in which it came out in the United States, but its appearance between stiff covers has excited fresh comment upon the wonderful fact displayed by the famous Anglo-American society woman in steering safely through an extraordinarily complicated lot of situations which in less diplomatic hands might have called down a host of troubles on the head of the writer.

No wonder is expressed that Lady Randy's recollections should have appeared when she very evidently, if the hopes and prayers of her many well-wishers are fulfilled, has many more years to live and shine. She is but following a fashion, popular of late years, to "recollect" in the summer, instead of in the autumn of one's years. Even so youthful an author as G. K. Chesterton has made his appearance as a "recollector" and the list is too long to bear quotation in full.

Even those who thought they were tolerably familiar with the life and times of Mrs. George Cornwallis West find cause for surprise that she should be able to recall so many of the distinguished characters of the comparatively long ago. It hardly seems possible that she was ever on intimate terms with the Abbé Liszt, Gen. Boulanger and others who appear in her pages.

Mrs. West still wields a very strong influence in the intellectual life of England despite the fact that her comings and goings are not followed as closely or heralded as far as in years gone by. In her home near Marble Arch in the West End of London, she still presides over a regular salon, where one may meet, if one is fortunate enough to be commanded in attendance, most of the notables of the day. Intellectuality in her guests is as indispensable attribute in the eyes of Lady Randy and she certainly has a more wonderful talent for bringing out budding geniuses of every sort than any other society woman of her time. Whether the bringing out of budding geniuses will be regarded as a blessing or not is an open question but nevertheless many a promising genius would never have budded—much less blossomed—without Lady Randolph Churchill's kindly enthusiasm.

It is a rather sad commentary on these times that books are becoming almost as short-lived as certain members of the insect kingdom. It must not be imagined at all that there is any similarity between books and insects. Far be it from us to say so, but the life of the book in these times is a showy and ephemeral one. Indeed, it has been said by Mr. Runciman, president of the Board of Education in England, that the death-rate of modern novels is something appalling. After careful study of the question from statistical points of view, he came to the conclusion that the life of the modern novel is limited to about three weeks. Mr. Runciman with a cold-blooded cynicism, which only a minister of education could adopt, spoke of this fact with elation. He went into grewsome particulars and fairly gloated over this slaughter of—can we say—innocents?

"The average novel has a life of about three weeks," said Mr. Runciman, "while only two novels out of ten have a month's existence. Many of these novels are written by women and the books are sometimes such dead losses from a selling point of view that many London booksellers will not stock them at all.

"Then we get the author or authoress who has written one successful book and then writes 'pot-boilers,' that is, turns out fiction which is mere rubbish, and which the public has no desire to read. So great is the amount of fiction now turned out that even the best authors find a diminishing circulation for their books."

Fortunately, the Minister of Education wound up his tirade by holding out a certain amount of hope to the real author. He said:

"It is my opinion, however, that the supply of really good readable novels is getting shorter and shorter every year." This then leaves a loop-hole for the good author to come along and make his fortune. According to the economic laws, the smaller the supply, the higher the price for the author. So perhaps in the future we shall see fewer authors and more millionaires among the literary word-builders.

In discussing this position with a well-known London book seller, he said that the "infant mortality" among novels by amateur writers was due to the fact of the sameness of plot and their stereotyped conversations and love scenes. Now that we know why books live such a short time—having Mr. Runciman's word for it—there will be no difficulty for authors to avoid the pot-boilers and turn out long-lived books with striking plots and seething love scenes.

Mr. Runciman, by the way, has recently distinguished himself for an attack of what might be called "newsophobia," as he says that all the English newspapers are full of unreadable literary piffle, which is a disgrace to the century. A writer in the Star points out, however, that a large amount of space in the newspapers is devoted to the speeches of Cabinet Ministers and that Mr. Runcimann always has a column or two of matter in the press. Men like G. B. Shaw, A. B. Walkley and Clement Shorter were all on the staff of the London newspapers at one time and so also were J. M. Barrie, Hall Caine and Jerome K. Jerome. It is doubtful, under the circumstances, whether Mr. Runciman's charge on the literary windmill would be more effective than his early prototype—the immortal Don Quixote.

Five hundred new volumes have just been added to the library of the House of Commons. It is a rather interesting speculation as to the kind of books which M.P.'s read and I asked the librarian the other day about this during a brief visit to the House.

"Some of the members," he said, "are great readers and the new volumes which have just been added to our library are made up mostly of history, biography and modern memoirs together with a few volumes of poetry. It is not generally known that the House of Commons library is the most complete political library in the world with the exception of the British Museum. There are 70,000 volumes. Perhaps this library is one of the most singular in the world from the fact that it does not contain a novel. Hosts of publishers send their novels to the library but they are never accepted. The library at the House of Commons," continued the librarian, "is principally used by the members in catching up with each other's mistakes. All the speeches are here recorded and when a member wishes to 'floor' another he sends for a speech he made on a previous occasion and woe betide the unhappy member who does not recollect his utterances on earlier occasions. Very often the books in the library are used by members to prolong debate when they are at a loss for original material."

MAD DOGS HURT BUSINESS.

All Unmuzzled Curs in Terre Haute to Be Shot by Police—Many Persons Bitten.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A mad dog scare has caused the Retail Merchants' Association and the Business Men's Club to call on the City Council for prompt action. They have petitioned that all unmuzzled dogs in the city be immediately shot. They say that the alarm is so general that people will not come to the city to trade.

Others who are especially interested in trade conditions have raised a fund of $1000 to send victims that have been bitten to the Pasteur Institute in Chicago for treatment. At present there are fifty now being cared for in the institute from Terre Haute.

The present scare dates from the death of Peter Grose, a twelve-year-old boy, a week ago, who was bitten by one of a litter of ten bull pups. These pups were distributed over the neighborhood, and it is supposed that all of them were suffering from hydrophobia.

A dozen children, who had been bitten or scratched by the little dogs, were hurried at once to the institute. Dr. Logorio at once sent word to send all others at once; that if they were poor he would treat them free. The City Council held a special meeting tonight to take action.

Two months ago, at another scare, 500 dogs were killed by the police in ten days.

"I wonder what Millyns, who had so much money while his wife had so little, is contesting her bequests for?"

"I heard him say he didn't care a picayune for the money, but he wanted for once in his life to feel what it was like to dispute her will."—[Baltimore American.

SWEET REVENGE.

SLAM AT WEST WAS SOCIAL FEUD CAUSE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Apropos of the social and financial feud which will soon culminate in the retirement of W. B. and Edward Ridgely as president and cashier respectively of the National Bank of Commerce, it was stated today that a remark made by Mrs. W. B. Ridgely in Washington before her husband resigned as Comptroller of the Currency was largely responsible for the present status of affairs.

In discussing the possibility of her husband accepting the presidency of the Kansas City bank, Mrs. Ridgely is said to have remarked:

"I hardly think it possible. Mr. Ridgely realizes that I would not care to give up Washington for the West. Such a vast difference socially, don't you know."

This might have been overlooked by Kansas City women had there been no further violations of social ethics.

Even the failure of the Mmes. Ridgely to return calls made by wives and daughters of directors of the bank was allowed to pass with but little comment.

But when at a reception given by Mrs. J. L. Loose and Mrs. William Lee Karnes, "to meet the Mmes. Ridgely," the newcomers saw fit to devote but fifteen minutes of their time to the function, social Kansas City is said to have declared that the limit had been reached.

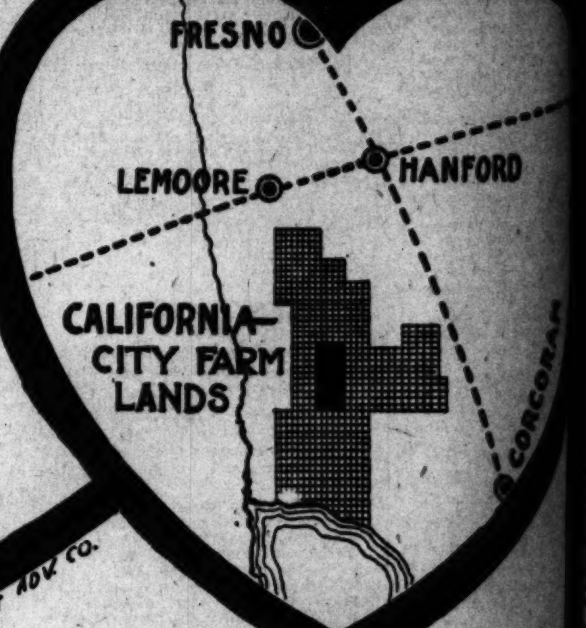
Defective eyesight on the part of Mrs. W. B. Ridgely, who frequently was unable to afterward see people to whom she had been introduced, is also said to have occasioned no little embarrassment among the residents of the fashionable Broadlands Hotel, where the Ridgelys weer domiciled for several months.

Dr. W. S. Woods, who is once more in control of the National Bank of Commerce, denies that social controversies had anything to do with the business affairs of the bank. He declares that social rivalry was merely coincident to the financial battle in which he has been victorious.

In justice to the Ridgelys, Dr. Woods requests the papers which printed the "social war" story to give a like prominence to the following statement:

"An article in regard to the National Bank of Commerce contains statements which do great injustice to both Mr. Ridgely and myself, as well as to others. In all of our transactions pertaining to the affairs of the bank, I have acted from a business standpoint, and have been influenced solely by business consideration, and I am sure the same is true as to those who are associated with me and as to Mr. Ridgely also. No question of a social nature has ever been taken into consideration in any way whatever. In fact, no thought of that kind ever occurred to me, and there was no reason why it should; nor did I ever have an intimation of anything of that kind, until I read the article above mentioned. Doubtless some one has been misinformed as to the facts, and I ask you to publish this statement to the end that false impressions which would naturally be created by the article referred to, may be corrected and I hope you will make it as conspicuous in the columns of your paper as was the article which it is intended to correct.

"Throughout my business career I have made it a rule not to rush into print about matters of a business nature; but I feel that the circumstances in this case are such as to both justify and require me to depart from my usual custom in that regard."



GREAT HOMESEEKERS EXCURSION

TUESDAY EVE. Nov. 17th.

Opening of

California City Lands

Fifteen thousand acres of the choicest land in the fertile San Joaquin Valley thrown open to homeseekers November 18. Immediately surrounded by some of the highest developed lands in the State—lands that cannot be touched for less than $250 per acre, and run as high as $400. Midway between Los Angeles and San Francisco—the two great markets of the West. Easy access to Santa Fé and Southern Pacific railroads. Unlimited water supply from the mighty Kings River—flowing wells to be had anywhere on the land.

Rich sedimentary soil, splendidly adapted to sugar beets, alfalfa and dairying, orchards, vineyards, truck gardening, poultry and stock raising. Crop failures impossible.

Schools, churches and city privileges are close at hand.

The famous Jacob Rancho forms the greater part of the California City Lands. This is undoubtedly the choicest and best known piece of land in California. Held intact since 1854 by an old pioneer—it was the most wanted ranch in the State. Every effort to buy it failed until the recent financial depression forced the heirs to come to our terms.

Positively the only opportunity to buy land of this kind in the State today.

$50 Per Acre and up

Make arrangements at once to join this excursion Tuesday evening. You will arrive on the lands Wednesday morning. To those who come will be given absolutely first choice of the land. No land will be sold before the opening day—there has been no land reserved.

Call at our office and make berth reservations. Secure our special booklets on "Alfalfa and Dairying," "Sugar Beets," "Orchards and Vineyards." They're free to homeseekers.

perhaps why Wilbur Wright has succeeded where others have failed.

"The most curious thing about Wilbur Wright is not his flying. It is his silence. To call him monosyllabic is to exaggerate. He does not say little. He says nothing for hours, and then raps out a remark which makes you think for days. He himself believes in thought and says: 'I am going to lie down and think,' as other men say they are going to lie down and read, or sleep.

"And this queer, silent man is immensely erudite. His knowledge is quite encyclopaedic, but he only lets scraps of it be surprised from him. I remember one of the rare occasions when Wilbur Wright talked. Some one had mentioned the pictures at the Louvre, and Wright began to speak of them. A painter who was present asked who the American artist was. We told him that it was not an artist, but Wilbur Wright, the man-bird.

"'You must have been a constant visitor to our national galleries of pictures,' said the artist, with a courteous little bow. 'Your knowledge of them is quite extraordinary.' 'Books,' said Mr. Wright, and blushed at having said so much."

BETTER HEATERS AT LOWER PRICES

We sell better Heaters at lower prices, because of just two things—we buy for cash and sell in enormous quantities. This tremendous business enables us to undersell competitors and at the same time offer goods that cannot be duplicated for quality in the city. The Canfield policy is to give specials when they are needed—timely specials. We make cut prices on Heaters at the height of the season, not when the season is over. Won't you come in tomorrow and look over our line? We are making price inducements that mean money saving in amounts worth considering.

Fire Screens

We have Fire Screens in Solid Brass, Aluminum and Japanned wire. Various weaves and folds. Priced from 85c to $25.

$2.50 Humphrey Heater $2.25

The Famous Humphrey Oval Gas Heater, sold in other stores at $2.50. Here tomorrow at $2.25.

Carrie Chapman Catt.

President of the National Union of Women Who Demand Legal and Civic Rights, Talks About Her Crusade.

BY MARGARET B. DOWNING.

Suffrage for women, whether sought in the militant way, which has a vogue just now in England, or through the more dignified methods of the cohorts led by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt of New York City is an acute national issue. Those publicists who treated the whole matter with easy jocularity are now looking grave over the proposed invasion by some 100,000 women of the houses of national legislation during the coming session. Coxie's army was a mere flash in the pan compared to the possibilities bound up in the united appeals of so much femininity, each one representing a more or less appreciable constituency. Mrs. Catt, who is national president of the organization which might be termed regular, as suffrage feminine politics go, and who represents the power transmitted from Cady Stanton, Lucretia Mott and Susan B. Anthony, is rallying her forces for the supreme effort of the winter. But like all good generals, she is not betraying to the enemy the plan of her campaign. That she and all the suffragists in sympathy with the efforts of American women to obtain franchise on equal terms as men consider this coming session of Congress as a crucial epoch is very plain.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

"Just after an election for Chief Magistrate of the country," said Mrs. Catt, "seems to me an excellent time in which to discuss the question that good men ask good women, presumably in perfect faith, as to the sincerity of both parties. Why do women want to vote? Those enfranchised women in four States who cast their ballot according to their conscience aver that the great gratification of possessing the privilege to vote is not expressed in the political significance at all. Going to political meetings, reading party tracts, learning all about the science of government, all these are nothing to consciousness of feeling that one is part of the national life. Why women want to vote has been answered in the magnificent orations of Susan B. Anthony and her immediate successors, by the eloquent and forceful tongue and pen of Julia Ward Howe, by scores of brilliant women in the United States and foreign lands. To my view, no reply worthy the name has ever been made to Susan B. Anthony's brief that women demand the right to vote.

"Just now it is timely to reply to the question always asked by public men when equal suffrage is the theme. In those States where the right has been conferred, do women exercise their supreme privilege? I am happy to reply that from carefully gathered data from all States where women exercise the right of the ballot wholly or in part, they have performed their duty to the country and to their immediate environment. Women, I rejoice to know, do not form part of that growing element which expresses distrust of our present form of government by failing to go to the polls. A man who can answer every argument for women in public life, says that women now vote because the novelty has not worn off. When the rite is more ancient, they will fall into the desultory ways of mankind. Perhaps, but I do not believe it. But for the present, women who can vote do vote, and that is more than can be said for the men. It is too early yet to record the number of men who failed to vote at the recent struggle of the conflicting political parties for supremacy at the polls. But it was only last year that I read that in Boston at an election for municipal officers 40,000 men had failed to record their choice of government. Philadelphia has been accused of similar indifference in vitally important times and the same is true in a more or less degree of all the big cities. Women make up but 42 per cent. of the population of Colorado, yet they cast one-forty-eighth of the total vote. As close a percentage can be adduced from Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, and from Kansas, where women may vote at municipal elections.

"I venture the prediction that wherever the right of voting is conferred woman will gratefully avail herself of the privilege. The reason that prompts her is the very war cry which man raises against her free vote, namely her love of home. The woman in politics differs broadly from her brother following the same bent. Men as a rule always expansive find perfect vent for their patriotism in the broad issues, tariff, the ship subsidy, the writ of mandamus, national finance. A man's wife in a community of enfranchised women will be the one who will work for the man who will stand for municipal cleanliness, physical and moral. Woman in politics invariably begins at home. She tries to get worthy men elected as aldermen and she looks into the methods of the water inspector and the school superintendents and the health officer, and excise officers, and all those minor officials on whose proper conduct the welfare of every community depends. If the women of this country were to get together all the legislation passed through their efforts which relate to such problems as expectoration, garbage, intemperance, child labor, filtration and general purity of the water supply, playground and free day nurseries, why it would require a large committee room in the capital to accommodate such literature.

"But what appeals to those who study the anomalies which the progress of civilization presents is the position which woman now holds in the industries and professions. When the nineteenth century opened woman, as prescribed by law and the accepted custom of the civilized world, was in complete tutelage to fathers, husbands and sons. It is interesting to note that when Harriet Martineau visited the United States in 1840, she reported having found only seven occupations open to women, sewing, teaching, keeping a boarding house, working in cotton factories, setting type, binding books and doing housework. The economic development of the country was the unconscious influence which brought better industrial conditions to women. To this influence must be added the impetus given the general cause of women by the suffrage movements. The Commissioner of Labor recently published data proving that 288 occupations, industrial and professional, were now open by which women could earn an honest living. For those who love things stated in round figures, it may be stated that women in the industrial avocations are now one to three as compared to men. Ten years ago they were one to five. There are now in this country about 5,000,000 self-supporting women, many of whom are wage-earners making as good and even better percentages than men. These workers in gainful occupations demand that they be given the educational, intellectual, political and legal equality of men, and especially the right of suffrage. Educational equality they have practically secured. The other demands may be relegated to the shelf for a time, but the period is approaching when the question must be debated in the open and the consensus of opinion count at its face value."

CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT.

The roseate vision conjured by the national president of the equal suffrage seems to have more substance than dreams are made of, if one looks into the personality of the women who are committed to the right of woman to share civic honors with man. Mrs. William H. Taft is a devout believer in suffrage and her distinguished husband wrote an eloquent plea for it as his graduating essay when he finished his academic education at the Woodward High School in Cincinnati in 1874. Mrs. William J. Bryan believes in suffrage and has herself answered many masculine arguments against it. Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Philander C. Knox, Miss Helen Cannon among women who stand for national influence all believe that women should have a voice in national affairs. Mrs. Julius C. Burrows belongs to the organization of which Mrs. Catts is the president. Mrs. Burrows spent a part of the summer in Colorado and had her first close view of enfranchised woman. She was delighted with the practical workings of her creed and recently remarked that while she always believed it academically just that women should vote, she was delighted to find that practically it had succeeded so thoroughly. In New York many of the social leaders are now bound up in the cause of the suffrage. This winter will witness Mrs. Herbert Parsons uniting her strength with Mrs. Clarence Mackay and Mrs. Ballington, the clever lawyer daughter of the Czar of the house, Thomas B. Reed. These three make a force which may result even in the rout of Mr. Cannon and the staid conservative men behind him. The flower of intellectual and blue-blooded Boston is committed to Mrs. Catts' aid in the grand charge of the late winter.

Mrs. Catt claims the Wisconsin hamlet of Ripon as her birthplace, but her education was received in the Iowa State Industrial College, where she took a special course in law. Though she has not come before the general public with the tremendous force of Susan B. Anthony, or the earlier presidents of the Suffrage Union, she is recognized as a leader, not only of suffrage, but of the cause of woman in every aspect. She is a forceful writer as well as a graceful and convincing public speaker. Mrs. Catt dismisses the old reproach about women neglecting their homes for clubs and the desire for a public career as one too trite and too many times answered to need discussion in the opening days of the new era. She believes in considering only those problems which exist, and not those which loom up as possible. She claims that she can show by figures that women who pay the most intelligent attention to domestic duties are the same who give thoughtful care to the influences which menace or improve the home.

PROMINENT PERSONAGES.

Pithy Stories Told by Them or About Them.

Andrew Carnegie, who is much in favor of peace, provided the great nations continue to purchase steel for battleships and cannon, is a great advocate of a close union between Great Britain and America. At a recent discussion on the subject between the steel king and some of his friends it was suggested that there was no good reason why the two nations should not become formally united, and "Andy" was asked to suggest an emblem for such a union.

"The dandelion," he replied promptly. "Dandy for the 'cute' Yankee business man and the lion for Britain."

Lord Roslyn's Nerve.

Lord Roslyn, whose latest scheme to break the bank of Monte Carlo has had the bottom knocked out of it by Sir Hiram Maxim, is a person of whom it would be said in America that he "had plenty of gall." He was at Trondhjem on one occasion when King Oscar was also in the town. The actor-lord paid a visit to His Majesty, and when he was told he was not at home, presented a card with the remark that he would be glad to see the King at his hotel. It is said that the democratic Oscar accepted the invitation.

Observant Mark Twain.

Mark Twain and a party of friends recently went to visit the studio of a young sculptor who is coming rapidly into public notice. One of the pieces which was admired greatly by the majority of the party was the figure of a young woman coiling up her hair. Mark listened to the encomiums in silence, and when urged for an expression of opinion said slowly:

"It is beautiful, but it is not true to nature."

All expressed their surprise at this unexpected verdict, and demanded his reasons.

"She ought to have her mouth full of hairpins," replied Tom Sawyer's father.

The American Superior.

The following letter was written home by a Cainsville boy now with Uncle Sams' big fleet: "While in Sydney I went aboard His Majesty's ship Powerful. It is one of King Edward's finest armored cruisers, and she is a beauty, but only a catamaran to our battleships. Her men are older than ours, and of good stuff. I have a black eye to testify to that fact. One Briton made the assertion that his ship, the Powerful, was a better ship than my ship, the Kentucky. I begged leave to differ, and then he grew offensive and said: 'The British army and navy are better than the American army and navy. To prove it, I am a better man than you are.' But he wasn't, even if I have a black eye."

Fruit Season on a Ranch.

METROPOLITAN CHARACTER OF THE WORKERS DURING THE FRUIT CUTTING SEASON.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

LIFE on a large California ranch during the fruit season is worth while. It is unique! The particular ranch of my personal knowledge is the Meiner's Ranch, the property of a Milwaukee brewer by that name, managed by an immigrant from England, the ranch house filled with seven little Spaniards and their papa and mamma, while the bunk-house has, besides the fleas, the following assortment of living things, a college boy from Ohio, a half-breed Indian, several Mexicans, and an ex-opera star of the Italian race. On the bunk-house boards were given finished opera roles when wine transported our dissolute singer to his old life.

This valley, the Ojai, is reached by a picturesque, mountainous branch road from Ventura. You will know the Ojai long before you come up if you frequent art galleries, for this is the pet valley for California landscape painters. Charles Nordhoff, the well-known writer on political economy, discovered this valley for the rest of the world. The town in the midst of the valley, which comes nearer meeting all of man's wants—physical, mental and moral than any town of its size I know, is named Nordhoff in memory of the author. Near Nordhoff is a little nook which is one spot on earth immune from asthma. One man lives here in a small cottage and feels ill-effects when he but pays a visit to his family a few miles distant. An Englishman has tried England and many States of America, is apparently a well man here, but feels asthmatic if he strays beyond a half-mile's radius from his home.

The ranch on which I spent the summer is a 1500-acre affair, all the cereals of the temperate zone being brought to such perfection on it as to be worthy to represent the State at the St. Louis Exposition. The soil here has wonderful power to store moisture and give it up on demand of the crops. As luxurious a corn field as I ever saw, the top of the stock quite out of reach from the ground had never felt water from seed time to harvest.

The great orchard, however, was of chief interest, as here were growing side by side, apple, olive, pear, prune, plum, almond, peach, orange, quince and lemon.

I came up from Los Angeles in July, for was I not to cut apricots for money and ride the saddle horse of the ranch for fun. Many school teachers, college students and city workers take their vacation on the ranches, cutting fruit. The slowest of them make more than expenses. Even merchant's and banker's wives and daughters take advantage of the demand for workers to earn pin money or something for charity.

When there is much cutting to do, a large camp springs up, and there is a camp for the white folks and a camp for the Mexican people and a policeman for all of them. Water and fuel is always furnished free on the grounds and the camp is visited daily by butcher, baker and milk wagons.

As I was alone and rather a privileged character, I was given one end of the huge ranch porch on which to pitch my tent and go to housekeeping. I was under the especial care of Pablo and his wife and the seven little Spaniards. Pablo seemed to know something of everything. Does being a shepherd in one's youth always lead to such versatility? To ride like a king, cook like a caterer, rope steers like a cowboy and drive the eight-horse team with the jerk-line. Nor do I think any of Uncle Sam's youngsters happier than the youngest scion of this family, baby Pablo. The eldest daughter had her mission in life, which was to get the ranch out of bed in the morning and collect them for meals three times daily by hammering her primitive gong with an iron rod.

Thinks to myself, now surely, I am leading the simple life, but I found myself quite outdone by a Mexican who deserted the bunkhouse and its fleas, hung his bed springs to an oak bough, with lantern for light, canvas suit-case for chiffonier and gunny-sacks, for screen, and was established for life.

The fruit cutting is done out under the huge umbrageous live oak trees by the women. One swift whisk of the knife around or through the apricot and it is in halves and ready to be laid inside up on the large trays to be dried later in the field in the sun. When full, these trays are piled up on top one another as high as one's chin, and a canvas case, called the smudge case, set over them. About a pint of sulphur is burned under this pile of trays in the smudge case. If the sumdge fails to bleach, the apricots when dry, are of an unusually fine, sweet taste, but entirely unsalable as they are black.

The pits of the apricots, until recently thrown away, are now sold direct to a German firm, bringing from $9 to $20 per ton, owing to the season. They are taken to Germany and there made into prussic acid.

This pageant of fruit, and the toil and fun of drying it, begins in May with the cherries, and passes in succession to apricot, peach, prune, olive, and almonds, lasting until late fall.

Industrial Independence.

INEFFICIENCY OF LABOR DICTATION IN POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS—THE OPEN SHOP TYPIFIES AMERICANISM.

THE national election is past, and none of the candidates against whom Dictator Gompers tried to hurl the votes of organized labor, were defeated. The sledge hammer failed to inflict a deadly wound for two reasons. The working people of this country are still competent to do some thinking for themselves, and secondly, the number of union voters is not so great as the labor dictators want candidates for office to believe. Thus far it has been the rule that the political candidate whose defeat Dictator Gompers demands, is reelected with a good margin of votes to spare. The influence politically of the labor dictator is thus little to be feared when his demands run up against the common sense of the people as a whole.

It would be just as reasonable for the members of fraternal organizations to demand recognition in a political campaign, or for religious bodies to take such action as it is for the Federation of Labor to do so. The "open shop" prevails in politics, and will so continue to prevail despite the dictation of a multitude of such men as Gompers. As a matter of fact not one voter in seven belongs to any labor organization. There are in the United States more Odd Fellows and Freemasons than members of the American Federation of Labor, the Knights of Labor, the Industrial Workers of the World and all the unaffiliated unions. The 10,104,561 members of fraternal organizations outnumber more than three to one the bearers of union cards.

Comparing by trades the United States census figures with the numbers in the labor unions, it appears that the men not belonging to such organizations generally outnumber those who do belong.

Of the 29,285,922 persons engaged in gainful occupations in 1900 more than one-third, 10,438,219, were in agricultural pursuits. Many farmers belong to a grange or alliance, but the object of farmers' organizations is not to fix hours or wages, but to try to get higher prices for products and better terms from railroads. Every farmer is more or less a capitalist. Even if he rents the land, he owns stock and farming machinery. In the labor market he is usually an employer.

Next most numerous to farmers and farm hands were those engaged in manufacturing and building, who numbered 7,112,987. Those engaged in domestic and personal service were 5,691,746. Merchants, clerks, bookkeepers, salesmen and saleswomen were more than 3,000,000, twice as many as the railroad men and almost three times the number employed in the building trades. There were more blacksmiths and machinists than coal miners, more dressmakers than cotton mill operatives, more seamstresses than printers or tobacco workers. Teachers outnumbered any mechanical occupation except carpenters. The professional class, which includes teachers, clergymen, lawyers, doctors, actors, engineers and public officials, numbered 1,264,737.

These enormous figures dwarf by comparison even the American Federation of Labor, the largest of all labor organizations, with its 117 national and international unions, its 570 city central unions, its 27,000 local unions and its 2,000,000 membership. This is the organization of which Samuel Gompers is president.

It has taken more than twenty years for Mr. Gompers and his associates to build up the federation to its present size. Some think that its present tendency is to disintegrate rather than increase. The Socialists are causing dissension. The steel trust has almost destroyed the great Amalgamated Iron Association, which years ago was the strongest and richest body in the federation. The tobacco trust has undermined the tobacco workers' union.

Outside the federation are the five railroad brotherhoods and the Railroad Conductors' Order, the bricklayers' and masons' union, the steamfitters, glassworkers, letter-carriers and the Western Federation of Miners, which is drifting into the socialist organization. There are also the Knights of Labor, which twenty-five years ago had about as large a membership as the American Federation today, and which disintegrated through strife and through its failure to permit self-government in the various trades.

The proportion of organized labor to the total working population varies according to trade conditions. Thirty years ago many industries, iron and steel making and bituminous coal mining especially, were more strongly organized than they are today. Other industries which were not then organized have become organized since. The tide flowed for a while from trade unions to the Knights of Labor then from the Knights of Labor back to individual unions, then from individual unions to the American Federation; now it is from the American Federation to socialism. This drift no one realizes better than Mr. Gompers, who has been vigorously fighting socialism as a political belief, because he recognizes that the socialism of its members would destroy the federation.

In the factories of the United States there were employed in 1905, 5,470,321 wage-earners and 519,751 salary-drawers. Of the wage-earners 1,065,884 were women, 159,899 were children, and less than 4,000,000 were voters. Of these not a quarter belonged to any trade union.

Of the 1,521,355 railroad employés in 1906 the engineers, firemen, switchmen and trainmen numbered less than a fifth, and one-third of these do not belong to any of the railroad brotherhoods. Clerks, station-men and trackmen, who are more numerous than the trainmen, are little organized.

Open Shop Is American.

The "open shop" means Americanism. The earliest settlers came to this country for freedom, and the spirit of freedom is inherent in the eternal principles that have made the United States the most powerful and wealthiest nation in the world. Nowhere else have the people similar opportunities for advancement—social, political or industrial. The closed shop which Sam Gompers seeks to promote is directly contrary to the influences that make for personal advancement. There is no inspiration to good workmanship, or to the development of those personal qualities that, under open-shop conditions, make for promotion. The purpose of unionism, as developed by Gompers, is to increase wages and keep the largest possible number of union men at work. Open shop conditions would have the same effect on wages. The shop paying the best wages would get the best men. The best men in any shop would get the highest wages because otherwise the men would go to other shops where their services would be appreciated for their full worth. Poor workmen would thus have the fact before them that the way to secure promotion and better wages would be by improvement in their workmanship, and loyalty to the interests of their employers, which is an entirely healthful condition.

The most healthful movement the laboring people of this country can intrust themselves in is that for the open shop. It holds more inspiration for good workmanship and for personal improvement than anything else within reach. The time will come when workingmen will be thoroughly alive to these facts. Then unionism and closed-shop methods will come to an end.

The Labor Trust.

Col. N. F. Thompson, editor of the Tradesman of Chattanooga, Tenn., says: "There is no element that enters into any trust in this country today, and about which politicians are calling so loudly for repression, that does not apply with equal force to the labor trust, and yet before this great menace to the liberties of our nation these so-called patriots are conspicuously silent. I believe the time has come for dealing with this trust precisely and impartially as it is proposed to deal with any others. It is the enforcing of the law against one class and permitting its flagrant violation in others that is doing more to undermine respect for law and authority in this country than all else combined. I regard the labor trust as really the most dangerous of all, because it is terrorizing public sentiment, intimidating the public press, browbeating politicians, and seeking to subvert all government to its infamous policies, and few dare openly oppose it."

A Strike Order.

Judge C. H. Hanford of the United States Circuit Court has given the following definition to a strike order as made by a labor organization: "A strike order means that the members of the union must not work, and also must not allow other men to take their places." As this meant a restraint of commerce in the case of the striking longshoremen at Seattle, he granted an injunction, and directed the Attorney-General and District Attorneys to bring suits where necessary.

WHEN SUCCESS COMES.

More Frequently After a Person Has Reached Middle Age Than Earlier.

How old are you? Do you sometimes think that because you are past forty you cannot learn new ways and new habits? The majority of the "big" men did not become "big" until they had crossed the fortieth mark. There are a few exceptions to the rule, but you would have to hunt hard to find the man who achieved success in his twenties and thirties. The first forty years of a man's life are those of construction and at that time he is building up his character and gathering unto himself knowledge, both of which, when practically used, will bring him success if he has the elements of success in him.

The greatest American financier, J. P. Morgan, while born to a large inheritance and to financial ability, made his greatest success since the age of fifty. In every walk of life we find the same rule prevails; that the majority of men achieve distinction around or after their fortieth year. Benjamin Franklin discovered electricity when he was more than fifty and his greatest services to this country were rendered in the years following, when he was a diplomat at the court of France. At the age of forty-two, Ulysses S. Grant was made the Commander-in-Chief of the Union armies. Robert E. Lee, the greatest southern general, was more than fifty years old when he was a general in the Confederate Army. Grover Cleveland became Governor of New York State at forty-five and later became President. George Ade, the Hoosier humorist, who became famous only within the past few years, is now over forty, and did not arrive at distinction until he was late in his thirties.

If these men have reached their success, and in most cases only the beginning of their success, after they have past their forties, why is there not an opportunity for you? It is harder, of course, at this age to form a habit but it is always worth trying to form a good habit. Fortunately, in these days, with fame comes a certain amount of wealth, but money does not insure fame. A moderate amount of money will go a long way and if you have saved and put money in the bank for several years, the time will come when you can enjoy the pleasures of traveling and the comforts of a good home. As we have said, though past forty, you can form the habit of putting money in the bank regularly, and with moderate wealth, you will be able to take life easily and to live in a comfort which could not be realized if you were living hand to mouth.

It is never too late to mend. It is never to late to save. Bear in mind the case of ex-Senator W. M. Stewart, who, at the age of seventy-eight left Washington nearly "broke" and now, at the age of eighty-one, is reported rich again.—[National Finance.

CAUGHT HEAVILY ARMED.

Two Men With Revolvers and Knives Say They've Been Following the Races.

Roy Burt and Henry Ford, both heavily armed, were arrested by Patrolman Harrison yesterday afternoon, at First and Los Angeles streets.

Harrison was approached by a man who pointed excitedly at the two young men and exclaimed: "Arrest them quick, they are bad men."

Harrison hurried after Burt and Ford, and took charge of both. When he reached the patrol box he searched them. One had a loaded revolver, and a long, keen-edged hunting knife, and carried forty rounds of cartridges. The other had a revolver, a razor, and plenty of ammunition.

At the police station they were held on suspicion. They had four watches, a pair of gold-rimmed nose glasses, and two partly-burned candles in their pockets.

They stated that they had recently arrived from the East, and had been following the races.

"FINE KID, THAT, BILL."

But the Youngster Embarrasses His Mother and a Bachelor Conductor on Hollywood Car.

A chic, smartly gowned woman with a chubby baby in her arms got on a Hollywood car at First and Spring streets yesterday afternoon. The car was crowded with shoppers and business men returning to their homes, and gurgling and smiling the baby proceeded to make himself thoroughly at home.

When the conductor went through collecting fares, he paused for a moment to pat the baby on the cheek; and right there his trouble and embarrassment started.

The baby was friendly and recognized in the conductor a kindred spirit, and to the amusement and delight of the passengers, and the obvious embarrassment of the mother, smiled into his face and prattled innocently, "papa, my papa."

The mother's confusion and embarrassment was fully shared by the conductor, who suddenly found he had business in the rear of the car, and went back to attend to it.

The mother never turned her head, but a wave of color mounted and suffused her face.

When the conductor returned to the inside of the car the baby was waiting for him, and welcomed him with "pitty papa."

The woman was by this time thoroughly ill at ease, and the other passengers could scarcely restrain their merriment. The conductor was known to most of them, and known to be a bachelor, and they were enjoying his discomfiture. He had to finish the collection of fares, and blushing furiously, and wearing a foolish grin, he went about the task.

The mother was vainly trying to attract the baby's attention to objects along the roadside, but there was nothing doing. The youngster had found a friend and was not going to be bought off.

"Papa, papa," he called gleefully, at the sight of the blue uniform, and again the conductor retreated. The woman grabbed the baby and hurriedly left the car while the other occupants whooped.

The rattled conductor hopped off to throw a switch, and when he again appeared at the front of the car the motorman added to the laughter by remarking solemnly, "Fine kid, that, Bill, but didn't know you were married."

ELECTRIC ENGINEERS' MEETING.

The Los Angeles section, American Institute of Electric Engineers, will meet at the University of Southern California on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The paper, "Notes on the Calculation of Illuminating Values," will be by Edward Y. Porter, consulting engineer. Several members are to discuss this paper with special reference to illumination of public thoroughfares.

National Hospital, Sanitarium and Pleasure Res

We have purchased the Fremont Gate Terrace Tract Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 9, 10, 11 and 12, adjoining the City Elysian Park on Buena Vista Street, in the City of Los Angeles. This Park has about 1200 acres of beautiful walks, drives, flowers and shrubbery, and is an ideal National Sanitarium and Hospital site, eight minutes by electric cars from the business center of Los Angeles.

We have also had recommended and approved to be granted by the Hon. Mayor, City Attorney, Committee on Harbors, Wharves and Bridges and the whole City Council of Santa Monica, a City Franchise to build out in the Ocean this beautiful Salt Water City, Sanitarium and Pleasure Resort.

This beautiful Salt Water City and Pleasure Resort will be built out in the Ocean at Santa Monica, Venice, Ocean Park or elsewhere.

The foundation will be reinforced steel and concrete; steel pipes will be drilled down through the sands and rocks of the Ocean Bed or Bottom, forming hollow steel piles which will be filled and surrounded with concrete forming thereby a stone foundation of reinforced concrete piers with open pasageways between them for the inflow and outflow of the tides from which Water Power will be obtained.

The superstruction will comprise cottages, hotel and Sanitarium Buildings, with a Sea Promenade; the stone piers will be provided with Pendulum Lever Gates which are swung in and out by the tides, thereby obtaining water power and forming a Breakwater and thereby a Still Water Bathing, Boating, Fishing and Pleasure Resort.

This National Hospital and Sanitarium enterprise will have the support and encouragement of many of the Physicians and Surgeons of the United States and especially of Los Angeles and Southern California, as it will be the means of attracting thousands of health-seekers to Los Angeles and the from all over the United States.

There are many thousands of persons in the who would gladly pay $1.00 monthly towards this where they could go to regain their health. The is that the Hospital Associations of Los Angeles 20,000 persons in Los Angeles alone who pay $1.00 month for medical and hospital service. This is $20,000 or $240,000 annually, 10 per cent. per annum on $24

The proposition is similar to Life Insurance; it is a Health Insurance. Only 20 per cent. of those need medical services; only 2 per cent. will require hospital service.

The proposition is similar to Life Insurance and out along the lines herein stated, it will attract and ists, health-seekers, physicians and surgeons by the in every State in the Union.

We have already secured and can secure the of many Physicians in Los Angeles, and can get 50,000 to contract and pay $1.00 monthly each by giving share in the enterprise, with medical and hospital for every dollar they pay in monthly.

We want to interest a few live men as promo enterprise to act as Directors of the Syndicate for in the enterprise. This will make a fortune for these

This is a rare chance to make a fortune in a safe, proposition, as safe as Life Insurance Companies same immense profits. We have everything ready to with Banks, Trust Companies, Agents, Offices, etc.

WHY DRUGS MUST

Doctor Tells How Nature's Remedy Will Supplant the Present System of Drugging

"Drugs have had their day," said Dr. McLaughlin in his office yesterday. "They belong to the mystery and superstition of the past.

"You know that the old practice of drugging was originated by savages. When a man got sick they thought he was inhabited by some evil spirit, which must be driven out, so the rankest poisons were concocted by the native doctors for this purpose. The patient had either to get well or die—in most cases death was the result.

"Civilized doctors have made but very little improvement over the methods of the savage. They have learned that disease is not caused by evil spirits. They have learned how to administer poison in smaller doses and produce different effects upon the various organs of the body, without killing a man outright, but they have not learned how to prevent poison from doing harm.

"Nearly all the drugs you buy are doped with poison of some kind. The base of the doctor's prescription is poison. He uses it in nearly every case he treats. Without poison doctors who use drugs could not ease pain for a moment, because it is poison that stops pain, temporarily, by stupefying the nerves.

"Poison can't cure anything, because it is destructive to the human body. It wrecks the stomach and nerves, weakens the heart and causes bowel troubles. That's why drugs don't help you.

"The action of drugs is like that of whisky. Whisky will cause a man to 'brace up,' feel strong and full of vim for a few hours; but when the effect of the alcohol passes away the old stupid feeling returns worse than ever.

"Now, drugs will give you relief for a few hours, but the trouble returns as soon as the drug loses its power. Every minute that drugs give relief they are busily engaged in doing harm. They destroy the delicate lining of the stomach and weaken the nerves. They mix with the digestive juices, causing poor digestion and constipation. Every part of your vitals that is affected by drugs is weakened by them.

"There's only one way to cure any ailment. That way is to assist Nature. Drugs don't do that. Nature is the best doctor, and sometimes will accomplish a cure in spite of drugs. Then drugs get the credit for what Nature alone did.

"The help Nature needs is electricity. It's the power that runs the machinery of your body, and most all ailments are due to the failure or breaking down of some vital part, the stomach, liver, kidneys, heart or nerves. The reason any organ fails to work properly is because it hasn't the power—electricity. Restore this force where it is needed and pain and sickness will disappear. That's Nature's way of curing. That's the way Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt cures.

"Dr. McLaughlin's Electric Belt is [illegible] sleep. It pumps a stream of electric [illegible] and tissue of the body, building up [illegible] and removing the cause of disease.

Danderine

EVERYBODY CAN HAVE BEAUTIFUL HAIR NOW, and they don't have to wait weeks and months for results either. You will notice marked improvement after the very first application.

Danderine is quickly and thoroughly absorbed by the scalp and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities. It is pleasant and easy to use—simply apply it to the scalp and hair once a day until the hair begins to grow, then two or three times a week till desired results are obtained.

Grows Hair and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from California writes in substance as follows:
I have been using your wonderful hair tonic for several months and at last I am now blessed with a wonderful suit of hair that measures over 48 inches in length; the braid is over 8 inches around.

Another from New Jersey:
After using sixth bottle I am happy to say that I have as nice a head of hair as anyone in New Jersey.

This Great Hair-Growing Remedy can now be had at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

the City Club on "The Development and Practical Possibilities of Flying Machines" he sounded a warning against the airship "scorcher" of the future, predicting that he would be far more dangerous than the automobile speeder of the present day.

Dr. Chanute said that as a commercial possibility the airship is useless, but that in the fields of sport, exploration and war it will prove a stunning success.

"First, we will consider the airship for purpose of sport," said the engineer. "I am certain that it will be taken up by speed lovers, and for this purpose it will prove more satisfactory—to them—than the automobile.

"The present maximum speed of the aëroplane is forty miles an hour, but some day this will be developed to sixty and eighty miles an hour. Such speeding will be more dangerous to its devotees than automobile racing, and because of the possibility of smash-ups more dangerous to the whole community."

DIVORCES DUSTIN FARNUM.

Absolute Decree Granted Wife of Actor Named as Co-respondent by Howard Gould.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—A decree of absolute divorce was granted today by Justice Biscnoff to Mrs. A. Johnstone Farnum from Dustin Farnum, the actor. Farnum recently was named co-respondent by Howard Gould in his answer to the suit brought against him by Katherine Clemmons Gould. By order of the court the papers in the Farnum suit were sealed.

30 Minutes to Somerset

FREE WATER MEANS MONEY

Somerset is the Bargain Land

Free water is as good as a bank deposit in this country, where water is so necessary and in many places so dear. The water flows spontaneously from artesian basins at Somerset. Another gusher just tapped. It is piped to each acre in large steel mains. It flows day and night. Just tapped another gusher. No pumps, no engines, no engineers, no breakdowns, no delays and and no cost. Nice, high, level land, thirty minutes from the business district, on the electric line. Soil where everything grows and successful for many years as the famous old Bixby ranch. Close to Los Angeles and a suburb destined to increase in value every year until it is finally merged into this spreading city and every acre cut into six lots.

Now is the $350 Per Acre Time To Buy

Only $10 down and $10 per month. Both price and terms likely to change soon, as the steady demand and rapid building up of Somerset suburb creates added values every day.

HOW I MADE MY HAIR GROW

Woman With Marvelously Beautiful Hair Gives Simple Home Prescription Which She Used With Most Remarkable Results.

I was greatly troubled with dandruff and falling hair. I tried many advertised hair preparations and various prescriptions, but they all signally failed; many of them made my hair greasy, so it was impossible to comb it or do it up properly. I think that many of the things I tried were positively injurious, and from my own experience I cannot too strongly caution you against using preparations containing wood alcohol and other poisonous substances. I believe they injure the roots of the hair. After my long list of failures I finally found a simple prescription which I used with most remarkable results and I can unhesitatingly state that it is beyond doubt the most wonderful thing for the hair I have ever seen. Many of my friends have also used it and obtained wonderful effects therefrom. It not only is a powerful stimulant to the growth of the hair, and for restoring gray hair to its natural color, but it is equally good for removing dandruff, giving the hair life and brilliancy, etc., and for the purpose of keeping the scalp in first-class condition. It also makes the hair much easier to comb and arrange in nice form. I have a friend who used it two months and during that time it not only stopped the falling of his hair and wonderfully increased its growth, but it practically restored all of his gray hair to its natural color. You can obtain the ingredients for making this wonderful preparation from almost any druggist. The prescription is as follows:

Bay rum, 6 oz.; Menthol crystals, ½-drachm; Lavona de Composee, 2 oz.; To-Kalon perfume, 1 to 2 teaspoonfuls.

Apply night and morning; rub thoroughly into the scalp.

Go to your druggist and ask for the eight-ounce bottle containing six ozs. of Bay Rum, also ½-drachm of menthol crystals, and for a two-ounce bottle of Lavona de Composse. Mix the ingredients yourself at your own home. Add the Menthol crystals to the Bay Rum and then pour in the Lavona de Composee, and add the To-Kalon perfume. Let it stand for one-half hour and it is ready to use.

The Lower Our Prices

A perpetual motion that makes our business grow more powerful every day.

Brent's today is the great furniture house of California. In every town and hamlet the name Brent's suggests furniture. Streams of furniture are flowing from the Brent Store into every nook and corner for miles and miles around.

This vast business places Bent's in a position to consume immense quantities of goods. Factories instead of selling little lots to little stores and waiting six months for their money, save the expense and risk by accepting a rock bottom cash price at Brent's.

The lower our prices the more we sell and the more we sell the lower our prices.

So it goes. Brent's absolutely rules the furniture market and protects the public from high profits, combinations, trusts, "gentlemen's agreements" and all other devices and vices of the trade.

You always save money at Brent's.

The Drama---Players, Playhouses, Gossip of the Stage.

TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

WITH all the rest of that vast throng of men and women who are interested in plays and players (except, perhaps, most theatrical managers,) I must confess to a consuming curiosity about the building of a play—and especially a play which is on the eve of actual production.

Why did the playwright choose his particular theme? When and where did he write his play? How does he feel about it, now that his labor is done?

Until yesterday my interest, in every case, had languished and died for want of sustenance. I had never met, face to face, the fortunate playwright whose play had been accepted. He is, indeed, a rara avis, as every one knows. The managers cry aloud for plays, more plays—but when plays are presented to them by hopeful playwrights, the MSS. are left unread in their wrappings.

But one of the lucky playwrights is now in Los Angeles. His play has really been read. It is actually going to be given. Who says a playwright is without honor in his own town? For Richard Barry is a Los Angeles boy. Angeleños knew him and liked him and believed in him long before his "Port Arthur" days.

Mr. Barry's attainments have been many and brilliant for one so young—he is only 27—but for all that, he remained modest when questioned about "The Searchlight," the play which is to have its premiere at the Auditorium tomorrow night.

"I have always wanted to write a play," Mr. Barry admitted. "Every man of literary or journalistic habits, especially if he has anything to do with theaters, feels the same impulse, I suppose. You know, of course, that I worked on dramatics for The Times for nine months, in 1901.

"However, other interests crowded out my fever for dramaturgics, and it was not till last summer that it came back in full force. No doubt it had lain dormant in my system all these years, and had to 'break out,' so to speak. But you must blame John Blackwood for 'The Searchlight'—not me. I met him in Santa Barbara five months ago, while on my honeymoon. Blackwood, as you doubtless know, is always on the lookout for plays that deal with the burning questions of the day. 'The play's the thing with which to catch the conscience of the multitude,' is his managerial maxim. He knows the value of the 'psychological moment' in every new venture.

"I had just come from San Francisco. 'Write me,' urged Mr. Blackwood, 'a play whose plot revolves around the political imbroglio up there—a play dealing with graft and grafters, reform and reformers.'

"The proposition seemed a big one to me, but after some hesitation I consented, promising to let him have the scenario in a few weeks. He liked my scenario, and accepted my play before a line of the dialogue had been put on paper, agreeing to stage it in his Los Angeles theater in November. His faith was very gratifying to me, of course. It keyed me up to a high pitch of endeavor, and whether the play succeeds or fails, I have at least the satisfaction of knowing that I've worked hard and unremittingly on it. Every line of it was written in Monrovia. My father and mother live there, and my home is also there for the present.

"'The Searchlight' is a newspaper play, its first act taking place in the office of a yellow journal, its hero being a 'star' reporter. I've been connected with newspapers since I was 14 years old, and know the ropes from top to bottom. A newspaper office seems to be a place of fascinating mystery to the general public, yet only a few 'newspaper plays' have been written, and not one of these, as far as I can recall, has had a decided success. Ominous, that—but I've placed my 'Searchlight' on the knees of the gods.

"The title, by the way, is taken from a line given to Elizabeth Mason, the heroine of the play, who visits the newspaper office and who has the mysteries of the 'make-up' and the 'layout' explained to her by Sandy McKnight, the star reporter. 'I think the newspaper is the searchlight of modern existence,' Elizabeth exclaims.

"Every day, for the past week, I have been attending the rehearsals at the Auditorium, which have been a revelations to me. The characters of the play, which hitherto have existed only in my imagination, have become real and alive—men and women of flesh and blood. Some of them, to be sure, speak and move in a manner I had not quite intended; but on the whole the change that has taken place in them has been for the better."

Mr. Barry confessed to some dread of the first night's ordeal.

"You'll be expected to make a speech," I warned him. "It's a form of acute torture that civilized society has devised for the man brash enough to produce a new play. Knowing that he has already been on the rack for some weeks or months, we shout frantically for the thumb screws. But take heart. It's a method of martyrdom that doesn't kill—and I'm told the victim comes to his senses in a state of great beatitude."

"I apprehend no danger," said Mr. Barry, with a smile. "But if a curtain call should, by chance, come to me, I hope I won't turn tail, like the playwright whose friend had to rush out and drag him back to the theater. 'What's the matter with you?' the irate friend demanded. 'The people are clamorous. They are calling "author, author."' 'Is that what they're saying?' gasped the playwright. 'I thought it was "rotten, rotten."'"

Just how deep does the astuteness of the average theatrical manager run?

This question is brought up about every time a successful play is produced anywhere in the country. There have been thousands of plays produced which on the very face should have demonstrated beyond the shadow of a doubt that there was no hope for them, and yet in the last ten years there have been scores of plays refused which eventually brought fame and the ever-essential dollar to author and producer. A notable point in fact is "Paid in Full," which Wagenhals & Kemper will offer at the Mason Operahouse on Monday and week.

Eugene Walter, the author of this play, by his own admission, was glad to rest his weary head on a park bench in New York while he hawked his wares to every producing manager in New York, and so equipped with wisdom were these managers that every individual firm, with the exception of Wagenhals & Kemper, refused it, and in refusing it they always placed a bad mark against it. Even the manager of a stock company would not take it, because "You have no reputation," Walter was informed.

It brings to mind the history of "The Christian." Hall Caine had his American representative attempt to produce or place this work in New York, and at every step a rebuff was encountered. "Caine writes good books," was the universal comment, "but we fear he is not a playwright;" and it was refused repeatedly, until Liebler & Co. "took a chance" and made a fortune.

Augustus Thomas wrote "Arizona," and even though he had some few successes to his credit, the far-seeing managers of the country did not feel safe in investing their money in it, and then it was offered to Fred Hamlin and Kirke LaShelle. "Arizona" is still a touring attraction, even though it does not visit the big cities, and it has been produced in every English-speaking country in the world.

Henry Blossom, whose "Mlle. Modiste," "Yankee Consul," and "Red Mill" had not then been written, tried to place a play, "Checkers," and the wisest men in the profession turned it down because "the general public doesn't know much of horse racing," and yet it was a triumph throughout the length and breadth of the country.

It is a question as to whether or not there has been a more important success in ages than "The Lion and the Mouse," and yet Henry B. Harris never saw the manuscript until after it had been offered by Charles Klein to nearly every other manager in the country. It is safe to assert that before "The Lion and the Mouse" outlives its usefulness it will have made Mr. Harris close to half a million dollars.

"The Virginian" was an interesting and highly profitable book, yet Owen Wister couldn't place it until he took it to the late Kirke LaShelle and induced him to try it; Paul Armstrong had difficulty in the placing of "The Heir to the Hoorah," and yet both these plays are still good investments.

The custom in many offices is to receive every "script" offered. In some of the larger concerns men are employed who do nothing else but pass judgment on the offerings of the new author, and some of the old ones as well. Just what qualifications are required for such a berth no one seems to know, but it is not a very flattering testimonial to a high standard when it is known that so many fine plays as have been enumerated have been rejected for one reason or another.

It is recalled that when "Checkers" was refused by one of the foremost managers, Mr. Blossom said to the play reader: "I think this play will be a great success, and when it is you had better not tell Mr. —— that you ever read it;" and the reader didn't, for a few days after "Checkers" scored its success this reader was advised to "get in touch with Blossom." But Blossom has never submitted another play to him.

At a dinner tendered Augustus Thomas in New York recently, he told of some of the hardships young authors are heir to, and he also said that for a considerable period of time there was a great deal of doubt as to whether or not "The Witching Hour" would see the light of day under any other management than his own. "The theme is too obtuse," "It has no appeal," he was told. It is a certainty that the company will play in New York for a year at least.

Mr. Walter, after "Paid in Full" had scored so strongly in New York, went to one of the most prominent firms, a firm which control more than twenty-five road attractions, and asked if they wouldn't tell him just how much of the manuscript they had read.

"If you hadn't come in for the 'script' when you did," the reader answered, "I should have finished the first act that same day." And yet the play had been in that one office more than two months. Many times and oft have authors gone into the office of producing managers and asked if their plays have been read. "We haven't finished it yet," is the general answer; and if the author wants it back he generally gets it with the seal unbroken, as he delivered it.

There may be cut and dried rules for deciding on the merits of a play before production, but if there are, the general run of managers has not as yet discovered those rules.

Hamburger's Majestic Theater, under the management of Oliver Morosco, will open on Monday night, the 23d inst., with a magnificent production of the brilliant musical extravaganza, "The Land of Nod." The opening of the Majestic Theater marks an epoch in the theatrical history of Southern California, for it ranks among the world's handsomest playhouses and offers a home for the powerful John Cort attractions—a series of metropolitan successes that represent the best that is given to the modern stage. "The Land of Nod," the opening attraction, is the most brilliant offering since the memorable "Peter Pan," and should prove one of exceptional drawing powers. There are many more of a similar nature to follow throughout the entire theatrical season, affording Los Angeles play patrons an opportunity of witnessing the very cream of the eastern triumphs, with the original players in the casts.

Manager Morosco announces that for the opening performance, Monday evening, November 23, the box and other choice locations will not be auctioned off, as is customary, but will be held until the date of the opening of the sale, so that the first patron at the window will have a full rack of tickets to choose from. Letters requesting the reservation of choice locations before the date of the sale's opening will not be placed on file until after the line at the window is disposed of, which will offer an equal opportunity to every one.

Mr. Morosco is strictly adverse to the boosting of regular prices for the opening performance, as is also customary at similar functions. The announcement is made that the regular scale of prices—25, 50, 75 cents and $1—will be adhered to, for the opening date, as well as for every performance during the entire season. There have been a very limited number of seats in the first few rows that will be held at $1.50. The sale will open Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock, when the regular sale at regular prices will begin.

Majestic Theater patrons will find that in this new playhouse everything that is conducive to their comfort and convenience has been anticipated. Under every chair there is a fixture for perfect ventilation, both warm and cold air being admitted when either seems necessary. The building is absolutely fireproof, is elaborately decorated, handsomely furnished with luxurious opera chairs, possesses elegantly appointed foyers, ladies' and gentlemen's retiring rooms, and is, withal, the most beautiful modern playhouse west of Chicago. "The Land of Nod" is an example of the class of the Majestic Theater attractions.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

Home Products Week in Los Angeles will be very fittingly celebrated at the Auditorium by the first production on any stage of a typical home-made play. It is the work of Richard Barry, the well-known war correspondent and magazine writer. The play is called "The Searchlight," and was written by Mr. Barry during the past summer at his Monrovia home. It is a play dealing with California and Californians. It opens in a San Francisco newspaper office and the chief figure in the play is a star reporter. This part, which will be played by Lewis Stone, will afford that undeniably clever actor splendid opportunities to display the manly and virile style of histrionism for which he is so well liked locally. Florence Oakley and Beatrice Noyes will be the only two women members of the company who will be engaged in the performance of "The Searchlight," but the entire male contingent of the Stone company will be found in the cast.

James Nelson, a character actor who is said to be of wide repute in the East, will make his first appearance as a regular member of the Stone organization in "The Searchlight."

"Paid in Full," the play by Eugene Walters which has had such a great metropolitan success, will open at the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night for one week, with a matinée on Saturday. The play will be given under the direction of Wagenhals and Kemper, who, it is said, have sent an excellent company to Los Angeles.

Briefly, the plot of "Paid in Full" runs as follows: Joseph Brooks, dissatisfied with the salary paid him as collector for the Latin-American Steamship Company, purloins some of his collections and plays the races with them. Jimsy Smith, who loves Joe's wife, discovers the crime, but tries to free the young man. Joe confesses to Emma, his wife, and says she must try to save him by exercising her wiles on Capt. Williams, who immediately guesses that her husband has put her up to the trick, and who makes a severe test on the wife, sure that she will come out of it unscathed, which she does. Emma leaves her infamous husband, and as she goes out, the audience has the faithful Jimsy in the mind's perspective.

With Florence Stone in the name part and every Burbank favorite congenially cast, Manager Morosco will offer an elaborate revival of "Zaza" for the week beginning with a matinée this afternoon. There has been much curiosity on the part of Burbank patrons to see Miss Stone in this difficult role—a role, it would seem, which should offer unbounded opportunities for the display of the actress's emotional ability. Miss Stone will have in support the complete rank and file of favorites, and a series of settings that should form an admirable background for her efforts.

William Desmond will be the Bernard Dufresne; John Burton, Cascart; Byron Beasley, the tragedian; Louise Royce will be the aunt to Zaza, a character that is said to be the most artistic bit of work in the répertoire of this clever character woman.

Gilbert Gardner, whom Manager Morosco has engaged as stage director of the Burbank forces, will in "Zaza" offer his first production in this theater. Mr. Gardner's reputation as a director embraces notable work in a number of the larger eastern cities.

An excellent bill is promised at the Orpheum for the coming week. Lyster Chambers and Clara Knott will give "The Operator," the intense one-act play by Charles Kenyon. It tells the story of a lone operator in the flag station of the Nevada desert. He mistakes an order and awaits in breathless expectancy the second which is to decide if a trainload of unsuspecting travelers will be hurled to eternity or not.

'Silvers," the famous clown from Barnum & Bailey's, assisted by Artie Nelsen, will depict the national game as played by a one-man nine.

Redford and Winchester, from the Palace, London, will have feats in burlesque jugglery. La Petite Mignon, the child mimic, comes back with a lot of new impersonations—Marie Dressler, Eddie Foy, Eva Tanquay, George Cohan, Anna Held.

Remarkably good are the holdovers—Gennaro and his Venetian gondoliers, "Mrs. Murphy's Husband," by the inimitable Gracie Emmett and her capable company; Jupiter brothers, in their mystery cabinet; Mme. Theresa in Louis James's notable production of "Peer Gynt," Henrik Ibsen's masterpiece. This remarkable problem play of an egotistical dreamer will open in the Mason Operahouse on Monday, November 23, for a week's run. Louis James will be seen as Peer.

'Aphie James as Solveig,

Renz and her trained equine pets. New motion pictures will be shown.

Theater-goers who like the style of Cohan in the musical productions will be pleased at the coming of "The Honeymooners," which begins a week's engagement at the Grand today, commencing with a matinée. This popular musical and song show was written by a popular actor-composer and was presented on the stage at the New Amsterdam Theater in New York for an entire summer season. It was a great success from the start, and, it is said, has always been regarded by Mr. Cohan as one of the best things he ever did. It contains more real humorous comedy, entertaining music and interesting situations than any other musical comedy that has been produced during the last half dozen years, it is stated. The company presenting the piece is composed of such musical comedy people as Willie Dunlay, Walter Chester, Thomas A. Hearn, Daniel Sullivan, William Singer, Louis London, Anna Wheaton, Gertrude Le Brandt, Rose Gildea and others who have made their reputations on the musical comedy stage in New York City.

Rose Gildea,
one of the many pretty girls to be seen in "The Honeymooners," which opens at the Grand this afternoon.

So notable has been the success of the Belasco's artistic and beautiful double bill, "Mme. Butterfly" and "The Critic," that Manager Belasco has decided to run it one week longer. In "Mme. Butterfly," Miss Bernard has had an opportunity, which comes to but few ingenues, and has acquitted herself with eclat. It is an exacting role, full of dainty comedy, as well as genuine soul tragedy. Miss Bernard has apprehended the exquisite pathos of the Geisha girl's story, portraying it with an art remarkably delicate and strong in an actress so youthful.

Miss Everhart's Japanese maid is a fine bit of character work, in which the actress's own individuality seems to be completely submerged. Admirable, too, is the work of Mr. Van Buren, Mr. Graham and Mr. Glazier in the play.

In "The Critic," Sheridan's comedy, all the Belasco players appear in delightful burlesque.

The Abdallah troupe of six Arabian acrobats, well known in the circus world, will present the feature act at the Los Angeles for the week beginning with a matinée performance Monday. Their specialty is "Whirlwind Athletics," including tumbling, pyramid building and other acrobatic sensations.

J. K. Emmett and his company of three players will present a farce in one act entitled, "A South Dakota Divorce." The subject would seem to provide ample fun-making opportunities. J. K. Emmett is the second of his name, his father having been "Fritz" Emmett, well loved a generation ago. Rinaldo, "The Wandering Violinist," and Male Scheftels, the English song bird, complete the list of newcomers.

Few occupations are more hazardous or better lend themselves to the purposes of sensational melodrama than railroading across the great divide, the backbone of the continent. Hence "The Rocky Mountain Express," which comes to the People's for the week beginning with a matinée Sunday, may be depended upon for enough genuine thrills to please the most blasé patrons of the sensational, since it is a play of just these same railroad men, and its scenes depict happenings in the district named. Features of the production include a snowslide and avalanche in the mountains, and a collision of trains in "Windy Gap." A competent cast is promised by the Klimt and Gazzolo Amusement Company, under whose management the play comes here.

During the coming week the Unique will present another laughable two-act farce comedy, entitled "Fun on the Santa Rosa." The action of the farce is ashore and at sea, during which an Irish widow becomes enamored of an Italian count, who afterward turns out to be John Waffles, a deep-dyed bigamist.

During the two acts the following musical numbers will be interpolated: "The Bogie Man," by Eldrie Gilmore; "Let Me be Your Lemon Coon," by Millar Bacon; "In Seville," by Olga Stech; "Virginia," a coon specialty, by Lillian Sutherland; "The Kiss" duet from "Said Pasha," by Bacon and Stech; Marie Barbier in a French chanson, and Harry Wardell, in "Bill, You Done Me Wrong."

A race-track comedy comes with much timeleness to Fischer's next week, when "A Day at Arcadia," will be the bill. Ben T. Dillon has a role that suits him in "General D'Livery," an Irish sportsman, while Libbie Blondell is the wife with a past, whose varied hymeneal adventures assist materially in the fun making. Max Bloom is a German horseman, who always manages to give himself the worst of it; Aubrey Carr, a gay young plunger; Nellie Montgomery, a society bud. There will be many musical interpolations.

Miss Blanche Beatrice Bisbee,
one of Los Angeles' talented young musicians; the possessor of a contralto voice of exceptional sweetness and flexibility, and of a velvety softness. She is prominent as a church and concert singer.

Dramagraphs.

There has been a rumor current that Lotta Faust is sick. It is said that she lost one of her beads one night and caught cold.

O. L. Hall, dramatic editor of the Chicago Journal, says that "Walker Whiteside came out of the nowhere." "What Cheer, Ia.," is a stern reality.

"Dante," a play by Mrs. Helen Durant Rose, a well-known American woman, was successfully produced in Verona a few evenings ago by Ermete Novelli, who appeared in the principal role. Special music was written for the play by Mascagni.

Another play dealing with international marriages is "The Other Side," by Harrison Rhodes, author of "The Gentleman from Mississippi." It deals with the international marriage from the standpoint of the European nobility. It will be produced by William A. Brady.

Julia Marlowe will begin her season with a production of "The Goddess of Reason," a new poetical drama by Mary Johnston. Miss Marlowe will offer her Shakespearean repertoire as already announced, but she has decided to make "The Goddess of Reason" her initial offering.

Richard Harding Davis's "The Dictator" is to be made into a musical play for Seymour Hicks. "The Dictator" is almost as well known in London as in this country, for the farce scored a success there with Willie Collier in the title role. The usual chorus will be absent from the production.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

A JOYOUS interest is manifested in the coming of the Lambardi Grand Opera Company, which will be heard in a two weeks' season of grand opera at the Mason Operahouse, commencing December 28.

Previous visits of the Lambardi company have established it as one of merit, its casts of principals being selected from the best of Italian singers. Many of the artists who are now appearing with either the Metropolitan or Manhattan Grand Opera companies made their début in Los Angeles with the Lambardi forces. Tetrazzini, the gifted soprano, whose voice is remarkable for its purity of tone and great range, and whose colorature work is most brilliant, was first heard in this country while with a California opera company. She was unknown then, and being with a company of mediocre singers she did not attract much attention; but now her fame is world-wide and New York audiences are raving over her singing. Many who attended the Lambardi series of operas at the grand opening of the Auditorium will remember the beauty and richness of the voice of Ester Adeberto. She, too, makes her début with the Manhattan company in New York this season. Likewise will Parola, who pleased his hearers here so much last year with his beautiful tenor voice, make his bow with the same company.

Los Angeles may also pride itself in being the first American city to hear many operas that have never been given anywhere, except in New York. La Boheme, Puccini's beautiful opera, had its premier presentation in this country in Los Angeles, some ten years ago. Its beauty and charm and lovely music made it an immediate success, and today no opera company is complete without La Boheme in its repretoire.

The company which Impresario Sparks Berry will present to us will, in all probability, be the only aggregation of its kind to visit the Pacific Coast this season. It is a capable company and no doubt will contain a number of singers with surprisingly good voices. If it were not for the warring factions in New York, we would have had a short season from either the Metropolitan or Manhattan Opera Company, but the Metropolitan with its array of celebrities, and the Manhattan with its aggressive manager, Oscar Hammerstein, striving to outdo each other, cities beyond the immediate vicinity of New York will be deprived of grand opera from either of these great companies.

During the coming season of the Lambardi Opera Company most of the favorite operas will be sung. Puccini's beautiful Japanese opera, "Iris," will also be introduced, this being its first presentation in this country by any company other than the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York.

Iris is an Oriental story, its plot being Japanese; and its philosophy differs entirely from all European or Western systems. In it the Sun talks and is answered as a person having consciousness, and all things are supposed to have knowledge. Its music is also very beautiful, as is all of Puccini's works.

Miss Lillian Adams, who has recently returned from Berlin, will play for the Federation of Women's Clubs at Venice next Thursday.

Mme. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop has been engaged to sing the soprano role in the "Messiah," to be given at Seattle, December 24. Hamilton Howe will be the conductor.

The Matinee Musical Club will give a Los Angeles composers' evening November 27, at the residence of Mrs. J. G. Hanst, 1788 West Twenty-fifth street. Several prominent musicians will take part.

Archibald W. Sessions will give his sixty-seventh organ recital in Christ Church, Twelfth and Flower streets, next Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at which Mrs. Eva Young Zobelein, contralto, will assist. The programme will be as follows: Suite Gothique, Op. 25, (Choral, Minuet Grothique, Priere a Notre-Dame, Toccata,) (Boellmann;) Madrigal; (Simonetti;) Gavotte, (Padre Martini;) contralto solos: (a) "But the Lord is Mindful of His Own," (from St. Paul,) (Mendelssohn,) (b) "O For a Burst of Song," (Allitsen;) Andante, from 5th Symphony, (Beethoven;) March, "Pomp and Circumstance," Op. 39, No. 1, (Elgar.)

Jean de Chauvenet has just published his latest composition for piano, "Pecadora." Charles Kunkel, a noted musician and publisher of St. Louis, played the piece for a number of distinguished musicians and it was pronounced by them to be a work of unusual excellence.

Signor Lucchesi's concert, scheduled for December 3, at Gamut Club Auditorium, has been postponed until January 7.

Albert Spaulding, the American violinist, made his début in Carnegie Hall, New York, with the Damrosch Symphony Orchestra, last week, and his playing evoked marked enthusiasm, New York critics classing him with Ysaye and Kriesler. Mr. Spaulding will tour the United States in concert, visiting the Pacific Coast early next year.

The Impromptu Club, the newly organized musical club, of which Richard Lucchesi is director, is desirous of adding a few more members to its list. Either vocalists or instrumentalists wishing to join should address the secretary, Miss Mary K. Ervin. Meetings are held every Friday evening in the Von Stein Academy, 1419 South Grand avenue.

Albert Timothy Baldwin has just returned from Vienna, where he has been studying music for the past three years with Theodore Leschetizky, who numbered among his scholars such masters of the piano as Paderewski, Hambourg, Sieveking, Fanny Zeisler and others of world-wide fame. Mr. Baldwin was formerly a resident of Portland, but upon his return from Europe decided to make his home in this city. He is a gifted musician, and will be a welcome addition to Los Angeles musical people.

Miss Lillian Adams, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clifford Lott, baritone and pianist, respectively, will give a recital-reception in Gamut Club Auditorium next Tuesday evening, presenting the following programme: Rondo G. Major, Op. 51, No. 2 (Beethoven;) Etude (a) Op. 10, No. 5, Etude on black keys (Chopin;) (b) Op. 11, No. 3; (c) Op. 10, No. 9; (d) Waltz E Minor; Vergessenheit (Eugen Hildach;) (b) Trotzdem (Wilhelm Berger.) Part 2: Perpetuum Mobile (Weber;) Valse, Op. 34 (Moszkowski;) Spinnerlied (Wagner-Liszt;) Rhapsodie Hongroise No. 13 (Liszt.) Mr. Lott will sing the following numbers: "I Send You Roses" (Charles Wileby;) "Trennung" and "Eldorado" (B. Shapleigh.)

The Women's Lyric Club will give its first concert of the season December 3 at Simpson Auditorium. Among the numbers to be sung are "Across the Fields to Anne," by Clough-Leighter; waltz from "Faust" and Schubert's "God in Nature." Two other delightful compositions to be rendered are R. Huntington Woodman's "Ashes of Roses" and "With Revels and Wassails." The words of the latter number are from old English Christmas verses. The club will be assisted by Rudolph Friml, the well-known Bohemian pianist and composer, who is visiting in Los Angeles for a short time.

The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra will open its thirteenth consecutive season at the Auditorium next Friday afternoon, with Emilio de Gogorza as soloist. The programme to be given is as follows: Ramayana Suite in five scenes; (a) Ayodhya at Daybreak; (b) Rama and Sita in the Forest; (c) The Mondky War; (d) Mondodari's Lament; (e) The Return to Ayodhya (Shapleigh;) Vorspiel to Lohengrin (Wagner;) Saint-Saens's Symphony No. 2 in A Minor, Op. 55, Introduction-Allegro Appassionata; Adagia; Scherzo, Presto, Finale, Prestissimo.

Signor de Gogorza will sing the Prologue from Pagliacci and "Vision Fugitive" with the orchestra.

Al Malaikah Shrine Band will give its first annual concert and promenade at the Shrine Auditorium on West Jefferson street Wednesday evening, the 25th inst.

The great Philharmonic series of concerts in this city, under the management of L. E. Behymer, will begin Friday evening, the 27th inst., in Simpson Auditorium, the first artist appearing being Arthur Hartmann, the Bohemian violinist. Then the Maud Powell Trio, consisting of Maud Powell, violiniste, Miss May Mukle, 'cellist, and Anne Ford, pianiste, will give an evening of chamber music on December 4. They will render the Chaminade "Trio," with its two movements complete, this being the first time this composition will have been given in this city. Madame Lillian Nordica, dramatic soprano, with a concert company, comes on Monday evening, December 21, followed by Mme. Frieda Langendorff, contralto, February 16. Josef Lhevinne, Russian pianist, is a newcomer here, and will make his initial concert appearance February 25. The last artist on the course will be David Bispham, the well-known basso, who will render a programme of song cycles, ballads and oratorio and operatic selections. His date is March 9.

Enrico Caruso, the famous tenor, who opens the Metropilitan opera season in New York this week, will make eighty appearances, for which he will receive $240,000. During the summer Caruso has been singing in the various European capitals, receiving $2500 per night for singing in Berlin, and $5000 for a single concert in London.

The following musical programme will be given in Christ Church today: Organ, Melody in A (Guilmant;) Venite Chant No. 22 (Woodward;) Gloria Patri (Goodson;) Te Deum in E Flat (Ford;) Jubilate Deo, Chant No. 135 (Soaper;) anthem, "A Light Streams Downward From the Skies" (Skeler,) by the quartette; Gloria Patri (Woodward;) offertorium, 'Awake Up My Glory," the choir (Haynes;) offertory sentence; amen; recessional; organ finale, Sonata, F Minor (Mendelssohn.)

Moore's Fidelia Band will render the following programme at Eastlake Park this afternoon: March, Valse Lente, "LaRune du Dause" (Vollstedt;) "Dolorosa," Poeme d'Amore (Tobani;) selection, "Carmen" (Bizet;) Habanera, "Mexican Kisses" (Roberts;) "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen" (Grieg;) overture, "The Smuggler's Bride" (Bohm;) (a) Simple Dreu (Thorne;) (b) Aubade (Massanet;) "Ballet Music From William Tell" (Rossini;) finale.

Edoarto Lebegott, one of the directors of the Lambardi Grand Opera Company, arrived in Los Angeles today. He comes this far in advance of the company to arrange the repertoire and casts of the different operas to be sung.

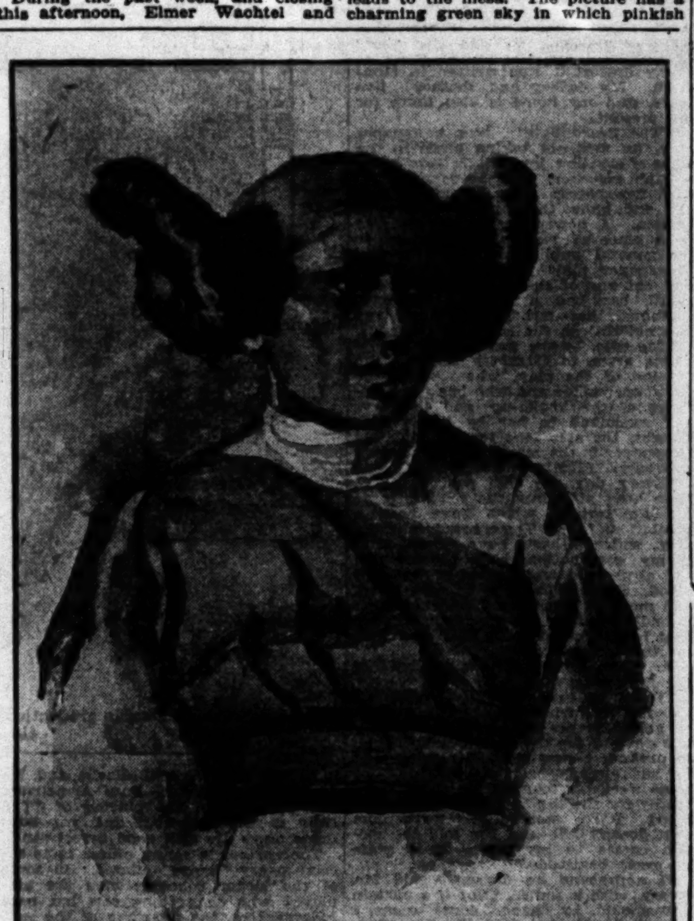
Pictures by the Wachtels.

During the past week, and closing this afternoon, Elmer Wachtel and Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel have been holding an interesting exhibition of the pictures which they painted in Arizona last summer. Each artist shows about twenty pictures, Mr. Wachtel's being in oils and Mrs. Wachtel's in water colors.



Water Color Sketch of a Hopi Girl.
By Marion Kavanaugh Wachtel.

With but few exceptions, these pictures were painted out of doors from start to finish, thus insuring them that delightful freshness of vision and execution which is found at its best only in the plain air picture. The studio canvas may hold other qualities, equally, or even more desirable, but the "first fresh, careless rapture" is caught out doors. Landscape painters have always known this to be so, and this is why there has risen, among the modern, that school of extremists who maintain that a landscape should never be touched in-door. But these, again, often sacrifice the poetry of nature to its merely visible forms, forgetting that the value of a landscape on canvas comes wholly from the soul of the man who painted it.

The Wachtels, no one needs to be told, paint their pictures in-doors or out-doors, as to them seems best at the time. They are both too independent and too individual to follow any "school." Thus their work remains always fresh and spontaneous, never commonplace and hackneyed in theme or treatment.

These forty Arizona studies are among the best things—perhaps the best—the Wachtels have yet done. Their search last summer brought them to a new and picturesque field, and they painted the Hopi villages and their desert surroundings, with love and understanding. Arizona has not the familiar features of other parts of our country, but has a strange beauty of its own, old-world, historic—almost Hellenic, indeed.

Certainly, Mrs. Wachtel's "A Pastoral," seems to bring us far away from America, to the isles of Greece themselves. It is late afternoon; a flock of sheep, their shepherd behind them, are winding up the trail that leads to the mesa. The picture has a charming green sky in which pinkish clouds are afloat. The long afternoon shadows, lavender in color, show reflected lights that are beautifully painted.

"Coming Night," is another water color of striking beauty and marvellous execution. Three figures on horseback are riding through the purplish-blue morbidezza of early night. The scene is vast, lonely, on which a few pallid stars look down. Another, exquisite in color and feeling, "The Water Carriers," show two Indian women climbing upward, while below them lies a landscape dreaming in the opalescent haze of afternoon.

Other delightful pictures, somewhat smaller than those already mentioned, are: "Evening in Walpi," Street in Taowa," "Hopi Dwelling," and a few strongly characterized heads of young Hopi Indians.

"Numti" is a boy of almost statuesque repose and beauty, who wears a yellow turban and a white blouse. "Pelee," a pensive girl, wears a gorgeous red and yellow blanket; around her neck are tightly wound long strings of turquoise beads and an intricate and very beautiful silver necklace.

Among the most striking and beautiful of Elmer Wachtel's oils is "Walpi at Evening," which shows us the Indian village, 800 feet above the desert, like a fortified town of mediaeval times. The night steals on, clad in royal purple, unfurling above the quiet village her banners of pinkish purple.

Another Walpi picture gives us the enchantment of moonlight over battlements—only an Indian pueblo, but how magically changed and beautified! The vibrant sky is of a steel-blue. In the foreground are piled huge rocks—or are they houses?—which throw deep shadows. All is mystery, nothing seems real or tangible. Still another Walpi picture shows us the village in moonlight again. This is painted from below the pueblo. Walpi lies in the distance, strange and eerie on its chalk cliffs.

"Street in Walpi," is a lovely picture, handled with masterly simplicity and directness. Walpi is in full sunlight; in the far distance are seen the twin San Francisco peaks, snow-clad, a cold touch in a picture throbbing with warmth and light.

Mr. Wachtel also exhibits a number of new pictures of Southern California, as well as some of the old ones we have learned to know and admire. "Across the Valley" is new. We are looking from a height, old oaks on either side of us. Below us stretches the valley, aglow with summer. Far off lie blue mountains over which clouds are floating. The picture has a rich mellowness of tone that is very satisfying.

Among the old favorites to be seen are "Dawn," "Majesty of the Hills," "In the Shadow of the Cañon," and "The Golden Hour," all canvases of great strength and beauty.

The Wachtels have already sold six of their Arizona pictures, and these, of course, are not to be seen in the present collection. We wish these painters the success they deserve—but we are glad they have not yet sold them all!

At Steckel's Gallery.

An exhibition of thirty of the recent canvases by Benjamin Chambers Brown will open tomorrow at Steckel's gallery, to continue till the end of the month.

Mr. Brown has been sketching near San Francisco and at Monterey during the past summer, so that his exhibition of landscapes and marines will include many subjects from these places, as well as those from Southern California.

A goodly number of foreign subjects will also be shown. Mr. Brown has painted Venice and Holland hundreds of times, and always with great re-

During the Week.

Simplicity characterized the wedding, Monday, of Miss Atella Bedard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bedard of Chicago, and John J. McCue, teller of the German-American Savings Bank. Rev. James S. Reardon read the service in the presence of relatives and a few friends. Mrs. Sidney Lee Grover charmingly entertained at her home at No. 620 Burlington avenue with a luncheon in honor of members of the Tillicum Club. The table was fragrant with violets, which formed the centerpiece. Places were marked with cards bearing sketches of turkeys and pumpkins. Mrs. George A. Pounder of No. 902 South Bonnie Brae street had as guests members of the Intrepid Duplicate Whist Club. The wedding of Mrs. Eva B. Lindley and S. S. Dickinson was solemnized at the residence of J. R. Lewis of No. 1511 Manhattan Place. Mrs. Samuel J. Whitmore of Hotel Alexandria received friends in the afternoon. She was assisted by Mrs. Charles D. Parker, Mrs. John Kingsley Macomber, Jr., Mrs. Carl Kurtz and Mrs. F. W. Hawks of Pasadena.

Mrs. Arthur Holliday, matron, who left Tuesday for Chicago, where, with her husband, she will spend a year.

Detroit Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Eisenhardt of Detroit are domiciled at No. 923 Denver avenue, where they are at home to friends.

OUR ANNIVERSAR

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, we celebrate the end of a very successful year in our new store. We invite you to celebrate with us, and from TWO O'CLOCK until SIX O'CLOCK on TUESDAY, it is our desire that no goods will be sold. The Royal Hungarian Orchestra, by courtesy of the Hotel Alexandria, will be present, and you can leisurely enjoy the beautiful exhibition, which has been much augmented for the holiday season.

See the "Diamond Roses" in Our Windows Next Tuesday

Made in Southern California

Our Finest Mountings

Are designed and entirely manufactured out of the gold and platinum bars on our premises, thus assuring quality and individual style. We employ thirty designers, engravers, diamond setters, goldsmiths, etc., in our shop and factory.

"California" Cut Glass

(Sold Exclusively by This Store)

See it in the course of manufacture at the "Made in California" Exhibition. The wonderful work of Mr. J. J. Sommans stands out as an entirely new departure in Cut Glass. Acknowledged the world's leading artist in his craft, he, in his love for California, has taken local subjects for his themes. His cuttings: "The Poppy," "The Marguerite," "The Acorn," "The Thistle," "The Sunset," are daily chosen in preference to the conventional designs of Eastern factories.

Hand Hammered Copper

The craftsmanship of Mr. Henry Busse and the artists under him are shown in our Brass and Copper Rooms. "Made in California," they naturally partake of the romance of this section, and are especially adaptable for mantel, den and "mission" decoration.

Society Stationery

The creations of our Department of Stationery, under the supervision of our Mr. George H. Dickson, are justly celebrated. Ours is the only retail firm in Los Angeles that has its own Copper Plate engravers, and our own exclusive styles of lettering are not excelled anywhere in the country. You should use our Los Angeles Flag Stationery this week.

Department of Leather

Many of the handsome Shopping Bags, Purses, Card Cases, Bill Cases, Bill Folds, Leather Books, etc., are designed and made in Los Angeles under the direction of Mr. J. B. Oriva, an artist in Leather. We want you to expect to find Leather Goods that are better than elsewhere, in our Department of Leather.

PROSPERITY WEEK SALE

Buy and Boost

This week belongs to the optimist. The pessimist, the howlers and the growlers are for the week, and we hope for an indefinite period, to be relegated to the backmost seat. And why not? Was there ever a time when Southern California was so well prepared to enjoy a season of prosperity? We think not. Crops are abundant, and the city's numerous projects are moving with gratifying alacrity.

Lane's enters into the spirit of the week by offering a harvest of bargains. Every department has contributed and is in tune for the occasion. Lack of space is all that prevents a list of almost double the offerings we have made for Monday.

Powell will entertain the club at its next meeting.

Ontario.

THE TUESDAY THIMBLE CLUB members were entertained at the home of Miss Grace Elliott last week. Owing to the approaching wedding of Miss Bess Lewis, one of the members, the affair was turned into a shower for the bride-elect. Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums formed the decorations. In the dining-room, where refreshments were served, a huge bell of yellow and white chrysanthemums was suspended over the seat occupied by Miss Lewis. At a signal from the hostess it was made to open and shower its contents down upon the bride-elect. It contained numerous dainty and pretty articles of needlework.

Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Fuller entertained the Bohemians at their home at dinner, Tuesday evening. Covers were laid for eight. The affair was in compliment to Leonard Frankish, one of the members of the fraternity, who left for the East Thursday. The house was prettily decorated in chrysanthemums.

Mrs. F. O. Bell entertained Monday afternoon with an at home, the occasion being her birthday and wedding anniversary as well. The house was very pretty with a wealth of roses. "Nell Brinkley" Coats

New York's Cleverest and Newest Style
For Misses and Small Women in English Piccadilly Models

WE ILLUSTRATE two views of the new "Nell Brinkley" Coat. Tomorrow we make our first complete showing of these garments.

The "Nell Brinkley" is New York's cleverest and newest idea in an outer garment for women. You will note its long, graceful lines and individuality of style. You can appreciate its perfection of tailoring and finish only by seeing our assortment of these Coats.

We have just fifty of them—all English Piccadilly models—in Coverts, Fancy Mixtures and fine Broadcloths in different shades. These Coats are exclusive—in our entire assortment no two are alike.

We, therefore, warn you that selections should be made at once. Moreover, all of these garments will be taken within a few days, so we suggest that you visit our Women's Department tomorrow, if you want to see the complete assortment.

Prices range from $22.50 to $47.50.

New Suits Shown Tomorrow

During the past week we have received many new Suits for Women and Misses, among them some models in sizes up to forty inches bust measure.

Needless for us to mention their perfection of style and tailoring. If you have visited our Women's Department, you know already the character of Suits shown by us. If you have not yet come here, the chances are you have heard of this Department through your friends.

If you want an individual Suit that will answer the highest requirements of style and quality—and at a moderate price—we have it for you.

150 Stunning New Tailored Suits at $26.75

A sale—sensational expresses it. We didn't believe the manager when he showed us the suits and told the price. It's true, $26.75. By all odds the best suit values offered this year, from a style and saving standpoint.

What wizardry was used to win them! we wondered. "No matter," said the buyer, "they're here, they will just serve to show how immensely increased Bullock's power in the world's markets has become."

Not one worth less than $45.00. $50.00 and $55.00 suits a-plenty, according to regular cost. Suits with extra long coats, Directoire lapels and sashes of satin. One-piece street models in black, navy, brown, taupe, electric blue, green, catawba. Every new shade. Don't wait. One of the rare values of Prosperity Week here just because of extraordinary home enterprise, a proof of the energy Bullock's is exerting to provide better store service for Los Angeles women.

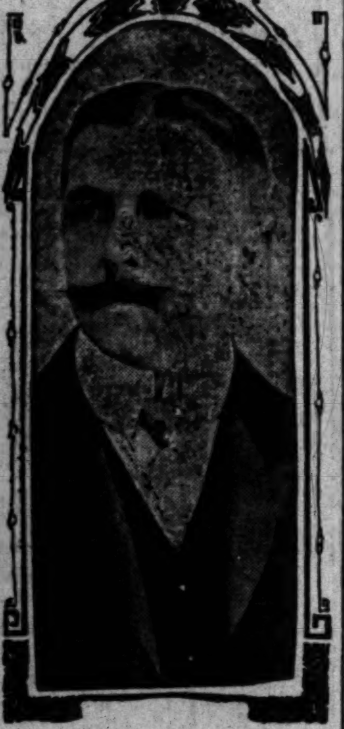
To the history, and to of heraldry, this and still is, an ever- of embarrassment and Heinrichs of Reuss to genealogists!" was the angry outburst of the famous German historian, Von Raumer.

An example of this confusion is the case of the actual Prince of Reuss of the elder line, who is Prince Heinrich XXIV, and is insane. There is another Prince Heinrich XXIV of Reuss alive, about twenty-five years older than the former, who is a composer and instrumentalist of great merit, as well as a D. Litt. His chamber music is highly praised by experts, and in many performances of his compositions the Prince sits at the piano, which he plays with the mastery almost of a Paderewski.



Prince Henry XXVII

of Reuss, who is the ruler of the "Reussen" since the mental breakdown of his father, Prince Henry XIV.

FREAK MARRIAGE.

One of the most notorious of the Reuss princes, before his ascension, was Austrian Ambassador to the court of Frederick the Great. He created a storm of indignant protest by being the first sovereign prince to marry a Jewess, a Marianne Meyer, the handsome daughter of a Berlin banker. He did not love her nor was his greed for her dowry the paramount motive for this extraordinary step. He desired—he frankly confessed—to annoy the "crowned wigs" of Europe; and he fully succeeded. Society never acknowledged the union; the princess never ranked as such, the court folk and everybody else addressed her as "Mademoiselle Meyer," and her princely husband was the most active agent in killing her social ambitions.

It was only after his death that "Mademoiselle Meyer," who was a determined and energetic woman, succeeded in gaining recognition in the world of society. She traveled to Vienna, threw herself at Emperor Francis's feet and begged him to compensate her for the years of sorrow and mortification she had suffered at the hands of her husband and of society. The Emperor took a fancy to her and created her a Baroness of Eybenberg; and as the old ruler's outspoken favorite, she was warmly welcomed by the same circles which had ignored her only a short time before.

Another "original" was Prince Henry XXII, the father of the young man who is now, nominally, the reigning prince of Reuss-Greiz, or Reuss of the elder line. The twenty-second "reigned" nearly fifty years and he became famous through the bitter, vindictive hatred he bore to everything Prussian and to the entire imperial system created in 1871. "Imperial Germany" was to him a fraud, an assumption, a peculation; he resented most the lessening of "absolute sovereignty" brought about by the formation of the German empire with the King of Prussia at its head.

AN IRRITANT.

Wherever he saw a chance to irritate the King and the government of Prussia, he seized upon it with avidity. And his favorite saying was, "In my country Prussia has nothing to say." The official gazette of Greiz filled its columns, by princely command, with violent diatribes against Berlin, the royal family, and the Prussian ministers of state; and more than once, the imperial chancellor had to remonstrate, more or less severely, against this conduct. Berlin court circles, which were sometimes greatly amused by the pranks of his impotent rage, nicknamed him "Henry the Naughty," a harmless adjective when compared with the fierceness of his hatred against the system of which he and his country formed part and parcel. It is said that his contempt of everything Prussian was inherited from his mother, Carolina, whose spite against Berlin sprang from a very remarkable source. In 1866, when Prussia waged war against Austria, Princess Carolina, who was then acting as her minor son's tutor, sent out her tremendous military "forces"—some 100 men—to aid Austria. In spite of this support, Austria was defeated and the victor, Bismarck, imposed upon the principality of Reuss-Greiz an indemnity of 100,000 thalers, half of it to be paid by the prince. The Dowager survived the blow to her pride in her troops' defeat, but she never got over the "vile depredation" of the Prussian statesman who made her shell out $75,000.

Prince Henry XXIV

of Reuss, head of the elder line, and brother of the wife of "Czar" Ferdinand of Bulgaria. He is insane.

THE UMBRELLA MAN.

Her grandson, Henry XXIV, who has been, theoretically, Prince of Reuss-Greiz since the death of the "Naughty," being mentally deranged, was debarred from active government. He is a robust, stalwart fellow of 30. He became demented in consequence of a surgical operation, as some people say, or through heredity, as others claim with great probability. Being unable to rule, he was not allowed to succeed his father, and his tutor, Prince Henry XIV, of the younger line, was installed as "regent" in 1902.

The Fourteenth is an old gentleman of very suave demeanor, immensely popular with his people for his plain, unpretentious ways. He and an old, dilapidated umbrella which he has been sporting for the last thirty years, are inseparable companions. The breakdown of his mind and his departure from Gera following his scandalous love affair was universally regretted by his people. The temporary regency of Henry XXVII, will undoubtedly be transformed into a lasting one, as there is no hope of his father's recovery.

In virtue of an old compact, the sovereignty over one of the lines falls to the Prince of the other line as soon as one branch is extinct. In the present case, Henry XXVII, will definitely become ruler over both houses as soon as the insane Twenty-fourth, who is unmarried, will close his eyes. But the latter is very vigorous and may easily survive the Twenty-seventh, whose son and heir is—a lunatic. Just what will become of the Reusses then is a question. And that is why Germans are talking so much of their queer little country.

Buy Furniture Made in Los Angeles

There is no industry in Los Angeles that deserves your support more than the furniture makers. In this city there are several plants turning out exceptionally good furniture of various kinds, but there is not enough furniture made in Los Angeles to supply the local demand—hence dealers must go to the east for the greater part of their stocks. The encouragement of local furniture makers means that Los Angeles citizens will save money. It means that the makers will be able to turn out high-grade goods and thus save the enormous freight expense from the east.

The articles we advertise today are all made in Los Angeles. Unless these goods were first class they could not find a place in our store.

In order to boost home products, we are making exceedingly low prices on this line of Los Angeles made furniture during Prosperity Week. We have not thought of profit at all when making the prices—we have in mind only the encouragement of a growing Los Angeles industry that will mean much to the city in future years.

This Chair Was NOT Made in Los Angeles

The above cut pictures one of the chairs we are forced to buy in the East because it is impossible to secure them from a Los Angeles factory. If a wood chair factory were started in Los Angeles, we would gladly throw a good portion of our business to it. We would do everything possible to make such a factory a success. It would mean that we could buy for less money and sell for less money, and, best of all, the money the customer paid for such chairs would stay right here in the city. We believe a chair factory could be made a big success in this city. Why does not some live manufacturer take our advice and start one?
You can buy the Chair illustrated for $1.95 this week; regularly $2.75.

$10.50 Dresser $6.75

This Dresser was designed by Van Vorst and Berman, of Los Angeles. Made in American quartered finish, with oval mirror. Regularly $10.50. "Prosperity" price $6.75.

RAILROAD PROGRESS.

Experiments have for some time been in progress to determine the feasibility of electrification of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The fact that there is an abundance of water power to generate electricity within easy reach of the line at various altitudes supplies a strong incentive to the utilization of electric energy as a motive power. The one great difficulty to be considered is the freezing up of the water powers in the winter season, which necessitates the determination whether enough water powers will be left open during the winter to furnish the necessary power.

Of the $41,000,000 paid for operating expenses and taxes by the Erie Railroad last year, 54.37 per cent. was paid direct to the 38,403 employés of the road, and this, while the most drastic economies in salaries, wages and forces were being practiced. The property of the road was not allowed to depreciate, with the result that the Erie is emerging from the depression with its roadbed, cars and engines in normal condition.

Lackawanna is the highest priced railroad stock in the world. The par value of its shares is $50, and the price ranges between $500 and $600. A small transaction—a hundred or a few hundred shares—causes a loss or gain of from 10 to 40 points. The road is owned by the Rockefellers, Stillmans and Astors (and their associates,) and is operated with the same foresight that has always distinguished Standard Oil. Its mileage is small; its dividends are enormous. Its capital stock is only $26,200,000.

The invention of a boltless rail joint has impressed the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission as a most important event. The invention consists of a shell, into which both ends of the rail are placed, and which are held in position by two lugs while the spikes are being driven which attach the rail and the joint shell to the ties. The shell spans three ties, and prevents the spreading of the rail. The spikes driven through the ends of the rail joint on both sides of the rail act as an additional security. When the spikes are driven, additional strength is given by two wedges driven from opposite ends of the joint. One of these joints was placed on a rail of the Illinois Central in its New Orleans yard five years ago, and has given satisfaction.

The circular recently issued from the New York headquarters of the Railway Business Association, of which Mr. George A. Post is president, contains an unusually clear statement of the importance of the railroads not only to the manufacturers and their employés, but to all business interests, large and small. During the past year it is shown that the railroads paid out over $1,000,000,000 in wages, and also purchased $1,250,000,000 worth of manufactured materials of all kinds, of which at least $1,000,000,000 represented wages. The railroads were, therefore, responsible for the distribution through the various channels of retail trade an investment of $2,000,000,000. Any measure or policy which decreases railway income, it can easily be seen from the foregoing facts, affects every business interest in the United States.—[Railway World.

Within a couple of years it will be possible to make the entire journey from New York to Chicago by trolley. Already more than 90 per cent. of the distance is traversed by electric roads, and the few connecting links are under construction. These uncompleted sections are close to New York City. When completed it is expected that the trolley traveler will be able to make the trip between the two cities for about one-half the present rate charged by the steam roads.

The Wabash Railroad, in renewing station buildings, has adopted a modified Mission style for the new structures. The material used is steel and concrete, so that ultimately the station buildings will all be fireproof.

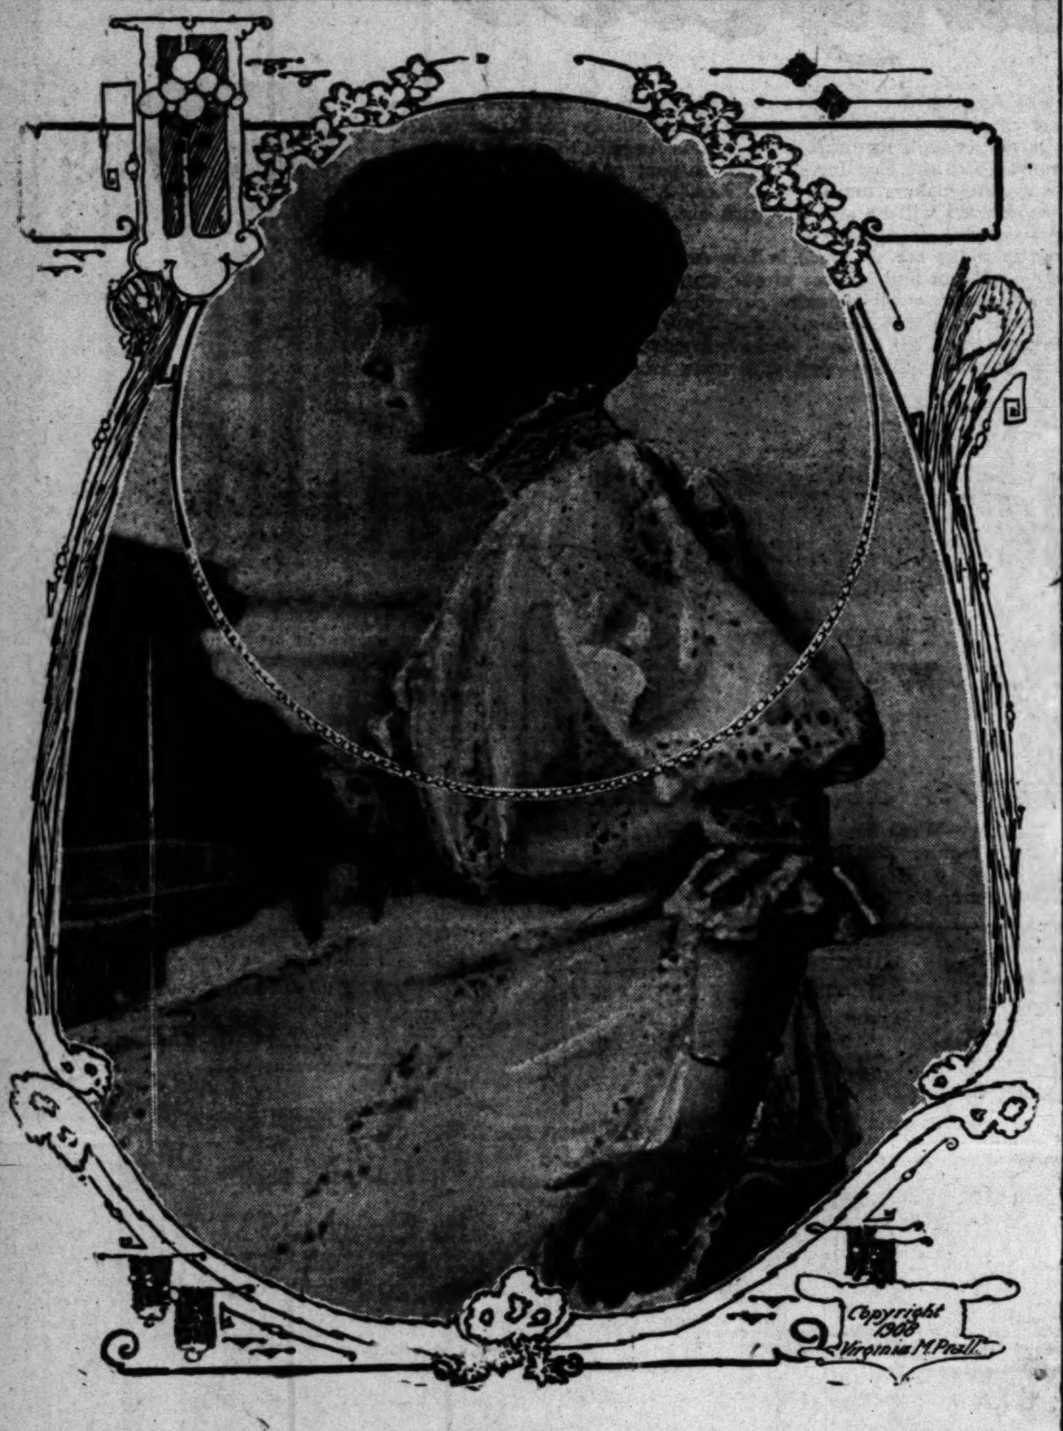
FATHER'S OWN.

JOLLY, INDEPENDENT GIRL IS PRESIDENT'S SECOND DAUGHTER.

BY NANCY.

UNDOUBTEDLY the most interesting figure in the social life of the national capital this season is Miss Ethel Carow Roosevelt, second daughter of the President. Although just past her seventeenth birthday, and in many ways still having the naiveté of a genuine girl, Miss Roosevelt will make her bow to society, a thoroughly finished and attractive bud, at a début ball to be given at the White House during the Christmas holidays.



Copyright 1908 Virginia M. Prall.

Miss Ethel C. Roosevelt.

While the formal announcement at the White House in October that Mrs. Roosevelt is to give a small dance on Monday evening, December 28, for Miss Roosevelt, did not contain the information that this is to be the début ball of the President's daughter, yet society is accepting this date as the probable time. An affair of this character at the Executive Mansion does not mean entirely what the term "small dance" ordinarily implies. The guest list includes several hundred, and it is well understood that Miss Roosevelt will have the entire younger set of Washington with a number of out-of-town visitors from New York and other cities. The ball will be given in the East Room. The Marine Band Orchestra will furnish music. The event will be followed by a series of smart functions, dinners, other dances, luncheons, and everything of the kind that contributes to the happiness of a débutante's first season.

Washington will long remember the brilliant social achievements of Miss Alice Roosevelt, beginning with her début during the first term of her father's administration and reaching the climax with her marriage to Nicholas Longworth—an event of international interest. Few, if any, of the daughters of our Presidents have enjoyed a social career of such prominence and brilliancy. Indeed, it may be presumed that the "Princess Alice" will hold a place in the history of the social life of the Executive Mansion, which has been so far without precedent.

Of course, Miss Roosevelt will be by no means a total stranger to the social world. For the last two years she has been present at many of the state receptions in the White House, and she was conspicuous as one of the attractive young girls at the wedding of her older half-sister, Mrs. Longworth. Yet the contrast between Miss Ethel and Mrs. Longworth is most striking, even to the cursory observer. Modest and retiring to the verge of bashfulness, of the simplest tastes, and enjoying keenly the most innocent pastimes—a really "old-fashioned girl" in the good sense—Miss Roosevelt has as yet developed no real penchant for the white light of social prominence. Like all young women, though, who are to experience the first delights and conquests of their initial season she is anticipating with pleasurable excitement the events of the coming months at the White House. Becoming at once, as she will, a prominent and interesting figure in the eyes of the American public in general, she is regarded without doubt as the most charming recent acquisition to Washington's younger set, for her sweet personality.

For Miss Roosevelt is in many ways quite an extraordinary girl. In personal appearance she is attractive because of that winsome, vivacious spontaneity which is so evidently natural and ever magnetic. Of medium height, with charmingly rounded figure, a beautifully fair complexion and soft pink cheeks, she possesses a wealth of silky blonde hair, and deep blue eyes, whose fascinating brilliancy is made more charming by graceful, long lashes. "Indeed," declared one of her teachers, in commenting on the personality of the girl, "to me the most wonderful thing about Miss Roosevelt is her great blue eyes. To be sure, she has a way of squinting at times, like the President; in some other particulars her temperament resembles his; but as I recall her years of school life and the outstanding impressions made, those eyes and that merry smile of hers are the fascinating, characteristic feature of herself."

And her home life has tended to the development of all that is simple, sweet and healthful. Even to the present day, her frocks are girlish and inexpensive, and her amusements purely those of the active, vivacious, healthy-minded young girl. Like her father, she is an ardent devotee of outdoor sports and exercise, being, of course, an expert horsewoman. In this accomplishment she takes great pride and has on occasions displayed a courage and daring amounting almost to reckless audacity, in mounting a steed known to be unmanageable; but she has ever seemed to share the Rooseveltian good luck, as well as in a degree, at least, the hereditary strenuosity and determination. Miss Roosevelt loves a good horse—in fact she is thoroughly devoted to all animals, defending any abused and helpless creatures against cruelty, personally caring for her numerous pets and feeding them with her own hands. Early any morning she may be seen in the beautiful private grounds of the White House, running and playing with her latest favorite, a beautiful bull terrier pup, yellow and white, marked with a white diamond on his back, which led to his being named "Ace."

Another of the very delightful characteristics of Miss Roosevelt is her ingenuousness and her bubbling spirit. Nowhere, perhaps, does this appear so happily as in her devotion to her younger brothers and their young friends. She enters into their youthful pleasures with positive glee and abandon, romping through the halls of the executive mansion, scurrying upstairs and down, hiding behind doors and articles of furniture in wild games with them. Only recently, one caller discovered her sitting upon the floor in a dark corner, hiding from the son of the President-elect, Charlie Taft—disheveled, but happy in the sport with the youngsters. Incidents like this, at an age when many young women would consider such playfulness beneath their dignity, only go to show the sweet, unspoiled girlishness which is so large a part of her charm.

Miss Roosevelt holds the unique distinction of having spent more years in the White House than any young person before her. Coming to Washington as a young girl, she has grown to womanhood in these historic surroundings of the White House and of the national capital. Here she has spent her school days, having had five years at the National Cathedral School for Girls, where she was a recognized leader, in her junior year, especially, and an officer of her class. During the past year she has continued her studies with private tutors at the White House.

And here it is proper to observe how strongly the artistic sense of Miss Roosevelt is developed. Rarely poetic, and strongly imaginative, she is deeply moved by all the beautiful in all arts, of which she is a sincere follower. Passionately fond of music, she is herself a pianist of unusual talent. Music has been given a large place in her educational training, therefore, and with Mrs. Roosevelt and their guests, she may be seen in the family box listening eagerly and intently to the great orchestral symphonies and recitals of Washington's musical season. One of Miss Roosevelt's favorite compositions is Chopin's "Funeral March," which she plays with exquisite taste and feeling.

Reared in the atmosphere of culture, confirmed in the old St. John's Church, Washington, known as the "Church of the Presidents," devoted to all that is implied in a ritualistic and cultural religion, Miss Roosevelt is yet democratic to a degree and a genuine altruist. With a heart full of kindliness, she is prompt in responding to calls for social service. She has long taught a class of young negroes at St. Mary's Chapel in Washington, and at Oyster Bay for years has played the hymns in the little Sunday-school. This spirit of democracy is evident, too, in the consideration shown those who are beneath her in social position. She is quite adored by the employés and servants at the White House, whose interests she does not hesitate to make her own. On one occasion, because the coachman was kept waiting some time beyond the usual lunch hour, she was much upset and promptly insisted that it was "quite unfair to John," who was forthwith excused for his noonday refreshment.

Indeed, one could not help noting, in a study of her individuality, how strikingly independent Miss Roosevelt is in handling her personal affairs. She has no maid, for instance, but prefers rather to attend to all the details of her toilet and wardrobe unassisted, only consulting her mother in the selection of her gowns and hats. And this suggests the comment, that between Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel, there has always existed the most complete sympathy and beautiful affection; and as the years of maturity have come, they are really more like two sisters in their perfect companionship—the French call it "camaraderie"—than they are like mother and daughter.

Flowers are the particular delight of this charming young débutante, and the sweet old-fashioned moss rose the one she loves best. The soft pink of this favorite flower is to her the color par excellence, and the one shade most often selected for her gowns. Her little boudoir is decorated entirely in rose color. In this room there is also her grand piano, and opening into it is her bedroom, a girl's dainty taste exhibiting itself in all the appointments. But the one interesting and altogether impressive object in this room is an exquisite painting of her mother and herself as a child. The big blue eyes, the golden hair, and withal the strongly magnetic spirit, are here portrayed, prophetic of the unfolded flower of later years.

And so it has come to pass that Ethel Carow Roosevelt, modest, bashful, retiring—yet vivacious, ingenuous, altruistic—commanding when emergency calls for command, daring even, when deeds of bravery and strength are to be done—a girl of simple tastes, of democratic ideals and of highly independent spirit—is at the age of 17 to be formally presented to the world of society and the gayety of a winter's season in social New York and Washington. It is such an opportunity as few American girls may hope to enjoy. Yet it is equally a delight to contemplate a genuine American girl, the embodiment of the best American ideals, in the midst of the social éclat. And may it not be that a nation's interest in American girlhood with Miss Roosevelt a type, shall quite equal or surpass society's concern in the social débutante?

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have been much averse to anything that would deprive Miss Ethel of a genuine girlhood. In spite of persistent effort and clamor for her picture, they had steadfastly refused to publish anything while she was yet a schoolgirl. Quite recently, however, the accompanying portrait by Miss Prall of Washington was made in the East room of the White House, and is the only one for which Miss Roosevelt has sat since her childhood. It is now given to the public for the first time, with the consent and approval of her parents.

Oyster Bay, the President's summer home, was Miss Roosevelt's birthplace, and she has spent each succeeding summer there. The first summer away from her native soil will be when she and her mother are traveling abroad during 1909. Miss Roosevelt is looking forward to this first visit in Europe with far more enthusiasm than any possible social triumphs of the coming winter, and both she and her mother are anticipating a tour which will cover not only those points so generally visited, but many little wayside nooks and corners which for picturesque romanticism appeal to the artistic temperament. In this tour, too, they will gain a complete relaxation from the over-strain which the social duties of an executive season, and particularly this last and most interesting one, will place upon thee "First Lady of the Land" and her débutante daughter.

ART NOTES.

At the Kanst gallery a number of figure studies by Wanda Sauer are being shown. During Prosperity Week, Mr. Kanst will exhibit in his show rooms pictures by local artists only.

Helma Heynsen Jahn has just finished a charming pastel portrait of a child, which she calls "Little Miss Fishburn." Another recent portrait by Mrs. Jahn is in oils; this is a strong portrait of John W. Norton. We hope to reproduce it in a coming number of Art and Artists.

The Rembrandt Art Club of South Pasadena gave a reception in honor of Franz Bischoff on Thursday evening, of the past week.

On Tuesday evening, the Painters' Club gave a dinner to members only, at Campi's.

Mr. Rich of Pasadena has just finished a portrait study head of Miss Ruth Hoyt. Miss Daggett, also of Pasadena, recently executed a bas-relief of Miss Emily McBride, daughter of Dr. J. H. McBride.

An Unusual Chauffeur.

Eugene Laden of No. 111 West Thirty-seventh street, New York, recently ran over an aged man with his automobile, for which he told Magistrate Barlow that he was perfectly willing to spend a month in jail on the charge of assault until the extent of the injuries his automobile had inflicted could be determined.

While it was said the case was accidental and the Magistrate only fixed a small bond of $200 for his appearance, none of his friends came to bail him out.

When the case was brought up Policeman Clary presented a certificate from the Bellevue Hospital authorities saying the injured man would not be out for four or five weeks.

"Are you willing to stay in jail for a month?" asked the Magistrate.

"Yes, sir," was the answer. "I am willing to stay in jail as long as the old man stays in the hospital."

The case was then set down for a later date, and Laden started away to go to prison.

Timely and Scholarly Criticism.

THE AMERICAN COLLEGE, A CRITICISM. By Abraham Flexner. The Century Company, New York. (Price $1 net.)

The nebulous ideas of a great many parents, teachers and graduates, who have felt the need of collegiate reform without being able always to prescribe it satisfactorily, have been sharply visualized by Mr. Flexner in "The American College." From time to time there have appeared desultory and fugitive criticisms of pedagogical deficiency and of modern educational methods, but Mr. Flexner's book is the only work that has completely analyzed the subject and set forth adequately a plan of educational reconstruction.

An A. M. of Harvard, a B. A. of Johns Hopkins, an ex-student at the University of Berlin and of Columbia, he has spent the last three years studying educational systems in the United States, England and Germany, and his book is based on long contact and experience with secondary school and college methods and first-hand investigation of college students and college teachers. Mr. Flexner finds many things to criticise, and puts forth strongly what he considers some of the weaknesses of our present system. As a result there is much matter here to startle the complacent believer of our present day educational methods. But any one interested in these matters can hardly fail to be struck with the singularly lucid manner in which he pitilessly dissects and analyzes the college and secondary school curricula.

Beginning with generalizations, he accuses the colleges of misplacing emphasis and allowing elements, incidental and irrelevant, to overweigh the more fundamental and essential purposes of education. These errors, he points out, result in students being "flighty, superficial and immature," and lacking, at their emergence, in "concentration, seriousness and thoroughness." He accuses the colleges of unnecessary deficiency among their instructors, both in earnestness and intelligence, and holds up as proof the inordinately low standards of success prevalent in these institutions.

The elective system Mr. Flexner attacks more ruthlessly, perhaps, than other phases of college education because in this he finds only what would tend to be incompatible with the ideal of education. He goes so far as to assert that this system is totally devoid of "necessary, inner logic," and is in danger of disintegrating the society it sets out to serve. By leaving the student, through its passivity, to excessive, narrow, and premature specialism, the elective system results only in impoverishment, isolation and wastefulness by aimless dispersion. This is undoubtedly true, and the fact is attested to by the mental inferiority of the average graduate.

Although the American college gives opportunity by which the student may procure a course of training which realizes his maximum effectiveness, the scheme fails, Mr. Flexner says, for lack of insight. This point he develops clearly, at the same time taking a firm stand against the foolish, dogmatized entrance examination. The cure lies, he tells us, with the reformation of the secondary school, and the permanent solution as outlined by Mr. Flexner is at once comprehensive, sure and practicable.

The book is uncompromising, compendius and scholarly, brilliant and erudite in style, profound in analysis, and extensive in insight. However, educators, who cling to the traditional and the dogmatized will, I fear, find the book hopelessly iconoclastic.

A Romantic Tragedy.

THE CRADLE OF THE ROSE. By the author of "The Martyrdom of an Empress." Harper & Bros., New York.

The proper ending of a story is not unlike the little wafer-like glass disc with which a microscopic slide is capped, only, instead of protecting a cross-section of pumpkin stem from disintegration, it gives the transparency and the permanency of composition to the picture of life which the author discloses. And composition is an important seal by which the artist's work is protected from decay.

The happy ending at any cost—whether sequacious and natural, or inharmonious and irrelevant—has been in vogue for several years, and the result is that the majority of late novels has already commenced the process of literary disintegration. This heresy of the happy ending has had an almost dogmatic prevalency of late, and it is with pleasure akin to novelty that we traverse the rich, sensuous pages of "The Cradle of the Rose" to find that they lead to a dramatic and natural tragedy.

It is a story of the France of today, bearing upon the present crisis of church and state; a story of conspiracy in the province of Brittany, which in race and feeling is shown to bear the same relation to the rest of France that Ireland bears to England. Opening with a unique and striking drama of the sea, the story is interwoven throughout with a vivid love interest. The beautiful wife of an English diplomat, in the absence of her husband on a difficult Asiatic mission, returns to her native Brittany to satisfy her longing for her land and people by a lengthy sojourn. Her name and antecedents are discovered, and she suddenly finds herself in the position of a feudal princess, whose word is law throughout the countryside. As she is possessed of colossal wealth, she seizes the opportunity to organize a Royalist insurrection, aided by the hero of the tale, a young Breton noble and ex-navel officer. It may be merely a coincidence that one of the most attractive figures in the book will be easily recognized as the young royal Prince of France, now traveling in this country.

The novel abounds in extraordinary situations, originally handled, and is pure romance, nervous with excitement and alive with beauty. The author—surely she is a woman, and young—has very little in common with the Saxon nature, for the story is full of that rare glowing imagination and that intense passion that have their matrices only in the Latin temperament.

The book may impress many as being unnecessarily wordy and diffuse in places, but on the whole it is beautifully written, combining the perception and accuracy of the painter, the sensuousness and beauty of the poet, and the cadence and harmony of the musician. "The Cradle of the Rose" is decidedly above the average novel, and has many points of excellence.

A Child's Beautiful Book.

THE FLAMING SWORD, AND OTHER LEGENDS OF THE EARTH AND SKY. By Edith Ogden Harrison. A. C. McClurg & Co., Chicago. (Price $1.75 net.)

Mrs. Harrison's exquisite fancy, delicate imagery and tender grace seem to have found a more sympathetic medium in "The Flaming Sword," than either in her delightful "The Moon Princess" or in "The Star Fairies."

Although several of the tales in this book are founded on some of the stories in the Bible, Mrs. Harrison prefaces the work with a note: "Often while I watch natural phenomena, stories of the Bible arise before me, serving to form a background to the mental pictures, and strengthening my delight in nature. In offering these fancies to the public, may I ask that there be no confusion of my imaginative legend with the true Bible story?"

The Biblical stories are beautifully and originally handled, and can inspire in the heart of the child only a sense of joy and of beauty. The book includes a number of the most charming fairy tales, diffusing the redolence of flowers, the joy of birds, the mystery of the stars, and the child-wonder of the universe.

The book is handsomely bound and illustrated with beautiful dream-pictures in color, which make a fitting complement to the text.

Dainty, fanciful, beautiful written in large clear type, no book that has come to our hands would make at once so beautiful and so delightful a gift.

Sentimental Sepon.

Brian Hooker can write worthy things. He is capable of good English. He has theories on poetry that place him intellectually above the majority of his fellow-critics. Furthermore, he can create art. Therefore, when he shoves at us such syllabub as "The Right Man," we are disgusted to a greater degree than if the book were merely the product of a writer incapable of better things. It is "ipecac to our souls"—the phrase is from the book! Unfortunate it is that a man of Mr. Hooker's mentality, with brains and a power of them, and a heart, too, can see his way clear to debauch his gifts and then can have no more self-respect than to sign his name to such pabulum.

"She laid a hand on each of his shoulders, looking him full in the eyes until he felt a dizziness. Then she leaned to him slowly and kissed him lightly on the lips. 'God bless you, dear,' she whispered, lips, hands and eyes his own. Then she pushed him violently away, crying, 'Oh, it's all wrong—all wrong——' and turned and ran through the shadows." This from the man who wrote—

"Give me but what thou givest all mankind,
A woman in whose eyes I seek and find
Children mysteriously mine!"

A writer with Mr. Hooker's gift of lyricism, his poetic feeling and his wealth of expression writing of sentimental love-jiggery and fist fights is truly a contemptible spectacle.

The text is fitly illustrated by Alonzo Kimball in cheap, spectacular pastels, all the characters having turkey-red hair and marine-blue faces.

The whole book is a disgrace.

The Old Problems.

SCIENCE AND IMMORTALITY. By Sir Oliver Lodge, F.R.S. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

This ever fascinating theme is treated in this work under the following subdivisions: "Science and Faith," "Corporate Worship and Service," "The Immortality of the Soul," "Science and Christianity." Yes, ever fascinating theme. It attracts writers as the flame does the moth; it has lured them for hundreds and hundreds of years. Now, one who is esteemed as perhaps the foremost philosopher of the England of today has tackled it—and with what result? He has gone no further in aiding the finite mind to grasp the infinite than has any of his predecessors. Speculations of the sort that Sir Oliver has diverted himself with are the most profitless of human efforts; are now, and ever will be, world without end, amen!

Sir Oliver has in a way tried to reconcile the postulates of modern science with the established formulae of revealed religion and the accepted traditions of the Christian church. He applies the tests of scientific thought to the belief in the immortality of the soul, the efficacy of prayer, the possibility of miracles, the doctrine of the atonement, the resurrection of the dead, etc. "Take a scientific man," he says, "and place him in the atmosphere habitual to churches, and he must starve. He requires solid food, but his sole provision is air. [Hot air?] He dies of inanition." And Sir Oliver seeks to provide the scientific man, who would also be a religious man, with something besides air. This reviewer has read Sir Oliver's book over and over again and thinks he would have better left the task with St. Paul, who came very near saying the final word.

The chief value of Sir Oliver's work is his emphatic and persistent presentation of the truth that varying beliefs are largely matters of definition. Bloody battles have been fought over the meaning of a word. Most of the world's theological difficulties have arisen over terms which might well convey one thing to one mind and another thing to a different mind. Here is his scientific sweeping-away of the doubts that science has strewn around the belief in prayer:

"Prayer is a part of the orderly cosmos . . . If we can grasp the idea that we ourselves are an intimate part of the whole scheme [we in God and God in us,] that our wishes and desires are a part of the controlling and guiding will, then our mental action cannot but be efficient, if we exercise it in accordance with the highest and truest laws of our being."

A way of putting it that appeals to the scientific thinker, but does not fill the suffering heart with joy and peace. But why not let each understand it in his own way?

"It is mere illiteracy to suppose that all classes of recorded miracle represent statements of fact," says Sir Oliver. "The body is a flowing and constantly changing episode in material history, having no more identity than has a river." "Soul seems identical with the principle of life and all living things must possess some rudiment of soul." "The proof of the material resurrection of Christ is such as will not bear scrutiny." "The divinity of Jesus and of all other noble and saintly souls," etc. These are some of the steps by which our author would reconcile Science and Religion. If Science may be reconciled in this way, Religion certainly cannot. And indeed Religion does not seek any "reconciliation," as we understand it.

Sir Oliver may furnish a setting for the thought of many a materialist. His definitions are superb. He has given exquisite expression to what has long been in the minds of most courageous thinkers. But what does it avail? He has trod in the well-worn paths of Spencer and Huxley and he has seen no new light. Vanity of vanities, all is vanity. Why do strong and brilliant men vex themselves with these explorations of the unexplorable? Sir Oliver himself says that these things would better be left to the saints.

Sir Oliver declares that it is possible that in the future Science may solve the problem of creation; he warns religionists not to accept the present chagrin and failure of Science as final; he says that one of these fine days a chemist may make a living, reproducing cell out of inorganic matter. Well, let us wait! Then will be the time for scientists to write books about transcendental matters. Until then there will be more consolation in Faith than in Science. The substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen—that is about all we poor mortals have to tie to—and it is a safer mooring than Sir Oliver's Science.

NEWS AND NOTES OF FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

Last year President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University delivered a course of lectures at the University of Copenhagen, which attracted considerable attention not only in Denmark, but throughout Europe. These lectures, on the general subject of the American as He Is, are to be published at once in this country by the Macmillan company, and arrangements are pending for their publication abroad also in Danish, French and German translations. Among the specific topics, President Butler discusses are "The American as a Political Type," "The American Apart From His Government," and "The American and His Intellectual Life."

The Outing Publishing Company announces "The Stroke Oar," by Ralph D. Paine, for publication at an early date. Mr. Paine rowed on the Yale crews of '91, '92 and '93. He made the crew in his freshman year, and had the added distinction of being the only crew man who had ever been chairman of the Yale literary magazine.

Mrs. Hugh Fraser, the author of "The Heart of a Geisha," which the Putnams are on the point of publishing, is the sister of Marion Crawford, and in the above-named story she writes of a subject with which she is perfectly at home. The tale is a romantic story of Japan, particularly noteworthy for its interesting account of Geisha life. The description of the dance by which the Geisha saved the life of her lover, a young noble attached to the cause of the Mikado in the days preceding his triumph over the Shogun, when such devotion meant imminent danger to one's life and liberty, forms the climax to a very dramatic tale.

"The Childhood of Man," by Dr. Leo Frobenius, a well-known German traveler and anthropologist, translated from the German by A. H. Keane, the English ethnologist, is among the important new Lippincott publications. The work is a popular account of the lives, customs, and thoughts of the primitive races, and deals with such varied subjects as tattooing, the language of dress, gesture, etc., drums and drum dances, picture writing, skull worship, head hunting, ancestor worship, sacred animals, fire worship and many others. Great trouble has been taken to find telling, yet accurate, illustrations, and a collection of 415 of highly varied character has been brought together. The book includes eight full-page reprints from the original water-color drawings of Indian life made by John White, Governor of Virginia in 1587, and now in the British Museum, and also reproductions of many native drawings and carvings.

W. J. Locke, author of "The Beloved Vagabond," "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne," etc., is planning to spend part of the winter with Rutger B. Jewett in America. Mr. Locke is now at work upon a new novel, which he hopes to finish during the winter. "Simple Septimus," his most recent work, is drawing to a close in serial form in the American Magazine, and will be issued in January by John Lane Company, New York.

The twelfth and concluding volume of Mr. Temple Scott's edition of Swift's "Prose Works" will be published by the Macmillan company this month. The volume contains an essay by the late Sir Frederick Falkiner on the Portraits of Swift and Stella, embodying the result of researches extending over many years, and an article by the Very Rev. Dr. Bernard, dean of St. Patrick's, on the "Relations Between Swift and Stella," summing up the whole matter in the light of the latest information; a bibliography compiled by Spencer Jackson, and a general index to the twelve volumes. The bibliography will be of special interest, as it is the first which has ever been published recording, with any claim to completeness, all Swift's writing, both in prose and verse.

"The Century of the Child," which G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish this month, has gone through more than twenty German editions, and has been published in several European countries. Since Ellen Key severed her connection with the champions of woman's emancipation, twelve years ago, by asserting that the salvation of woman depended upon a nobler conception of her natural mission as wife and mother rather than upon an enlargement of her sphere, she has devoted herself largely to educational questions, and her seriousness and sincerity of ethical purposes have won for her a large and enthusiastic following. Some of her ideas are strongly revolutionary, but in educational questions she shows originality, and her writings have a wide appeal among progressive people. In the matter of education of children she is the foe of mechanical methods, recommending a large liberty in the bringing up of young people.

LITERARY NOTES AND COMMENTS.

A WOMAN TO HER HAND MIRROR.

"Am I,—tell me,—am I fair?
Youth were wont in other days
These eyes, these lips, this brow to praise,
And all this wealth of golden hair
Yet now—ah, tell me,—am I fair?"

No, gentle reader, this is not a burlesque nor a satire, nor was it clipped from Munsey's. But it is—so help me!—quoted verbatim from page 203 of Putnam's and The Reader for November.

Frank Dempster Sherman, the author of that memorable line, "Spring is here today," says that when the gods fused the polish of Herrick, the grace of Lander, the genius of Keats, and the wit of Tennyson, that the result was the heart of Thomas Bailey Aldrich. He might have added the technique of Poe, the erudition of Gray and the comprehensiveness of Shakespeare, because when one reaches a certain point in hysterical apotheosizing it is possible to add to it indefinitely without affecting it.

Aldrich was a sweet and lovable singer, often reaching heights of expression we call genius. His artistry was refined to a high degree and showed sedulous hours of what one critic has called "the finish of the file." His music and his sentiment were always pleasing; but when Mr. Braithwaite, in his tribute to the beloved dead poet, has called him "The Wondersmith in Vocables," all has been said.

Nothing that Aldrich wrote reflected more credit on his poetic feeling than the following criticism of the High Priest of Asperities. "Whitman's manner is a hollow affectation, and I don't believe a charlatan can be a great poet. Not all the pontifical eulogy in the world could turn Whitman into a poet. He did not have the root of the matter in him."

It is interesting to learn from Brander Mathews that English criticism of the nineteenth as well as of the seventeenth century was but an echo of continental European thought; that Coleridge was dependent on the thinkers of Germany, Mathew Arnold on French thinkers, Sidney on Castelvetro and Ben Johnson on Heinsius; and that the doctrine of the three unities originated in Italy and not with Chapelain, as universally supposed.

With Elinor Glyn's published opinion that Mark Twain is essentially a humorist, and the announcement of The McClure Company that, when in his best and most characteristic mood, he is not unlike O. Henry, we immediately dispel any doubts that we harbored on the question of Mr. Clemens's greatness.

Charles Edward Russell, in championing the cause of the boy-singer, Chatterton, and in freeing his name from the mendacious obloquy and disgrace with which it had been burdened, has endeared himself to every one's heart—except, of course, the heart of the petty gossiper who delights in defaming the memory of great and beautiful souls.

Price Collier, in the North American Review for November, writes a long and earnest plea for simplicity in speech, and denounces the man who says veterinary surgeon for horse doctor. Further, he says that to use any but the shortest words that will convey the meaning is the height of vulgarity. From the article we cull the following: "fulminating eschatology," "laryngeal formation," "prognathic denunciation of exhilarated prejudice," "sesquipedalian sententiousness."

THE FLAMING SWORD and Other Stories of the Earth and Sky
By EDITH OGDEN HARRISON
Author of "Prince Silverwings," "The Moon Princess," Etc.
Dedicated to
THE RIGHT REVEREND THOS. J. CONATY
Bishop of Los Angeles and Monterey

Mrs. Harrison's exquisite fancy has never been seen to better advantage than in this, her newest book. It is somewhat different from its predecessors in that she takes as the basis of several of the tales some of the prettiest of the Bible stories, to which she gives reverent, though very original interpretations. In addition, there are a number of her inimitable fairy tales, in which she has embodied all the beautiful things in the universe: the stars, birds, flowers, etc. Uniform with Mrs. Harrison's previous successes, "Prince Silverwings," etc.

With illustrations in color and other decorations by Lucy Fitch Perkins. Large 4 to. Net, $1.25.

THIEVES MADE USEFUL MEN.

Gypsy Smith Tells of Change That Was Marvelous.

Origin of Celebrated Trio of English Evangelists.

How Gypsies Thrive, Love, Forage on Country.

BY JAMES B. MORROW.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CLEVELAND (Ohio) Nov. 7.—If you were in the woods, no matter where, but preferably in Spain, France or Sicily, and he were suddenly to appear from behind a tree and exclaim with a frightful glare, "I am Rodney Smith, the brigand," you would believe him. Of course, he would wear a short velvet coat, and a red handkerchief would be knotted around his neck, and his shock of lustrous black hair would be banked low down against his forehead. A gleaming knife would also fit into the picture.

The name Rodney, understand, would fool you. Were he to say, however, with his magic smile and melodious voice, "I am Gypsy Smith, the brigand," you would know at once that he was not a dangerous and picturesque robber at all, but only the evangelist who has stirred two nations, including the unemotional Scotch, by his sincerity and his eloquence.

Gipsy Smith.

PHYSICALLY A GYPSY.

It is the voice and the smile, as well as the spirit, which have made this man, born in a tent, son of a horse-trader and a fortune-teller, the most extraordinary preacher of his day.

Physically Rodney Smith is a gypsy—dark, insinuating, and passionate. Living in a house and sleeping in a bed have not refined away his natural grace and atmosphere. Dug from the lanes, under the hedge rows, and transplanted in the garden of form and order and civilization, he retains all the simplicity, perfume, and strength of the wild life whence he came.

The hypothesis of genius may be employed to explain the power of this very remarkable man. Christians, however, are not bothered by any speculations concerning him. To them he was divinely appointed to his work. So argument would settle nothing. The blast of the last trumpet would find the disputants busy and unconvinceable. The amazing facts will never be conclusive, but they will always remain intensely dramatic and pathetic.

SEARCH FOR MOTHER'S GRAVE.

No living picture can well exceed in pathos the scene in the country churchyard of England when two little gypsy children, Rodney Smith and his sister Tillie, following the spire of the chapel among the trees, came from the distant wagon of their father, just returned the night before, to find the unmarked grave of their mother. Hand in hand they searched. Then a good woman took them to the place.

"Many a time had I gone into the forest and wept," Gypsy Smith says, "because I had no mother." Now, at last, he was with her—the lonely gypsy, dying at the roadside, exacting a promise from the drinking, fiddling, pilfering father that he would be good to her six children and trying desperately to pray.

Brother and sister, only children of an outcast race, got wild flowers at the edges of the open highway—fields they dared not enter—and planted them. They remained in love all day, talking, wondering and working. Did she know? In the shadows of the evening, kneeling side by side, they put their lips to the earth of the grave and kissed their sleeping mother good-by. Did she see? And the next morning the wagon moved on.

Without trying to hunt a reason for Gypsy Smith's influence on men, and more men respond to his simple eloquence than women, it may be said that he never went to school for more than four weeks in all his life. Even so, he is not essentially the evangelist to the ignorant and the excitable. Writers, lawyers, physicians, teachers, business men, and even preachers themselves are persuaded and convinced by the directness, beauty and force of his appeals.

BEGAN SAVING OF SOULS EARLY.

At the age of 16, when he was reclaimed from the devil, as he would put it, Gypsy Smith could barely read and write. During his month at school he had learned to make out words of one syllable. Perhaps he could sign his name. His narrow English was a jargon of wretched grammar and mongrel words. With a Bible and a dictionary under his arm he peddled his father's tinware, baskets, and clothespins for a year.

Then he began to preach and sinners immediately stood up and confessed. He served no actual apprenticeship in the work of an evangelist. At the start he lacked in the elegancies of expert craftsmanship, but was capable none the less of turning the crudest and roughest of raw material into a reputable and useful finished product. Today no man in the world uses better English while on his feet.

Christian and infidel will interpret the marvelous case of Gypsy Smith by their faith and unbelief, but there can be no differences concerning the elementary facts. A heathen, reaching back onto the lost generations of the past, born with stealing, cheating, drinking and blaspheming in his blood, is lighting whole cities in Great Britain and the United States by the fire of his repressed but resistless oratory. There is no screaming, there is no Bible-pounding, there is no vulgarity of method. Nor is there a particle of cant or affectation. In Cleveland, as was recently the case in Baltimore and Washington, all classes of people, the illiterate and the learned, the ditch-digger and the doctor, fill Gypsy Smith's meetings and overflow into the street.

MASTERED ENGLISH BY HARD STUDY.

"The best critics say that your English and your pronunciation are perfect. How did you learn the language so well?" I asked him.

"By the slow process of studying without a teacher and by keeping my eyes and ears open," Gypsy Smith replied. "My people have a language of their own, a mother tongue, which they speak among themselves, especially when outsiders, or 'gorgios,' are present. The English of the British gypsies is limited, badly broken, and frightfully ungrammatical. That is the English I used when I began to talk in public. After I was converted, through the prayers and efforts of my father, his change of life following the death of my mother, it came to me that I should preach. I procured a Bible and an English dictionary, both of which I carried under my arm wherever I went.

"My father made baskets of willow, tinware from sheets of tin, which he bought in large towns, and clothespins from wood, which he 'found' in the forests we passed on our travels. He also put new seats of cane in old chairs. These several trades came down to him from his ancestors. When there was a chance he exchanged horses. While he worked at the wagon, or in the tent near-by, my mother, when she was living, would peddle his wares in the towns where we stopped. After her death I became the principal salesman of the family. I praised my goods, and they were worth praising, because my father was a skillful man. When I had ended my business with a woman, I would tell her that my mother was dead, that I was a Christian, and then I would sing a hymn. I was known in one part of England as the 'singing gypsy boy.'

FIRST SERMON IN STREET.

"But in the meantime I was studying my Bible and hunting in my dictionary for every word I did not understand. It was a slow and difficult way of learning English, but I was methodical and industrious, and didn't give up. When the 'gorgios' talked I listened that I might note their pronunciation. Little by little I mastered the art of writing. I love music, like all gypsies, and am passionately devoted to the beautiful, particularly to flowers and scenery, and my tastes were helpful, I suppose, in forming my style of speaking, and possibly in the shaping of my methods.

"My first sermon was preached in the street, not far away from our wagon. I was not 17. It was on a Sunday morning, and I was dressed in corduroy trousers, a velveteen jacket, and a brown beaver hat. Gypsies love to decorate their necks. Women and girls wear immense strands of coral beads. The men wear bright-colored handkerchiefs; mine, on that Sunday morning, was a pumpkin-yellow. Strangely enough, I preached a good many years after that before I thought of a necktie. Well, I stood in the road and sang and prayed and spoke a few words. I saw two or three persons in tears. Of course, I was painfully crude. As yet I could only read words of two syllables.

"Presently we went into camp in the open country, just outside of London. The Rev. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, was conducting a Christian mission. One night I went to his meeting in the Whitechapel district. He had heard of my father and his two converted brothers and of me. Unexpectedly he said: 'The next speaker will be the gypsy boy.' I was terribly embarrassed and my legs trembled, but I sang a hymn and spoke a few words. I have been preaching ever since that night in London.

"Mr. Booth asked me to be a missioner. In great joy I returned to the wagon and told my family. A few days later I left the tent forever. I was 17 years old and very ignorant. Indeed, I had never slept in a bed nor had I ever used a knife or fork. When I saw a napkin at my plate for the first time I was sure it was a handkerchief. My work was hard from the first, and I had little time to give to study, but I made the best use I could of every minute. I read several religious books and further along in my life got glimpses into Thackery, Dickens, Scott, Whittier, Longfellow, Tennyson, and Ruskin.

"The truth is, however, that my reading has been limited almost entirely to the Bible. I have wanted to improve myself, but my days and nights have been so filled with toil that I have not had the opportunity. Yet I have had one valuable means of education in my association with some of the most cultured men and women of England and America.

"I understood at the beginning of my preaching that slang and provincialisms are not English. Slovenly talk, at best, is a bad habit. However, if I make a mistake it is attributed to ignorance. The grammatical sins of an educated man, on the other hand, are merely slips of a careless tongue that knows better. So I learned to talk carefully in my home, to my wife and children, and I have in that way accustomed myself to ready and accurate expression."

"Have gypsies a religion of their own?" I asked.

"Hardly; but they believe in God, who is merciful, and in immortality. They are superstitious, watching for signs and being afraid of ghosts. I have often thought that we might be one of the lost tribes of Israel. Gypsies cannot read, and I never knew one of them to have a Bible, yet they give their children Biblical names and regard Sunday as a day of rest. I have been knocked down more than once for whistling on the Sabbath."

"How do the gypsies settle disputes among themselves?"

"With their fists; but they seldom have serious differences of opinion. Property is at the bottom of most controversies, and the gypsies, being poor, don't quarrel among themselves like other people."

"There is a common belief that they often steal children?"

"That unjust and absurd idea originated with novelists. Gypsies have large families of their own; one of my relatives had thirty-one children. Among my people I never heard of a single case of kidnaping."

"Do gypsies have a scheme of signs and passwords?"

"No; that is another invention of the writers of romance. When a gypsy man intends to move his wagon he is particular to tell his wife and children where they can find him after they are through peddling for the day. If, for any reason, he is not permitted to camp at the place fixed upon, he goes elsewhere, leaving behind him a trail of grass pulled from the roadside. That is the only gypsy sign I know of."

"Gypsy women who tell fortunes," I said, "must be pretty good guessers and know considerable about human nature?"

FORTUNE-TELLERS SHREWD.

"Gypsies cannot read, and so their perceptive faculty becomes keen and sensitive. Women who tell fortunes are shrewd and inquisitive. They know they are engaged in a swindle, but they cannot resist taking the money of foolish 'gorgios.' Fortune-telling is their worst fault. Their husbands and fathers always feel certain of their chastity. Marriage with the gypsies is merely a promise to live together and be faithful, there is no

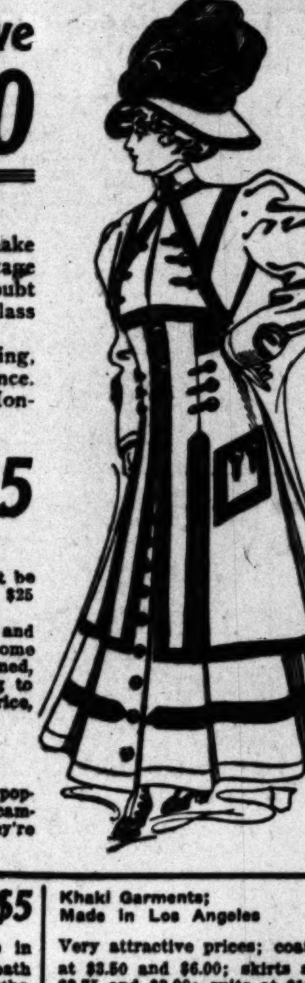
New York Buyer Takes an Active Hand in a Great Suit Scoop, Bringing $45 to $60 Garments . . . $37.50



No, the suits are not made in Los Angeles, and we wouldn't be able to make the prices here, either, if the New York buyer hadn't taken quick advantage of the opportunity that presented itself. About 50 suits; without doubt they are the cleverest styles we've laid our eyes on this year. High class garments exclusively; each and every one of them a distinctive creation.

Materials are of the finest broadcloth, cheviots and imported suiting, some styles richly trimmed, others made in richly plain tailored elegance. The least of them worth $45, and the best of them $50 and $60 values. Monday's price $37.50.

A Companion Purchase of 500 New Suits $14.95

$17.50 to $30 Values

This second lot contains 500 suits and there isn't a one among them that wouldn't be a big value at the lowest price we quote, $17.50. The majority of them are $20, $25 and $30 values.

Think of it, broadcloth suits in blue, brown, green and black. Two-tone serges in all the new colorings, handsome striped cheviots and worsteds, long coat suits, satin lined, skirts gored and trimmed with buttons. We're going to have another record day in the suit section; sale price, $14.95.

MADE USEFUL MEN.

ceremony, but it lasts as long as life. Courtship is in daylight and in plain sight of the mother of the girl. I never heard of an impure gypsy woman or girl, and only one gypsy woman among my acquaintances drank to excess. Gypsy men do not invade the homes of one another. A wife is safe with the friend of her husband. However, she has two effective weapons of defense, whether in her own wagon or abroad in the nearest town, in her hard and quickly moving fists.

"But gypsy women do lie and cheat in the matter of fortune-telling. They know that the average girl is thinking of love and so 'a dark stranger, rich and handsome,' is to come into her life. The ordinary married woman will defeat her enemies, go on a journey, or receive an important letter. In the meantime the fortune-teller, by methods of her own, is picking up neighborhood gossip that will help her when she calls at the next house. So long as 'gorgios' are willing to give away money, I fear there will be gypsies to take it."

HIDE MONEY IN THEIR WAGONS.

"When gypsies have a surplus of money, how do they dispose of it?"

"They usually hide it in their wagons. You see, they are born, they live, and they die on wheels. They are here today and gone tomorrow. But only a few of them ever have a surplus, yet no gypsy ever dies in an almshouse—his children would die themselves before they would suffer such a dishonor. All gypsies live comfortably, and some of them have pieces of fine old silver, which are passed along from one generation to another. How the silver was obtained in the first place is not for me to say."

"And do all the men steal?"

"I wouldn't use such a harsh word—pilfer, I think, would be more precise, as well as just. Gypsies do not dynamite banks or rob houses, or stop persons in the highway. You would be safe were you to pass their camp at any hour of the night. Moreover, they would regard it as an honor were you to sleep in one of their tents. They never carry pistols or other concealed weapons. But they will take small things—a bagful of potatoes to last them until they reach the next camping place; fruit from the orchards along the way; a fat chicken if it lingers too long on the road while the caravan is passing. I should watch them, too, if they came into my store and I were a merchant. Tramps, broken-down showmen, and hawkers commit many crimes which are charged to gypsies. In a word, I should say that gypsies are annoying, but not dangerous. There are 25,000 of them in Great Britain. Laws have been enacted which, if enforced, would cause them many hardships. But they are a picturesque attraction at watering places, and, on the whole, are treated with leniency."

"Your father and his two brothers also were preachers?"

NONE EVER ORDAINED.

"None of us, you know, was ever ordained. I suppose, coming right down to it, that we have done nothing more than to make religious addresses. Sermons, of course, can only be delivered by regularly appointed preachers. The death of my mother caused my father, in time, to change the whole plan of his life. He ceased to play his fiddle at public houses and have me pass my cap for pennies. Our horses were no longer turned into strange pastures at night. When we camped on a man's land we paid him rent. My father, of course, continued to work at his different trades and to travel. One day he met the wagons of Woodlock and Bartholomew, his brothers. After that they all kept together and all became Christians. They worked by day and held meetings at night. My father didn't know how to read at that time, but he learned, as did Woodlock, his elder brother. Bartholomew, however, couldn't learn, but his wife, by hard work, managed to read the Bible for him and he committed many long passages to memory.

"'The three converted gypsies,' as my father and uncles were called, held missionary meetings in many parts of England. Woodlock would talk first and outline the text. Bartholomew would quote the scriptures and tell an appropriate anecdote. Then my father would sum up and often bring tears to the eyes of the rough men before him. Meanwhile the brothers sang hymns, my father vigorously playing on his 'hallelujah fiddle.' Thus those simple old gypsies worked for many years. Finally, they were induced to leave their wagons. They built three little cottages in a row, but they built them on wheels; no other kind of foundation would do. My uncles are dead, but my father lives next to me in Cambridge, the famous university town. His hair is as black as my own. He preaches once in awhile and often says that he never asked for anything personally, except that his sons grow into good and useful men."

GOSSIP OF THE FOREIGN STAGE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—Fannie Ward, who is playing in "Fanny and the Servant Problem," Jerome's comedy at the Aldwych, has added to her bill the one-act play, "The Flag Station," by Eugene Walter. It has immensely pleased the play-goers and added to her strong attraction. Its chief importance lies in the fact that it provides Miss Ward with an opportunity of demonstrating a quite unexpected amount of versatility, calling as it does for strong emotional acting far removed from the light comedy of the part she portrays in "Fanny and the Servant Problem."

Although Christmas is still some distance away, London managers are busy with plans for the pantomimes which play so large a part in the theatrical world on this side of the Atlantic. Within a few weeks official announcements will begin to appear, and advertising will be spread broadcast over the country. At Drury Lane, the subject will be "Dick Whittington," and the cast already includes Marie George, who is a yearly fixture, and Truly Shattock, an American, new to London pantomime, but who made a very favorable impression at her two appearances in vaudeville in London earlier in the year.

At the Adelphi, Robert Courtneidge will produce "Cinderella," with such established favorites as Carrie Moore, Phyllis Dare and Dan Rolyat, and at the Lyceum, "Little Red Riding Hood" will make her bow.

London is asking itself if the quite extraordinary success of H. B. Irving's production of "The Lyons Mail" portends a popular revival of melodrama. The concensus of opinion appears to be that it does. According to some well-informed theatrical managers, London is sick of problem plays and Shavian subtleties and are "clamoring for sanguinary sensations and are ravenous for the raw beef of shocks." All this the son of Sir Henry Irving gives them in the undying romance which he is now producing at the Shaftesbury. Young Irving himself, in speaking of the production, says:

"I consider it a splendid example of that healthy, old-fashioned type of melodrama, appealing at once to the imagination and the heart, a type which very much needs recalling in these days. People may call these stirring scenes merely sensational,
they are human, and, to my min

HEREABOUTS.

W. D. HOFIUS, a steamship owner of Seattle, is a guest at the Van Nuys. His ships travel between northern points and Mexican harbors. He came here expressly on business, and with a view to establishing San Pedro on the schedule as a stopping place on the Coast trips. "If I can secure sufficient freight for the vessels, I shall certainly be delighted to have them make San Pedro a regular harbor," he stated. "Shipping in the north at the present time gives every indication of increasing rapidly, particularly in lumber, and we expect one of the best seasons in years."

Lieut.-Col. E. W. Gilbert of the British army, accompanied by his wife, is one of the late arrivals at the Lankershim. Col. Gilbert is on a journey around the world, having left his home at Ramsgate, England, in September. It is his intention to visit every country of any size in the world. "We want to see it all while we have the opportunity," he declared. The usual high compliments on scenery in the United States and climate here were offered by the English couple.

C. S. Pomeroy of the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., is one of the latest experts on grape culture to arrive in Southern California. He came direct from the East, and was met at the Hayward by Prof. A. V. Stubenrauch of the Agricultural Department of the University of Southern California. Messrs. Pomeroy and Stubenrauch will leave here tomorrow for the north.

T. J. Kennedy of San Francisco, a State Senator, with his wife, and Assemblyman and Mrs. L. Strohl, form a party of guests now at the Angelus. They came on a pleasure trip, and will remain until the middle of the week.

H. L. Hicks, manager of the Pacific Lumber Company of San Francisco, is at the Alexandria. He is accompanied by his wife. According to Mr. Hicks, the lumber situation is favorable, and with resumed building operations and large shipments from the north, lumber is once again on the advance.

C. E. Grossbeck and wife, arrived at the Alexandria from San Diego on Friday, and will remain for some time while visiting friends here. Mr. Grossbeck is manager for the San Diego Light and Power Company.

State Senator F. W. Leavitt of Oakland is registered at the Alexandria.

H. T. Griffin, accompanied by his wife and several children, and Mr. and Mrs. Max Hirsch, all of New York City, have secured apartments at the Lankershim for the coming season. Both men are owners of a number of horses which will race at the Santa Anita track this year.

Clinton A. Harrison, a well-known hotel man of Seattle, has taken permanent apartments at the Hollenbeck. Mr. Harrison was formerly proprietor of the Washington Annex Hotel of Seattle. R. H. Stevens, a dealer in fountain pens, of Syracuse, N. Y., is staying at the same hotel.

M. Dinkkelspiel and wife, who have been touring the Middle West on their wedding trip, have arrived at the Van Nuys from Grand Cañon, and have taken apartments for a stay of a week. Mr. Dinkkelspiel is an insurance broker of New Orleans.

C. F. Hayden, business manager of the Imperial Valley Press of El Centro, accompanied by his wife, is registered at the Nadeau, while looking after local interests of his paper.

H. M. Beach an employé in the service of the Canadian government, accompanied by his wife and three children, has apartments at the Lankershim.

L. F. Cockroth, general passenger agent of the Oceanic Steamship Company, registers at the Alexandria from San Francisco. He is here on a tour of inspection.

Miguel Lopez Forres, an attorney from the City of Mexico, is at the Hollenbeck while here visiting relatives. W. B. MacSherry, a pioneer Nevada mining man, who now has large interests at Pioche, is at the same hotel.

Lee Riley, advance agent of the "Land of Nod" company, which will play at the Mason in the near future, is a guest at the Hayward.

Henry J. Joey, interested in mining properties at Culiacan, Sinaloa, Mex., is registered at the Westminster.

F. J. Currier, a leather dealer of Lynn, Mass., accompanied by his wife and Miss V. M. Hastings, form a small party of tourists now at the Angelus.

Theodore Van Tyne Johnston, of New York banker and broker, has returned to the Van Nuys, after an absence of two months.

Osuke Asano, an influential subject of the Mikado, is registerted at the Alexandria, from Tokio, Japan.

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

H. K. ROWLAND of Zillah, Wash., has invented an apple cleaner, through which 400 or 500 boxes a day can be run, the fruit coming out bright and clean and sorted into five sizes. Mr. Rowland is a successful orchardist, and is raising so much fruit (4000 boxes this season) that preparing it for market has become an important question.

Finn H. Froelich and Freese & Petersen of Spokane have received the contracts for the sculptural work for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. Mr. Froelich, who will do the designing and modeling of the figures, was a pupil of the famous sculptor, Daniel C. French, and was sent to Paris by Mr. French. Mr. Froelich was a gold-medalist in the Beaux Arts of that city.

Thad Welch and H. W. Hansen, two California artists, have just closed a very successful exhibition in Chicago, with the result that most of their work has been sold.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinton P. Eastman of Spokane have started for Northern China, where they will take up their work as missionaries.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

RICHARD J. HIGGINS, 25 years old, just elected judge of the Wyandotte county, Kansas, Court of Common Pleas, is about the youngest judge of a court of record in the United States. His term is a short one, however, beginning November 9 and ending in January, 1909.

When Mr. Roosevelt goes to Africa William N. McMillan, a millionaire explorer and big game hunter, formerly of St. Louis, expects to entertain him on his big estate near Nairobi, about 300 miles from Mombassa, at which port Mr. Roosevelt will land. Mr. McMillan's wife is as famous a hunter and traveler as he is. At the head of her own caravan, Mrs. McMillan was the first white woman to cross Abyssinia from west to east. She had an audience with Negus Menelik, and received every courtesy on her travels, even from chiefs of tribes whom the negus regarded as hostile.

Frank J. Gorman, 24 years old, a reporter on a Philadelphia paper, had honors thrust upon him at the recent election. Given a three weeks' leave of absence from his paper that he might act as secretary of the Philadelphia party, a reform movement in opposition to the Republican city organization, he was nominated at the last minute for county commissioner more to fill up the ticket than with any idea of victory. When all the returns had been counted, it was found that Gorman had slipped into a job that will pay him $5000 a year for the next three years. About all a county commissioner in Pennsylvania has to do is to see that the ballots are printed correctly for each election and to have general supervision over the election officers. Three are elected in each county every three years.

Wilbur Wright, the American flying-machine inventor who has been successful in France, has received a check for $50,000, which represents the first installment of the award promised in his contract with M. Weiller. When M. Weiller informed him that he was entitled to the $100,000, Mr. Wright simply said "Thanks," and started to whistle, as usual. Mr. Wright's laconic habits have become famous at Lemans. It is quite possible that in the near future Mr. Wright will receive the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

Horace D. Taft of Watertown, Ct., youngest brother of the President-elect, was asked to become candidate for Representative to the General Assembly. Before he knew it he was nominated by the Republican caucus, but refused the honor, saying: "Brother Bill is getting all the political glory the Taft family can stand; my job is to stay here and teach Bill's boy, and I'm going to do it." Mr. Taft is headmaster of the Taft School, where young "Charlie" Taft is studying for college.

Frank E. McCabe, an inspector for the Pintsch Gas Company at Denver, has one of the most valuable stamp collections in the United States, and is the undisputed owner of the most valuable collection of Indian stamps in the Western Hemisphere. Mr. McCabe lives in a little 10x12 room in a corrugated iron shanty furnished by the Pintsch Gas Company between the railroad tracks at Denver, and when he is not at work filling gas tanks on the cars he is working over his stamp collection. He is one of the country's experts regarding the genuineness and value of disputed stamps.

OVER THE SEA.

PROF. SCHIAPARELLI, the head of the Italian expedition in Egypt, is making headway in his investigations of the necropolis of Azini. Some 200 Egyptians are at work and a great number of funeral objects are being constantly brought to light, besides many inscriptions which are of great interest in connection with the early Egyptian history. In each burying place the explorers have found an effigy of the defunct carved in wood.

Nearly all the queens of Europe are constant smokers. The Dowager Empress of Russia smokes an enormous number of cigarettes every day, but her sister, Queen Alexandra, has never been known to smoke even one. This may have come from having, as it were, grown up under the eye of Queen Victoria, who was the last woman in the world to countenance such a habit. The Czarina, previous to her marriage, had never smoked, but it is not surprising that she took up the habit, for, if any one needs something soothing to the nerves, it must be she.

The Khedive of Egypt, whose great fad is locomotive driving, had a narrow escape the other day while running an engine on the state railway. He suddenly found his way blocked by a wagon loaded with pig iron. The royal engineer showed wonderful presence of mind. He reversed and used his full brake power and stopped just short of the obstruction.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

MISS FLORENCE HAYWOOD of Indianapolis has installed herself in Paris as a guide to the Louvre. She conducts through the galleries and museum parties, which vary in number from sixteen to sixty, and which usually are made up of her compatriots. She is as original and animated as learned and critical. She lectures on the Louvre's artistic treasures to her personally conducted patrons, and insists that her illuminating remarks are delivered in the "American tongue," refusing persistently to speak of the "English language."

England has now a "Lady Mayor" in the person of Miss J. F. Dove, principal of Wycombe Abbey School, who has accepted the nomination tendered her by the Buckinghamshire borough of High Wycombe. Miss Dove has always advocated the presence of women on the different local government bodies, and when Parliament last year threw town councils open she was returned at the head of the poll for the ward in which her important educational enterprise is situated.

Miss Ruth Durant Evans of South Carolina will receive her degree from the Chattanooga University of Law early in June, and a few days later her license to practice at the Chattanooga bar. She is reported to stand at the head of a class of 150, although the only girl in the class.

Miss Magdalen Tuck, the famous woman naturalist, has been in many strange places in her quest for knowledge at first hand. She specializes on sea birds, and, as might be expected, has had hundreds of narrow escapes from injury, if not death. Miss Tuck thinks nothing of having herself lowered over the edge of a cliff and swinging at the end of a fifty-foot rope to make snapshots of gulls' nests. She has hunted eggs in places to which men have hesitated to go, yet she is such a clever cliff climber that not once has she been hurt. In spite of her daring she is essentially feminine.

Miss Clara M. Howard, instructor in rhetoric and composition at Wellesley College, has been appointed to the international fellowship founded by the Society of American Women in London. She is the first student selected by the society, and will enter Girton College for a year's post-graduate course.

Miss Jeannette L. Gilder, editor of The Critic for twenty-six years, and for two years past a staff contributor of Putnam's Monthly, has recently had an operation performed on her right eye, by which it is expected the impaired vision will be restored.

EDUCATORS, AUTHORS.

DR. JOHN F. HAYFORD, member of the International Boundary Commission of the United States and Mexico, and a well-known engineer, will be the dean of the new Northwestern University Engineering School, now being built at Evanston, Ill. The new dean is a graduate of Cornell University of the class of '89.

Dr. Charles L. Shadwell of Oriel College, Oxford University, England, was in Washington last week and discussed with President Roosevelt the Romanes lecture which the President will deliver at Oxford in May, 1910, on his return from his African hunting trip.

Prof. David Gordon Lyon, Hollis professor of divinity and curator of the Semitic Museum at Harvard University, who has returned from an archeological expedition to Samaria, reports the finding of specimens of Greek and Roman pottery in what is supposed to be a temple erected by Herod the Great. The site where the discoveries were made is near the modern village of Sebastiyeh, and is marked by a cluster of standing columns. The results of the summer campaign are regarded as gratifying.

Prof. A. Lawrence Lowell, who is being talked about as the successor of President Eliot of Harvard, is very much in favor of athletics and competitions of all kinds in colleges. He was himself a formidable mile runner thirty odd years ago.

Prof. E. D. Adams, head of the Stanford history department, has been invited to deliver next summer, the Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history at Johns Hopkins University. These lectures were founded by Albert Shaw, editor of the Review of Reviews, and are an annual event. Prof. Adams will deliver ten lectures in all, taking for his subject the general topic, "English and American Relations During the Period 1840-46." He will use the official records of the English government as his authorities. While in London last year Prof. Adams made a special study of this period.

Dr. Max Verworn, professor of physiology and director of the physiological institute of the University of Gottingen, has been appointed Kaiser Wilhelm professor at Columbia University for the year 1908-09.

Erwin Clarkson Garrett, writer of army verse of the Rudyard Kipling sort, is in Kansas City on his way to his home in Philadelphia, after a trip around the world. He was with the regulars in the Philippines in 1899 and on his return to this country he enrolled at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was graduated in 1906.

Prof. Edmund Heller of the State University has been tendered the position of assistant zoölogist and taxidermist with the Roosevelt party in Africa. Prof. Heller is now acting curator of mammals and assistant in vertebrate zoölogy in the Alexander Zoölogical Museum, a gift of Miss Anna Alexander of Oakland, who a year ago made a donation of $50,000 for its equipment and maintenance. This has since been supplemented by other donations. Miss Alexander has borne all the expenses of Heller's recent trip to Alaska in search of specimens to add to the museum.

William H. MacElroy of Warwick, N. Y., has an unusual record as a teacher. He began teaching when 16 years old and has taught school for ninety-nine terms, missing only one term in fifty years, and that only because of an attack of rheumatism. Mr. MacElroy was a notable figure at a recent teachers' institute held in his home town.

Miss Agnes Deans Cameron, a well-known Chicago writer and club woman, who left in April for a tour of Alaska and the Arctic regions, has returned after a six months' trip through the basins of the Mackenzie and Peace Rivers. She was accompanied north by her niece, Miss Jessie Cameron Brown, in the capacity of a companion, secretary and stenographer. Miss Cameron has the distinction of being the first white woman to penetrate many of the places she visited.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

CORP. ROY F. COX of the Signal Corps has been recommended for a certificate of honor because of his heroic action in saving the life of a woodchopper, whose feet had been frozen in Alaska. The certificate carries with it an increase of $2 a month from the date of the meritorious performance. The recommendation was made by Capt. Alfred T. Clifton at Fort Gibbon, Alaska.

Rear-Admiral Alfred Reynolds Canden, who was placed on the retired list on his 62nd birthday, will probably continue as president of the Special Board of Ordnance for the navy. He has done much, personally, to develop the American high-powered naval gun.

Lieut.-Col. George H. Torney is to become Surgeon-General of the army in January, according to a Washington dispatch, on the retirement of the present Surgeon-General. Col. William C. Gorgas would be first in line for the promotion, but he is understood to prefer to retain his connection with the Panama Canal work.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

COUNT JOHANA HEINRICH VON BIRNSTORFF is to be transferred from the Egyptian mission to Washington, as successor to the late Baron Speck von Sternberg. Countess Von Birnstorff is a daughter of the late Edward Luckemeyer of New York. Count Von Birnstorff has been a member of the German diplomatic service since 1899, when he became an attaché at Constantinople, and has risen through the different grades, serving in Berlin, Belgrade, Dresden, St. Petersburg, Munich, London and Cairo.

William Campbell, who has just been raised by King Edward to the bench of the Court of Sessions, or Supreme Court of Scotland, with the title of Lord Skerrington, enjoys the distinction of being the first Roman Catholic to be nominated to the Supreme Court of Scotland since the days of the Reformation. Although he is one of the most distinguished lawyers of the Scottish bar and was selected for preferment by reason of his eminence in the profession, yet he was obliged to submit to the customary probation, which, dating from ancient times, survives nowhere else than in Scotland, so as to satisfy the bench and bar of his fitness for the office before being invested therewith.

President Roosevelt has recently given a sitting to Charles Ayer Whipple, a New York City artist, who is at work on an oil painting of the President for the rooms of the New York Republican Club. The portrait will be a three-quarter length picture.

Sir Rennell Rodd, who, with Lady Rodd, is a guest of Postmaster-General Meyer, at Washington, has recently been appointed to the post of British Ambassador at Rome, with a salary of $40,000 a year. Sir Rennell is considered one of the most brilliant members of the British diplomatic service and a poet and author of unusual merit.

When Smoking Was Compulsory.

There was a period in English history when juvenile smoking was enforced officially. The diarist Hearne, in writing of the plague of London, in 1665, says: "Even children were obliged to smoak. And I remember that I heard formerly Tom Rogers, who was yeoman beadle, say that when he was a schoolboy at Eton that year when the plague raged all the boys of the school were obliged to smoak in the school every morning and that he was never whipped so much in his life as he was one morning for not smoaking."

INSURANCE WORLD.

The month of October was a hard one for insurance companies, the losses adding up to the unusually heavy aggregate of $22,722,850, or over $9,000,000 more than was credited against the same month last year, which was $13,350,250. The excessive losses of October are in a measure attributable to the dry season, the losses among lumber and kindred risks, which are susceptible under such conditions, forming an important part of the month's fire waste.

The total fire loss for the first ten months of 1908 was $208,758,750, as against $180,757,200 for the same period in 1907. There were during October no less than 394 fires where the loss in each instance reached or exceeded $10,000.

The Minnesota Insurance Department has been investigating the nature of the riders that are being attached to insurance policies. As a result the department has issued to companies copies of the authorized forms of riders, notifying them that no other riders or other forms may be used. The prohibited clauses in common use are the watchman, clear space, iron safe and three-fourths value clauses. The companies are required to recall from their agents any of these forms now in use, but realizing the delay necessary to accomplish this and to get out the new printed matter, the order is not made effective until January 1, 1909. After that date any companies or agents issuing a prohibited form or rider will be guilty of a gross misdemeanor and punished accordingly. The companies will be seriously handicapped by the absence of several of the prohibited clauses, which are regarded as essential to reduce the moral hazard and insure proper care on the part of the property owners.

The Tennessee Insurance Department has granted a license to the new Prudential Fire Insurance Company of Knoxville, a mutual organization which operates on the assessment, contingent premium plan. The law of the State requires that $250,000 of insurance be applied for before license is granted, and the officials show that applications have already been filed for $294,000. This will become effective now that the company is in power to issue policies.

C. W. Bibb, head of the Bibb Insurance Company of Minneapolis, has been arrested on a charge of conspiracy preferred by Des Moines parties. It is alleged that he was concerned in alleged land frauds in Iowa, which netted him about $28,000 profits.

St. Louis has an ordinance prohibiting smoking in garages, and six arrests and prosecutions were necessary to secure its observance. Each defendant was fined $25 and costs, though the fine was stayed on good behavior. This enforcement of the ordinance is considered to have removed a very serious fire hazard, and has enabled the managers of the garages to enforce rules that were violated whenever the opportunity might offer

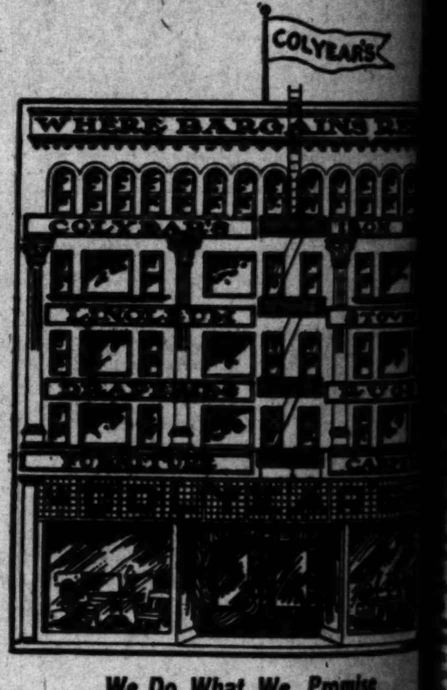
Colyear's a Power
—In the Furniture Market

We are not agents for some factory—we buy in large quantities for cash, where we can get lowest prices and largest discounts—we are in a position to offer you bargains that are real bargains—we are masters of our own business, not at the mercy of manufacturers—concerns who are themselves forced to buy on credit are in a poor position to offer bargains to others. Ready cash gets bargains for Colyear's, therefore you may always expect bargains at this store.

Credit is a great accommodation, if the concern who offers it is financially able to extend it without installment prices, interest or extra charges. At Colyear's there are no extra charges for credit.



The above, in part, accounts for the great popularity and success of this large furniture establishment.

UR EACH-AND-ALL GROUP---With the Young Folks---Letters and Stories.

discouraged and alone make probably the bitterest combination of circumstances that might come to a girl. If you know of one of these instances, go this very day and take your cheery spirits and gentle sympathy to her, and you will turn a desolate Sunday into a red-letter day for the discouraged one.

It's the little things of life that turn the tide, oft times, and make it seem worth while, and if viewed properly, they are really the big opportunities for their influence upon our own characters, and upon the recipient of our kindly acts is truly wonderful.

I invite the girls of the Each and All Society and readers of this department to write to me their manner of discharging their obligation of that part of the pledge which commends that they do something beautiful every day.

A "WOULD-BE" LETTER.

The Chairman of the Chapter Writes About the Pleasures of Being Poor.

Isn't it a joy to be poor? I don't mean to be absolutely poverty-stricken, but to be poor enough so that one has to warm over the dinner scraps and make over one's old dresses?

Such wonderful dishes can be devised from the left-overs from meals—potato salads that are twice as good as the potatoes were, and the daintiest of puddings from the wheat mush left at breakfast, which, served with a bit of fruit beside it, would make any one's mouth water.

What fun it is to serve big brother with a piece of fried bread, decorated with two slender strips of mutton steak with a slice of hard-boiled egg between them, the whole being half-covered with a spoonful of gravy—the bread, some that had become too dry even for the children's stout teeth to masticate, the mutton left from yesterday, mutton being purchased more frequently than other meats because it's cheaper, you know, the egg the one little sister brought home from school, and the gravy made from the grease left from the breakfast bacon. Big brother gazes meditatively at the conglomeration, pokes his fork under the slice of egg, stares at it with eyes that grow almost as big as saucers, and remarks, "Say, this looks good, all right, but what is it?" Then he looks up at you quickly in mock alarm: "You didn't swipe my sweater and cook it for supper, did you? It was sort of a faded brown and yellow and white. I can't do without that!" And he half rises from his chair as though to rescue the supposedly already appropriated article of apparel. You protest solemnly that it is not his sweater at all that you have fried—that you never would think of doing such a thing—but he shakes his head doubtfully and mutters that there is no telling what you won't serve next, and that he'd better be on the safe side and lock up that sweater in his tool chest. Little sister and little brother laugh until you are sure that their sides must be ready to split; poor, tired father smiles, and mother beams across the table at both her big children. Yes, it is fun to be poor.

How proud you feel when you have gotten up a really good luncheon from what seemed hopeless nothings, especially if unexpected company has come and have praised the meal you have been able to prepare from the scantiest provisions because you have done the like a hundred times before. And you have a right to feel proud, for the achievement is quite as much of a triumph as the general's who, by the sheer force of refusing to be beaten, welds a conglomeration of untrained stragglers into a disciplined, conquering army. There is the same deep, abiding joy in fighting the battles of poverty that there is in overcoming the difficulties which one must surmount in winning any goal—the joy of him that can do a thing because he must do it, and because he has done it, that does it gladly because it is the thing to be done—a joy that makes the warm, red blood pulse through your veins and lights your eyes like stars, a joy that thrills you, not for a moment and then is gone, but that sings itself down into your heart through the whole long, bright day and creeps into your dreams at night. Ah, it is good to be poor!

Would you want to be rich and sit, decked out in silks, in the parlor, and merely send out to the cook a lazily scrawled memorandum of what the first course and the second course and all the rest of the eight or ten courses are to be—or perhaps not even think out and write down the menu? Would you want to be rich? Not I!

Then the delights of fixing over old dresses—what girl would miss them?—even for half of the wealth of the world.

There's that best blue skirt of yours, which must do another winter. You made it when pleats and tucks were first coming in, and it is still sufficiently in style for that respect, since you are not one of those senseless creatures who affect the sheath in which you would look perfectly ridiculous and feel still worse, but this is a separate skirt you have, such as were fashionable to wear with different waists when you made it, and now everything is coat and skirt suits or at least jumper suits. You didn't have any cloth like it left, for you didn't have enough money to buy more than you actually needed, and you cannot match it at the stores now, besides not having the change to spare if you could.

But you must have and will have a jumper suit out of that old blue skirt. Then, as the oft-pictured clown is wont to exclaim, "Like a flash—an idea!" You recollect that you cut the skirt too long when you made it and, instead of taking off the extra length, you had turned it up. Joyously you rip out the hem, cut the strip off, lay it out in the sun to fade a shade lighter, and face up and bind your skirt—it had begun to need binding, anyway. Out of the strip you cut off, a little satin you had left of something, sometime, and some good bits of old lace, you create a bewitching jumper. To be sure, it is pieced in two dozen places, but the seams correspond on both sides and are covered with narrow bands of satin that everyone will suppose put on purposely for ornamentation.

And you look well in the suit. Little sister and little brother exclaim "My!" Big brother calls you "O. K." Father says he has fallen in love with you because he cannot help it. Mother pats your cheek and whispers that one of these times when you wear the "new" suit, Theodore will say what has been ready to slip from his lips this long while.

A flush creeps into your face, for you love this fine young fellow, Theodore. Somehow you are very glad that you are not rich and that this suit is not one of the latest models, right out of the store, for Theodore hasn't a great deal of this world's wealth, although he is rich in his splendid strength, his fine character and his high ambitions. If your suit were one of the high-priced, jaunty ones that you, if you had had money freely at your disposal, would have bought or would have had your French modiste make, somehow it would raise a little barrier between you and Theodore—he would rather feel that you belonged in a scale above him and that he had no right to ask you to share his lot and do without the expensive clothes that he could not afford to buy for you, and so, with a sigh and a heartache, he would smother the words that you are longing to hear him speak. Yes, you are glad that the dress is the old one made over.

Theodore will notice that you are just as stylishly dressed as the other young women, and look just as nice, and yet he will know that you, in some miraculous manner that he cannot fathom, have remodeled the costume, and that every stitch in it has been taken by your own hand. He will admire your genius, and every seam and band and button will be beautiful to him and, you yourself will be twice as sweet and dear to him, as you ever could have been in a real Parisian gown. It will come to him with irresistible force, what he has already known, that you are the only girl for him of all the girls in the whole wide world, that he has a right to ask you to share his pittance because your quick brain and deft hand can make wealth from his poverty, and that he must not wait longer to claim you for his own.

One of these evenings when he stands with you at the steps of your humble home to bid you good night, and he looks up at you, transfigured in that old blue dress in the silvery moonlight, the torrent of his adoration will break its bonds, and as he takes you in his arms and kisses you reverently, your head will sink upon his shoulder, and, looking down through all the years of life and to eternity, you will answer his question softly, "Yes."

After a while, when you have gone to your room, in a tumult of joy that this man whom you love should love you; awed, too, that a love so deep, from so noble a heart, should be for you, just you, you will slip to your knees by the bedside where you have knelt every night since you could lisp a prayer, and, clasping your ringless hand over the little gold band on the other, you will utter words of deep thanksgiving: "Oh, God, I thank Thee for being poor." Tears will spring to your eyes, your head will sink upon your hands, above the ring, and with a sob you will repeat the words, "Oh God, I thank Thee, I thank Thee, for being poor."

Would that all of us were poor. Not abjectly poverty-stricken, not so poor that we did not have anything at all to eat or anything at all to wear, not sick and friendless and alone—men and women who have human hearts ought never to allow any one to be as poor as that—but that none of us should be so rich that we would have more than we could eat or more than we could wear or more friends than we, wearied, know how to get rid of—would that all of us were just comfortably, delightfully, strengtheningly poor. How much better and brighter the world would be.

EACH AND ALL MOTTO.

Golden thoughts, golden deeds,
Rid life's garden of its weeds.

OUR PLEDGE:

"To make one another happy, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings, and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

The acceptance of this pledge and sending of name and address to the Each and All department of The Times entitles any girl to the privileges of this society. There are no dues of any kind whatsoever. The official pin of The Times Each and All Society, represents the California poppy. Any chapter may be joined by sending stamped envelope with letter in order to put the applicant in communication with the chairman of the chapter.

The Fancy Workers.

The Fancy Work Chapter is making plans for the coming weeks, which should interest all lovers of fancy work. Many are commencing pieces of work for Christmas, which they are willing to teach to another, and in turn learn a new piece which they have not had the opportunity to learn elsewhere. Let all interested meet with the chapter this week, and bring with them new ideas, and fresh inspiration.

This chapter is preparing Thanksgiving baskets, but the members need help. Any one reading the page may help by sending money for this purpose, so that there may be as many baskets as possible, to send good cheer into as many homes, making their world a little brighter place to dwell in.

Invalid Cheer Report.

The regular meeting of the Invalid Cheer Chapter was held at the home of Mrs. S. Ward with a good attendance. The afternoon was devoted to sewing and the discussing of the chapter's work. After the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess. For the benefit of applicants for membership to this chapter it may be said that the chapter will be pleased to welcome you at our next meeting.

We wish donations of small useful articles for our wonder bags for Christmas. All such will be thankfully received.

Each a Part of All.

Slowly through all the universe that temple of God is being built. Wherever, in any world, a soul, by free-willed obedience, catches the fire of God's likeness, it is set into the growing walls, a living stone. When, in your hard fight, in your tiresome drudgery or in your terrible temptation, you catch the purpose of your being, and give yourself to God, and so give Him the chance to give Himself to you, your life, a living stone, is taken up and set into that growing wall. Wherever souls are being tried and ripened, in whatever commonplace and homely ways, there God is hewing out the pillars for His temple. Oh, if the stone can only have some vision of the temple of which it is to be a part forever, what patience must fill it as it feels the blows of the hammer, and knows that success for it is simply to let itself be wrought into what shape the Master wills.—[Selected.

Our Best Letter.

Five little earnest workers to whom the pledge of the Each and All Society appeals, send in their letter of application:

We who sign this letter, asking to be admitted to the Each and All Society, have formed a Junior Chapter this afternoon. We want to help the poor little children in some way.

We have chosen a name and would like to call ourselves the Carletta Juniors of the Each and All Society, because that is the first name of our sponsor or leader, and we think it a pretty name.

We have chosen a chairman and a secretary. We hope to show you how well we can try to live up to the pledge by helping little children.

We are to meet every Monday afternoon at 3:30 and work until 5:30. Our meetings will be held at No. 1764 West Twenty-second street.

Next week we will send you a report of work we intend to do. Yours truly,

LAURA LONG,
Secretary.
CECILE GREPPIN,
Chairman.
LUCILE WOODS,
MARIAN LONG,
GLADYS POST.

Bless your dear little hearts, you are as welcome as the flowers of spring. These fresh young blossoms scattered in our Each and All garden of girls, are just what we need, and we are most happy to welcome them.

Book for the Readers.

K. S. F. recommends "The Simple Life" for the perusal of members of the Readers' Chapter.

Dear Girls: I have just been re-reading Pastor Wagner's little classic, "The Simple Life," and to me it is such a veritable handbook of the Each and All spirit, that I cannot refrain from calling attention to it and wishing I might place a copy in the hands of those who have not yet feasted upon it.

The local and correspondence Reader Chapter will do well to add it to their lists. Would-be Authors will profit from the dissertations on "Simplicity of Thought," "Simplicity of Speech," while mothers and housewives generally will gain insight from "Simple Duty," Simple Needs," "Simple Pleasures" and "The Life of the Home." In short, all will be benefited by a perusal of these timely essays, for we are learning that real efficiency rests more securely upon a measure of simplicity than in spurts of strenuousness.

I have wondered if a magazine exchange among local readers would be practicable for home work, and have thought of a plan which I may send in later, if desired.

Indeed, very girl of the Each and All Society will find something applicable to her own needs in the reading of Wagner's classic "The Simple Life," and new beauties will be revealed, no matter how often it is read. It should by all means have a place upon the list of books of the Readers' Chapter. That plan for the exchange of magazines should prove a capital one. Let us hear of it.

A Tonic.

M. W. sends the following as a tonic to Would-be writers:

Perhaps we are outgrowing the belief that bitter medicine—or any kind of medicine—is good for us, but still we writer girls might not be hurt by taking the following bitter dose, offered by the Editor: " 'It's too hard,' you say, 'and you're tired and sick of it all.' Why, you're a shirker and a coward. If you're weary of it all, your perspective of life is distorted; you shrink and you fear. It is hard, but that's what makes it worth while. It's the task that makes the reward. The prize is worth the struggle."

Another tonic, prescribed by the same literary physician, which may be taken with the foregoing medicine, is this: "We know a man whose literary gravestone reads: 'He wrote a story and because it would not sell, he lost hope.' Why, we—and you—have written a hundred stories and had that hundred refused a thousand times! But we have not lost hope. We know we can write. No editor, nor no crowd of editors, can make us believe anything else. And we'll keep on till the world knows we can write." Take liberally of both tonics every day, and see if they will not strengthen and exhilarate you.

Perseverance must be a characteristic of a Would-be Author. If you haven't it naturally, it must be acquired. If you keep on working toward your goal you will assuredly gain it in the end.

To the Walking Girls.

There have been so many calls for a renewal of our walks that it behooves me to say something upon this subject. It is not because we have lost interest in our walks, but rather that we have been busy in other lines that our delightful jaunts have not been resumed long ago. To the new members who have asked admission in this particular chapter, I would say, why not join in one of our many other chapters, or, in all of them, if you have the time. I only wish I had the time to take an active part in every chapter.

As the Christmas holidays draw near, no doubt we have all counted our friends, to know just how many gifts we want to make, so that not one is forgotten. In doing this we can but think of the many who are less fortunate, and if we all join hands, will we not be the happier by making some one else happy? Each chapter is doing good in its own way. Let us be helpers, not leaners, and finally when we have made a few hearts happy and know we have accomplished something our reward will be our first walk, and a day in the woods, with an invitation extended to all the chapters to join with us, and have a day of rejoicing because we have done some good in our society. I would be pleased to hear from any or all of the girls, members or prospective members, of the Walking Chapter.

MOSBY.

The address of the above writer will be furnished upon request to this department, accompanied by a stamped envelope. The Walking Chapter has always been one of the most popular branches of the Each and All Society. The prospect of the resumption of this delightful exercise, will be glad tidings to scores of our Each and All girls.

A Little Sermon.

"Star," one of our consistent contributors, gives the Each and All girls a bit of good advice.

How often in our anxiety to accomplish many things we try to do too many at once, and how often, too, we find ourselves disappointed with the little we have accomplished for that reason. We have only one time, that is today.

We oft times find to our sorrow that while we concentrated our minds and dreamed of the golden tomorrow we failed to do well the duties of today. Let us live in the present with our heart and mind and duties of the present, doing to the best of our ability the duty, whether simple or difficult, that lies just before us. He who lives in the past amid its joys and sorrows is unfitted for the duties of the present. He who lives in the future amid dreams and air castles is also unfitted for the present. Today needs our best effort, our greatest energy and our entire heart and mind in every duty to bring us to the gateway of success and happiness.

The past lies dead behind us; the future is veiled before us, and only the present is ours. Ours in which to live and work; ours in which to bring out the best and highest within us, and it is never accomplished by dividing our heart and interest in to the future or the past.

"Let the dead past bury its dead," and

"Build today, then strong and sure,
With a firm and ample base,
And ascending and secure
Shall tomorrow find its place," are two selections from our own immortal Longfellow, which aptly fit Star's little sermon.

Verses Wanted.

A Would-Be Author asks her sisters to make verse day an event in our department.

I am sure that every member of the Would-Be Authors unites with me in thanking our editor for her promise, at the request of Mrs. M. H. C., of Santa Monica, to give part of the Each and All space, on November 29, to the poets of our society. I hope that every verse writer will show her appreciation by contributing. Will not the semi-professional poets of Each and All who are beyond us Would-Bes, and those who contribute poems to the big magazines, consent to give of their beautiful and brilliantly polished gems of thought, as well as we lesser rhymsters of our diamonds in the rough?

There ought to be a score of contributions for poets' day. Can't we have that many? Let us show our appreciation of the special privilege which our editor has so generously allowed us, by making the most generous use of it. We shall want to ask other favors of her—we shall want another poets' day in a couple of months, and a story-writers' day later on—and how can we hope that she will grant further petitions if we do not respond heartily now? So let all of us who can make "try" rhyme with "I" send in a poem—and those of us who cannot make two words rhyme, can send in blank verse.

There is scarcely a member of Each and All Society who may not contribute to verse day success through lack of ability.

Colman's Mustard No. 8.

As its dietetic value and digestive properties become better known, Colman's Mustard is being used with ALL kinds of fish, flesh and fowl, and not alone with beef and pork.

It is largely a matter of habit to use Mustard with some meats and not with others. The flavour of mutton, for instance, is improved by Mustard, while the digestive properties of Mustard apply to all kinds of viands.

A Boy's First Battle.

Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, eldest son of the great Civil War commander, recently described to a reporter of the Philadelphia Record his own "first battle." He had left Memphis, where his mother and the children were, to join his father.

"I left her, and found father on a gunboat in the Mississippi River. We slept on the deck. One morning he was missing, and Gen. Lorenzo Thomas told me he had gone to Port Gibson. I was to remain where I was until he came back. Gen. Thomas was pale and looked worried. Every little while we would hear the firing of cannon.

"Some troops were being formed on the bank to march away to battle, and a rabbit ran along the line between them and the river. I asked Gen. Thomas to let me go ashore and catch the rabbit. The rabbit had disappeared, of course; but I got on land. Disobeying orders, I started for Port Gibson, some seventeen miles distant. Having no horse, I walked.

"In the afternoon I met a battery that was getting ready to go into action. I stopped for a while, but artillery fire didn't interest me very much. Several regiments of infantry were fighting in the low ground below, however, and I went to them.

"Presently the climax of the battle occurred. I saw our troops rush forward, and I knew the enemy had given way. Night came on, and I walked among our men in the moonlight. I followed four soldiers who were carrying a dead man in a blanket.

"Soon I was at a little schoolhouse that had been turned into a hospital. Surgeons were tossing amputated arms and legs out of the windows. The yard of the schoolhouse was filled with wounded and groaning men, who were waiting for the surgeons. I picked my way among them to the side of the road and sat on the roots of a tree. I was hungry, thirsty and worn out, and, worse than all, I didn't know whether my father was living or dead.

"No boy was ever more utterly wretched. I had seen my first battle. Then an orderly, who had been carrying messages for my father, rode up. He took off his saddle and gave it to me for a pillow, and covered me with his saddle cloth. In a short time he returned and took me to father, whom I found sitting on a camp stool back of the schoolhouse drinking a tin cup of hot coffee. I expected to get a sharp reproof for my disobedience.

" 'How did you get here?' he asked.

" 'I walked.'

"He looked at me for a moment, and then said: 'I guess you will do.' And there was no anger in his face. Maybe I was mistaken, but I half believed he was not sorry that I left the gunboat.

"The next day I was given 'an enormous horse, grown white from age,' as my father says in his memoirs, and rode back to the gunboat. Charles A. Dana, then an officer of the War Department, and afterward editor of the New York Sun, riding a raw-boned mate of my horse, went along with me."—[Unidentified.

A Wonderful Cat.

The most wonderful cat in the world, according to its owner, is Niggerface, whose home is at No. 138 Central avenue, Everett, Mass., and whose owner is Mrs. Eva Landry.

Niggerface is certainly a monster for a cat, for he weighs nearly thirty pounds. He is 37 inches long, 20 inches high and 12 inches broad. He is a white cat, with a coal-black blanket, the black extending over his face and tail. He is a handsome cat in appearance, with the silkiest and softest of fur.

Niggerface is very particular about his food, eating nothing but the best of meat and cream, and he will not eat at all on all four feet, but insists on standing by his mistress's side and taking his food from her hand.

This cat, which is said to be the largest cat in New England, is of black Australian breed. Mrs. Landry bought him five years ago while she was in Australia on a traveling tour. His Australian owners feared he would not live in this climate, but if one may judge from his appearance New England certainly agrees with Niggerface.

It is amusing to see the cat "talk" with his mistress. He understands that the shake of the head means no and that a nod and a wink of the eyes means yes, and he will answer questions by these emotions. He will give his paw when greeting friends, and when he likes the taste of anything very much he will wink both eyes and smack his lips in the most appreciative and amusing way.

This cat is as reliable as a watch dog, and never fails to arouse the house if he scents the least disturbance. Mrs. Landry thinks him more intelligent than a dog, and believes that if taught properly kittens may learn wonderful tricks.

Bert Brooks.
Ready for a punt.

The Little Football Player.

The name of the tiny football player, whose picture was snapped just as he was ready for a punt, is Bert Brooks, 18 months old, and the youngest football player in Los Angeles. He is the baby son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brooks, No. 904 West Thirty-fifth street. Bert is the pet of his neighborhood, and lives out of doors all day long. The little fellow was very ill with pneumonia last spring, and his young life was almost despaired of. That is why the neighbors are so interested and love little Bert so well now that health and strength has come to him. He plays football every day with his two brothers, Horace and Rochelle.

LADIES—
LADIES. LADIES.
WITH SUPERFLUOUS HAIR ON THE FACE, ARMS, HANDS, NECK, EYEBROWS AND BUST.
We make a specialty of removing superfluous hair, moles, warts, birth marks and guarantee our work absolutely.
REMEMBER—We use the latest scientific FIVE NEEDLE method so extensively used in the East, and remove 250 to 300 hairs per hour, while no operator using only one needle can remove over 60 per hour and do good work. We have tried it for years.
REMEMBER—We guarantee to kill every hair we treat, and should any return we will gladly remove them FREE OF CHARGE and thank you for the privilege of doing so. Try it; it's your only hope.
REMEMBER—The same number of hairs we remove, costing you $10, would cost you $25 elsewhere. One treatment will convince you how quickly we do it. NO PAIN, NO SCARS—this we guarantee.
REMEMBER—Your face is getting worse daily. Pulling, cutting and depilatories only increase the growth. A talk with us will do no harm. Consultation free.

PROF. W. E. KING,
the prophet and adviser of the hour, acknowledged to have no equal. The benefactor of humanity, giving instant relief to those who have trouble in law or business; all can find instant relief and permanent help by consulting him. Ye olden prophets in olden times, from whence did this man come? Professional men and women are awe-stricken. The public in general are dumfounded, speechless, some say miraculous. Had he been born in the time of superstition his work would have been classed little less than miracles. If you are in doubt regarding any affair of life, seek his aid at once.

PROF. W. E. KING, Los Angeles' celebrated psychic, is permanently located here. His honesty, test of time and 33 years' continuous practice as a psychic have proved beyond all doubt that PROF. W. E. KING is the leader of his profession.

EXTRAORDINARY CLEAR SEEING power, combined with his superior knowledge of occult force, enables him to read human life with unerring accuracy from infancy to old age; his powers are wonderful and indisputable; his advice is reliable, his information clear, concise and to the point; who is true and who is false; will tell you every hope, fear, ambition, better, than you could tell it yourself; those that are unsuccessful are made prosperous and started on the road to wealth, health, happiness and capacity to earn wealth; how to accumulate a fortune and be happy.

W. E. KING IS PERMANENTLY LOCATED. ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE.
LEARN WHAT IS BEFORE YOU.
Business, changes, journeys, transactions, lawsuits, contested wills, life insurance, damage suits, deeds, mortgages, claims, collections, adventures, and all financial difficulties. Truly predicts the success or failure of new inventions, patents, pending pension claims, etc.; tells whether you will receive fair dealings with partners. If you care to know what business you shall follow to be successful, where you shall go and whom to avoid; if you intend to make any changes or to start a business, and all human affairs advised upon with unerring accuracy.
PROF. W. E. KING tells all—never asks a question.

Call and he will guide you with certainty higher than human power; tells you the truth, good or bad.

IF YOU ARE GOING TO SEE A PSYCHIC WHY NOT SEE THE BEST?
As the best is always the cheapest in the end. Better consult no psychic at all than one who is unable to help you, as false prophets do more harm than good, as they leave you in a worse condition than before by their false advice, based upon guesses; but PROF. W. E. KING has an established reputation; testimonials and credentials from thousands of your own citizens and friends.

His revelations are most wonderful and acknowledged to be of the highest order, not made to satisfy idle curiosity, but intended to give those who seek the truth a permanent benefit. He does not cater to the superstitions of the ignorant, credulous people. If you are in doubt that he can and will perform all he claims, feel yourself invited to call, and he will give you a more substantial proof of his marvelous power than you have before received from mortal.

Known from ocean to ocean, gulf to gulf, the marvel of two hemispheres, many seek the advice of their confidential friends, follow their advice, and reap unfortunate losses. In ancient days rulers of kingdoms dispatched for their advisers, their prophets, to know the work before them, to guide them in their governments, whether to prepare for war or to make peace. Has this power vanished from humanity? No. It still exists, as in ancient times, but possessed by few.

SUCCESS, WEALTH AND HAPPINESS pointed out to all. The grand results obtained by those who have consulted W. E. King is positive proof of his superior power to reveal the mysteries of the future. When truth is revealed, as it always is when they consult the peer of all life readers, the universal expression is, I am satisfied and happy since I consulted W. E. King.

Recommended by a New York Judge: August 20, 1905—I cheerfully recommend Prof. King as a gifted psychic. He predicted my election. JUDGE F. B. CROWELL, Supreme Judge.

FROM LILLIAN RUSSELL, THE WELL-KNOWN ACTRESS.
I was greatly impressed with PROF. W. E. KING'S reading. His powers are truly marvelous. He develops in one a force that enables them to attract people, to interest them and to please them to their good and to your advantage without the least effort on one's part. His advice and assistance have been of great benefit to me.

FROM A PROMINENT MINISTER.
I desire to bear evidence to the genuineness of PROF. W. E. KING'S work. God gives to us an intuition whereby we may guide our lives. That PROF. W. E. KING possesses this guiding power to a marvelous degree is evident. The fact that his clients are his warmest and truest friends is alone a tribute to his sincerity and honest methods in dealing with all. He has rendered me immeasureable assistance. Rev. W. C. Jessup.

FROM M. ROTHSCHILD, THE WELL-KNOWN FINANCIER.
For the past five years PROF. W. E. KING'S advice and assistance have favorably influenced my business and financial affairs. I have tested nearly every psychic in this country and find PROF. W. E. KING'S advice reliable and far superior to any that I have ever met.

PROF. W. E. KING: I wish to give my testimonial for the benefit of those who wish to read it. Since I consulted you several weeks ago I have followed your advice and the instructions you gave me as nearly as I possibly could, and I can truly say the result has been marvelous. I shall consider it a privilege to recommend you to any person who will take the trouble to write to me. Yours truly,
Maurice Winkler, 3823 State St., New York.

To Whom It May Concern: We take great pleasure in recommending our brother, PROF. W. E. KING, as a psychic of good standing, having to our knowledge been fully developed in all the various phases of mental psychicship. We cordially recommend him to any individual or society that may need his services.
Dr. John Westerfield,
President Indiana State Association of Spiritualists.

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE
EXPERT ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST.
A resident of Los Angeles 25 years, and whose work is known throughout this entire land has made a life study of ASTROLOGY AND PALMISTRY, convincing hundreds of the BEST INTELLECTS and persons in all walks of life that his REMARKABLE READINGS and PREDICTIONS for future events in their lives are UNPARALLELED.
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S scientific readings have nothing in common whatever with the fictitious readings of HUMBUG readers.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The HOROSCOPE shows diseases, tells all about love, whom to marry and when, describing the marriage partner; shows deaths, divorce; tells about children; speculations, the best time to invest or to push affairs, and when to hold on to what has been gained; your talents; your environment; when and where to travel; what to seek and what to avoid; when in danger of illness, accidents, death, losses, troubles; also your good periods, coming—giving dates of these events for the future.
BENJAMIN FRANKLIN was an expert astrologer; SIR ISAAC NEWTON and the famous astronomer KEPLER practiced astrology; PROF. GARNETT, the great English scholar and Librarian of the British Museum, wrote some of our best works on astrology.
PROF. ALTHOUSE is an expert PALMIST, and WITH EACH PALM READING GIVES ALSO AN ASTROLOGICAL READING.
PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Louis James, Paul de Longpre, Admiral Schley, Senator Clark, ex-Gov. Pardee, David Starr Jordan, Gen. Chaffee, Baron Rothschild, Joaquin Miller, Ysaye, Sousa, Edison, Capt. Hobson, Caruso, Josef Hoffman, Huntington, Lillian Nordica, Calve, Julia Marlowe, Modjeska, Sembrich, Jefferson, Lillian Russell, Nat Goodwin, Maxine Elliott, Fritzi Scheff, etc. This indicates the class of people being read by Prof. Althouse, together with hundreds of the very best people of Los Angeles.
FREDERICK WARDE says: "Your reading was most SATISFACTORY. Your knowledge and skill is REMARKABLE."
MME. SCHUMANN-HEINK says: "I was greatly surprised to find how many of your warnings—from the HOROSCOPE AND HAND—were well founded. YOUR READING WAS MOST MARVELOUS."
MME. BALDWIN writes: "The Horoscope you wrote for me is absolutely CORRECT. My friend, MME. NORDICA, the singer, first showed me her Horoscope, and recommended your work to me. Inclosed find check for four more Horoscopes—all friends of mine."
PAPINTA, actress, writes and says: "Everything has turned out just as you predicted, when reading my hand and Horoscope. YOU ARE WONDERFUL, and I cannot express myself of what I think about your WONDERFUL TRUE READINGS."
PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of horoscopes and hand reading has brought him a large and successful practice. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances.

KARMA
is famous in two hemispheres for her accurately correct reading of human life from cradle to grave.

KARMA
FROM INDIA stands alone in her magnificent power of reading the future of human kind.
Born with a double veil.
Educated in the Occult,
Mystery and Hindoo
Philosophy in India and Egypt.
KARMA gives you important dates, facts and figures;
tells you of loved ones, living or dead;
YOUR SECRET TROUBLES, the cause and remedy—
in fact, tells you everything, gives infallible advice on all affairs of life, including business, law, health, changes, travel, patents, financial troubles.

KARMA IS NOT A PSYCHIC FROM CHOICE, BUT BECAUSE FATE
HAS SO DECREED IT.
HER ANCESTORS WERE POWERFUL PRIESTS AND PHILOSOPHERS, AND HAVE FOR AGES HANDED DOWN
THEIR WONDERFUL POWER
OR GIFT FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION; SO SHE HAS RECEIVED THE RICH INHERITANCE TOGETHER
WITH COMBINED KNOWLEDGE AND PRICELESS KNOWLEDGE OF GENERATIONS. NO MATTER WHAT YOUR PRESENT TROUBLE MAY BE, OR WHAT YOUR PAST EXPERIENCE HAS BEEN, YOU WILL SAVE TIME AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT BY
AT ONCE CONSULTING HER.

This occult wonder is placed in a class by herself, towering head and shoulders over every rival, and is recognized by the profession as their brightest star.

MADAM KARMA IS RECOGNIZED BY THE PRESS,
medical fraternity and scientists generally as the foremost medium in this country. Her past record and strictly honorable dealings are sufficient guarantee for her future work and have won her the good will of the press and people.

HONEST, FEARLESS AND CAPABLE.
Madam Karma fully understands the responsible position she is placed in by the remarkable gift she is endowed with, and she will try her best to help those who need help, and advise those who need advice and do all in her power to show all honest callers plainly and in forcible language how to gain happiness and prosperity.

"TRUTHFUL IN HER PREDICTIONS: RELIABLE IN HER ADVICE." No matter what troubles you may have with yourself or others, come and she will guide you. Mme. Karma advises you with a certainty, higher than human power.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (over Owl Drug Store,) by those desiring CAREFUL CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.
The earnest student and thinker will soon learn, in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.
PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.
Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health, marriage and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.
MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

NOTICE CHANGE OF ADDRESS,

BYRON STANLEY,

449½—S. SPRING ST.—449½.

To all who call this week prepared for consultation, a free test will be given, telling you the object of your visit without you uttering one word.

HIS REGULAR $1 CONSULTATION, 50c.

OLDEST ESTABLISHED PSYCHIC, BEST KNOWN PSYCHIC IN CALIFORNIA.

It is not what is said in the papers which often misleads you, it is what you hear and learn in the office. Self praise to the thinking person is often doubted. If you are in doubt about any affair, business or otherwise, go to MR. STANLEY, and for a small fee let him analyze your case and suggest the remedy. It may be the means of saving you a lot of worry and place you on the road to success and happiness. Is it not worth a trial?

HE SLIGHTS NO ONE IN HIS WORK—ALL ARE THE SAME TO HIM—AND HE BELIEVES SUCH IS THE VERDICT OF ALL WHO CONSULT HIM, AND STANDS IN A POSITION THAT NO JUST CRITICISM CAN DISTURB.

MR. STANLEY'S charge for a consultation is ample proof that he is endeavoring to place his work in a position that you will have no hesitation in saying he has told you the truth.

THE NAME STANLEY A DOUBLE GUARANTEE.

MR. STANLEY does not, nor will he, accept one penny of your money unless you are perfectly satisfied. COULD YOU ASK ANYTHING MORE FAIR? MR. STANLEY gives advice only at this office. He also wishes to state that his only reason for giving you a test is that you may be able to determine as to his ability. He is the only man in America today who is able to carry out the above mentioned test, providing you come prepared for a consultation. If he does not do as he advertises, no charge will be made. This offer is not made for idle curiosity only, but intended for those who seek the truth and a permanent benefit.

WANTED—

Every young man should find out if there is work in the navy he enjoys doing. If he is industrious and efficient, promotion will follow with increased pay.

Navy life is interesting; the vessels of the fleet furnish a great variety of employment; the incentive to get ahead, to become smart, quick and practical, is attracting thousands of young men to the service; the opportunities to master a trade appeals to all ambitious young men; the chance to see something of the world, and at the same time to save money, does not come to the average young man in civil life.

When a man is up to the navy standard of efficiency he can hold his own in his line outside the navy; the navy needs mechanics as well as seamen—electricians, machinists, firemen, carpenters, stenographers, bookkeepers, good cooks, bakers, waiters, musicians, and men for the hospital corps.

The government will train you at its own expense in one of its technical classes. Your pay begins the day you enter. The work is intended to prepare you in a short time for transfer to sea duty.

The quickest way to find out about pay, chances to save, and the requirements for enlistment, is to go to the navy recruiting station at SAN FERNANDO BLDG., 4th and Main sts., Los Angeles. If living at a distance, write the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. •

WANTED—
To Purchase, Real Estate.

WANTED—I WISH TO PURCHASE GOOD city property, or I might consider the purchase of cheap acreage under $50 per acre up to $20,000 for which I will trade my elegant large tract of 40 acres in the northwestern part of the city, close to street car line, which I purchased to subdivide into lots. I paid $25,000 cash and there is a balance of $15,000 which will not be due for nearly four years, with easy release clause when deeds to lots are required. This tract should bring its subdividers over $140,000. On account of the money stringency that set in shortly after I purchased the property, I have been compelled to use all of my ready cash and devote all of my time to other large enterprises in which I am interested, therefore, I am now open for a good honest trade on a cash basis value of $20,000 in income or cheap lands that are assured of increase value. What have you to offer that is worth the money? Address L, box 115, TIMES OFFICE. 15

WANTED—TO PURCHASE A VACANT LOT or would take a house and lot in Ocean Park, from Frazier ave. to Venice, between trolley line and ocean front; don't wait, my man is ready to do business today. FOR SALE—
This is Prosperity Week and we know you want to help boost home products, so we have chosen for a product of the West Coast Mill made right here in Los Angeles,

THIS WEEK'S SPECIAL

WEST COAST EGG FOOD.

This is just what your hens need for making eggs, another home product that is pretty scarce these days. Special price this week will be $1.25 per cwt., or 10 lbs. for 25 cents. There is no better Egg Food made, and this is your chance to get it at a very low price. Don't forget our new location, 115 W. 7th. And surely don't make a mistake and think we have the largest Poultry Supply House in the United States. Ours is not so big as that, but it is big enough to sell you all the Poultry Supplies you want of the best kinds and at the lowest prices.

WEST COAST SEED CO.,
115 W. 7th st. Phones Main 5431, Home F5281. 15

FOR SALE—
BUY AND BOOST HOME PRODUCTS.

PIONEER AUTOMOBILE EXCHANGE—
The Leading Brokers,
605-607-609 W. Seventh st.
(Opposite Postoffice.)
F5516. Main 5516.

Largest concern of this kind handling second-hand cars exclusively on the Pacific Coast. We have demonstrated our ability to sell more and make quicker sales than all other brokers combined. Why? Because we are not novices, and depend on copying other brokers' ads and methods for business; we originate and have our own ideas, and can assure you better results, as we have proven in the past our ability to make quicker sales than you can get elsewhere.

NOTICE: TO PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS. WE only handle machines that are in good running order and ready to use. No cars misrepresented in order to make sales.

MACHINES CALLED FOR AT A DISTANCE WITHOUT ANY CHARGE TO THE OWNER WHERE THEY ARE LEFT WITH US FOR SALE.

We do not depend on a small amount of storage from parties leaving car for sale, but a reasonable amount of commission without storage. We solicit patronage of cars for sale that others have failed to dispose of for you, and can assure you results that usually follow a modern and well-conducted place.

ALL CARS LEFT FOR SALE HAVE OUR PERSONAL ATTENTION, AND STORED FREE OF CHARGE.

GOVERNMENT LANDS—
And Land Scrip.

HAVE JUST RETURNED FROM A TRIP where I went to examine some government land, which is open to location. This land lies in one of the finest valleys in Southern California. No waste, every acre is tillable. Every well that has been sunk in this valley produces water, which is reached at from ten to thirty feet. Finest land for all agricultural purposes and eucalyptus growing, finest of soil and climate. Crops can be put in this fall. One railroad, fine local market, as well as one of the best shipping markets. Come in and I will show you some photographs and explain results of the trip. If you are wanting any land for a home or for ranch purposes you cannot better it in Southern California. No expense for leveling, as the land is practically level and ready for the plow when the brush is removed. Expense of developing water is small and the land with water on it will be worth from $50 to $100 per acre. Best investment for a home in California. 308 CHAMBER OF COMMERCE. 'Phone A8056. 15

FILE ON GOVERNMENT LAND; 150 MILES Los Angeles; nothing but traveling expenses if not satisfied—and we can show you we are reliable; water 15 to 35 feet; mile to railroad; raises alfalfa, peaches, pears, grapes, etc. Finest sandy loam; no desert sand. Our total location fee (including all traveling expenses) $200 for 320 acres; $125 for 160 acres. Take either homestead or desert claims; U. S. filing fee, 25c acre. Don't pay $150 per acre for Beaumont and other lands when these will cost less than $5 for patent—and closer to city and railroad. INVESTIGATE THIS—if it is meritorious, it will be worth a fortune—if it won't stand investigation, we are out. Address K, box 99, TIMES OFFICE. Less than 20 sections of good land left. 15

HAVE JUST RETURNED AFTER THOROUGH examination of several localities looking for good government land; have the finest body open for entry; railroad now building, abundance of water and fine soil; a party is being organized to locate, and those first on the ground will have golden opportunity to get valuable land; $1 per acre covers all expense and filing charges; residence on land not necessary; no other chance like this anywhere; this land will be worth $25 per acre as soon as railroad reaches it; get in ahead; convenient to Los Angeles. Address J, box 80, TIMES OFFICE. 15

GET A HOME IN SUNNY SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

Here is the opportunity you have been looking for. Party having filed on 160 acres of FINE FARM LAND and being unable to move on it will relinquish for cost, ONLY $3 PER ACRE. Don't pass this by, as you can't find anything half as good. The land is level, deep rich garden soil; plenty good water, near station, fifty-four miles from Los Angeles; healthful climate; good fruit and poultry country. Call Room 524 MERCHANTS' TRUST BLDG., 207 South Broadway. •

FOR SALE—HAVE YOU USED YOUR homestead right? If not, answer this advertisement at once. I will relinquish my right to 160 acres of the richest soil in State of Washington for a very small sum; pure running water, lots of fine cedar timber, only 7 miles to new railroad now being established. Address J, box 162, TIMES OFFICE. 15

GOVERNMENT AND SCHOOL LANDS IN one of the most beautiful and fertile valleys in California; unsurpassed for fruit and general farming; climatic conditions best; on railroad, near Los Angeles. If your legal rights are not exhausted, can place you this week on land soon worth $50 per acre; small cost. GEO. ROHRER, 705 Fay Bldg. •

SPANISH—
LOS ANGELES POSTOFFICE.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend Prof. Ricardo Uribe (619 S. Hill st.) as the best teacher of Spanish in Los Angeles.

After taking a course with Prof. Uribe and having thoroughly investigated methods in use by other instructors, I am in a position to say that the system as taught by this professor is the most intelligent, comprehensive and most concise of any that has come to my observation.

In a word, Spanish as taught by Prof. Uribe is without a doubt the most thorough and easily learned of any system now in use.

RICH HARVEST FOR THE ELKS.

Thirty Thousand Dollars Is Raised by Festival.

Crowd on the Closing Night Breaks All Records.

Entertainment Yet in Store for Chance-takers.

With a record-breaking crowd and an impetus gathered during the preceding nights, the Elks Harvest Festival carried the ball over the $20,000 line last night at the Shrine Auditorium and then kicked goal to the tune of $10,000 additional.

The festival ended in a blaze o' glory at midnight with thousands still reluctant to part with the charming scenes that had made a gay week. And when a review of the financial affairs of the festival had been made by Auditor Tracy Hall and Chairman Motley H. Flint, it was found that the net proceeds of the festival and its ramifications will leave the entertainment fund for the Grand Lodge next year with a credit balance of about $30,000. The total attendance was about 25,000.

"There is no way fittingly to express the gratitude of the Elks to the people of Los Angeles," said Chairman Flint, "all in," but still game. "First of all, we owe our first gratitude to the women—bless 'em—who have so faithfully worked through the week. Their work was the keystone of our success and we are their eternal debtors. Then to the fraternal societies, whose good will knew no bounds and whose generosity was unbounded, we must give our thanks, and to the Catholic societies that united to make one night such a tremendous success. To our unaffiliated brethren and sisters, who were the constant patrons of our show, we lastly tender our gratitude. No enterprise has ever received the splendid patronage that the Harvest Festival has and it is the biggest success of its kind ever held in the West. None has ever been the faultless, frictionless, buoyant conquest that this has been.

BEYOND EXPECTATIONS.

"And now I will disclose why it was a Harvest Festival. The Elks have been sowing the seeds of good will and fellowship for many years. We merely reaped the harvest, and the harvest has been beyond our expectations. I would not now attempt to give figures, but the public has responded so liberally that I would not be surprised if the profits did approximate $30,000. They may be more; they may be less. But they certainly have been far over the $20,000 line."

An accurate statement will not be possible until the accounts of all the booths have been checked and settlements made, which will be during this week. But those in touch with the finances say there is little doubt that the $30,000 mark has been neared at least. And this is only a starter. The Elks must raise $100,000 to finance the Grand Lodge meeting next July. There is yet to raise $70,000. This must come from the chief beneficiaries of the 100,000 people who will attend the Grand Lodge, and from the business public. When it is considered that the Grand Lodge crowd will leave over a million dollars in Los Angeles, the investment asked of the public is small.

DAY OF CRUSHES.

The final day of the festival was really tremendous. The afternoon crowd numbered 2000, and was the most liberal of all matinée visitors. At night over 6000 were present, and the great auditorium was so densely packed that progress from booth to booth was difficult and sometimes impossible. The final appeals of the pretty women were met with free responses, really the most lavish of the whole week. While it is known that the receipts will overtop any other evening, their approximate amount is uncertain, for when the curtain fell and the festival was over, everybody, tired with a week of arduous labor, hurried home for rest.

At midnight there poured from the big building the army of gaily-costumed women, who have been the bulwark of success. It was goodbye to the jaunty Tommy Atkins caps and the saucy faces under them, to the jolly Grocery Girls, who bid a sad adieu to their devastated shelves; to the charming Merry Widows who could sell chances to a stone image; to the stately colonial dames with powdered hair and dainty dresses; to the gypsy queens, the Candy Kids, the Spanish maidens and a score of others whose assumed identity had contributed to the charm and added to the lure of the great festival.

"NATIVES" BIG AID.

The success of the final night was largely in the hands of the Native Sons and Daughters, and their grotesque parade in the downtown district stimulated the record-breaking attendance. The parade included an escort of the rough riders, under Capt. Jack Hendrickson, the letters-carriers and their band, the Elks' Marching Club and the drill teams of the Women of Woodcraft, and the Woodmen of the World. Over 800 Native Sons appeared in the motley parade (some disguised as Daughters.) There was a Chinese dragon, a band of original native sons with war paint on, and hundreds of grotesquely costumed members.

Features that were conspicuous among the many excellent ones, were the water wagon (a sprinkling cart,) on which Cal Wilson, Billy Bryant, Al Extrum and Fletcher Ford had real headaches near a gigantic water pitcher. A street roller disguised as a calliope, played soothing tunes with The Times siren. The irregular, clownish line was made lurid by the 500 red-fire sticks that "Little Joe" Bellue saw were placed in the right hands (and some lefts) and the genius of Bert Farmer and Ed Lovie showed at every stage. Even Long Beach's baby parlor made itself known with its detachment of bathing-suit masqueraders.

When the parade dispersed at Ninth and Spring streets, the Elks showed how it was possible for the drill teams and the Native Sons booth workers to get back to the Auditorium in autos in six minutes.

When the array reached the Auditorium it invaded the dancing floor, and furnished merriment for a few minutes until the drill teams of the Woodmen, and the Women of Woodcraft, executed their famous movements.

BAD NIGHT FOR SOME.

Sorry night it was for miscreants, for the Elks, finding that some of the visitors were boasting how they had evaded the Loreleis in costume, seized them and made charges against them before the court of High Muck-a-muck, which was arranged on the useless stage. Several hundred dollars in fines were added to the exchequer.

Buttons and badges appeared. The Prosperity Week button was everywhere, and the railway mail clerks distributed 2000 badges bearing the head of an elk and a small mail car and the words, "U. S. Mail. Elks' Harvest Festival. Compliments of the Railway Mail Service."

Though the festival formally ended last night, there is an added feature for tomorrow night at the Shrine Auditorium, when the grand distribution of prizes will be made. Chairman Flint said last night that there had been altogether 28,000 articles donated to the festival. The great bulk of them were disposed of in the grocery, but there are thousands yet to be determined by lot. This drawing will take place on the stage, in the presence of all who attend. Articles having $1000 value are in the list, and there are a score having values in the hundreds. Those prizes which are not distributed at the Auditorium tomorrow night will be at the festival headquarters, Seventh and Olive streets, during the remainder of the week.

REAL REPUBLIC.

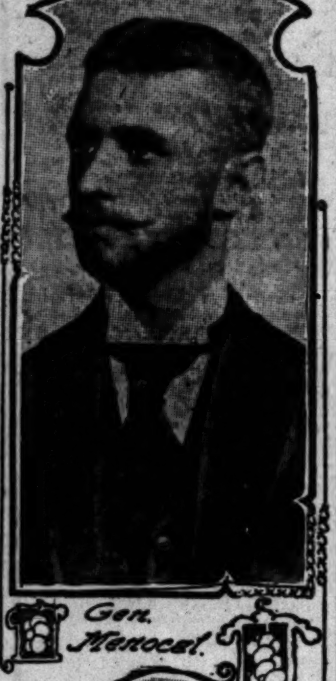
LIBERALS WIN CUBA ELECTION.

GOMEZ DEFEATS MENOCAL FOR PRESIDENCY.

Result of Yesterday's Voting not Officially Known, but It Is Regarded as Certain That Conservatives Lost. Ballot Cast Without Disorder or Interference of Any Kind.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] It appears almost certain tonight that Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez and Alfredo Zayas have been elected President and Vice-President, respectively, of the new Cuban republic, with strong Liberal majorities in the Senate and House.



Gen. Menocal

Gen. José Miguel Gomez

Rival Candidates

for presidency of Cuba at yesterday's election. From late reports last night it appears that Gen. Gomez has defeated Gen. Menocal.

It is improbable that the result will be officially established tonight, as the returns doubtless will be slow in coming in, but sufficient returns already have been received to indicate that the Liberals have won a victory which has been hard fought.

Gen. Gomez, just before the closing of the polls, announced that he had received advices showing that he had carried every province in the island, which is not improbable.

Gov. Magoon said tonight:

"I cannot express too highly my appreciation of the enthusias' and prudent regard for order with which the Cuban people have conducted this most important contest. I am absolutely certain that they will loyally abide by the result, establishing to my complete satisfaction their fitness to be entrusted with the government of the republic."

Election day dawned bright and the third contest at the polls in the history of the Cuban republic to elect a President, Senators and Congressmen passed without serious disturbance or disorder. Two tickets were in the field, the Liberal, headed by Gomez and Zayas, and the Conservative, with Gen. Marco Monocal and Dr. Rafael Montero as candidaaes.

Col. C. H. Crowder, chief of the bureau of elections, this morning received reports from each municipality excepting Cienfuegos, Cardenas, Ciego De Avila and a few others saying that tranquility reigned.

The weather everywhere was fine excepting in Santiago province, where there are heavy rains. The conditions of the roads is almost everywhere good and there is every indication of a heavy vote and prompt returns.

The followers of Jose Miguel Gomez in the city of Havana began a celebration at a late hour last night in anticipation of the expected victory of today. Brilliantly illuminated trolley cars with bands of music were run through the city, discharging fireworks as they progressed. The explosion of a box of fireworks on one car injured six persons. There was a counter demonstration on the part of the conservatives.

The polls opened at 7 o'clock and that hour many voters already were waiting at the booths to cast their ballots. Cabs and automobiles were freely used by both parties to carry voters to the polls. The Conservatives this morning were encouraged by the report that Gen. Aloman and Gen. Guzman, Liberals of Santa Clara province, have announced their intention of supporting Gen. Menocal.

An investigation of the shooting last night at Cienfuegos of Edward Prieto, a Liberal, by Gonzalo Vieta, a Conservative and at one time Mayor of Cienfuegos, indicates that the affair is without political significance. There is evidence that Prieto insulted Vieta and attacked him with a knife, whereupon Vieta fired in self-defense. One policeman was injured in attempting to separate the two men.

AERONAUTICS.

WRIGHT TAKES PRIZE FOR HIGHEST FLIGHT.

Soars in Air at Height of One Hundred and Fifty Feet and Wins Aero Club Offer of Thousand Francs. French Are Jealous.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LEMANS, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I might as well have that 1000 francs ($200,) even if I don't exactly need it," remarked Wilbur Wright, yesterday afternoon, after suddenly deciding to try for the prize offered by the Aëro Club of the Sarthe Department for an aëroplane flying as high as 100 feet. In another half hour he had shot up into the air on his machine without using the starting apparatus, and soon he soared twice around the big Auvours Field at a height of fifty feet above the captive balloons which marked the 100-foot height.

It took Wright five minutes to win the prize which several French aëronauts have been carefully preparing to acquire for several weeks past—not for the sum involved, but for what the Aëro Club calls, "the peculiar distinction of not only flying, but flying at high altitudes."

While the admiration for Wright is as great as ever, the opinion is expressed in some quarters that he ought henceforth to be "hors concours," (non-competitive,) because it is evident that his machine can do anything that is likely to be demanded of it at present. The complaint, which throws a curious light on French sporting instincts, occupied columns in one of the Paris papers devoted to sport, and was reprinted in the Lemans papers, causing great indignation here, where the whole population, especially the cafe, hotel and transportation interests, feel that they owe to Wright one of the most prosperous summers and autumns they ever experienced.

Wright is giving the last lessons in flying to a number of different persons, according to his contract. When these are concluded, he will go to America, via Cherbourg, because in the neighborhood of that seaport there still remains another prize to capture—that for straight distance flying. Yesterday's flight, made without using the sort of catapult which has caused so much gossip, has settled the question of the machine's being handicapped for long flights.

NICARAGUA PLANTERS IN UPROAR OVER OUTRAGE.

Riot Follows Assault on a British Lawyer and Journalist by Bluefields Police and Governor in the Main Plaza of the Little Central American Town.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 14.—American and British planters of Bluefields, Nicaragua and on the Escondida, or Bluefields River, are up in arms at an outrage which took place October 21, at midday in the main plaza of Bluefields, when Gordon Waldron, a Toronto lawyer, and managing director of the Toronto Planting Company, owning the Cukra plantation of about 50,000 acres, was assaulted by Carlos Martinez, a merchant, and Telemacho Lopez, Governor of Bluefields.

Waldron was shot at by Gov. Lopez, and would have been killed had not a bystander grabbed Lopez's arm and deflected the bullet so that it landed in the wall of a Chinese shop.

The affair provoked a riot which ended in the printing place of Waldron, where the Cukra Gazette is published, being almost demolished.

Waldron, who arrived here today, has placed the matter in the hands of the British minister. He demands an indemnity of more than a quarter of a million. He says that two policemen held him while the Governor shot at him and that but for the general uprising that took place he would have been killed. The people came to Waldron's assistance and the Governor was forced to leave.

The whole trouble arose over the denunciation of the Governor for a concession which was granted to the United Fruit Company for the sole right to navigate the Escondida River, and to fix its own price for the fruit of that section.

SAYS HE'S NOT GUILTY.

Chemist Arrested on Charges of Stealing Platinum and Burning Laboratory.

Accused of having stolen $280 worth of platinum from the New York Testing Laboratory at No. 1020 Date street and then burning down the laboratory, on October 12, to hide the crime, Lee D. Hays, a chemist, who lives at No. 207 South Hill street, has been arrested. Friends made an effort yesterday to get him out of jail, but as he was booked on suspicion, no bail has been set in his case, and it is probable that habeas corpus proceedings will be instituted to release him. He denies the theft of the platinum and destroying the laboratory.

According to the police, Hays was left in charge of the laboratory by Superintendent D. Basil W. Alexander of No. 1132 West Thirty-sixth street, who went to New York about October 1 on business. He returned to find that the laboratory had been totally destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $7000.

After the fire a careful search was made for the platinum crucibles in the débris. None could be found, and an investigation was made, which resulted in the arrest of Hays. It is stated that he was the last to leave the building the night of the fire. About midnight on October 12 an explosion took place in the laboratory, followed in quick succession by three more, which wrecked the building.

HORSE FALLS ON FIREMAN.

While exercising a fire horse last evening at Pico and El Molino streets. Andrew Springer, a hoseman of Company No. 13, was seriously injured when the horse fell and rolled on him. His left shoulder was dislocated, and his right knee, which he hurt twelve years ago in a fire, was fractured. Dr. E. O. Sawyer saw the accident from his office window, and immediately rushed to Springer's assistance. While Springer was unconscious, Dr. Sawyer replaced the shoulder joint, and had the fireman removed to the firehouse. It will be some time before Springer will have use of his leg.

STORE OPENS MONDAY.

New Tailoring Establishment in Angelus Hotel Building.

What promises to be one of the best appointed tailoring shops in the world has been completed for Eisner & Co., in the Angelus Hotel Building on Spring street.

With its brazen front, plate glass and leaded glass windows, its attractiveness is pronounced, and the interior is a match for the exterior as regards splendor. The fixtures are of solid mahogany, the art stained glass lending a charming shading effect, and the seven mirrored arches on the south side gives a peculiar double impression on a person's turning to the corresponding arches on the north side, and which overlook the hotel lobby.

More than $10,000 was expended on the building of the store.

A large supply of the newest foreign and domestic materials will be on exhibition Monday at the opening.

MRS. DUNPHY'S SISTER FOUND.

Relative Says Woman Charged With Larceny of Jewels Paid Debt in Full.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

MISSOULA (Mont.) Nov. 14.—Two days of constant effort on the part of newspaper men in this city resulted early today in the identifying of a sister of Martha Maybel Dunphy, mentioned in a dispatch from Chicago, as playing a prominent part in connection with the accusation of larceny of $6000 worth of jewelry and securities made against the latter by Charles F. Giles. Mrs. Dunphy's sister is the wife of a prominent business man of Missoula, but requested that her name be withheld. She spoke feelingly of the case, and upheld Mrs. Dunphy in every way.

"It's an attempt on the part of Giles to break up my sister's home," she said. "Mrs. Dunphy borrowed the money of Giles, and gave him jewelry worth several thousand dollars to secure the loan. My sister gave Giles $5 every week until she had paid her debt, and it was right here in Missoula at my house that he returned to her the jewels, and I am sure everything was settled then. I am positive Mrs. Dunphy does not owe anything to Giles."

NO SUMMARY MOVE, SAYS THE MIKADO.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—In this city the report of the death of the Emperor of China is generally accepted as true. The news of his passing is accompanied by a rumor that the Emperss Dowager is also dead, and while this is not given general credence, it is understood that she has been seriously ill for several weeks.

The Associated Press has excellent grounds for believing that the situation in China in the event of the Empress Dowager's death will not be made the occasion of any summary move on the part of Japan, but that the Japanese government will wait an agreement of all the powers.

It may be added that it is not Japan's intention in the event of disorder or disorganization in Chinese territory to take any step whatever until there has been a consultation of all the interested nations, and until a course satisfactory to all has been determined upon. Whatever may develop, Japan has determined there shall be laid at her door no charge of bellicose or aggressive action. This may be regarded as absolute and authoritative.

In all circles the situation is eagerly discussed. The Associated Press has been given to understand that there is a fair possibility of avoiding any trouble with China if the new Emperor is accepted and approved by the nation, prior to the death of the Dowager. All the newspapers here are publishing extras dealing with the possibilities of the Chinese situation.

MOURNS FOR DIAMOND.

When J. B. Roberts, a contractor, was released from the City Jail about 11 o'clock last night, he discovered that a diamond valued at $300 had been stolen from his ring. Roberts was charged with drunkenness. When searched at the desk sergeant's window, it is stated, he had no diamond. It is the theory of the police that Roberts lost the diamond prior to his arrest.

THE NOISELESS GUN.

Spectators Could not Tell When Maxim Discharged His New Invention.

Maxim was showing his gun recently to a group of skeptics. A pile of city directories was stacked up against the wall. He aimed the gun and pulled the trigged. "Well, why didn't it go off?" asked one of the skeptics." "Look at the directories," was the reply of the inventor. Two of them had been pierced. Now, if you will stop to consider the possibilities of a weapon of this sort, you will have food for thought for some time.

A few weeks later an army board tested the silent rifle at Springfield, Mass. Mr. Maxim in an automobile circled the rifle butts, discharging his gun at various points. In not one single case could the board agree when the shots came. And even at the distance of 250 yards they could judge the direction only from a guess based on the whirr of the bullet!

Not satisfied with these improvements, inventors the world over are still seeking to advance by some new principle so that they can make guns not only smokeless, flashless and noiseless, but also recoilless.—[Hampton's Broadway Magazine.

The property today is worth nearly as much per front foot, if not quite that figure. It may not increase in value 120 times in the next twenty-five years, and yet it is more likely to do so than not. If it is worth today $5000 a front foot, when the city has a million population it is likely to be worth more than $10,000 a front foot. The population of San Francisco is not so very much larger than that of Los Angeles, and yet property in the business center of less depth than the lot here being considered was sold prior to the fire for $8000 a front foot, and could not be bought today for $10,000.

Bright Prospects Indeed.

At every point in the city that public sentiment is encountered it is enthusiastically cheerful. From all parts of the country come the most reassuring statements that the business world is looking into the new year with a firm conviction that good times are in store for us all. There is no longer any hoarding of large sums of money in hiding places. Bank deposits are increasing, and are now much more than normal. The banks of the country hold more money today than they ever held in any previous day in the history of America. Interest rates are becoming quite normal. Great insurance companies at the East are looking to the West as a field for loaning their surplus funds on mortgages secured by real estate. The railroads are planning great extensions of all kinds, and many of these plans center right here in Los Angeles. With all labor steadily and profitably employed, with money in active circulation, real estate, the first to feel the effects of the depression, will be the last to feel the influences of business revival. But inasmuch as the net result of the depression was to slow us up to but a little worse than normal activity, it will not take long nor a very great uplift to put us back beyond what might properly be called normal activity. No properly constructed mind will long very ardently for a boom like that of 1906. But there are many of us who have held unimproved property on speculation who will be glad to see a normally active market, in which they can dispose of surplus ownings, and put the money thus realized into improving the property they hold out clear.

RAMONA ACRES.

New and Promising Deal to Settle up One of Most Beautiful Suburban Subdivisions.

A contract has been signed between the Ramona Acres Company and the Janss Investment Company, by which lively activity is promised for that beautiful subdivision lying in the heart of the San Gabriel Valley.

This subdivision was put upon the market a few months before the financial flurry came along, upon the completion of the electric line to Covina. Sales were active, about a hundred one-acre plots being disposed of before the stringency brought dull times. Fourteen handsome homes have been built upon the subdivision, and nearly $100,000 spent in streets, sidewalks, and a splendid water system.

By the new contract the Janss Investment Company undertakes to build not less than twelve houses during the coming year. Dr. Janss is very enthusiastic about the project, after a careful inspection of the possibilities of this tract. While entering into obligations to build an average of one good house a month, he expresses the greatest confidence that the actual achievement will be twenty-five houses during the year.

The tract consists of nearly 500 acres in the very heart of the beautiful valley, being about five miles from Los Angeles city, and reached by trolley in twenty minutes from Sixth and Main streets. It has an abundant supply of the purest water of any suburban subdivision in the country. Electric lights are already installed, and gas mains will be laid within ten days.

This is the tract whose inspiring slogan is "Every Lot an Acre." The idea is evidently fascinating, as the results show.

NORTH SPRING STREET SALE.

Old Larronde Block Exchanged for Tulare County Land at Hundred and Forty Thousand.

The property at Nos. 128-134½ North Spring street, consisting of a two-story brick office anl store building, on a lot 70x150 feet, was sold through the Title Insurance and Trust Company for L. W. Carr for a consideration of $140,000. The buyers are George and Caroline C. Burch of Tulare. The latter gave in payment a ranch of some 750 acres near Tulare. As there was a mortgage of $75,000 on the property, this was simply an exchange of equities, and places a valuation of $65,000 on the Tulare property, or $86 an acre.

The property formerly was owned by the Larronde family. The latter sold it to Andrew Peterson about two and one-half years ago for $120,000, taking a mortgage of $85,000 back on the piece. The buyer paid off $10,000 on the mortgage, which stood as it was in the transaction last week. The sale was made through Mines & Farish.

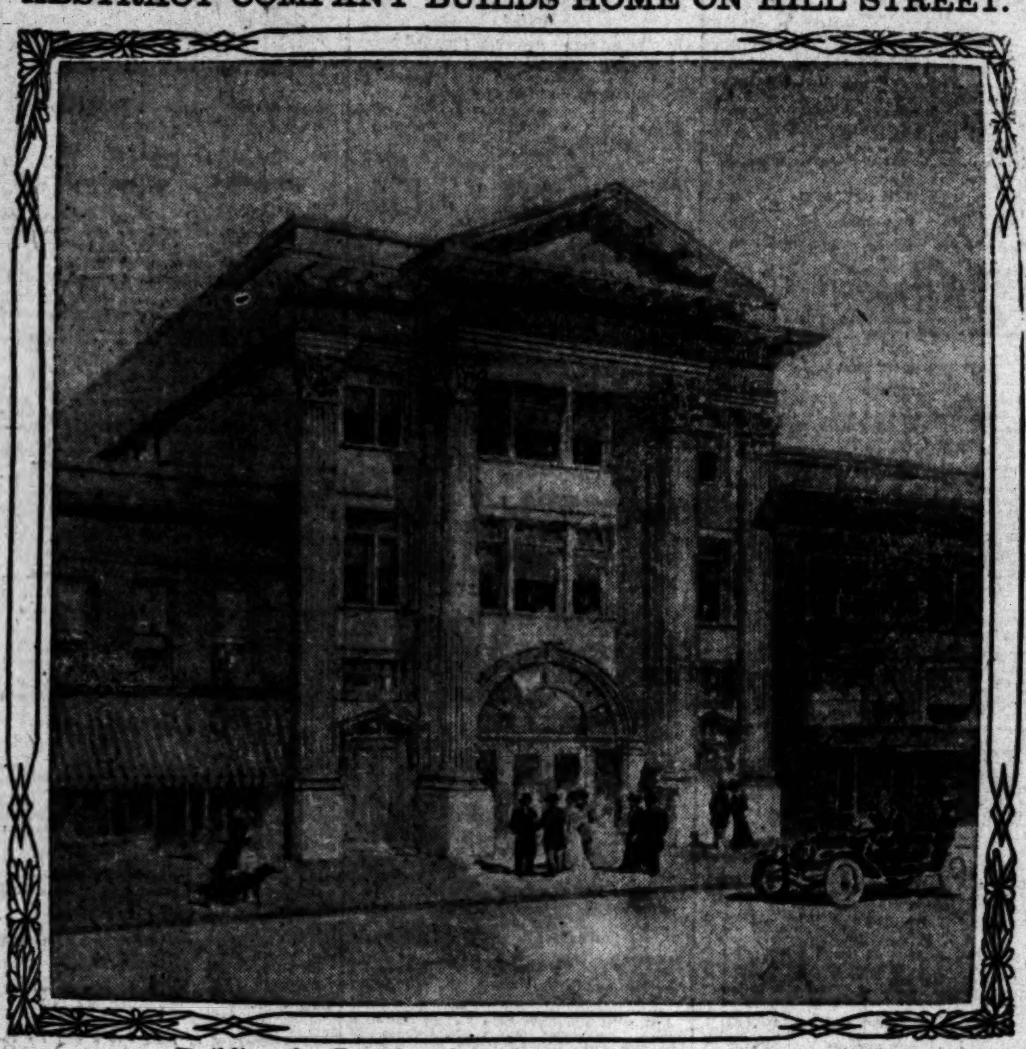
ABSTRACT COMPANY BUILDS HOME ON HILL STREET.



Building for Los Angeles Abstract and Trust Company, on Hill street, between Third and Fourth.

BUILDING OWN OFFICES.

Los Angeles Abstract and Trust Company Rearing Three-story Structure on Hill Street.

The Los Angeles Abstract and Trust Company is building a handsome three-story building at Nos. 325-37 South Hill street, active work on the foundation having been under way for a week or more. The structure was designed by the Burck-Gwynn Company, and is being erected by that concern.

The style of the architecture is Grecian, as the picture shows. The columns and pilasters will be of pure white scagliola marble, which will take a fine high polish. The front or face of the structure will be finished in pure white glazed tile, the whole presenting a very striking appearance.

The front part of the first floor will be reserved for the executive offices and escrow rooms or booths, enclosed in frosted glass, thus affording ample light and at the same time absolute privacy. In the rear of the main offices will be the plant department, where the work on the records, maps, etc., is done.

Immediately in the rear of this section, and practically occupying a building by themselves, will be the vaults for storing the records. These will be fire and earthquake proof, and it is said they will be the largest of their kind in the United States.

The second floor will be occupied by the trust department, and the offices of the attorneys, and the searching department. There will be a few rooms on this floor for rent as offices.

The third floor will be finished as a lodge hall, with a large auditorium, dressing-rooms, lockers, and a buffet. The building will be finished about January 15, and will be immediately occupied by the Abstract concern, now at First and Broadway.

INTEREST AT LORDSBURG.

Good Demand for Improved Orange and Alfalfa Land, and Also for Unimproved Tracts.

LORDSBURG, Nov. 14.—Real estate here has been in great demand lately, not only among the orange groves and alfalfa ranches, but in unimproved land, which is being fast brought under cultivation.

Recently The Times recorded the sale of the Mills tract of 190 acres of unimproved land, owned by Mrs. Susan L. Mills of the Mills College of Berkeley, who sold to Andrew N. Maxwell. Maxwell has resold eleven acres to George Silvery and ten acres to Frank Allen of Santa Monica, who will erect an attractive bungalow.

C. K. Alley of South Pasadena bought twenty acres for a consideration of $7000. Mr. Alley bought for a home, and will erect a modern seven-room residence. W. S. Romick bought fourteen acres set to five-year-old oranges. Charles F. Frase has purchased the home of J. M. Hulse, west of town.

O. G. Keiser has sold his property here, consisting of a seven-room house, the warehouse of the Feed and Fuel Company, and thirteen city lots, to J. Holt of Covina, for a stated consideration of $11,500.

DEMAND FOR HOMES.

Business Is Good in Best Residence Properties—Wright and Callender Company Make Sales.

Giles & Kells of the Wright & Callender Company, report the following sales: C. H. Sweatt to A. E. Halsey, the modern ten-room house at No. 668 South Bonnie Brae street, on a lot 50x150 feet to an alley, for $12,500. Mr. Halsey bought this property for a temporary home.

C. Q. Stanton to Anna E. Webster, a six-room bungalow at No. 1319 West Thirtieth Place, on a lot 50x150 feet, for $3600. Mrs. Webster is a recent arrival from Canada. She will make this city her home.

Frank S. Moore to Thomas Doody, the modern ten-room frame residence at No. 511 West Twenty-third street, on a lot 50x175 feet, for $7500. Mr. Doody bought for a home.

Giles & Kells also report the sale of a lot 48x140 feet on the west side of Wilton Place, south of Eighteenth street, from Nora F. Hughes to Elizabeth A. Smith, for $2300. The buyer will improve this property at once with a modern eight-room residence to cost about $7000.

PLAN METHODIST COLONY.

Colonization Company Buys Big Chino Ranch Tract for Forty-eight Thousand Dollars.

Among the principal sales made by the Chino Land and Water Company on the Chino ranch during the last week is that of 320 acres to the Southern California Colonization Company for $48,000. The buyers plan to establish a Free Methodist colony. This land is located about three miles east of Chino on the Riverside road, and one-half mile east of Euclid avenue. It is the intention of the Colonization company to sink several wells and develop sufficient water for the entire tract.

The company also reports the sale of eighty acres to B. F. Maurer of Hollywood for $12,000. Mr. Maurer has recently been connected with the railroad business in Central America, and has purchased this piece of land as a home place, and intends to improve the property in the near future.

Twenty acres were sold to George M. Huebsch for $2500. The land is located between Chino and Pomona, and Mr. Huebsch intends to seed it to alfalfa this winter. Ten acres were sold to Benjamin F. Vancil for $1250. This land is located within the new city limits of Ontario, which extend about one mile over the northern portion of the Chino ranch.

There is considerable activity in town lots at Chino. Every house in town is occupied and several new houses are being built. D. Stang has purchased a lot on Sixth street, near the Southern Pacific depot, and expects to improve with a two-story brick hotel. A three-story brick block is also being built on D street between Sixth and Seventh streets.

Water has been turned into the new domestic reservoir on Central avenue, which gives the town of Chino an unlimited supply of domestic water.

BUYS HOLLYWOOD TRACT.

Builder Pays Thirty-eight Thousand Dollars for Choice Building Locations and Will Improve.

The Traders' Exchange reports the sale for B. Daniel of Hollywood to E. B. Sidney, the following described property: Twenty lots, ranging at prices from $1200 to $3000 each, located in the center of Hollywood, bounded by Sunset boulevard to the south, Gower street, to the east, Grand avenue to the west and Selma avenue to the north; comprising nearly the entire Blondeau tract, for a cash consideration of $38,000.

Mr. Sidney is an extensive builder of fine homes, and bought this tract for the purpose of building two-story houses. At the same time he will erect a handsome residence on two of these lots for himself.

The same firm also sold for A. Foulkes, the property at No. 1721 East Twenty-first street, consisting of a modern six-room cottage, to E. H. Rydall for $2800 cash. Also for E. H. Rydall, the four-room cottage at No. 461 West Thirty-seventh street, to F. Arly, for $1700.

BUYS A SITE FOR WAREHOUSE.

One of the most important real estate transactions of the past week is the sale by P. M. Daniels of the warehouse location, 400x192 feet on Central avenue, between First and Jackson streets, with a 25-foot "L" on Jackson street, for $138,000. The buyer is Wilson W. Wilcox of Colton. The purchase was made purely as an investment. The site may later be improved with a warehouse structure. The rate per front foot is $345, which is considered a general average valuation for property of this class in the location.

RUSH WORK ON SUGAR PLANT.

Half-Million-Dollar Factory at Santa Ana Nearing Completion—Ready for Next Season's Crop.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SANTA ANA, Nov. 14.—Work on the $550,000 sugar plant of the Southern California Sugar Company, two miles south of Santa Ana on Main street, has been rushed during the last sixty days, and the walls of all the buildings are nearing completion. The main building of the factory group, measuring 67x285 feet, is up three stories, with the fourth story still to go on.

The annex is almost completed, there remaining nothing bpt the cement floors to be put in. This building is 43x212 feet and contains the engine-room, machine shops and lime kiln. It is now under roof. The warehouse, 64x121 feet, and the office building are being roofed.

This immense factory will be ready for the sugar beet crop of 1909. The contractors, Case, Hinze Company, are under heavy bond to have it completed in time, and the prospects are that they will have several weeks to spare prior to June 1 of next year. So far sixty-six carloads of structural iron and machinery have arrived, and most of both has been put in place.

The sugar company has completed signing up its acreage for next year. Of the 5800 acres signed, about 3000 lie in the lowlands district, between the Santa Ana River and Huntington Beach. Acreage has been signed at Garden Grove, Lugo and Clearwater on the Santa Ana and Los Angeles electric line.

NEW RIVERSIDE COMPANY.

Formed to Take Over Tract of Eight Thousand Acres—Capital Fully Paid up.

The Riverside Groves and Water Company has been organized by J. C. Avakian, with whom are associated men of well-known standing in business, including F. W. Reynolds, Grove E. Walter, Rev. C. C. Pierce, Fred E. Pierce, Jesse O. Smith, Myron Tilden, Marshall Tilden and B. R. Smith. Mr. Avakian is president; Myron Tilden, secretary, and Jesse O. Smith, treasurer.

The company is capitalized for $250,000, and it is reported that every share has been subscribed for and paid for in cash.

This corporation will take over a tract of 8000 acres of land lying six and one-half miles along the western boundary of Riverside, and running along the Santa Ana River six and one-half miles, westerly, to a low range of hills which shelters it from that quarter.

The water supply is within the land itself. Already 700 inches have been developed, and are available for immediate use. The rest of this water-bearing land has been thoroughly tested, and immediate steps will be taken to develop a further supply of 1000 inches.

Three reservoirs will be established, one forming a scenic lake one and a half miles long, which will prove a general public attraction. The water will be carried partly in canals and partly in iron pipes over the tract.

Of this property 2500 acres, lying high on a gentle slope, are regarded as excellent citrus land, and 2000 acres more are almost as good. Fifteen hundred acres will be used for alfalfa. About 1000 acres of the hill land may be classed as poor.

The whole tract will be subdivided into five-acre lots, and good streets will be constructed, with cement sidewalks. For general farming purposes the company has purchased seventy-six head of horses, harness, wagons, plows and thrashers.

The land is bounded on two sides by the Salt Lake and Santa Fé roads.

It is planned not to put this tract on sale at the present time.

BUYS ON BURLINGTON.

J. C. Floyd has sold, for Addie B. Bryan, to Cal F. Hunter, the property at No. 1336 South Burlington avenue, consisting of a lot 50x150 feet, improved with a modern ten-room two-story house, for $5500 cash.

BUSY IN NEAR-BY SUBURBS.

Activity in Building at South Pasadena and Many Improvements Planned There.

SOUTH PASADENA, Nov. 14.—A building record which totals $438,245 from October 31, 1907, to October 31, 1908, is the claim of Inspector Saylor of this city, and the city records show that during the past year the town has practically doubled in population.

The opening of Oneonta Park and other Huntington tracts in the southeast section of the city, and the many sales that have followed has formed a substantial basis for other real estate interests and under good building restrictions on the various properties the town has forged ahead.

One real estate firm has done over a $20,000 business in the past year east of Fair Oaks avenue and south of the Raymond Hotel, and in this vicinity the town has grown remarkably.

H. E. Huntington's new home, which has been described before in The Times, has caused plans for several other fine residence properties to be made in this district, and one of the big improvements of the near future will be the extension of Mission street across the Raymond wash through the orange groves to the Huntington home and the Oak Knoll thoroughfares. It is also stated that the Pacific Electric will extend the Mission-street line east to converge with the Oak Knoll line.

The City Trustees have just purchased a large tract of land at the corner of El Centro and Fairview streets for $3700, and have options on land completing the rest of the block, so that the plot may be turned into a public park, the middle of which will soon be adorned with a new city hall costing several thousand dollars.

An auto chemical fire engine has recently been purchased, so that the city will soon have more adequate fire protection.

An effort is still made to secure Garfield Park for a city park, as the splendid oaks which cover the property make the plat an ideal natural park.

There is also talk of extending Marengo boulevard, in Pasadena, through to Huntington Drive, making the entire avenue a fine course for automobiles, the grade being much less than up Fremont street or Fair Oaks avenue, and one of the most scenic approaches to Pasadena.

Considerable of a stir has been created among real estate circles by the announcement that after January 1 H. E. Huntington will advance the price on all of his property in this section 25 per cent.

Interest is manifested all over the city in the construction of the Arroyo Seco bridge, which will afford easier access to Garvanza, Highland Park and East Los Angeles.

MAKES MANY EXCHANGES.

Orange Ranches and Alfalfa Fields Traded for City Property at Good Valuations.

Hildesheim & Schiller report the following recent sales and exchanges:

H. R. Holt exchanges a forty-acre alfalafa ranch near Norwalk, valued at $20,000, for an eleven-acre orange grove in full bearing, on the corner of San Bernardino Road and Vincent street, Covina, valued at $16,000.

William Bell sells to G. W. Hoover a thirty-acre orange grove, highly improved, in the Charter Oak section of Covina, for $30,000, taking in exchange as part payment a nine-room modern house on lot 102x97 on the corner of Prospect avenue and Gower street, Hollywood, valued at $12,000.

Mrs. Julia E. Dotson exchanges a three-story apartment-house, on the corner of Ashland avenue and Speedway, Ocean Park, valued at $16,000, for an apartment-house lot on West Second near Hope street, owned by R. F. Bowden, valued at $12,000, difference paid in cash.

William G. Johnson exchanges a lot 50x135, on East Thirty-first street near Main, improved with a four-flat building, and a five-room cottage valued at $8000, for a lot 50x92 at Ocean Park, improved with two furnished cottages valued at $5000, owned by Stephen Buhr.

E. E. Leech exchanges ten acres in young walnuts on the Covina electric line at Irwindale, valued at $6000, for a ten-room residence owned by H. R. Holt and located on West Forty-fifth street, valued at $9000.

Thomas Bowden sells to Rose B. Levy a lot 47x140 on the west side of Berendo between Sixth and Wilshire, consideration $2400.

Mrs. William Woolf sells to V. P. Gilbert a lot 30x90, on south side of Wave Crest avenue, Ocean Park, for $2000.

Mrs. Harriet Taylor buys a lot 50x155 on Fourth street, Santa Monica, for $1600.

ANOTHER SAN JOAQUIN DEAL.

Land on Main Line of Santa Fe Near Alpaugh Colony Is Placed on Market.

Between eight and nine thousand acres of level land, the property of the Iowa Land and Water Company, has been placed on the market, and a strong demand is reported for it. It is selling at from $65 to $85 an acre, with water.

The property is located on the main line of the Santa Fé Railroad, eighteen miles south of Corcoran, and adjoins the Alpaugh colony. The feature of this new proposition is that before putting the land on the market the company has completed an expensive and an extensive irrigation system. None of the holdings will be offered for sale until each acre is fully supplied with water.

The land, like all in the famous San Joaquin Valley, is suitable for dairying, farming and sugar-beet culture. As the land borders on the line of the Santa Fé, there is easy access to the sugar-beet factory at Corcoran. Other products than beets will do equally well on this acreage.

The water supply is developed from six large artesian wells and is delivered a distance of several miles to the acreage through a thirty-foot cement-lined irrigation canal.

The owners include a number of Iowa bankers and several Los Angeles capitalists. Charles H. Kegley is president and manager; M. J. Nolan, secretary, and W. A. Sage, vice-president.

SELLS TO MINING MAN.

L. L. Bowen has sold to Joseph J. Shaw a modern two-story house on the west side of Normandie avenue, about 500 feet south of Santa Barbara avenue, for $6000 cash. The lot is 52x134 feet. The buyer, who is a mining man, with large interests in Arizona, will make his home in Los Angeles.

THE BURCK-GWYNN COMPANY,
322 South Hill Street

SOUTHWEST
$2250 $2250
Terms $250 Down
We are just offered a very charming little bungalow of five rooms, located in the Southwest, near two car lines, at the above mentioned price. It has only been occupied a short time and originally sold for $2500. The owner needs the money. He has two houses on his hands and wants to sell one.
It is a very artistic little home and well worth the money.

SOUTHWEST
Terms $300 Cash.
We are just completing one of the most modern and best built six-room bungalows ever offered in the Southwest. It has two large bedrooms and 1 room 12x12, which could be used as a den, library or extra bed-room. The large living-room and dining-room are connected with an arch, and the latter contains a most extravagant built-in buffet. In fact, the house has all the built-in fixtures which are necessary for a complete home. It is located near two car lines and is one of the best places we have ever offered for the money.

SOUTHWEST
$3750 $3750
This is a full six-room bungalow, practically finished and it is what we call a substantial bungalow. There is nothing cheap about it. The work is first-class and it is not one of the ordinary houses which you so often run across.
The finish is golden oak and massive in effect and the fixtures are all of heavy brass.
The mantel piece is of artistic chipped brick and the floors are beautiful quarter-sawed selected oak.
It has three large, airy bedrooms; not the small bedrooms that you so often find in a bungalow, but good-sized. Cabinet kitchen and a large screen porch.

WEST ADAMS DISTRICT
$5100 $5100
A most perfect six-room bungalow. Cement porch, cobblestone posts and chimney. This place is very substantial inside and out.
There is a large living-room with massive fireplace. The finish is selected slash-grained Oregon pine. The bedrooms are large and each one is fitted with cedar-lined drawers.
The kitchen is of cabinet design, with wood-stone drain board, and all the accessories of a well-appointed kitchen. All fixtures are of solid brass, as is also the hardware.
The lot is full-sized, with a perfectly kept lawn and a profusion of roses and other plants.

JUST BEING BUILT
Five Blocks North of Westlake Park
One Block East of Coronado Street
50-Foot Lot on an 80-Foot Street
Two Car Lines
PRICE $4250
Terms, $500 cash. Balance $35 per month and interest.
The porch of this home is what first attracts attention. The heavy cobblestone balustrade and chimney, with the cement floor, give proof of its coolness on a summer day, and the pergola effect allows one the sunlight in the winter.
The small reception hall makes a convenient and attractive entrance with its wide seat under a row of small casement windows and its columned opening into the living-room. The wide corner, stone mantel makes the living-room equally as inviting on a chilly day as the porch in summer.
The cornice beam is the only finish at the ceiling line. The dining-room has a large sideboard, divided by the door to the kitchen, making an attractive feature on that side of the room.
The breakfast-room is placed conveniently near the kitchen, with access to both hall and screen porch, and by slide windows to a cupboard in the kitchen, so that no other part of the house need be disturbed in using it.
The room might, if occasion demanded, be used as a maid's room, but the general convenience of the house would no doubt obviate the necessity of a maid.

BUNGALOW DREAMLAND
$1400 $1400
$75 Down
$17.50 a Month, Including Interest
We have just recently built and sold 21 bungalows, located 1-2 block off Huntington Drive, for prices ranging from $1400 to $2000 and will build for you a complete five-room house at the price and terms mentioned above. Street work is all completed and the car service is of the best. The lot is 50x142.
We only have two lots left in this tract that we can build on.
See us at once.

WILSHIRE BOULEVARD
$4900 $4900
Terms, $1000 Cash
We know it is a little out of the ordinary to offer a full two-story, seven-room house in the Wilshire District, on a full sized, east-front lot at a price of $4900. It is not far from Normandie avenue and the house is thoroughly modern, with hardwood floors below. All the rooms are large and the bedrooms have extra large closets. The place has only recently been constructed and we consider it a bargain at the price named.
It has a fine lawn and an abundance of flowers.
Just think the price over and you will agree with us that it is worth looking into.

WILSHIRE BOULEVARD SECTION
$5300 $5300
The best purchase in this section is a six-room bungalow on an east-front lot, 50x150. This bungalow has absolutely the best location in this high-class location. Faces on 80-foot street and only 1-2 a block from a car line.
The building is not yet completed, but will be in about two weeks. The object in advertising this now is that we are certain it is going to be sold before it is completed. We can show you one completed in another section of similar finish and design.
This place is to be finished in the best select, slash-grained Oregon pine, oak floors, cement porch and basement, furnace, cabinet kitchen, which is the most complete we have ever seen. It has zinc-lined bread and cake boxes, roll back drain boards, moulding boards, etc., finished with white enamel, with nickel hardware.
There are three bedrooms with one sleeping porch. The bedrooms have deep skirt drawers and one of them is equipped with full length mirror in the door. In fact, this is one of the best built, most artistic and well arranged bungalows that you have ever seen.
We are enthusiastic over this place, and you will be when you see it. Any little change that you want to make now can be arranged.
Let us show this to you.

WEST ADAMS SECTION
$6000 $6000
Easy Terms
We know the price is low, but we are offering you for the first time a magnificent home of eight rooms, new and modern in every respect. It was built by the present owner, who expects to go abroad in a short time. The foundation is of concrete and the floors are of the finest oak. The living-room is 18x30 and the balance of the rooms are all good-sized and airy.
The dining-room has one of the prettiest and most elegant built-in buffets that we have ever seen, and the den contains a disappearing bed, which would give an extra bedroom, if necessary. It has, in addition to this, four large bedrooms and everything is of the very best.
The lot is 50x150 to an alley. This is not one of the ordinary houses and one that was not built for sale, as you will see by close inspection. The owner does not need the money, and will accept any reasonable terms offered, but inasmuch as he leaves the city for an extended trip, it must be sold in a few days.

SOUTHWEST
$2600 $2600
$500 Cash
1 1-2 story, seven-room new house, close to Figueroa street. The living-room extends across the entire front of the house. In this room there is a pressed-brick fireplace, with basket grate and fire irons, built-in bookcases and window seats.
The dining-room is back of the living-room and is paneled to a height of six feet; has artistic built-in buffet. Floors below are of oak. There are three sleeping-rooms above, with large closets.
Lot 40x150, with barn. This place is good value and we can recommend it.

WEST ADAMS SECTION
$7250 $7250
Easy Terms
Yes, it is a corner lot, 50x150, and, by the way, it is an east front. Further, it is only one block from the car line. Then, again, there are no vacant lots in this section. Downstairs the floors are all beautiful oak and upstairs, white maple. The four bedrooms are large and airy. The living-room and dining-room both are spacious and completed in the most artistic style. In fact, there is nothing about this place that you could criticise. It is highly improved with lawn, etc., and the price has been placed at $7250.
The matter of terms does not make much difference and it can be handled for as low as $1000 down. In fact, if you have an A1 lot that is clear at about this price, we might accept it as first payment, together with about $500.
Think this over and ask us to show you the house.
It doesn't cost money to look at it, and it is a place that will sell in a very short time.

WEST ADAMS SECTION
$8500 $8500
A modern eight-room house on the exclusive Harvard boulevard, near Washington street. It is an east front, too. The living-room is 18x25, dining-room, 14x18, paneled wainscoting, built-in Craftsman buffet; den, 12x14; pass pantry, kitchen, birch floors downstairs, large front porch, rear screen porch, stationary tubs, etc.
This lot is worth $3000 and we are advised by the owner that the house, with its improvements, cost $6500. In fact, it is being offered for $1000 under the market.
It is worth seeing.

VERMONT SQUARE BUNGALOW.
$2500.00.
New, just finished. Five beautiful rooms, polished floors. Very large lot, and only half a block to the Grand-ave. car line. This property was built for a home, and cost, complete, about $3200, but circumstances force the owner to sell quickly. At the above price, this property is a bargain. Terms might be arranged.

CLOSE-IN COTTAGE.
$4200.00.
This is a fine six-room cottage in a close-in neighborhood, only one block from either the W. 11th-st. or the Pico-st. car. The lot is 50x125 and the house is modern. It is a good buy for either an investment or a home. You could not buy a lot in this vicinity and duplicate the property for anything like the above price. Let us show you.

SEVEN-ROOM BUNGALOW.
$5200.00.
Located on fine corner lot, in the heart of a beautiful southwest home section; stone and cement veranda, seven very large and completely appointed rooms, all hardwood floors, furnace pipes throughout, garage, etc., etc. It's as beautiful and splendidly built a moderate-sized home as there is in the city; handsome stone mantel, elegant buffet, and all modern built-in features; the best lighting fixtures to be had. You could not save a dollar if you tried to build it yourself without a contractor's profit, so why not buy a bargain where you can see just what you are getting? It's worth while seeing at once.

BUNGALOW BEAUTIFUL.
$6500.00.
Original, new, will be completed within a week, half a block from Berkeley Square. Go and see it with us and select your own tints. Eight rooms, including breakfast and servant's room; three beautiful bedrooms. The living-room is finished in mahogany; the dining-room in solid oak with fourteen French windows. Just off the large living-room with its inglenook and massive mantel is an open court, with space for ferns and flowers, the bungalow being built around this court. The kitchen, porch, cellar and furnace are in keeping with this handsome property. See this Monday.

ELDEN AVE. HOME.
$7500.00.
Half a block north of Pico st., east front, lot 50x150, and nine very beautiful rooms, almost new, and the biggest bargain on Pico Heights. The owner of this home is building a much larger house, which will be ready shortly, and has cut the price $1500 to make a quick sale; hardwood floors, cellar, furnace and very beautiful grounds. A chance like this, in this location, doesn't come very often, so act quickly. Cash, or easy terms to suit.

RESIDENCE ON LARGE LOT.
$10,500.00.
Do you want a superb nine-room home, located in Palm Place, on a 60x150-ft. lot, half a block from fine car service, and only four blocks from Westlake Park? We recommend this residence for its admirable qualities, because its arrangement is spacious and ideal, and because we know how strongly and correctly it is built. Every room in the house is large; the living-room after our California ideal, the dining-room admirably fitted, the den cosily secluded, the five bedrooms commodious, sunny and bright, with many windows. Useless to attempt detailed description; we know the property is excellent, we recommend it to you. It's close in. See it with us, if possible, at once.

HANDSOME RESIDENCE IN THE SOUTHWEST ON A LARGE CORNER LOT.
$17,000.00.
Beautiful eight-room modern residence on a "double clean" corner lot, 140x150 to alley, highly improved with fruit and shade trees. The house has seven-eighth-inch oak floors. The rooms are exceptionally well planned, with beamed ceilings, paneled walls, plate-glass and art windows, built-in bookcases, etc. The second floor contains four very large bedrooms with huge closets, and one of the handsomest tiled bathrooms in the city. There is a furnace and fine garage. If you want to see the "cleanest-cut" and handsomest home in the southwest, with beautiful grounds and unequaled view, let us show you this one.

BEAUTIFUL HOME MIDST FLOWERS AND TREES.
$21,000.00.
This magnificent property is close in, on one of the highest and most desirable locations in the Westlake district.
The lot is 121x158 feet and is highly improved with fine trees, expensive and rare shrubs, flowers and lawns. The house contains nine large living-rooms and a billiard-room. It is modern in every way, having oak floors, fine mantels, massive buffet, plate-glass windows, rich fixtures, porcelain tubs, up-to-date bath, stationary washstands and extra toilet, and a real eastern cellar, with steel furnace. There is a very fine garage on the lot, also aviary with a great many beautiful birds. Altogether, the property makes a complete and beautiful home, in a section where values are rapidly advancing. We predict this property will sell for at least twice the above price within five years.

A SWELL HOME IN BEAUTIFUL WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$27,500.00.
This beautiful home is situated on one of the best elevations in the Westlake district, on an east-front lot 70x158, in a neighborhood that is rapidly advancing in value. We predict that within five years this property will sell for more than twice the present price, for an apartment or hotel site, and in the meantime it is one of the most delightful homes in the city.
The first floor contains a fine reception hall in Chippendale. To the right of this is a billiard-room 20x24, finished in solid slash-grain oak, with paneled walls and heavily beamed ceilings. This room may be entered either from the front porch, the hall, the driveway or the dining-room, and is fitted with wine closet and tiled lavatory, also a massive stone fireplace. The parlor, library and dining-room are all extra large rooms and are finished in mahogany. Off the dining-room is a dainty breakfast-room and large, light kitchen, both finished in white enamel.
The second floor contains four large sleeping-rooms and a beautiful dressing-room, all in six-coat white enamel. The doors of the two main chambers are fitted with full-length beveled plate mirrors. There are also two fine tiled bathrooms and a large linen closet on this floor. The third floor has a large storeroom and two maids' rooms. The lighting fixtures are expensive and handsome. The house has oak floors throughout.
There is a fine garage with man's room, also furnace and Ruud heater. The grounds are improved with beautiful shrubs, flowers and lawn.
Now if you want a beautiful, close-in home and, at the same time, an investment that will make you money rapidly, let us show you this. House can be seen by appointment only.

MISSION HOME IN WESTLAKE DISTRICT.
$30,000.00.
This magnificent residence contains 14 rooms on a lot 100x150. The house is built of best Portland cement on wire lath and roofed with Old English tile. The situation is one of the best in the Westlake district. The rooms are exceptionally large and well planned. The living-room is 22x38, the dining-room 18x22, and other rooms in proportion. There are two beautiful bathrooms with tiled floors and walls, also a servant's bathroom. The best workmanship and architectural skill obtainable has been used and the result is a beautiful, massive and livable home. There is a fine garage and man's room outside, and the grounds are highly improved with lawns, flowers, trees and shrubs, and, last but not least, are a beautiful patio (entered from either the living-room or den) and a stately porte cochere.
The owner has left the city and the house must be sold. Let us show you this place.

BUILDING SITES, WILSHIRE WAY,
$1000.00 TO $35,000.00.
We are prepared to show you the best building sites in this desirable district. Two in particular—one a corner on the boulevard, highly improved with old trees and shrubbery, ready for a fine home; another near the boulevard, east front, 100x150, for $4500, which is a bargain. Let us show you around and convince you that this is going to be one of the finest residence sections in Los Angeles.

There today to meet you. Call at our tract office, 48th and Gramercy Place and get pointers on house snaps and get our bungalow booklet, free.

It is never too much trouble to show you over our tracts, show our houses, and give any information about our building and selling plans. That is a part of the business, so don't hesitate to ask any questions.

This College tract has already the reputation of being the peer of the Southwest.

Nothing better in Los Angeles.

Prices and terms beyond comparison.

Material and workmanship the very best.

One trip out and inspection of these new

MODERN COTTAGES AND BUNGALOWS

Will convince you more of the truth of the above statement, than all of our argument.

"SEEING IS BELIEVING."

Our houses are being located upon every other lot only, but these alternate vacant lots are fenced and improved with lawns, palms, etc., and each purchaser of a home is given the free use of the adjoining vacant lot for two years, with an option to purchase it anytime with the two years.

Our prices include free sewer connections, whole tract sewered, very best of street improvements.

Under our plans, you are making your usual rent money pay for your home.

These homes are going as fast as we can build them.

An average of at least one a day for the last two weeks.

We are building many more right now.

You can have your choice. Look them over.

Will finish them to suit you.

WEST ADAMS SECTION,
NEAR 22ND AND NORMANDIE.
7-ROOM, nearly new bungalow, fronting west. Oak floors and polished pine. Fine bath and fixtures, very artistic buffet, open grate, wash trays. This is a splendid buy.
7 rooms; only $3300. Get busy.
45x130.

BELOW COST $700.
WEST ADAMS HEIGHTS,
JUST WEST OF BERKELEY SQUARE.
BUNGALOW BEAUTIFUL.
We have one of the most beautiful bungalows in the city. The owner is pressed for money and has cut the price $700 below actual cost. There are six rooms and den. Living-room 22x30, dining-room 16x16, with exquisite buffet. The bedrooms are unusually large. Hardwood floors throughout. Living-room, dining-room and reception hall paneled and beamed; bedrooms white enameled. The large mantel and open grate is Arizona sandstone, which produces a delicate harmony. The front is sandstone, with cement porch front and side. Furnace, cemented basement, boiler and gas water heater. Elaborate and expensive fixtures. This house is the equal of those that have sold for $7000 and $7500. There is a mortgage of $3500, at 7 per cent., which can be paid off or can run. If you are in the market for a bungalow, you will do well to see this before buying.
Price $6500. Lot 50x150 to alley.

Westlake Park four blocks west, this beautiful new 8-room house. It is an awfully good buy. Fronts east on 60-foot lot. Large living-room with Gruby tile mantel reaching to the ceiling. This feature, as well are many others, is entirely new. Most charming den, with folding doors and columns. Dining-room is 15x16, with buffet and sideboard. Cabinet kitchen. Cemented basement, with furnace. Wash trays, 2 toilets. Woodwork is piano finish. Fixtures especially handsome. We reiterate that this is a splendid buy. Large upper and lower front porches. The price has been reduced to $6500. As low as $1800 cash will handle it.
LOT 60 FEET FRONTAGE.

$7800—7 rooms, on very high ground, east front, on Bonnie Brae. This place is a good buy and could easily be converted into apartments or flats. This is a modern home, and its charming location should appeal to you. You don't find many places in this section for sale at a price.
LOT 50x150 TO ALLEY.

JUST BEYOND WESTLAKE PARK.
We have the very place you will like. It fronts the park, too. You know what that's worth, don't you? Of course you will appreciate the joy and privilege of feasting your eyes on an exquisite landscape, with its velvety carpet of green, flowers, shrubbery and trees. Another good thing is the construction of this house. It may be dull reading to the wife, sister or daughter, but the man is glad to know that he is getting more than his money's worth when he buys a home. Foundation concrete, 2½ feet wide; joists 2x10, uprights 2x6, floors double matched, doors special, stringers 4x8. These few things will give you an idea of the solid construction. Now for interior. All woodwork first floor paneled and beamed in the best selected stained Oregon pine, hand-rubbed to piano finish, and hardwood floors. Second floor white enameled, six coats on all woodwork. Reception hall 8x15, living-room 20x30, dining-room 14x16, kitchen 9x10. Three large bedrooms and one small one. Furnace, cemented basement, automatic gas water heater, wash trays on rear screened porch. Beautiful open grate and large mantel in living-room. There are three porches; good garage with cement floor. The house cost to build 2½ years since $5000; the lot is worth $6250; total, $11,250. Yet you can buy it for $10,500. By the way, there are two vacant lots in the block. Try to buy one of them and see what they ask you.
FRONTING THE PARK, $10,500, ONLY.
LOT 50x150.

BARGAIN, $2000 UNDER VALUE.
PRICE $16,500, CLEAR.
There is not another house in the city, equaling this, that could be had for less than $18,000 to $20,000. Beautiful east front 11-room house, near Vermont and Wilshire blvd. Aristocratic and delightful section. There are 6 bedrooms, sun parlor and finished attic. First floor consists of large living-room, den, dining-room, elegant reception hall and maids' room. The entire downstairs finished in quartered oak, beautifully selected, with piano finish. Unusually spacious cemented front porch. Laundry is separate from the kitchen porch. Floors throughout are ¾ oak. Woodwork second floor 6 coats ivory finish. The very best plumbing and fixtures. The general plan is graceful, spacious and convenient. You will not find a more beautiful staircase, reception and upper hall, as well as the general effect of the entire house. Combination gas and electric fixtures, cemented basement, ready for furnace. Large garage that will hold two machines. This house was built by day labor and finished in February, this year. It is at least $2000 under value, and is snap for some one. Will that be you?
LOT 60x150 TO ALLEY.

WILSHIRE BOULEVARD FRONTAGE.
CLOSE IN, OPPOSITE A BEAUTIFUL PARK.
Unobstructed view of mountains glorious. Eleven rooms; 6 bedrooms, billiard-room, 3 bathrooms, two beautifully tiled. First floor consists of reception hall; to the left a most beautiful living-room with open grate. From this room you pass into a charming den. To the right of reception hall is the spacious dining-room, with its elaborate buffet, thence into the pass pantry and kitchen, which contains every convenience to delight the cook's heart. There are three verandas and the screened porch. Very large basement, cemented, furnace, Ruud automatic gas water heater, wash trays. The first floor is beautifully paneled and beamed. Woodwork hand rubbed to piano finish. Wilshire boulevard and park frontage is a good thing to have, do you know that? It is worth money now, and will be worth more. This home has every convenience, and would undoubtedly please you. You could not build a house that would please you in every way when finished, so why don't you buy one already built that will please you just as well, saving the annoyance and risk of doing it yourself.
PRICE $18,500.
LOT 65x147.

READ ABOUT THIS BARGAIN!
SWELL WEST ADAMS SECTION.
Where there are flowers, trees and shrubbery. We have for sale a 12-room house and large barn for autos, horses and drivers, fronting east, that is new and delightfully arranged, and the street is more than a hundred feet wide. Every wall on the first floor is finished in handsome and artistic tapestries. The first floor consists of a broad reception hall with grand staircase. Very large, beautiful living-room, a delightful den, exquisite reception-room, rich silk tapestries and hangings; dining-room, breakfast-room, pass pantry, kitchen, screen porch, lavatory between den and living-room. Billiard-room, trunkroom and servant's room, third floor. Five bedrooms and 2 baths, second floor. Basement with furnace and laundry. The price includes all the hangings and draperies, which are very expensive, and the house and barn could not without a single doubt be duplicated for less than $20,000, the hangings and draperies surely cost as much as $3000, and the lot would be cheap at $8000, which is only $80 per front foot, as it is very deep. This makes a total value of $29,000, and yet the price is away below that, because the owner is very anxious to sell. See this place without delay. Bargains of this kind don't last. Call us up and make appointment at least a day ahead. Absolutely no lower price will be made.

FOR SALE—
9-room house on Bonnie Brae st.; price $7000, terms $3000 cash, $500 in 6 months, $500 in 1 year, $500 in 18 months, $500 in 2 years; balance of $2000 on straight mortgage.

This property is positively $1500 under market.

The lot is 50x140, and in the rear is a large garage and storeroom. The house downstairs has a large living-room, beam ceilings, paneled walls, large music room, particularly large and attractive dining-room, in weathered oak, beam ceilings, hardwood floors throughout, large kitchen finished in white enamel, butler's pass pantry and screen porch.

The lawn is very attractive, taking in the entire front and side of the house.

This property as stated is way below the market and positively no trade will be considered.

The terms are as reasonable as it is possible to make them, the payments extending as they do over a period of 5 years.

If you are in the market for a first-class home located in the best part of the city, strictly first-class neighborhood, we would advise your seeing this property at the earliest possible moment.

We are advertising this property solely because it is the best purchase we know of in the city today. There is no other property anywhere near the price, considering the location, character of building, price and terms that can compare at all with the above.

FOR SALE—
HIGH-CLASS LOTS
OXFORD SQUARE
One of the most highly-developed sections. In that most popular residence locality, the Wilshire District.
LOTS $1600 AND UPWARD.
Oxford Square is a most aristocratic subdivision in the popular Wilshire District. It has every modern improvement and sells on sight. The handsome residences completed and under construction indicate the character of the neighborhood developing there.
Lots are large and sightly, 171 feet deep and as wide as you like them. The street improvements have been made under the latest restrictions. The walks are wide and the parkings between the walk and curb permit the most elaborate landscape decoration. Ornamental trees and large palms are planted and growing. Massive concrete corner pillars surmounted by artistic electroliers grace the corner intersections. In the midst of a naturally beautiful section commanding the Sierras and the Coast hills, and with a most excellent car service and a 5-cent fare, Oxford Square appeals to every refined and cultivated taste as an ideal home spot second to none in all Greater Los Angeles and lots are priced lower now than ever they will be again this side of eternity. Go see Oxford Square and select now. Sales are being made rapidly because of the unusual attractiveness of the situation, the price and terms, and high-class improvements.

EAST FRONT, 50x145,
ON OXFORD BOULEVARD.

A SNAP. This is beyond doubt one of the best lots in the Wilshire district. No exception. It lies 2 feet above grade and faces an 80-foot street. The block in which this lot lies is one of the highest elevated blocks in the surrounding country. No other lot, even at a much higher price, can equal this lot. It comands a magnificent view of the mountains. The elevation at this point is 50 feet higher than W. Washington or W. Adams Heights. If interested, don't delay, as this lot will sell very quickly.

FOR SALE—A SNAP.

WILMINGTON.

HARBOR FRONTAGE.

ONE-THIRD PRESENT VALUE.

We own and control 160 ft. frontage on the bay at Wilmington, just west of the U. S. government property; in addition to the property we have a permit granted by the War Department for the building of docks and piers for 900 ft. into the channel, together with any warehouses, slips, etc., desired; the dredgers are now working in front of this property, which is one of the most desirable on the bay; we believe this to be one of the few properties free from litigation and owning government privileges.

This property is worth $1500 per ft., but we can deliver it if taken immediately for $600 per ft., or $96,000; terms half cash, balance three years; or we can take a part in clear Los Angeles realty.

This property is a snap, and in a very few years cannot be obtained at any price within reach of the ordinary investor. For full particulars see $30,000, SACRIFICED.

I have a well improved property, new 3 story pressed brick building within about a block from the great Hamburger bldg., and north of 9th street, that must be sold at once. It is worth $75,000, and will continue to advance in value as it is in the line of the city's best and most rapid growth. The improvements are now earning $4000 and the earnings will increase every year. To make the quick turn that is necessary it is offered for $56,500. About half cash will handle it and it's the best buy in attractive property that exists here today, and it will bring $100,000 in less than 5 years. Requires quick action.

FOR SALE—
AN INCOME OF 14 PER CENT. NET GUARANTEED.

We have a new apartment house with more than 65 rooms, in the most fashionable district, which the owner is compelled to sell at a sacrifice price, his business forcing him to leave the city.

It is rented for more than 4 years, the lease being secured by a bond and the income showing a return of 14 per cent. net.

It will require not less than $22,500 cash to handle this proposition.

We can deliver the property at $37,500, and take mortgage for $15,000 at 6 per cent. We have quoted the lowest net income this property will show the purchaser, and we can prove to the buyer if he is experienced in hotel management how the income can be made to equal 25 per cent. net on his investment.

MR. INVESTOR!
MR. SPECULATOR!

Are you looking for a good deal?
Are you particular, hard to please?
Are you conservative?
Do you want the best that money will buy?

If so, call at our office and let us show you photographs of, and give you full particulars about what we unequivocally and unhesitatingly call the best buy in Los Angeles. If you but knew what an extraordinary choice property we have had placed with us for sale, you would come post haste and close up the deal, for which you would be grateful the rest of your life. Opportunity now knocks at your door. It is truly the chance of a lifetime. This property is decidedly in a class by itself, it is so far above the average. You can make a search of the entire city, and you will not find another like it in the market. The owner, for obvious reasons, does not wish us to advertise the location; for your information, however, will state that it consists of a prominent corner, highly improved, with a new business block.

The price is $37,500. The income is $4250 per annum.

FOR SALE—AN APARTMENT-HOUSE OF 34 rooms, divided into 3 and 2-room apartments; steam heated; each apartment has private bath, electric switch, gas meter, gas range; building absolutely fireproof; each 2-room apartment has a wall bed; each 3-room apartment has 2 wall beds; these beds are strictly sanitary. This house is most elegantly furnished; not a poor or cheap article in the building; the apartments command the highest prices paid in Seattle, and yet on account of the elegant furnishings and the convenient arrangement of the apartments and desirable locations there are never vacant apartments. The house has been opened one year and not a month since opened that the place has not cleared above all expenses over $500; cleared the first twelve months over $7000; every word of above can be verified to the letter. This can be turned into a transient house so that every room can be used independent with private bath for each one and two rooms, and can be made to pay for itself during the A. Y. P. Fair to be held here next year. Now is the time to secure this place. Rent is $535 per month, nearly 4 years' lease; price $15,500; $7000 cash. Will not object to taking four or five thousand dollars' worth of good Los Angeles real estate. For further information address J. M. LANE & CO., Room 420, Walker Bldg., Seattle, Wash. 15

FOR SALE—A ROOMING-HOUSE OF 24 rooms, well furnished and all full, at $14 to $20 per month each; can't find a better location for $2250.

THE BEST MONEY-MAKING LANDS
IN THE STATE ARE IN FRESNO COUNTY.

THE PROOF OF THIS STATEMENT
YOU WILL FIND
IN THE COUNTY ITSELF.

The splendidly improved and highly productive vineyards, orchards, grain and alfalfa fields tell to the eye more eloquently than words could, the source of the great wealth that the people of Fresno county possess. Last year's products of the soil averaged over $600 per capita for every man, woman and child in the county. If any other section of the land has a better or anywheres near so good a record, we have never heard of it.

A RICH COUNTRY LIKE
FRESNO COUNTY
IS WHERE YOU SHOULD LOCATE.
YOU CAN GROW WEALTHY THERE.

Hundreds upon hundreds of men and their families have come with but very little money. All have grown wealthy and are in receipt of handsome incomes each year from the products of their lands. There are just as many, even more opportunities now, for you to do likewise. It is merely a question of locating right, that is, buying the right kind of land, the soil that will produce the best results in the shape of high grade and abundant crops.

WE SELL THE BEST
FRESNO COUNTY LANDS.
WE KNOW WHERE THEY ARE FOR WE LIVE THERE.
HAVE LIVED THERE FOR A QUARTER OF A CENTURY.
ANY BANK OR BUSINESS HOUSE
IN FRESNO
WILL TELL YOU THAT.
WE ARE ABSOLUTELY RELIABLE.

ABOUT OUR LANDS.

There are two propositions that we want to tell you about especially. One is small tract of about 500 acres that we are selling in parcels of 20 acres and upwards. It is right in the heart of the best raisin-producing section of Fresno county. It must be borne in mind that the Muscat grape, which, when dried, is the chief raisin of commerce, grows to perfection only in certain soils. The tract we have, which is known as QUALITY COLONY, lies a few miles east of Fresno city and the soil is the same as that in the surrounding vineyards whose average annual product is three tons of raisins per acre. This is the top-notch production of a raisin vineyard in Fresno county, and QUALITY COLONY land will, when planted to Muscats and brought into bearing, be in this the banner-producing class. It will produce peaches, other varieties of grapes and all other kinds of fruits grown in the county in equal abundance and of the highest quality. Ditches run through QUALITY COLONY, guaranteeing ample water supply. In addition, the soil is all sub-irrigated, an indispensable condition for successful grape culture. It is planted up to, around and beyond QUALITY COLONY, and the splendid appearance of surrounding vineyards and orchards and the records of their production give ample evidence of what QUALITY COLONY lands will do. Sanger, a thriving town of 2000 people, is only two miles south of QUALITY COLONY. Come in to our Los Angeles office, 214 Mercantile Place, and our representative will tell you more about QUALITY COLONY and give you indisputable reasons why it is the best land offering on the market today. Remember, there were but 500 acres in tract and over a fourth has been sold. Early action is necessary if you want some of this wealth-producing land.

LAND IN THE EARLY ORANGE BELT.
THE BEST AND CHEAPEST
ORANGE LAND IN CALIFORNIA.

Fresno is fast becoming a famous orange-growing section. It is the land of the early orange. Now the fruit is being picked and shipped to eastern markets. By Christmas time the oranges are practically all marketed. They reach the holiday markets and command the highest prices. This section is an ideal one for orange culture. Not alone are the best profits assured, owing to early maturity of the fruit, but climatic conditions are such that trees are immune from all disease and insect pests.

WAHTOKE THERMAL TRACT,
FOOT OF MT. CAMPBELL,
ONLY $100 PER ACRE,
INCLUDING ABUNDANT WATER SUPPLY.

We know that you cannot equal this offering for orange culture in the State. The soil is deep dry bog—the kind that produces the best trees and fruit. The elevation and sheltering hills makes this section immune from frost. There is an inexhaustible supply of water that goes with the land, all for $100 per acre and on easy terms. A railroad shipping point is only two miles away. Near by are as fine orange, lemon and grapefruit groves as you will find in the State. Come in and talk over the money-making advantages of Wahtoke Thermal Tract, the cheapest and best orange land on the market. Remember that the land HAS THE WATER, and there is no extra cost for same.

IMPROVED LANDS.

VINEYARDS—VINEYARDS.

ORCHARDS—ORCHARDS.

DAIRY RANCHES.

We have a splendid list of improved places in Fresno county, ranging in size from 5 acres up to 160. We never offer an improved place for sale without first inspecting same. We, therefore, know that a place is worth the money asked for it when offering it for sale. At our office, 214 Mercantile Place, we have a list of some of the choicest and most desirable improved places, such as vineyards, orchards, dairy ranches, etc., that are to be had in Fresno county. Come in and tell us your wants in this line. We are certain we can fill same.

LARGE TRACTS FOR COLONIZATION.

We have several large tracts of land suitable for subdivision and colonization. Any one of them will make you money and will sell off easily and rapidly. Particulars at office.

JUST A FEW WORDS ABOUT OURSELVES.

We are the largest land dealers in the San Joaquin Valley. We do not confine our operations entirely to Fresno county, although we live in Fresno and our main office is in that city. We handle and have for sale lands in Madera, Merced, Tulare, Kings and Kern counties. We can fill any want in San Joaquin Valley lands. Our long experience, our thorough acquaintance with and knowledge of land values and the conditions necessary for successful land cultivation, makes it profitable for any one seeking a land investment in San Joaquin Valley, great or small, to see us before buying. Every Sunday, and week days as well, we will tell you through the columns of The Times, many interesting facts about the wealth-producing San Joaquin Valley and Fresno county in particular. At our Los Angeles office are photographs of many handsome places in Fresno county that we will be pleased to show any one who calls. They will give an excellent idea of the high state of cultivation that prevails in Fresno county.

FOR SALE—AT A GREAT SACRIFICE—
Must have cash immediately. I own one of the choicest and most productive ranch properties to be found in the San Fernando Valley, located within a few miles of the city of Los Angeles, on the line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and on good public road; raised 125 sacks potatoes per acre, and other products in a like proportion. Fine alfalfa land. Large orange groves on the adjoining lands. The cheapest lands to be found in this district, ranges from $125 upwards. If sold immediately will take $30 an acre. Prefers selling 160 acres in a body, or might sell same in twenty and forty-acre tracts, as the land is perfectly level and divides nicely. One-fourth cash, balance easy terms. This choice land will be worth not less than $400 per acre within the next two or three years, as the aqueduct will be within a short distance. No agents. See HAMILTON, 415 S. Hill st.

AN ASSURED INCOME.

A GENERAL PURPOSE RANCH.

ALFALFA, WALNUTS, ORANGES.

A home with an assured income is about the ideal we all hold to, and if raised on the farm we never forget, and determine if ever we "can farm as we want to," we will end our days on such a farm.

After we have passed middle life we are not anxious to pioneer much, and feeling that way very much I have devoted the past year to looking for such a place where I could turn my present holdings in part, and in that search I have found just one perfect place. I want it myself, but the owner cannot handle my property, so here it is.

AN ASSURED INCOME.

This does not mean so much to the young man, but to me it is everything, and a perfect alfalfa ranch is a rare thing, as well as a gold mine with Bryan's bank guarantee on top of it. This place has 40 acres of alfalfa, 26 being interset with walnuts just coming in. That 40 acres will make you easy the rest of your life, and then, as Pat says, you can turn your attention to the walnuts and oranges. The orange orchard comprises 9 acres of the very best.

But the beauty of the whole thing is the brainy way the place is laid out, being just wide enough that a single stream from the hydrant will cover each square without damming or damning, and one man can do more here with the water than six on the ordinary top pipe line. Water is abundant, the ranch having its interest in perfect pumping plant right at hand.

The buildings are all in fine shape and thoroughly modern with well-arranged corrals, scales, mill and tank house for domestic use, and water piped to each corral and building.

Two railroad stations at the door, one of the best towns in the State only three miles away, and a good hour's run with auto over perfect roads to this city.

This place comprises 62 acres and the price is just what the oranges and walnuts are worth, $30,000. Any reasonable deal will be made so far as terms are concerned, but no trade unless a part might be taken in an income proposition in this city.

Let me tell you more about this place. The alfalfa will pay $5000 per year.

Place well fenced, fine house, many large barns, sheds, etc.; good creameries and markets near; flourishing cities close, and land in small tracts, all around selling at $75 to $150 per acre. BEAUTIFUL section, VERY HEALTHY, and a very PROSPEROUS district, where thousands of homeseekers are now locating on small tracts.

THIS IS TH BEST LARGE TRACT WE KNOW OF NORTH OF LOS ANGELES, and considering the price, it is certainly a FINE BUY, for someone.

The price, $25 per acre, takes the entire place, with fine improvements, and some stock and implements.

Very easy terms can be had. We have details and maps.

FOR SALE—Country Property.

FOR SALE—ONE ACRE OR MORE. $300 PER ACRE.

Inglewood Rancho is being sold in from 1 to 10 acres, 1-4 cash, balance long time. It lies just outside of the city limits, 25 minutes from Second and Broadway, in the southwest on the Inglewood-Redondo car line, which passes directly through the ranch; all cars stopping at Inglewood Rancho station, on the property.

The soil cannot be excelled in the State and at the present is under extensive cultivation.

WATER? Yes, we can show you the best water system in the country; it is piped to each acre from our reservoir of ONE MILLION, FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND GALLONS.

Make a note of this; don't forget it, for water makes your land valuable in California.

If you want a safe, sure investment, or a beautiful suburban home, this is the property you are looking for.

Los Angeles today is a city, a growing city, a city with a great futures. Invest your money today for the time will soon come when close-in acreage in the southwest will not be in the market. Your close-in acreage will have become city property and will bring city lot prices.

The rich people of tomorrow are the land buyers of today.

FOR SALE—

ANTELOPE VALLEY ALFALFA LANDS

Last Sunday we told you why we purchased 1600 acres of silt, level, subirrigated alfalfa land in the above valley, which we intend to put into alfalfa.

Our first work will be to fence, put down wells, level off, and then we are ready to sow the seed. Two years' crops will give us back our investment. We want every one interested in lands and alfalfa growing to visit this valley, only 70 miles north of Los Angeles in Los Angeles county, near the railroad and a good town. We know of several quarter sections that can be purchased at from $20 to $30 per acre on easy terms, which we believe will double in value inside of a year and if you wish to subdivide and let the other fellow come in with you and buy ten or twenty acres, you can then double your money inside of sixty days.

This land is surrounded by alfalfa farms and fine artesian wells, and level as your floor. Take our advice and investigate—only three hours from Los Angeles.

MORE GOOD NEWS FOR EAGLE ROCK.

Now that the beautiful home section of Eagle Rock has things coming in the right direction, it is astonishing how everything seems to help her advance to her logical position as the choicest residential suburb of Los Angeles.

Eagle Rock hardly gets over her natural gratification on the installation of a through car service, before arrangements are completed to build a new line into Glendale, going through Eagle Rock.

A WORD TO THE WISE.

Fronting on this new extension we own or control about 100 acres of the choicest suburban property in Eagle Rock. We want to sell some of it and have decided to make the following prices:
FIFTY-FOOT LOTS—$225.
ACRE LOTS—$1000.
All improvements paid. Easy terms.
No finer property for homes anywhere.
Prices will be advanced January 1, 1909.

FOR SALE—
Lemon and Orange Groves.

FOR SALE—
Orange and lemon groves our specialty. Location, the famous frostless districts, including La Verne, San Dimas, Charter Oak, and East Covina. Groves of 5, 10, 20 and 40-acre tracts. Values for good groves with ample water, from $800 to $3000 per acre. Values being based on condition of groves, incomes and improvements. We now have on our lists some very choice propositions for the money asked. We have no snaps, as often advertised, and would warn customers for good groves to beware of snaps. As samples of what we can show you read the following—

10 acres, nicely located on beautiful ave., no buildings, but a fine location for a home. Near schools, churches, and packing-houses. Grove in fine condition, trees 12-year-old, good crop now on, about 1000 Washington navel trees. Price $9500.

Another 10-acre grove, with small house and barn. No better grove for age of trees, ½ Washington navel, balance Valencia lates. Trees 8-year-old. Crop now on worth $2500 to $3000. Price $12,000.

Two very choice 5-acre groves, both of which have fair buildings. Both nicely located in La Verne district, and both good income paying places. We can deliver one at $6500, the other at $5000.

Take note of this.

A dandy little 7-acre Washington navel grove. All now in good bearing, with at least $2000 crop now on and soon ready to harvest. We, ourselves, will take present crop at $2000. Good 6-room house and small barn.

Price with crop, $8000.

A beautiful 10-acre grove, located on Mat[illegible] ave., and surrounded by a high class of homes and the very best class of orchards. Planted to navel and Valencia oranges and Eureka lemons. Fine young grove, just coming into good bearing. Contains modern buildings, which were recently built at a cost of $6500. Easy terms on this. Price $15,000.

Who wants this? Any one.

40 acres. With a $10,000 to $12,000 crop now on, and yet only a young grove. Trees mostly 7 and 8-year-old. Navel and Valencia oranges. Fine 9-room modern house and good 6-room house for foreman and family. Located in Charter Oak district. Price with crop, $50,000. Less than 1-3 cash, balance placed in payments that can be made from proceeds from grove. All that is required is a little money, and a little nerve.

Our experience of over 20 years growing oranges and lemons in Los Angeles Co. Our fine groves at present over 60 acres, and having sold through our office last year over $300,000 worth of orange and lemon groves, is now our special references to any and all who are contemplating investing money in this industry, which we consider the main industry of Southern California.

Now that TAFT and the good old REPUBLICAN PARTY has been almost unanimously voted back into power, and our own WORTH STATESMAN, McLachlan, having been JUD'ED and RUSH'ED back to Congress, we can't help thinking and believing that the wave of prosperity which has been going over our whole country for the past 10 or more years, will now wave on. Orange and lemon groves all through Southern California have been steadily advancing for the past 4 years. We predict now RIGHT NOW an opportune time for Democrats, as well as Republicans to invest their spare money in good orange or lemon groves. We kindly ask you, who may be interested, to call at our office. W. T. MICHAEL & SON,

FOR SALE—
ORANGE LAND WITH RICH FUTURE,
$250 AND WORTH DOUBLE.

The only standard of value is comparison. I am selling Monte Vista orange lands at $250 an acre, adjacent to lands selling today for $1500 to $3000 an acre, and producing $500 per acre per year. The land at Monte Vista is rich, water is developed, water stock goes with each acre, and the terms of payment are only $5 cash and $5 a month, per acre.

IT IS UP TO YOU
TO BECOME INDEPENDENT
ON A 5-ACRE ORANGE GROVE.

If you wish I will plant the land to orange or lemon trees and take care of it for two years for $150 per acre, which will cover cost of trees and water.
TWO EXCURSIONS DAILY AND SUNDAY.

Cause of Slump.

Wines and raisins are luxuries.
People don't buy luxuries in panic years.
This made low prices for grapes.

Prices Will Advance Again.

Because
Times good already, are rapidly improving and the purchasing power of the United States is equal to, if not greater, than ever before.
Prices for grapes will be as good as ever next fall.
And vineyard properties will be in demand
Because they are less trouble and expense
And average an equal, if not greater, percentage of profit per acre than any other California farming property.

Reason for Exchange.

Is one that will satisfy you and has nothing to do with value of the property thus offered.

My Proposition.

I will trade above described property in lots of 50 acres or more, or entire 155 acres, for well-located flats, apartment-house, or other good city income, and

WILL ASSUME REASONABLE AMOUNT. BUT PROPERTY OFFERED MUST BE GOOD AND AT CASH VALUATION.

R. J. WIDNEY, 501 LANKERSHIM BLK. A9178. 15

FOR EXCHANGE—OR SALE—THE BEST opportunity ever offered, to exchange your orange, alfalfa, walnut or other income property, for a business that has been established nine years, is paying better than $3000 per year net and is capable of being doubled. It is an oil and distillate business and controls the trade of three suburban towns, and consists of the following—about one acre of ground, with two spur tracks running through the property, improved with two warehouses, a complete blacksmith shop, corral and shed for 10 head of stock, gas engine and pumps for running oil from tank cars to tanks, 5 tanks with total capacity of 100,000 gallons; 2 span of mules, three tank wagons and about 50 drums, and smaller tanks. Price $14,000. Will sell for cash, on terms or will exchange for the above mentioned properties. The ground alone is nearly worth the price, to say nothing of the plant, business and equipment. Cash is preferred, and no trade will be considered at inflated figures, and from owners only. This is an unusual opportunity, don't fail to investigate it. A fine investment, with great future. J. C. PAGE, 442 Chamber of Commerce.

NEW AND SECOND-HAND

PIANOS.
PIANOS.
PIANOS.

THE RIGHT TIME TO SAVE MONEY RIGHT NOW.

We are disposing of a large number of new and second-hand pianos this week at very low prices. We are daily expecting the arrival of a large shipment of new stock and need more room on our floors.

IT WILL BE MONEY IN YOUR POCKET TO ATTEND THIS SALE OF PIANOS.

The line includes many choice pianos, both new and second-hand. We have supplied a most extraordinary demand for the new Steger Player Piano, and in a great many cases were obliged to accept the purchasers' piano in part payment. These slightly-used pianos were accepted only in excellent order, and were placed in the very best condition by our experts, so that they are practically good as new now.

WE HAVE PRICED THESE PIANOS

AS LOW AS $118,

AND RANGING ALONG TO $125,

$135, $145, $165, $185.

The list includes high-grade standard makes as well as absolutely new pianos, many of the usual $350 grade being priced as low as $196.

IT IS A PIANO CHANCE YOU MUST NOT MISS.

SYNDICATE PRICE ALSO ON THE STEGER PLAYER PIANO.

This is the famous piano that "makes musicians of us all." It is a practical piano, of a very handsome and elegant appearance, with a practical keyboard for hand playing. When desired, it may be adapted in a moment by means of a perforated music roll, to play the most difficult music, though the operator may never have studied a note.

IT IS THE KING OF MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.

We save you $175 on one of these new $700 Steger Player Pianos, by our new syndicate purchasing method, if you come in soon.

WE SELL PIANOS $6 DOWN AND $4 A MONTH.

And hundreds of others. Before buying or selling any stock see me. You will save money. Business is coming back to normal conditions and prosperity is assured; now is the time to purchase good stocks if you only use good common sense and investigate carefully you will make money. I want you to investigate the GOLD PALMS MINING, MERCANTILE AND TRANSPORTATION CO. It has every element of SUCCESS. It owns EIGHT claims. Deeds are on record. Has nearly 400,000 shares in treasury. It's working and free from DEBT. I will make the following proposition to get money to start a GENERAL STORE at 29 Palms and start an AUTOMOBILE LINE into 29 Palms district to the new camp of GOLD PALMS. I will for the sum of $5000 give 50,000 shares of stock and a note on the company payable in two years at 10 per cent. interest, and agree to use the $5000 in the interest of the company. This is a SQUARE proposition and is done to push the work for quick results. A GENERAL STORE at 29 Palms is NEEDED and could be made to pay big. A quick method of transportation is needed for 29 Palms mining district for passenger, mail and small freight. Come and see me about it and investigate it thoroughly. GOLD PALMS M. M. & T. CO. AT 10 CENTS PER SHARE. IS A GOOD BUY.

A. J. RICHARDSON,
804 Wright & Callender Bldg.

We are the sole agents for treasury stock of the Whipple Mountain Gold and Copper Mining Co.

After a thorough inspection of the 500 feet of development work just completed by our last contractor, which work is highly satisfactory, the board of directors held their regular monthly meeting, November 10, at which time it was decided to install a pump and a thirty H. P. engine, which will enable us to sink to a depth of 700 feet, and block out large quantities of ore ready for shipment as soon as the California Arizona Railroad is completed, which is expected to be accomplished some time in January.

For the purpose of raising the necessary funds for further development a block of 20,000 shares of stock was set aside to be sold at 25 cents per share.

GOOD BONDS
TO NET 8 PER CENT. OR MORE.
THE STREET IMPROVEMENT BONDS Of Los Angeles at a basis to holder to net over 8 per cent., form of the safest, most desirable and best-paying investments available. Issued after municipal supervision and approval, they run for ten years, are payable in annual installments, interest semi-annually, and become a first lien superior to any other on property valued at 10 to 30 times the amount of the bond. They may be had in amounts from $100 and up, become a desirable investment for the wage-earner, the middle class and the rich.

These bonds form the basis of the fine street improvements for which Los Angeles is noted, are a lien on their property, which owners are universally willing to assume as a means of securing such improvements. The promptness and willingness to anticipate the payment of interest and principal of these bonds is one of the remarkable facts in connection with them.

Investigate this method of investing large or small amounts of money and call on us for information.

The present conditions of business in Los Angeles and the future prospects should inspire and enthuse any practical business man. The future is assured. That is the judgment of the most conservative. An investment now in a manufacturing or business enterprise is not looked upon as a hazzard. The business man that will sell today will ask you to pay him a profit in the near future. Our advice to you is, if you are looking for locations, to settle the matter now. The last week has been a busy one with us. We can place you now where your future is assured.

We submit a partial list of our business opportunities.
$1200—A suburban grocery, feed and fuel, with living rooms, and postoffice, which pays the rent.

$3000—Grocery, feed and fuel and meat business with the real estate. New and prosperous section of the city. This will make you a good home with income.

$6000—General stock merchandise. Outside city on electric. Rent only $20. Daily sales average $75. Fine country trade.

$7500—Grocery stock outside town. Did a business of $75,000 last year. Best location in the town.

$12,000—Prosperous business in Riverside; large storeroom and basement. Up to date. Sales $10,000 per month. Exchange for city property.

$12,000—A business, close in. New building, room 40x100 and basement. Volume of business last year $100,000. You will pay a premium on this to get it later.

$7000—Hardware and furniture business outside city.

$3000—Hardware in city. Good location. New stock and fixtures.

$3500—Hardware specialties. 4th st., close in.

$35,000—General stock. Valley town, near Santa Barbara. Rich agricultural district.

$4000—Drug stock. Everything new. Southwest. Fine prospects.

$7500—Drug stock. Old established corner; doing large business.

$3000—Manufacturing investments. Some of to the best propositions you wish to ask $40,000 for. We are glad to submit to you a great many locations we know will appeal to you.
We solicit your correspondence and will take an interest in your inquiries.

FOR SALE—
A MONEY MAKER.
IF YOU HAVE THE CASH.
A restaurant and first-class bakery, doing a cash business of over $400 daily. Last month receipts over $12,000 (can be shown on the books). A net profit of at least $1200 per month. Have the largest retail bakery on this coast. Use 3000 pounds of flour per day. Make our own candies, etc. There is big money in this for some one. Sickness in family the reason for selling. If you have the cash come and see us; might consider $4000 or $5000 in clear property. Price $15,000.

For Sale—Livery stable, stock consisting of 11 head horses, buggies, surreys, hack, park wagon, 'bus, spring wagon, double and single harness, robes, whips, tools, desk, safe, etc.; clearing $250 per month; rent $60 per month; long lease. Price $3000. No trade.

Here is a bargain—Lot 52x130, on a corner; 4-room modern cottage; also storeroom 18x24 on rear of lot. In good neighborhood. Stock of groceries and hardware, $35; doing good business. Party has other business. Will sell stock and rent building, or will sell all for $2550 cash, balance 7 per cent. Four blocks of car line.

FOR EXCHANGE—OR SALE—THE BEST opportunity ever offered, to exchange your orange, alfalfa, walnut or other income property, for a business that has been established nine years, is paying better than $3000 per year net and is capable of being doubled. It is an oil and distillate business and controls the trade of three suburban towns, and consists of the following—about one acre of ground, with two spur tracks running through the property, improved with two warehouses, a complete blacksmith shop, corral and shed for 10 head of stock, gas engine and pumps for running oil from tank cars to tanks, 5 tanks with total capacity of 100,000 gallons; 2 span of mules, three tank wagons and about 50 drums, and smaller tanks. Price $14,000. Will sell for cash, on terms or will exchange for the above mentioned properties. The ground alone is nearly worth the price, to say nothing of the plant, business and equipment. Cash is preferred, and no trade will be considered at inflated figures and from owners only. This is an unusual opportunity, don't fail to investigate it. A fine investment, with great future. J. C. PAGE, 442 Chamber of Commerce.

THE WOMAN WHO FLEW WITH WILBUR WRIGHT.

Mrs. Hart O. Berg,
the first woman to try flying in an aeroplane.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Mrs. Hart O. Berg, an Englishwoman, who has spent many years in the United States, is the first woman to make an aëroplane ascension. She recently accompanied Wilbur Wright in an experimental flight at Le Mans. In speaking of her experience, Mrs. Berg said:

"It is almost impossible to describe all the varied impressions I had of the flight. It seemed, as we slipped off the rail, that we were starting on a scenic railway trip. Then, as we began to mount, as we rose higher and higher above the crowd of onlookers, a feeling of unspeakable buoyancy came over me. Needless to say, I had never anticipated anything so wonderful—and all the time I was quite free from any sense of fear.

"I had been eager to make the ascension ever since I saw the aëroplane some months ago. I asked my husband about it. He semed willing, but after the accident in America, I didn't press the matter for some time. You may be sure that I was only too glad to grasp the opportunity when it came.

"Although I realised that I was doing something absolutely unique, it wasn't the novelty of the situation that impressed me most deeply. What came to me almost as an overwhelming revelation was the genius of the quiet, reserved man at my side—the man who has solved the problem that has mystified scientific minds for ages. In the light of this revelation everything else paled into insignificance.

"When I met Mr. Wright eighteen months ago I said to Mr. Berg 'that is a great man.' But I never understood just how great he was until my flight of a few days ago."

twice yearly, on the day preceding each future meeting of the Counties' Committee, to interchange ideas. It is expected that the promotion of California's interests, and especially of colonization work, will be thus unified. Fakers will, when discovered, be exposed by the secretaries to all State organizations.

Ralph A. Russell of Alameda was chosen president last night, succeeding Herman Charles, formerly of Riverside and El Centro. Others present were T. A. Richmond of the Manufacturer's and Producers' Association of San Francisco; A. Bertonneau of Pasadena, Colin McIsaac of Santa Cruz, Frank E. Kellogg of Santa Barbara, A. Vaughn of Oroville, W. A. Beard of Sacramento, J. A. Miller of Long Beach, and John W. Mills of San Diego.

BARGAIN CHANCES.

ACTRESS LINGERIE UP AT AUCTION.

MRS. CARTER'S UNDERWEAR IS SOLD FOR CREDITORS.

Lawn, Linen, Lace and Other Things to Wear, All of Finest Texture, Were Sold in New York Yesterday to Highest Bidders—Clothes Indicate Extreme Luxury.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Nightcaps of pink and blue silk and lace with bows and rosettes of baby ribbon to match, corset covers of lavender, blue, pink, orange and white silk and of all lace, twenty-two pairs of silk stockings in green, blue, white and black, besides other bits of lingerie, lawn, linen and lace were sold at the Fifth-avenue auction rooms today to satisfy the ungallant creditors of Mrs. Leslie Carter.

There were suits of silken underwear so sheer and fine that they could be crumpled into a handful the size of a golf ball.

Petticoats of silk and lace, night gowns, morning gowns, lounging robes, matinees—in fact, every article of wearing apparel necessary to the comfort of a woman of extreme luxury were listed.

Mrs. Carter is rather slender, and that fact may account for blue silk hip pads among her possessions. Also there will be veils, belts, shirt waists, mink furs, remnants of silk, satin and lace, gilt braid, guimpes, lace yokes, feather fans, a lot of chiffon, an ermine skin and several pounds of jewelry in one hundred odd lots that the auctioneer held up to a room full of bidders.

PASTOR SEEKS BROADER FIELD.

Dr. Myron W. Haynes Resigns from Wealthy Church Because He Has Been Hounded.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "My resignation as pastor of the Delmar Avenue Baptist Church will take effect December 1," said Rev. Dr. Myron W. Haynes yesterday afternoon when asked concerning a rumor that he would resign from that very wealthiest congregation in St. Louis' fashionable West End.

"The reason is, I desire to find a broader field. I have been hounded fifteen years and have met with great misfortune in the various churches of which I have had charge. After resigning from Beldon Avenue Church in Chicago, I applied for railway transportation for three of my wife's friends. After the Western Passenger agency posted my name withdrawing my transportation privileges as a clergyman, I denied having represented these friends as my relatives. It was understood in Chicago and Seattle, Wash., that I tried to get a rate for Mrs. Haynes's friends.

"My trouble in the First Baptist Church at Seattle was over the choice of a site for the church. There is no trouble of that kind here. A small fraction of my present congregation is hostile to me. My plan is to enter a new field of work, beginning with the raising of an endowment of Central University, at Pella, Iowa. I shall dedicate a church in Indiana a week from next Sunday."

MEXICO REVISING TARIFF.

Bill Submitted to Congress Increases Duties on Cotton and Other Fabrics.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CITY OF MEXICO (Mex.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A tariff bill has been submitted to Congress by the Department of Finance of the government. The schedule of proposed duties applies principally to cotton and other fabrics; the proposed increase in duties range from 10 to 100 per cent. Among the articles involved are sacks made of the fabrics of jute, hemp, ixtle, honequen and other fibres; all kinds of cotton fabrics, bleached or unbleached, cotton hosiery, cotton wearing apparel of various kinds; yarns, paper bags and paper envelopes. The chief object of the new measure is to protect and encourage the manufacture of these articles in Mexico.

HURRY MURDER TRIAL.

Court Wants to End Lamphere Case Before Thanksgiving Day If Possible.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

LAPORTE (Ind.) Nov. 14.—For the purpose of taking advantage of every opportunity to finish the trial of Lamphere before Thanksgiving the Circuit Court continued in session today. Prosecutor Smith was well satisfied with the progress made yesterday. He said:

"We have shown by the testimony of Coroner Mack, Sheriff Smutner and Drs. Wilcox, Long and Gray that two rings introduced by us in evidence were taken from the fingers of the adult female body found in the fire. Sheriff Smutzer swore they were similar to rings he had seen on the fingers of Mrs. Gunness during her life, but we will establish their ownership without question by the testimony of Herman Elbogan, a jeweler, who had them in his possession for cleaning, and has several times seen them on Mrs. Gunness.

"Neighbors will also support the testimony. This is all we will follow up with the addition of the dental work found near the bodies, and by Dr. Norton we will prove that the bridge had been made for Mrs. Gunness and fitted in her mouth.

"Dr. J. L. Gray, who yesterday testified that, in his opinion, the cause of death of the adult female body found in the ruins was asphyxiation, resumed the witness stand today for completion of his examination."

WILL CALL JOHN D.

Rockefeller Will Take Witness Stand in Government's Suit to Dissolve Standard Oil.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—John D. Rockefeller is expected to go on the witness stand when the hearing in the government's suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company is resumed next week, and tell the story of that gigantic corporation. It is stated that Mr. Rockefeller will be a willing witness and that for some time he has been desirous of clearing up certain matters concerning the company.

At the office of the Standard Oil Company it was stated that the company will subpoena Mr. Rockefeller, John D. Archbold, vice-president, and J. A. Moffett, a director of the Standard Oil Company, as witnesses for the company. It is expected that Mr. Archbold and Moffett will follow Mr. Rockefeller on the witness stand.

HONOR PRISON SHIP MARTYRS.

Monument Dedicated at Fort Greene Park.

Doric Column Marks Resting Place of Dead.

President-elect Taft Gives the Oration.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—With President-elect William H. Taft as the orator of the day and in the presence of an immense throng of people who crowded every point of vantage, an imposing Doric column of granite, erected in memory of the prison ship martyrs, was dedicated today.

President-elect Taft made a special trip from Hot Springs, Va., to deliver the oration. Secretary of War Wright, on behalf of the government, made the presentation address, and Gov. Charles E. Hughes, on behalf of the State, accepted the memorial.

Preceding these ceremonies at Fort Greene Park, where the monument had been erected, was a brilliant military, naval and civic parade in Brooklyn, in which detachments of the army and navy, National Guard, G.A.R. and patriotic societies took part.

In his tribute to the 10,000 men who sacrificed their lives in the prison ships, Mr. Taft said he did not wish to be understood as charging that the horrible conditions which obtained on the ships were due to premeditation of the English commander-in-chief, or to anyone in authority.

"Such charges would make the British commanders human monsters," said he. "The conditions were the result of neglect, not design."

WASHINGTON NOT TO BLAME.

He contrasted the treatment of prisoners of war in those years with that of recent times. The conduct of both Russian and Japanese prisons during the recent war in the Far East was pointed to by Mr. Taft as an example of the remarkable progress which had taken place since the days of the revolution. He defended Washington against the charge that upon him should be placed, at least a portion of the responsibility for the ill-treatment of the ship prisoners as a result of Washington's refusal to exchange the imprisoned American sailors for imprisoned British soldiers.

He said that the conditions which prevailed made it absolutely essential for Washington to retain his British soldier prisoners.

"What should be emphasized," said he, "is that the refusal of the American commander to make the proposed change was not the slightest justification for the neglect and cruelty with which the prisoners of war upon the prison hulk were treated."

WORK OF A CENTURY.

After more than a century of agitation by individuals and organizations, bones, representing approximately 15,000 "martyrs" of the Revolutionary War, who died on the prison ship Jersey, and other lesser vessels in Wallabout Bay, Brooklyn, lie at last in a fittingly marked burial place, for which the government, New York State, and hundreds of individuals made contributions.

An imposing Doric column of granite, 270 feet high, surmounted by a funeral urn and flagstaff, rises above the tomb at Fort Greene Park, Brooklyn.

The vicissitudes of the remains of the sailors and soldiers who died of fever and starvation, and rotted in the foul hulks of the British prison ships have been many and have caused more than one outburst of public indignation.

In was in 1782, at a Brooklyn town meeting, that definite steps were first urged to properly bury the remains. Nothing was done, however, until 1808, when the Tammany Society secured funds for a temporary wooden tomb, which was constructed on Hudson street.

With passing years the structure fell into decay, the bones became exposed, and children played with them. Public feeling became aroused, and in 1875 the city of Brooklyn removed all that could be collected, several loads of them, to a tomb at Fort Greene Park, under the stairs of the entrance, where they were until work was begun on the present handsome memorial, which the late Stanford White designed, and which represents about $200,000.

FRIGHTFUL EXPERIENCES.

The experiences of the prison-ship martyrs constitute one of the most frightful chapters in American history. Eleven thousand sailors and soldiers died in the Jersey alone, a ship constructed to accommodate only 400 men, into which more than 1000 prisoners were usually crushed. Many were kept there for years.

A survivor, Capt. Thomas Dring, vividly depicted the scenes of the horrible incarceration:

"Registered and sent below, newcomers suffered terribly from the intolerable heat and foul air, and when they sought the narrow air holes they found them blocked by others, who fought with all their strength for even the faintest breath of the precious air."

Of the bread furnished the prisoners, the Rev. Thomas Andros wrote in his account:

"I do not recollect seeing any which was not full of living vermin, but eat it, worms and all, we must or starve."

The condition of the great copper in which the prisoners' meat was boiled is thus described in the memoirs of Ebenezer Fox, also a prisoner aboard the Jersey:

"The inside of the copper had become corroded to such a degree that it was lined with a coat of verdegris. The Jersey, from her size and lying near the shore, was imbedded in the mud; and I do not recollect seeing her afloat during the whole time I was a prisoner. All the filth which accumulated among from upward of 1000 men was daily thrown overboard, and would remain there until carried away by the tide. The impurity of the water may be easily conceived, and in this water our meat was boiled."

BIG DEAL ABOUT CLOSED.

American Tobacco Company Will Probably Buy Entire Burley Pool Holdings Next Week.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The big tobacco deal between the American Tobacco Company and the Burley Society, while not closed yet, is about completed, and will probably come to a head during next week. The offer of the American Tobacco Company has been made, and it is understood it is satisfactory to the society people. All it needs is an indorsement by the executive committee of the society.

President Lebus of the Burley society left the city tonight for Cincinnati, and before going said:

"The deal has not been finally closed, but I cannot see why it should not go through."

R. E. Smith, representing the American Tobacco Company, said that his company is, and has always been ready to pay a fair price for the holdings of the society, and he has hopes that the deal will be closed at an early date. It is now said that the American Company will take over the entire Burley pool of about 80,000,000 pounds, at an amount which will be in the aggregate something like $4[illegible],000,000.

METCALF IS BETTER.

Secretary Visits Desk in Navy Department, Arranging for His Departure.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Secretary Metcalf was able to be at his desk today and begin preparations for his departure for California, which will not be much if any beyond the time when his resignation goes into effect on December 1.

He remarked to callers that the mere sending of his resignation had already a beneficial effect upon him. He said he felt better than he had for a long time, simply, he supposed, because he had relieved himself of the worries of his office. His plans for the future have not been matured beyond the general statement that he is going to resume the practice of law.

THIS IS THE MILLENNIUM.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "We are living in a millennium now," declared Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, who made an address on "Oliver Cromwell" before the Cook County Teachers' Association in the association auditorium today. Dr. Hillis was comparing, or contrasting, the present times with those of Charles I of England and Oliver Cromwell. He said that the time of Charles I was an age of "grafting."

"Don't go around looking for a bunch of thorns to sit on," he said.

"Don't get a bunch of thistles and thrust it into the faces of the family at breakfast. Don't talk of the good old days of the fathers. If we only knew the truth we would confess that there were no good old days of the fathers.

"If all the miserable pessimists and muck rakers could be put back in the time of Oliver Cromwell and soused up to their necks they would come back all wreathed in smiles and contentment.

"People speak about the good old times of 100 years ago. Why, 100 years ago slaves were sold on the streets of Philadelphia."

Dr. Hillis referred to "Boss" Tweed's record in New York and then proceeded to call Charles I the "Prince of Grafters."

"The only difference I can find between Charles I and Judas Iscariot," he said, "is that Charles I threw off 12 per cent. for cash. These men in San Francisco, Schmitz and Ruef, who stole everything in sight, were Sunday-school children in comparison with Charles I."

Senator James M. Dixon of Montana has been selected to preside at the formal dinner to be given at the New Willard, Washington, on Saturday, November 21 in honor of William H. Taft and James S. Sherman, at which Chairman Hitchcock also will be a guest of honor, says a dispatch to Missoula, Montana.

I Cure Piles

DR. C. H. WHITE,
Rectal Specialist.

WITHOUT PAIN OR WITHOUT OPERATION
BY MY NEW DISSOLVENT METHOD

Piles may be alleviated by washes, salves or cones, but never cured. The knife will cure you, but you may not desire a surgical operation. With my treatment

AN OPERATION IS ABSOLUTELY UNNECESSARY

I cure without cutting, cauterising or using any surgical instrument. My method is new and absolute in its results, for I dissolve the piles without pain and without detention from business. This dissolvent treatment is absolutely my own and no other physician is using it.

I GUARANTEE TO CURE

every case I undertake or accept no fee for my services. My method is safe, with absolutely no danger of sloughing, blood poison or injury to neighboring parts.

I have cured hundreds of people in Los Angeles and surrounding towns and can cure you. Send for names and addresses of your friends and neighbors I have cured.

Most cases of constipation are the result of some form of trouble in the lower bowel, which serves to dry the bowel contents. By removink the cause I cure permanently, cases of constipation. I will examine you free of charge and determine just what your affliction is.

Read a few letters I am receiving almost daily.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 21, 1908.

My Dear Mr. White:

You ask me how I am. I will say that I am perfectly well; not a relic of the piles remain. The few painless treatments that you gave me have cured that awful hemorrhage that has been of daily occurrence for the last ten years. The tumors that protruded almost constantly while awake are gone. I would not take a thousand dollars for what you have done for me with your dissolvent treatment. Yours very truly,

R. F. LIVINGSTON.

1157 Hobson street.

October 22, 1908.

I take great pleasure in making this statement of my case. I am prompted to do so that the world may know there is at last a perfect cure for piles. I learned of Dr. White and his cure for piles through a neighbor, who had been cured of that disease by him. I left my home in Colorado and came to Los Angeles, where I began treatment on June 11th. I arrived at my home on August 15th, entirely cured, having had eight treatments. The treatments were not painful and I improved from the first. Before I went to Dr. White I was practically an invalid. MRS. RUFUS SMALL.

Formerly of Redondo, Cal.

Terminal, Cal., Oct. 23, 1908.

To Sufferers from Piles:

For twenty years I have been a sufferer from protruding piles, that bled and from which I suffered constant pain; I had what my doctor called anemia from loss of blood; I was incapacitated from my manual labor.

I heard of Dr. White and his absorbent method of treating piles. I employed him without faith, as I had paid out much money for remedies and all treatment had been a failure. Dr. White cured me; I am entirely well. I have regained my color and can work at anything.

F. E. EGGLESTON, Ship-builder.

Pasadena, Cal., Oct. 20, 1908.

Dear Doctor White:

I am writing you this letter that others may know what you have done for me. For twenty years I have been a Southern Pacific locomotive engineer. Two years ago, on account of severe rectal trouble (piles and fissure) I was compelled to give up my job. For sixteen months I treated with different doctors and tried numerous remedies. At last, when worn out and discouraged, I heard of you. In two months, under your treatment I was a well man. I will be glad to verify this statement to any one interested. THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

An excellent demand along all lines closed the week. Particularly on the Produce Exchange there were some good trades. An activity in local fresh ranch eggs caused an unloading of the little stock which various dealers held into the hands of one man, who now has practical control of all the local case count eggs in the city. The total buy, made up of a number of small sales, was 168 cases, and the price paid for them ranged between 46 and 49 cents, with a firm close at the top, where the price remains until tomorrow, when more trading may change it in a slight measure. All eggs of eastern and storage stock were firm. The receipts of the day were only 75 cases.

Butter is selling better now at the higher quotation than when the change was first made. tI will stick undoubtedly for the greater portion of the month and then may go higher. Receipts were 13,148 pounds. Offerings were light.

Cheese receipts were 2966 pounds. Limburger, cream brick and some of the fancier cheese sold well on the street, while staples were offered in ordinary quantities on the exchange.

With receipts of 1850 sacks of potatoes, the market was active. Dealers endeavored to make good clearances at the end of the week and on 'Change a car of fancy Highlands was sold. A very few Oregon spuds are coming in, while on the other hand Salinas tubers are fairly plentiful and grade highest in quality.

Onion receipts were 168 sacks. Australian Browns were offered in large lots, but apparently were not wanted. Wagon receipts of onions were heavy.

The heavy bean receipts at the beginning of the week dwindled to very light ones toward the close. Saturday only 38 sacks of outside beans were shipped in. There were fair offerings of pinks, small whites and limas.

The sweet potato market is showing firmness right along, and prices as advanced during the week are holding up well. Receipts were 225 sacks.

The beginning of the end to the apple season is at hand. Most of the summer apples have all been shipped and those arriving at present are the winter storage stock. The demand holds up well and is of good size. Apples will not go very high during the winter on account of the immense storage holdings of the present time. Yesterday receipts were 3617 sacks.

Vegetables and fruits have held about the same throughout the week, and the stock has on every day been ample to fill the demand, sometimes even being superabundant.

Grain and hay have been fluctuating. Barley and wheat have gone up while corn is down. Hay is firm at the higher prices made this week, and there have been some good receipts from the North. Alfalfa from the North has been quoted at a dollar less than local stock.

Meats remain unaltered and the entire feature of the butchers' market rests in poultry. With turkeys going well even now and prices higher than last year, the days previous to Thanksgiving will undoubtedly be prolific for all handlers of fowls.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

BRISK TRADING ENDS THE WEEK.

BOND SALES AT GOOD PRICES DAY'S FEATURE.

Market Closes With Undertone That Indicates Strong Opening Tomorrow—Associated Oil Lower—Rumor of Larger Dividend Causes Especial Demand for First National Bank.

For a Saturday trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange was exceptionally brisk. The character of the securities handled also was a feature, as several thousand dollars worth of high grade investment bonds changed hands at good prices and advances were scored by several leading issues. The market had such a strong undertone that much business is anticipated for the ensuing week.

As was predicted, Associated Oil closed lower than on the previous session and it was evident that there was more stock to sell than buying orders, not a share was handled on the floor. The close was at 36.12½@37.00, off 1 5-8 and 1 3-4 points, respectively. The stock was weaker here than in San Francisco, where it closed at 37.00@37.25.

The slump is regarded as natural. A banker, in close touch with market conditions, said yesterday: "There's a barrel of the stuff lying around, on which the holders can see a handsome profit, even on the present falling prices. Why should the price remain high?" Nearly $3,000,000 worth of $25 stock was taken by stockholders not two months ago. Many buyers used borrowed capital, and now that a handsome profit has been scored, these men are selling and cleaning up their loans.

Eight thousand dollars worth of Associated Oil bonds were sold at between 84 1-4 and 84 3-8. The close was 1-4 higher in the bid at 84½@86½. One $500 bond of the Riverside Home Telephone Company changed hands at 67 and at the close the security was quoted at 70, with no bid. One $1000 bond of the Pacific Light and Power Company was sold at 91, and the close was at 90@95½, off 1 and 3½ points, respectively. An off board transaction in two $1000 Edison Electric first refundings at 100½ was reported. The demand for these bonds remained good, and they closed at 99½@102. Home firsts were up ½ point in the bid and 1½ points in the asked price, closing at 82@89. Union Transportation closed at 90@92, off ½ point in the latter price.

Three thousand shares of Olinda Land were sold at 19@20, the stock closing in very strong demand at 20@21, showing a rise of 1½ and 1 point, respectively. There was 7-8 point advance scored in the bid for Amalgamated, while the asked price was 4 points under the market of Friday, the close being at 75.00@86.00. Brookshire was off 5 points, at 1.30, with no bid. Central closed off 1 point in the asked, at 91@95. Columbia was quoted at 1.00@1.05, up 2 points in the holding price. The Union Oil issues showed one or two fractional changes.

Home preferred closed with a ½ point advance in the bid, and a gain of 5 points in the asked price at 50.50@55.00. The common closed with a 1 point gain in the bid, at 10.00@14.00.

The bank stocks showed an increasingly strong undertone, and a good deal of inquiry was reported for them off board. Especially was this so in the case of First National Bank, which was said to be wanted at any reasonable price by half a dozen conservative brokers. The reason for the demand was a rumor that the already large dividend paid by this institution is to be increased. Neither confirmation nor denial was obtainable at the bank yesterday.

Clark Copper sold up to 14, a total of 5000 shares changing hands at that price. The close was steady at 13@14.

There was considerable activity in Searchlight Parallel, and sales were made at 6 1-4@5 3-4. Consolidated Mines sold at 3 1-4@3 1-8, and Johnnie Consolidated, at 2 1-8.

LITTTLE DEMAND FOR LEADERS.

Few Changes on Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange—Cheap Issues Wanted.

The mining market on the Los Angeles-Nevada Exchange closed in about the same condition, yesterday, as on Friday. There was little demand for the Goldfield leaders and, as a result, few changes in prices. Most of the acivity was in the cheaper issues.

There was considerable interest manifested in California Hills, although not a share changed hands. The absence of all floor trading was regarded as giving a basis for the rumors of "wash" sales, although the reports of failures to clear, so prevalent on Friday, had subsided, and it was stated that the brokers in question had made their trades good.

There was trading in Combination Fraction at 1.34@1.36 and the close was at 1.35@1.36, showing a substantial advance over closing quotations of Friday. There were 100 shares of Goldfield Consolidated sold at 6.70, and the stock closed with a 5-point advance in the bid, at 6.65@6.70. Daisy was quoted at 98@1.02, off 1 point in the bid. None was sold.

Minor trading was carried on in Blue Bull at 13; Black Hill Fraction at 2; Consolidated Mines at 3 3-8; Hermosa at 2½; Johnnie Consolidated at 2 1-4; Lige Harris at 9.00 a thousand shares; Parallel at 6; Triangle at 4, and Jim Butler at 22.

Twenty shares of Associated Oil were sold, ten at 36.00 and ten at 37.00.

SAN FRANCISCO LIST.

MARKET QUIET AT WEEK-END.

STOCKS HOLD STEADY AND MUCH BETTER TONE PREVAILS.

Goldfield Leaders Close in Demand and Prominent Brokers Say Outlook Is Good for Ensuing Week—Manipulation Planned in Rawhide Stocks by New York Traders.

[Special service to The Times by B. F. Taylor, Citizens' National Bank Bldg. Member Los Angeles-Nevada Mining Exchange.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—The usual Saturday dullness prevailed, although stocks held steady. There was a better feeling at the close and improved conditions and prices are looked for by some of the leading brokers. Goldfield Consolidated was in demand and gained 7 1-2 points. Florence was off 2 1-2 points; Daisy lost one point. Combination Fraction showed considerable strength with high sales at 1.37 1-2, and the closing bid at 1.35, up five points from yesterday.

The Tonopahs were sluggish, at about yesterday's quotations, except Belmont, which was off 2 1-2 points; Tonopah Extension which was up 3 points. Rawhide Coalition was again the feature, selling at 68, closing 67 bid, up 8 points from yesterday.

A telegram received from Salt Lake said that "Jakey" Field, a prominent member of the New York Stock Exchange, had in hand the campaign on Rawhide stocks on the New York curb, especially Rawhide Queen and Coalition and was quoted as saying that Coalition will go up to $2 in this movement. The New York curb closed strong with stocks in demand.

As compared with last Saturday, the quotations show very few changes. Coalition exhibiting the biggest movement, up 22 points from the bid price of a week ago. Booth is off 7 points, while the leaders do not show a difference of 2 1-2 points either way. Following are the closing bid and prices asked, with sales on the formal call.

WALL STREET SLOWS DOWN.

OPERATORS GET IN SHAPE FOR SUNDAY'S QUIET.

Marked Decline from Furious Activity of Friday and Statement Attributed to President Corey of the United States Steel Corporation Also Increases Tendency to Pause.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The slowing down of the speculative space in the stock market today from that of yesterday was due in part, no doubt, to customary practice of evening up all financial transactions with the close of the week. The disposition to do this is the more pronounced in the case of commitments dependent on such a delicate balance as that on which stock prices hang, especially after so animated a speculation and so pronounced a rise in prices as has occurred this week.

The Sunday closed interval with the possibility of sudden events which might prove a shock to the market fabric makes the practiced operator in stocks dread leaving open a vulnerable position. There was a garnering of profits accrued by those prompted by this sentiment. There was a marked decline also from yesterday's furious activity. One or two items in the day's news increased the tendency to pause. One was the statement attributed to President Corey, of the U. S. Steel Corporation, placing the present working of its mills at 60 per cent. of capacity, and putting forward the probable date for restoration of normal healthful conditions of business to the middle of next summer.

The action of U. S. Steel had a strong sympathetic effect on the whole market. It was scarcely counteracted by the vigorous upward movement in some other stocks on the list. The New York transactions were among these, not only the stocks but bonds of that group rising buoyantly.

Prospects for reorganizations were ascribed as the motive for the movements. The strength of this group and of some others, led a good rally in the second hour, but prices weakened again sharply at the close. The bank statement disclosed a larger gain in cash than had been expected and the active week in financial and speculative markets was reflected in the loan expansion which was slated at $5,000,000 in the clearinghouse averages, but $11,925,000 in the actual condition, with a supplementary increase of $7,842,800 by the other banks and trust companies. The decrease in circulation of $2,270,-800 reported by the clearinghouse banks marks the retirement of notes issued against the one-year U. S. treasury certificates which will mature on November 24.

Bonds were strong. Total sales, par value, $4,400,000.

U. S. 3s advanced ¼ per cent. on call during the week.

GENERAL EASTERN.

WHEAT MARKET IS DEPRESSED.

CLOSES STEADY WITH PRICES UNCHANGED.

Heavy Rains in Argentina Encouraged Bears, but the Pit Was Extremely Dull—Demand in Northwest Showed Falling Off and Exports Were at Standstill.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Additional rain in Argentina had a depressing effect on the local wheat market today, but the close was steady, with prices unchanged to 1-8 higher, compared with final quotations of the previous session. Corn was strong; oats were easy, and provisions steady.

Dullness of a pronounced type characterized trading in the wheat pit, and sentiment during the greater part of the day was bearish. News of the day was almost entirely of a kind to encourage the bears. Heavy rains were reported in Central Argentina, and light showers were said to have visited the southern section, where the drouth has been severe. An estimate of the amount of wheat which will be available for export from this year's crop of Wheat in Argentina placed the amount at 147,000,000 bushels, about the same as that of the previous year. Receipts in the Northwest were liberal, and the demand for cash wheat at Winnipeg was extremely dull. Export business was also at a standstill, both in the Northwest and at the seaboard. Cash wheat at the sample tables was in slow demand at steady prices. After fluctuating over a range of 3-8 to 5-8@3-4, the market closed with December at 1.03 1-4 and May 1.07 5-8.

Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 457,000 bushels. Buying of a line of corn for May delivery, estimated at 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels by a leading elevator was the cause of strength in the market the entire session. The close was at net gains of 1-4@1-2 to 5-8, with December 63 1-4@63 3-4, and May at 62.

There was an improved demand by easterners for the cash grain, and prices at the sample tables were up half.

Trade in oats was extremely dull, and prices moved over a range of about 1-4. Prices at the sample tables were 1-8 higher. The market closed steady with prices unchanged to 1-8@1-4 lower, with December at 48 7-8 and May 51@51 1-8.

Provisions were dull nearly all day. Prices at the close were a shade higher.

New York Cotton Market.

[By Private Wire to E. F. Hutton & Co., Bankers and Brokers. Members New York Stock Exchange, No. 112 West Third street.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Big spot interests were good buyers early.

Theodore Price estimates the amount of cotton ginned up to November 14, at 10,010,000 bales. The estimate, while heavy, did not effect the market.

Hill says:—"Cables were little higher than expected. So long as the crop movement continues at the rate of 600,000 bales a week it will be hard to get an advance in prices of any great volume, but when a continuation of these enormous mills takings follows after the movement then we will see much higher prices.

The World's visible supply of cotton, total of all kinds is 3,842,159 bales, compared with 3,523,361 bales last year and 3,900,000 bales in 1906.

Hill says:—"This visible statement is terrifically bullish. Mill takings for week 464,000 bales against 281,000 bales last year. Year's takings by mills are now 2,631,000 bales against 2,144,000 bales a year ago. The movement of cotton will stop some day, and then if this sort of demand prevails cotton will show its merits. The figures may halt the decline.

The New York Commercial says:—Liverpool is due to come unchanged to one point down. It was the same old fight that has been waged for some time. There seemed to be plenty of buying orders just under the market and the room bears were just as willing to hammer at the least sign of weakness as ever. "Heavy movement" says the bears, "big demand" say the bulls—and the market stands still.

Greene says: "Liverpool was due half to one lower. They closed unchanged to one higher. The world's spinners takings for week of all kinds, is very bullish, being 443,000, bales vs. 270,000 bales last year. Mills are no doubt after cotton and, it will tell on the market later. The trouble just now is nothing more than a movement and heavy hedge selling that is keeping the market down. From all reports, the movement is expected to show a falling off in next week or so. I would buy March around 8.75, as there are big buying orders in the market at that level."

M. S. & Co., says: "We believe the present price level has been secured by speculation to an extent sufficient to make it vulnerable to pressure."

H. S. & Co., says: "The South has liquidated a large percentage of its indebtedness and is in position to hold the balance of its crop for higher prices."

C. B. & Co., says: "With the disposition to increase crop estimates and the continuation of large movement before the next ginners report, there may be a temporary decline, but these declines don't change the natural position of values."

CALIFORNIA FARM LANDS

SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY

Many New Settlers Building Homes in the New Farming Addition Being Placed on the Market by the Morse Development Co.

A Chance for the Man of Moderate Means to Get a 10 or 20-Acre Ranch at a Small Cash Outlay and Where He is Absolutely Assured of Making a Living from the Start.

From the L. A. Express Nov. 8, 1908.

Much activity has marked the close of October business for the S. F. B. Morse Development Company. Their sales amounting to $16,000. Their first subdivision being almost sold out and many new settlers have bought land and are building homes.

The plan of selling to homeseekers met with much approval, and any one interested in farm lands is absolutely satisfied after calling at the Morse Development Company's offices, 531 S. Spring street, Los Angeles, 219 Montgomery street, San Francisco, that they are offering the best land opportunity in California. They sell five, ten and twenty-acre tracts with water developed ready for irrigation, the water being distributed in underground conduits to each lot.

Many of the settlers that located two years ago, and are now independent, are brining in their friends to locate. The land adjoins the town of Delano, on the main line of the Southern Pacific railroad. There are schools, churches, stores, a bank, and many other enterprises that go to make a prosperous town. This land is ideal for oranges, lemons, peaches, grapes, alfalfa and all early garden truck. A new crop of peas, beans, tomatoes and potatoes now twelve inches above the ground. The country offers good inducements for dairying or chicken raising.

Many inquiries are being received regarding the next subdivision about to be placed on the market, and the company has a very interesting display of their products and conditions at their offices. They extend an invitation to all of those interested in country lands to come and talk it over with them and get descriptive literature, and have arranged to have their offices open evenings, and if you cannot call write for their illustrated circular.

A Promising Goldfield Lease

On the February claim of the GOLDFIELD CONSOLIDATED PROPERTY, owned, controlled and operated by Los Angeles Business Men.

The FEBRUARY PREMIER MINING AND LEASING COMPANY has secured what is regarded as one of the most promising leaseholds on the developed estate of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, embracing 400x600 feet on the south end of the February Claim on the direct strike of the January vein, and within 450 feet of known and developed rich shipping ore.

The Officers and Directors of the February Premier Mining and Leasing Company are:

GEORGE F. FEAGANS, President,	President of Brock & Feagans, Los Angeles.
GEORGE B. CHURCH, Vice-President,	Chief Geologist of the Engineering Staff of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company, and in charge of all underground work.
EDWARD H. SCHIEK, Treasurer,	Brock & Feagans, Los Angeles.
L. T. MERWIN, Director,	Chief Engineer, Mechanical Dept., Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company.
LEWIS de SALLIER, Director,	Mining, Goldfield.
C. B. GILLESPIE, Secretary and Attorney,	Of Campbell, Metzen & Brown, leading attorneys of Goldfield, Rhyolite and Tonopah.

The January vein is known to be from 30 to 50 feet wide, carrying average values above $50.00, and has many high grade streaks. Should the vein continue as all indications point, the Premier Lease will have 400 feet in length on this vein.

From this same vein, January Jones Leasing Company took $600,000.00 before the claim became a part of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company. This vein is proven to within 450 feet of the North side line of the Premier, averages 50 feet wide, shows no signs of displacement. Surface indications are perfect for a continuance through the Premier leasehold.

Contract has been let for the sinking of a double compartment shaft to a depth of 300 feet, in eighty days, at the exceptionally low price of $15.00 a foot. Electric power is being used for hoisting. The T. & T. R. R. Co.'s tracks are within forty feet of the Premier workings and ore can be loaded into cars by gravity.

Based on their own experience and the best mining judgment that the officers and directors of this Lease have been able to secure, they are firm in the belief that the Premier ground has the greatest possibilities of any undeveloped ground in the entire Goldfield District, and they believe it is entirely probable that the proven Combination vein runs into the Premier Lease and that it may intersect the rich Reilly vein, from which $1,500,000.00 was taken in 70 days, on their ground.

The lease has 18 months to run from November 1st.

The character and reputation of the Los Angeles business men at the head of this Company are sufficient guarantee of the honest fulfillment of any and every promise made, and the interest of every stockholder will be jealously looked after. The experience of the Goldfield men and their high positions in the Consolidated Company assure the best mining judgment and management.

The stock will be listed on the New York curb and the Los Angeles Exchange as soon as 100,000 shares are disposed of.

STOCK OFFER

I offer for public subscription the unsold balance of 100,000 shares of Treasury stock at 15c per share, and heartily recommend the purchase. Special Announcement

The Los Angeles Desk Exchange announce the arrival of a solid car of sanitary office furniture from the Dietz factory.

This shipment includes positively the first high grade, cheap priced, sanitary office desks to be offered for sale in Los Angeles.

At the present time--to buy other than a sanitary desk--is exactly like buying an old model automobile.

Throughout the East--nothing else is being sold and such will soon be the case here.

Call and see them--we will take in exchange your old furniture and allow you liberally on the same. We would also like to show you some rare bargains in slightly used desks--both roll top and flat top.

During Prosperty Week--we will pack all desks free of charge and pay half the freight to neighboring towns.

SUDDEN RUSH FOR REALTY.

Dealers Say Last Ten Days Liveliest of All.

Big Call for Properties to Rent and to Sell.

Quick Returns on All Deals They Advertise.

Never in the history of the Los Angeles real estate market has there been so sudden a change from a condition of quiet to one of activity as has taken place in the last week or ten days, following the election of William H. Taft. Though the dealers are of varied political beliefs, all agree in the general statement that they never before witnessed a revival of business such as has taken place since the day following the election. It has been a big boom backed by real money, without the usual accompaniment of superheated air.

Prominent advertisers say they never before received such prompt returns from the money invested in the promotion of publicity as has come from their announcements of sale and rental propositions within the days following the election.

Facts speak louder than words, and if any one were to question the truth of statements presented by real estate dealers coming back again into clover, charging that partisan politics entered into the matter, all that would be necessary would be to call up Oscar E. Farish, real estate dealer, once Democratic aspirant for nomination to the Mayoralty, and one of the big Bryan boosters of the campaign just ended. There are many other Democrats in the list of dealers in "dirt;" not one denies that the situation "looks good."

STRICTLY NON-PARTISAN.

The outcome of a national election might not be looked upon as influential in guiding a man as to the selection of a city or section in which to rent a house—and maybe it has no bearing upon the question—but the fact is that there has been a tremendous increase within the last week of the number of applicants for houses to rent in Los Angeles. One prominent dealer said yesterday that it is simply impossible to find enough desirable houses to fill the rental demands of his clients.

Orange ranches, farm lands of all kinds, even houses and lots, or lots alone in the smaller communities are called for now in a way that really surprises trained agents, who are accustomed to periors of quiet. Hundreds of easterners recently arrived seek homes in Los Angeles or its suburbs, and hundreds of others want ranches, either in this immediate vicinity or in the San Joaquin Valley and other sections where unlimited advantages are held out.

As a result of the great demand that has developed, the agents are going after business more industriously than has been their inclination for the last few months, the fact that there is a big market for all kinds of property prompting them to "get busy."

WRIGHT OPTIMISTIC.

"We noticed the difference in conditions almost immediately after the election," said Gilbert S. Wright of the Wright & Callender Company. "The demand for places to rent, both for business and residence purposes, has been especially marked in the last ten days. It has gone far ahead of any like period in many months. There is more than the usual call for industrial property and for business locations. The outlook is rosy; we anticipate an extraordinary winter and spring business. When it comes to the outlook for Los Angeles, I probably am too much of an optimist to speak my mind, and expect my statements to be taken seriously, but I venture to say, anyway, that the next three years will make the last three years appear small in comparison and you know that for two of the three years just past we enjoyed phenomenal prosperity and made wonderful growth. Factors that will help us in the next three years are the completion, or the near completion, of the Panama Canal, the Owens River project, San Pedro harbor, and the good roads for which we have provided millions.

"There has been an unusual demand lately by renters of residence property, and by purchasers of the same class of real estate. Houses ranging in cost from $2500 to $15,000 are called for by renters and buyers.

"It seems that we have not enough five and six-room bungalows to go around, either for renters or buyers. Many of this class of buildings are going up rapidly in all parts of the city, but not fast enough to fill the demand. Scores of our clients in the last few weeks have bought homes here and will stay with us.

"In the next ten or fifteen years, I look for Los Angeles to be the most densely-populated section in the United States. This is laying it on pretty strong, I know, but I believe it. Business property that has sold within the last few months at $6000 a front foot will, within a few years, I believe, be selling at $12,000."

WANT HOMES AND RANCHES.

Percy H. Clark of the company bearing his name is equally optimistic. He has extensive real estate interests in many parts of Southern California, including such high-class property as Beverly Hills, and the Big Field ranch in Kern county, the former a residence district and the latter a farming district. It is especially for fine ranch land, with plenty of water that the great bulk of inquiries are coming from the East, and particularly from near-by country districts, says Mr. Clark.

"It is wonderful what a stimulus the election of Taft has had on business," said he. "Before the election, for a period of two or three weeks I advertised a great deal, especially regarding the farming lands, and I only received one answer. This in itself was remarkable, as showing the apparent lack of interest at that time. But now, within a little more than a week, there have been scores of inquiries, and when I say that I have practically sold under contract at least $50,000 worth of property, it is a modest estimate. A point I would like to make is that many of those buying land for themselves formerly rented land, and have done so well that they are becoming property owners in their own right."

"THINGS LOOK AWFUL GOOD."

"It is astonishing what a revival has taken place since election," said Robert Marsh of Robert Marsh & Co. "Things look awful good. We have sold many city and suburban lots, and many residences within the last ten days. The greatest demand with us has been for city houses and lands. We are just about to put the Mt. Washington tract on the market, and the calls that already have come to us indicate what an interest the people are taking in getting home sites and in making safe investments. Such activity has been unknown for more than a year, and I expect to see it grow each day."

"There is a particular demand for rental property, for houses that will rent at from $35 to $75 a month in the best residence districts of Los Angeles," said Oscar E. Farish of Mines & Farish. "Many easterners in quest of temporary homes, to provide for them until they can buy, have come to us for such places, and, though it has been quite generally supposed that there were many vacant houses, we have found difficulty in filling our orders.

"There is a good demand, too, for stores and other business property. Only in the last few days we have closed leases for Broadway business houses for terms of five years. Money is easier, too; it is easier to secure loans than it was even a month ago. Things certainly are picking up all along the line."

SAME STORY ALL OVER.

R. A. Rowan & Co., Edward D. Silent & Co., the Newport and Milner Company, the Southwest Land Company, W. I. Hollingsworth & Co., the Beaumont Land Company, James R. H. Wagner, who handles the Cudahy Ranch property, and other extensive dealers in city and country property report similar conditions.

"There has been an exceptional demand for farm property," said Arthur W. Fisher, one of the directors of the Homeland Irrigated Farms Company, which has a 10,000-acre tract in Kings county, eight miles south of Corcoran. Calls have come from many eastern people, and more from Los Angeles and the smaller places round-about. From present indications, we shall sell out all our holdings within the next three or four months.

H. V. Blenkiron of Blenkiron Brothers, who are handling the Blythe Ranch property near the Colorado River, says the number of inquiries for ranch lands has been remarkable. The tract is sold in forty to sixty-acre tracts, with water. Eight homeseekers were sent to the big tract last week, and more than that number will go this week. Forty carloads of emigrant outfit have gone into the region within the last month.

TWO-THIRD INCREASE.

"The business has increased two-thirds since the election," said Mr. Blenkiron, "and it has just started."

The California City Lands Company, which has 15,000 acres in Kings county, just south of Hanford, and which started to advertise only last week, will send its first excursion into that section next Tuesday night. A number of eastern farmers and local ranchers and investors will go in the party. "We have had more than 250 inquiries as the result of our brief advertising campaign," said P. D. Plumb, a member of the company, "and we already are assured of a lively business for several months to come, or until our tract is closed out."

George C. Peckham of the company bearing his name, is another of the enthusiasts. His company not only handles city and suburban property, but has thousands of acres in the fertile San Joaquin Valley.

"We have sold more than $85,000 worth of ranch property since July 1," said Mr. Peckham, "and the great increase in the demand and sale has come since the election. One interesting feature in our advertising campaign is the fact that I have but recently received eight letters from Holland and Belgium and one from Brazil, with others from various other parts of the world, inquiring as to the cost of beet sugar and other lands.

"There really is a remarkable demand for residences and ranches that sell for from $3000 to $15,000. We have had calls, too, from people desirous of starting manufacturing industries in Los Angeles.

"It all goes to show that we need not wait for the return of the prosperity wave; it is here."

BIG FIND OF FLOUR.

How Woman Charity Solicitor Is Rewarded by a Generous Local Excursion Manager.

A solicitor of charity for the Volunteers of America had a surprise yesterday.

She went to the Globe Mills with her plea for the poor, and was told by the management that it had $125 worth of flour in the mill that belonged to C. M. Pierce, the "Balloon Route" man, and that she might get some of that.

It was explained that Pierce had donated $500 worth of flour to the Associated Charities last winter, but the society had never exhausted the credit given it by the generous excursion manager.

The solicitor quickly sought Pierce and secured a gift of ten barrels of the flour for the Volunteers, as her reward for finding it, though she would never have done so but for the integrity of the mill management. The remainder was then parceled out by the original donor to Bethlehem Institution, the Salvation Army and the Associated Charities.

FIGHT FOR BIG ESTATE.

Relatives of Bernard Lowenstein, Memphis Millionaire, Start Contest of His Will.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

MEMPHIS (Tenn.) Nov. 14.—The struggle for a fortune left by Bernard Lowenstein, millionaire dry goods merchant of this city, later of New York and Europe, was renewed in all its bitterness yesterday.

Heirs in Chicago, New York and various parts of Europe, where Bernard Lowenstein resided and visited during the last thirty years of his life, are responsible for the suit.

Bernard Lowenstein came to Memphis before the Civil War, and by selling lead pencils he laid the foundation for a business that has developed into one of the most prosperous of the Southern States.

He was created a knight by King Oscar of Sweden, a few years before his death.

The complainants allege that Bernard Lowenstein died in November, 1906, without issue and unmarried, and that he left an estate of more than $1,000,000. They charge that the instrument filed in the Probate Court here January 30, 1905, and purporting to be Lowenstein's will, was not his last testament, but that the executors dictated its contents so they would become heirs to $1,000,000, which they declared is more than they are legally entitled to.

ON WESTERN AVENUE.

Mines & Farish report the exchange of the handsome two-story ten-room residence at No. 973 Western avenue, on lot 75x130 feet, for $12,000. The grantor is Josephine Jack, and the grantee F. B. Preston. The latter exchanged the property at No. 962 Vermont avenue, consisting of a seven-room bungalow on a lot 50x160 feet, with barn, etc., valued at $6250, and a lot on Hobart boulevard, near Twenty-ninth street, 50x145 feet, valued at $1500, as part payment, settling the difference in cash.

IN WEST ADAMS SECTION.

W. F. Young has sold to Spencer H. Smith the two-story twelve-room residence at No. 119 West Adams street for $17,500. The sale was made through the agency of Bryan & Bradford. The purchaser bought for an investment. The property is between Hoover street and Vermont avenue.

SUPPLICATION.

WHAT MAKES TORREY GREAT.

Went the Pace When Young Law Student.

First Triumph in Australia as Evangelist.

Has Great Expectations of Result Here.

It doesn't always take a great man to interest others in the gospel of Jesus Christ.

Preachers and evangelists have accomplished the feat to a greater or less degree, it may be, by tricks of oratory and appeals to the emotions, but a man who is not great could surely never cause men to turn-about face in scores and hundreds, by the plain, unemotional methods followed by Dr. R. A. Torrey.

He presents his arguments to the thousands who sit before him, as a rule, much as an earnest, responsible business man would present a business proposition to men of means who have confidence in what he says, and they take him at his word.

It was by just such methods that Dr. Torrey was lost to the bar and won to the pulpit by Dwight L. Moody.

Young Torrey had entered Yale at the age of 15, and was ambitious to become a great lawyer. His father was a banker at Hoboken, N. J., and his son had within his grasp not only all the educational advantages, but luxuries were his, and he was a young lion of society.

He "went the pace" in more ways than one, and by his own statement, became a gambler, among his other moral laches. He fell under the spell of atheism, and scoffed at the religious teaching of his childhood, and once became so despondent over the prospects of a wasted life that he attempted suicide. When he had finished his university course, he was led to "see a great light," and as he received his diploma, he also received into his heart the tenets of orthodox religion, as found in the doctrine of the Atonement.

So overpowering was the change in his life, that instead of going out into the world as a lawyer, he entered the theological department of the university, and became a minister of the gospel. He began his career as pastor of a Congregational church at Garrettsville, O., but chafed at the narrowness of his sphere. The spirit that has characterized his work since he became a famous evangelist, characterized his efforts in the little pastorate, and attracted the attention of Christian workers in Minneapolis, whither he soon went as the superintendent of a city mission work.

Moody had not forgotten the young Yale student, and with an eye to securing the right man to guide the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, when its founder was about to go into a broader field of activity, he selected Dr. Torrey, and called him from his work in Minneapolis. His success was great, and when Mr. Moody wished to still further surrender his personal control in Chicago, Dr. Torrey was appointed pastor of the Chicago Avenue Church, founded by Moody, and acted for some years in the dual capacity.

About ten years ago the faculty of the institute was spending one night each week in special prayer for a world-wide revival, assisted by several hundred students and members of all the churches of Chicago, and after the general meeting was over, a dozen or less of the most earnest ones would continue the meeting the greater part of the night.

"One night in this smaller meeting," said Dr. Torrey, in telling how he got into the broader evangelism, "I was moved to pray that God would send me around the world preaching the gospel. Nothing seemed so far out of my reach, for I regarded myself as tied for life to the Bible Institute, and when I had finished that prayer I felt that I was going around the world, though I did not know how.

"It was soon after this that two strangers from Australia came to Chicago and became constant attendants at the institute, one of them being father of one of our students. One day these two men came to my office and one of them said:

" 'When we left Australia we were commissioned to visit England and America and select a man to hold a series of evangelistic meetings in Australia, and we have decided that you are the man.'

"I told them it seemed impossible for me to leave my work in Chicago, but they simply said, 'You are going.' Said the spokesman: 'We would like to meet Mrs. Torrey, for we are going to entertain you in Melbourne.'

"Months afterwards, while I was attending a Bible conference in St. Louis, in October, 1901, I received a letter from a Mr. Barber of Melbourne, asking me to cable that I would go there in the following March. It soon became apparent that I should go, after praying for guidance in making the decision, and thus the world-wide tour began."

Dr. Torrey said that when he reached Australia he found that a little band of Christians had been praying for years for a revival, and that during the month he spent there, his first month as a world-wide evangelist, 8642 persons were reported to the churches as having professed Christ.

"Many things have been said about the preaching and the singing," said Dr. Torrey, "but the revival was far more due, on the human side, to prayer than to the preaching or singing."

He soon became famous throughout America and England as the greatest evangelist to follow in the wake of D. L. Moody. The first week of his revival in Los Angeles has been remarkable in the size of its audiences, and many men and women have answered his call to a new life. From 4000 to 6000 people have sat under his preaching twice each day, not more than one of the audiences having fallen below 4000. Both he and those associated with him look for phenomenal results before the close of the month.

If such a thing were possible as to make Dr. Torrey admit that he is a great preacher, and you were to ask him to what he ascribed his power, those who have listened to him would at once conjecture the one word of his answer—"prayer."

UNITY.

ENTIRE STATE COMES FIRST.

SHOULD HAVE PREFERENCE OVER PARTS IN BOOSTING.

This Idea Considered by California Committee—Fifty-five Counties Represented—Interesting and Timely Addresses by Prominent Men—Invitation to Taft.

Promoting California as a whole and not any individual district, showing the tourist what the entire State has for consideration and not what can be found in any one city, was one of the chief subjects discussed by the Counties Committee of the California Promotion Committee at its tenth semi-annual meeting at Blanchard Hall yesterday. Three hundred and fifteen delegates were present, representing the commercial and civic organizations of fifty-five counties.

The idea of boosting California before any particular locality was evolved by Frank A. Miller of Riverside county, who studied the tourist situation in Europe a short time ago.

"There," he said, "one finds in every hotel pictures of scenery, of animals, or of fantastically-garbed people, labeled not Geneva, Switzerland, but Switzerland only. The same is true of other European countries. They advertise the name of the country itself and give the general impression of being able to find a certain variety of subjects in a certain country, without defining the place."

A committee of five was appointed by Chairman Philo J. Beveridge to devise plans for the closer coöperation of the different counties and measures by which the scheme of State advertisement might be carried out.

Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce spoke on "Tourïdents," whom he described as "persons who tour California and falling in love with it, become residents sooner or later—usually sooner." He divided "tourïdents" into three classes—those coming with the idea of remaining, those arriving with the intention of looking over the country, and the ones who are saving their money in the East with the intention of coming here to spend their last years.

"The Perpetuation of Forests in California" was ably discussed by G. B. Lull, State Forester, and Charles D. Daggett, president of the California Good Roads Association, spoke of the development of the highways of the State.

The suits involving the titles to tide lands at San Pedro formed the basis of a talk by Senator Leroy A. Wright of San Diego. "The ports of the State, in order to make them big shipping centers, must be absolutely free, with no tax on commerce," he stated.

Others who spoke were Theodore Gier, on "The Marketing of California Products;" Prof. Alexander G. McAdie, district forecaster of the United States Weather Bureau, on "Things Which People Here Do Not Know About the Climate;" M. F. Tarpey of Fresno, C. J. Noyes of Los Angeles, H. C. Capwell of Oakland, Frank E. Kellogg of Santa Barbara, P. I. Lancaster of Mendocino, W. A. Beard of Sacramento and Philo Hersey of Santa Clara and F. H. Newell, director of the United States Reclamation Service, who told of agriculture in this State.

The morning session was opened by Rev. E. J. Harper, representing the Mayor. Edwin Stearns was appointed chairman of a committee to send an invitation to President-elect Taft to come to California to recuperate before inauguration. It was decided to hold the next meeting at Monterey.

In the evening the guests were tendered a reception at the Chamber of Commerce. Today and tomorrow they will visit the beaches and near-by inland cities.

ALL SAINTS BAZAAR.

The annual bazaar of All Saints' Episcopal Church, Highland Park, will be tomorrow afternoon and evening at Masonic Hall on Avenue 57. Elaborate preparations have been made and the affair promises to be very successful. All kinds of articles, both useful and ornamental, will be for sale, and a chicken dinner will be served. An interesting feature wil be the Japanese tea garden, a bower of cherry blossoms and chrysanthemums, from which geisha girls will serve tea, rice cakes and ices.

CONVENTION CLOSES.

The King's Daughters' convention closed last night with a memorial meeting at the Westmoore Hotel, to the memory of Margaret Bottoms, founder of the order. Mrs. A. G. Fessenden presided, and addresses were made by Rev. E. P. Ryland, president of the Church Federation, and Miss G. H. Libby, international vice-president of the King's Daughters.

These lands are located [illegible] Kings county, twelve miles [illegible] of Hanford, and three miles [illegible], while Corcoran lies [illegible] miles to the northwest. [illegible] is locally known as the [illegible], and it is one of the finest [illegible] land in the San [illegible] Valley.

[illegible] doubt, the prices at which [illegible] is offered, from $40 to [illegible], with water rights, will attract [illegible] of settlers, and the California [illegible] Land Company is confident [illegible] will have no trouble in [illegible] of its property within a [illegible].

[illegible] of Oklahoma City is [illegible] of the company. He has [illegible] in handling similar [illegible] problems in the Middle [illegible] is vice-president, [illegible] Lowe, secretary and [illegible] of the directors are P. [illegible] known as "one of [illegible] of Kansas," and M. S. [illegible] of Los Angeles. Several [illegible] are also connected [illegible].

[illegible] City is the name of a [illegible] has been laid out in [illegible], and which will be developed [illegible] as possible. Already [illegible] authorities have granted a [illegible] for California City, [illegible] have been made [illegible] of people to erect a [illegible] shop and other ad[illegible] town.

[illegible] Railroad comes with[illegible] the east line of the [illegible] lands, having a station [illegible] giving direct access [illegible] factory at Corcoran, [illegible] beets raised on the [illegible] ready market. Two [illegible] line at Straton, [illegible] Pacific has a branch [illegible] be extended through [illegible] on to Corcoran, [illegible] lands in direct rail connection with the latter place and the sugar factory. This fact is important, as experts have declared there are 8000 acres of the finest sugar beet land on the Jacob rancho.

Access to Lemore is easy over straight country roads, running according to the section lines, and here is found every convenience in the way of stores, schools and churches.

The water supply is an exceptionally attractive feature on the California City lands. The company owns stock in every important ditch company affecting the section in which its lands are located, while several of the main carrying canals traverse the rancho. These furnish an abundant water supply, and at a very small cost per acre.

Artesian wells are found in all parts of the ranch. These vary from 800 to 1000 feet, and are unfailing sources of supply. Local wells of from twelve to twenty-five feet depth tap the near surface flow of water, and furnish plenty for all household purposes at a small cost, as these are pumped by windmills.

Kings county is famous for the diversity of its farm products. The fruitful vineyards and orchards around Hanford and Lemore, on land exactly similar to that comprising the California City lands, are among the most profitable in the State. Among the most interested in the subdivision of the great Jacob rancho are the farmers in the immediate vicinity.

Dairying is one of the important industries of the section, and along with alfalfa growing, and hog raising, is a big money maker for the farmer. Stock and poultry for outside markets offer exceptional opportunities to energetic settlers.

There is a great development in the San Joaquin Valley. It is the home of a diversified life of profitable pursuits, which have made it one of the greatest wealth-producing centers in the world. The same development which has taken place in the older sections will come in the new subdivision, and with the cheap land prices this section offers exceptional opportunities to newcomers.

Fat Woman's Troubles.

If you try to get the fat off with the exercise, tell me, please, where's one going to find the time? I haven't any faith in it, anyway, as a reducer. It hurts the fat person's weakest spot—the heart. As for dieting, that is out of the question, altogether. Better be fat than have cancer of the stomach.

The safest and quickest way to reduce excess fat is also the cheapest and easiest. Go to the druggist and get ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 3½ ounces Peppermint Water. They cost but a trifle. Take them home, shake them together in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime. If you are not losing a half to a pound of fat a day inside of a month, your case will be one in a hundred. Try it—makes you feel better all over.

Curing Cancers

ANY LUMP IN WOMAN'S BREAST IS CANCER.

Any tumor, lump or sore on the lip, face, or body six months is cancer.

The many remarkable cures of cancer in women's breasts by Dr. S. R. Chamley, 747 South Main St., Los Angeles, have long been the subject of comment by leading newspapers and magazines throughout America. It is universally conceded that he publishes the best 130-page book ever printed on Cancers cured without knife or pain, sent free to all who describe their cases. The reader may save a life by clipping this out and sending it to someone with cancer.

The Doctor's confidence in his ability to cure every case he treats is illustrated by this offer to give $1000 if he fails to cure any cancer he treats before it has poisoned deep glands, and that not a dollar need be paid until cured.

"Any lump in woman's breast is cancer," is an astonishing assertion, but it has been proven by Dr. Chamley who has devoted thirty-five years to the study of cancer and its cure.

9,000 Acres With Free Water
Ready For Homeseekers
One of the Flowing Wells

Choice of First 2000 Acres $65 Per Acre

Eighteen miles south of Corcoran on the delta in Tulare County. Adjoins famous Alpaugh Colony lands. Sedimentary slime silt soil, eighty feet deep. Level as a floor—no rock, gravel or sand. Absolutely no trace of alkali or hardpan in the entire body. ALL NOW UNDER CULTIVATION. Main line of Santa Fe whole length of tract. Station on land.

Finest irrigation system in California. Deep flowing wells furnish abundance of purest water. Main ditch thirty feet wide and six feet deep—laterals to every subdivision, with minimum of 750 miner's inches. TITLE TO WATER AND WATER RENTALS ABSOLUTELY FREE.

This land is completely ready for homeseekers to move on and start farming. THERE ARE NO PROMISES TO BE MADE. EVERYTHING HAS BEEN DONE.

Best of title; free water to every tract; railroad right on land; land is now under cultivation. A proven proposition before we put it on the market.

Splendidly adapted to alfalfa, dairying, sugar beets, deciduous fruits and truck gardening. Immense crops of every California product with the exception of citrus fruits can be raised.

The land is READY. To hurry settlement first two thousand acres will be sold at $65 per acre. After that it is the intention to raise it from $75 to $150.

Remember this is DELTA LAND—entirely different from the ordinary San Joaquin Valley lands. This class of land is very limited. Cultivation has proved it the most productive land in the State.

Make arrangements to see this land at once.

Eyeglasses Not Necessary

Eyesight Can Be Strengthened and Most Forms of Diseased Eyes Successfully Treated Without Cutting or Drugging.

That the eyes can be strengthened so that eyeglasses can be dispensed with in many cases has been proven beyond a doubt by the testimony of hundreds of people who publicly claim that their eyesight has been restored by that wonderful little instrument called "Actina." "Actina" also relieves sore and granulated lids, Iritis, etc., and removes Cataracts without cutting or drugging. Over 75,000 "Actinas" have been sold, therefore "Actina" is not an experiment, but a reliable method of treatment.

"Actina" can be used by old and young with perfect safety. It is impossible to do harm with one. Every member of the family can use the one instrument for any form of disease of the Eye, Ear, Throat or Head. One will last for years, and is always ready for use. It will be sent on trial, postpaid.

If you will send your name and address to the Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 89N, 811 Walnut street, Kansas City, Mo., you will receive, absolutely FREE, a valuable book—Professor Wilson's Treatise on Disease.

MARCH OF PROGRESS.

NEW SKYSCRAPER FOR SAN DIEGO.

TEN-STORY BUILDING PLANNED BY CAPITALISTS.

Will Occupy Corner at Fifth and D Streets, Supplanting Small Three-story Brick—Deal Closed Following Election—Los Angeles Capital Interested.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—San Diego's march of progress is to be given a lift by the immediate construction of a modern ten-story reinforced concrete building, to occupy a site at the northeast corner of Fifth and D streets. It will supplant a three-story structure known as the McKie Block, erected many years ago.

The deal is being financed by San Francisco, Los Angeles and Eastern capitalists, and the plans are being drawn in the office of a Los Angeles architect. Negotiations for the site have been in progress for some time, but not until after the election were the terms agreed upon. It is said the promoters of the building scheme have taken a lease for fifty years on the ground, which comprises fifty by 100 feet on one of the principal business corners of the city. J. H. McKie, one of the owners, said that the deal is practically closed. No estimate as to the cost of the proposed structure has been given out.

Another handsome building, for which contracts have been let, is a set of flats to be erected at the southwest corner of Fifth and Juniper streets for Mrs. Anna B. Darst, a wealthy Eastern woman. There will be three separate buildings of two flats each, the construction to be carried out so that they will appear as one. This effect will be arranged at the front entrances. Inside courts will be a feature. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $15,000.

Building permits last week totaled $18,100, which is $2175 less than for the same week in 1907. The total for the year to date is $1,914,800, making this year's value in building permits exceed that of 1907 by $15,435.

The Board of Public Works is advertising for bids for a reinforced concrete bridge across Chollas Creek on the road to the city cemetery. This is a contract involving several thousand dollars.

Easterners are beginning to arrive, many of whom will make the city their permanent homes. P. H. Casey, who for a number of years was a judge of one of the leading courts of Boston, bought two lots on Sheridan Heights in the Mission hills, of F. L. Hiett, for $2500. Judge Casey has decided to begin building a home, to cost from $5000 to $6000.

M. Y. Wolf, for many years a prominent business man of New York, who recently purchased a site on the west side of Fourth street between Washington and Lewis, has broken ground for a California bungalow, to cost about $2500. H. F. Moeller has purchased of J. R. Dye two lots and a fraction, together with a small cottage, at the corner of Eighth and Monterey streets, for $2100.

John C. Tate, a well-known resident of Kansas City, has come to Southern California to make his home, having purchased of the Coast Realty Company the Joslin ranch of five acres, near Chula Vista, for $3000. The Coast Realty Company has sold for Miss Pearl Handley, two lots on University avenue, south of Lincoln, to S. Thomas, for $1800.

Edwin R. Thompson has sold to James Millam two lots in Gardner's Addition, on Sixteenth street, for $2500, where a new flat building will be erected. A. Bosch has bought 100 feet at the northwest corner of Seventh and Robinson avenues, for $2700. He will erect two modern cottages.

AT SHATTO AND WILSHIRE.

Handsome Elizabethan Style Residence Is Designed for That High-class Neighborhood.

M. S. Kornblum has had plans prepared for a handsome Elizabethan style residence for the northwest corner of Wilshire boulevard and Shatto place, which, when completed, will be one of the most attractive dwellings in that section of fine home. It will cost $30,000.

The grounds will be handsomely parked and beautified with trees and plants, and an ornate Chatsworth Park stone wall, with ornamental carving and columns at entrance gates and corners, will surround the property. Blue hard-burned brick work will be used in the exterior finish to the level of the second-story windows, with ornamental stone trimmings. The chimney will also be of brick. Above will be a half-timbered effect, with a red slate roof covering the peaked gables.

There will be two entrances, one on Shatto place, and one on Wilshire boulevard. These will be of stone, with wooden beams overhead, ornate with carved work. A terraced porch will extend from the front door around the rear to the porte-cochere, which is supported on stone columns.

The interior will be finished in various hard woods, ornate with carving. In one room a Louis XV effect will be obtained. Others will conform with the style of the period in which the architecture of the house itself took shape. The dining-room is designed with a panel wainscot to extend the height of the walls, with a heavily beamed ceiling. The living room will be finished with a beamed ceiling, and a pilaster treatment of the walls. There will be a billiard room, with a den, and a breakfast room to the rear. The service portion of the house is very complete.

The second floor is finished in white enamel, there being a number of large chambers, with the usual baths and closets. On the third floor is a ballroom, 25x50 feet.

REMARKABLE RECORD.

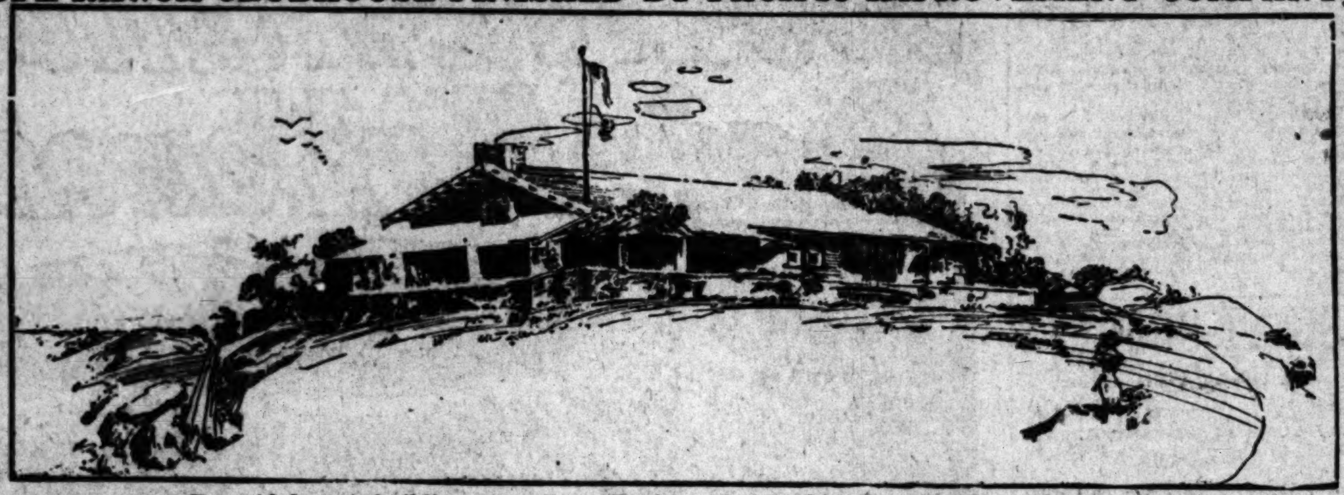
No Financial Stringency for One Builder—Erects Homes Throughout Year.

F. H. Redpath has had a remarkable success in the last six weeks in building and selling handsome one and two-story houses in the southwest. In August, he purchased twenty lots in Vermont Place, taking up a number of uncompleted contracts, much to the amusement of his friends, who predicted failure and loss of money. Nothing daunted, he went ahead, and began building on the property. He has now built and sold eight or ten houses. His activity has attracted attention, and fourteen other homes have been built in a section where, six months ago, there was none.

Ever since the panic days of last year, Mr. Redpath reports he has had fourteen carpenters working for him, and says he has begun a new house every two weeks. In the last four years he has erected eighty dwellings, and is, or has been, carrying as high as $200,000 worth of contracts.

Gas mains will soon be laid to the section in question, and considerable development seems certain. The following sales have been made by Mr. Redpath: To Loagan Smith, property at No. 617 West Forty-second-street place, on lot 40x130 feet, with a six-room bungalow, for $3600 to C. M. Nicholson, the house and lot at No. 939 West Fiftieth street, Vermont place, on lot 40x130 feet, with a six-room cottage, for $3600; the property at No. 946 West Fiftieth street, or Vermont Place, to A. W. Finney, for $4000, consisting of a six-room dwelling on a lot 40x130 feet; the property at No. 848 West Fiftieth street, consisting of a six-room residence, on lot 40x130 feet, to W. W. Clark, for $3500.

HOPE RANCH CLUBHOUSE FINISHED BY PACIFIC IMPROVEMENT COMPANY.



Beautiful rustic building, near Santa Barbara, designed by Los Angeles architects.

One of the handsomest country clubhouses on the Coast is that just completed on the Hope ranch, between two and three miles north of Santa Barbara, by the Pacific Improvement Company. The owner is the evolution of the old railroad building companies of former years, and consists of the Crocker, Stanford, and other estates. The company holds large tracts of choice land up and down the Coast. Those places near growing cities are being improved with buildings similar to that on the Hope ranch, and make attractive locations for country homes.

Hunt, Eager and Burns, architects of this city, are the designers of the Hope ranch clubhouse. It occupies a prominent site on a swelling hill, which gives it a commanding view of the sea, the mountains, and the beautiful Santa Barbara Valley. It overlooks a fine nine-hole golf course, which is an adjunct of the Potter Hotel, the clubhouse and grounds having been leased for the use of the latter's guests.

The exterior presents a delightful appearance of rusticity. The exposed foundation work, piers of the verandas and chimneys are of Santa Barbara stone. The side walls are in unfinished cedar shingles left natural to weather. The roof is stained a dark green, and the wood trimming has been finished in dark browns and blacks. The entire color scheme was worked out from the live oak, many of which dot the property.

There is a large assembly hall with an enormous fireplace at one end, making it a delightful place to congregate in. A dining-room and one or two lounging rooms, a kitchen, two locker rooms, buffet, pantries, etc., complete the layout. The interior finish conforms in style with the outside in its characteristic beamed ceilings and high wainscoted walls.

There is a wide veranda on one side, with a continuation around the building in the form of a wide terrace. The structure cost about $10,000.

MONTE VISTA SALES.

Emil Firth reports a good inquiry for Monte Vista land. He has sold seventy-seven acres in the tract as follows: To Franklin E. Turner, five acres on Monte Vista avenue, south of Howard avenue, for $1250; to J. B. Bouhan, ten acres on the corner Fifth avenue and Oaks avenue, for $3000; to A. Eichele, ten acres on the corner Fifth avenue and Vernon avenue, for $3000; to Mrs. Hannah E. Danks, five acres on Fifth avenue east of Magnolia avenue, for $1500; to Frank Danks, five acres adjoining above, for $1500; to Mrs. Sarah Alford, five acres on the corner of Fifth avenue and Magnolia, for $1625; to John E. Huling, five acres on the corner of Fifth avenue and Magnolia, for $1625; to D. M. Driscoll, five and one-half acres on corner State street and Palmetto avenue, for $2200; to Walter Hussey, five and one-half acres on corner Fifth avenue and Magnolia avenue for $1787.50; to Chas. F. Hubbard, five and one-half acres on corner State street and Palmetto, for $2280; to George R. Train, five acres on Oaks avenue, south of Fifth avenue, for $1375; to H. G. Otto, five and one-half acres on State street east of Palmetto avenue, for $1787.50; to Mrs. Frances Forbes and Mrs. E. S. Bartholomew, five acres on the corner of Fifth avenue and Oaks avenue, for $1625.

Frank Danks, Charles F. Hubbard, George R. Train, A. Eichele and Franklin E. Turner are building residences and will plant orange groves as soon as the season opens. Other purchasers have plans under way to build and improve. Monte Vista is particularly attractive to orange growers and orchardists, as it is in the center of the orange district between Pomona and Ontario.

SALES AT MONROVIA.

The Joseph R. Loftus Company reports sales at its Monrovia Acre tract as follows: To J. C. Contell of Kansas City, three acres at $450 an acre, adjoining the Loftus Valencia grove. To J. M. Gorrell of Fort Wayne, Ind., five acres at $375 an acre, at the corner of Meridian and Buena Vista street.

Country property in general is showing renewed interest and improvement as evidenced by another sale reported by the Joseph R. Loftus Company of eighty acres of unimproved land to J. A. Clough of Etiwanda, for $2000.

BROAD HOTEL LEASE TRADED.

The Jones & Ryder Land Company (Inc.) reports the exchange for Olive G. Putnam and M. E. Putnam and Jane Robinson of San Francisco of two five-room modern cottages on the west side of West Avenue 54, between Kentucky and Illinois streets, Highland Park, on lots 40x135 feet each, valued at $6000, and one four-room modern cottage on a lot 40x80 feet on the north side of Fayette street near Neva Place, Highland Park, valued at $2500, with S. D. Morrison and Marion K. DeVoe, for the two-year lease and furnishings of the Hotel Catalina, at No. 439 South Broadway, valued at $7000.

ON INGLEWOOD RANCHO.

Reserves Acreage by Wireless Telegram—Newcomers Building Homes on Property.

J. M. McLeod reports good business in Inglewood Rancho acreage. In the last six weeks a total of $33,000 worth of property has been sold. Most of the buyers are improving their purchases with homes, and preparing their land for truck gardening, chicken ranching, etc.

In the last week two houses have been begun, one by J. B. Ledoux, who bought five acres on Ash street south of Lenox avenue for $1675. He is erecting a house to cost about $800. Mr. Ledoux is a newcomer from Tampa, Fla., and was only in Los Angeles a week when he bought in Inglewood Rancho.

E. H. Cox purchased an acre at the southwest corner of Ash and Lenox for $400, and began building a small California house to cost about $600. Albert Pool, of Avalon, Catalina Islands, purchased four acres last week, reserving them by wireless telegram. His property is on Lenox avenue and cost $1375. Nine acres on Ash street, south of Lenox avenue, were purchased by J. M. Hammond of Highlands, for $3075. Amicito Arocena of Avalon, has purchased four acres on Patton street for $1600. A. V. Robertson, also of Catalina, bought an acre on Grevillia street for $400. J. S. Donn bought one acre on Grevillia street for $400. The agent reports that inquiry for the property is exceptionally strong, and that he anticipates a large sale in the next month or so.

The pumping plant is throwing a stream of 220 miner's inches for irrigation supply, and the well shows no effect from the steady pumping. The domestic water is supplied by the same system that furnishes the town of Inglewood with water.

IN WESTMINSTER TERRACE.

Many Sales Reported at High-Class Subdivision—Buyers Plan New Homes.

The Holmes-Walton Company reports the following recent sales in the Westminster Terrace tract: To Warren R. Cain, a lot 50x122½ feet, on the east side of Manhattan Place, between First and Second streets, for $1000; to J. P. M. Torrey and J. F. Clader, a lot 50x132½ feet, on the west side of Gramercy Place, between First and Second streets, $900; to the same purchasers, a lot 50x132½ feet, on the east side of Manhattan Place, between First and Second streets, for $1000.

To W. Hathaway, the southwest corner of Gramercy and First street, 58¾x132½ feet, for a consideration of $1300; to B. M. Ellis, a lot 50x132½ feet, on the east side of Manhattan Place, between First and Second streets, for $1000. To J. F. Clader, a lot 50x132½ feet, on the east side of Manhattan Place, between First and Second streets, for $1000; to Mrs. F. E. Rich, the southeast corner of St. Andrews Place and First street, 58¾x132½ feet, for $1450.

To James Burchill, a lot, 60x132½ feet, on the west side of St. Andrews Place, between First and Second streets, for a consideration of $1450; to Mrs. Charlotte C. Hoag, a lot 60x132½ feet, on the west side of St. Andrews Place, between First and Second streets, for $1425; to R. I. Thomson, the northeast corner of St. Andrews Place and Second streets, for a consideration of $1400.

TULARE LANDS ATTRACT.

San Joaquin Valley Properties Get Attention of Homeseekers This Season.

Attention is strongly directed this year to the San Joaquin Valley.

The Joseph R. Loftus Company is subdividing several thousand acres of the choicest farm lands in Tulare county into forty-acre parcels. This land is located at Solita Station on the main line of the Santa Fé. It is suitable for alfalfa, dairying, stock raising and truck gardening. It is in the great artesian belt, and there is an abundance of water that will be supplied to each forty acres by an irrigation system now being installed, and which will belong to the purchasers of the land. Forty acres seem to be about the size tracts most in demand by the incoming home-seekers now flocking into Los Angeles. The inquiries are reported to be numerous. Evidently many are coming now who remained in the East to vote. Others are buying who have waited to know the result of the election.

IN THE SOUTHWEST.

Building Sites in West Jefferson and Seventh Avenue Tract Find Ready Sale.

The Victor C. Kleinberger Company reports the following sales in the West Jefferson and Seventh Avenue tract: To Isabel Todd, a lot on the west side of Ninth avenue, 200 feet south of Edison, 40x140 feet to a fifteen-foot alley, for $500.

To Mrs. Josephine Fullwood, a lot on the east side of Eighth avenue, 40x145 feet to alley, about 284 feet north of Edison, for $550. To John B. Pratt, a lot on the west side of Ninth avenue, 120 feet south of Edison, 40x140 feet to alley, for $500. Last week Mr. Pratt purchased the adjoining lot on the north and will build two modern bungalows. To C. R. L. Wheeler, the adjoining lot on the south, for $500. He will also improve with modern home.

To Peter Smith, a lot on the east side of Ninth avenue, about 164 feet north of Edison, 40x145 feet to alley, for a consideration of $500. To R. A. Binney, a lot on the west side of Eighth avenue, about 290 feet south of Edison, for $525. To Michael Hill, a lot on the west side of Ninth avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Columbus and Eighth avenue, 40x140 feet, for $625. To T. B. Harrison, a lot on the east side of Ninth avenue, midway between Jefferson and Edison, 40x145 feet to alley for $500.

OUT VERNON WAY.

Sales of Building Lots in Southwest Section Are Numerous—Buyers Plan Improvements.

Sales of building lots have been very active in Vermont Avenue Square since the election, as shown by the following report by C. A. Wesbecher: A north-front lot on Forty-sixth street, 50x148 feet, between Vermont and Kansas avenues, to J. R. Stokes for $1050. The buyer will improve with a bungalow.

A lot 44x130 feet, south front, on Fifty-first street, between Budlong and Raymond avenues, to C. E. Tweed for $700. A west-front lot on Budlong avenue, adjoining corner of Fiftieth street, 44x135 feet, to H. E. Miller, for $875. Lot 44x130 feet, on Fifty-first street, near Raymond avenue, to E. C. Weed, for $700.

A south-front lot on Fifty-first street, between Raymond and Normandie avenues, 44x130 feet, to M. N. Thomas, for $650. The buyer will improve with a home. Lot 45x135 feet, on Budlong avenue, between Fiftieth and Fifty-first streets, to E. H. Muller, for $850. A lot, 44x130 feet, on Fifty-first street, between Beach street and Normandie avenue, to F. A. Torrey of Carson City, Nev., for $650. Two lots on Fifty-first street, just west of Budlong avenue, 44x130 feet each, to Charles Seed, for $1400.

OBTAIN MANY CONTRACTS.

Building Company Busy Building Homes—See Much Work Ahead for Winter Months.

The Security Building Company reports a great increase in business. Since the election the company says there has been a steady call for plans, and that prospects are good for unprecedented activity during the winter months. This company makes a specialty of erecting houses for people who own their own lots. It also has property on which it will build to suit the purchaser, and reports many inquiries for such propositions.

Contracts received during the past week are as follows: W. H. Smith, Garden Grove, four-room cottage, for $1000; H. Whetstine, six-room bungalow at No. 23 West Forty-seventh street, for $1500; H. H. Pickering, five-room-bungalow at No. 718 West Fortieth Place, for $1500; W. W. Witts, five-room bungalow at No. 3865 Main street, for $1200; A. C. Brown, six-room California bungalow, for $1300; S. A. Bishop, Alhambra, three-room California house, for $500.

HOMESEEKERS BUYING.

Colonists from East and South Purchase Acreage at Beaumont. Week's Apple Land Sales.

Prosperity week, in Beaumont, will be marked by three events: the dedication, Sunday, of the new Catholic church, the visit on Tuesday of the Southern California Editorial Association, and the inauguration by the Beaumont Land and Water Company of a coöperative policy to give employment to homeseekers.

Continued demand for acreage and city lots is apparent by the report for the week showing sales of $7500, including sales of $5000 worth of apple acreage and the remainder city property. Among the buyers are colonists from Eastern and Southern States.

Building also is active, the latest new structures being a mission office building for the Beaumont Land and Water Company on Fifth and California streets, a new cottage for Mrs. C. B. Eyer on Sixth and Magnolia avenue, and a two-story residence for Mrs. C. Liddon Sterling. Twenty-five carpenters are now steadily employed and more than a carload of lumber is said to be required to meet daily demands.

BUYERS WILL BUILD.

Tracy E. Shoults & Co. reports sales as follows: Lot 45x130 feet on Fiftieth street, between Vermont and Kansas avenues, to Charles W. McQuigg, for $800. LILY MILK

IS A MODEL HOME PRODUC

—a home product that Southern California may well be proud of. LILY MILK has not only won strong recognition right here at home—but it has also become famous abroad. Four times has this sterling milk product captured medals—twice in succession, it has taken the first prize at the Sacramento State Fair and also won gold medals at the Pan-American and Paris Expositions. Famous at home and abroad—this is the distinction that LILY MILK enjoys. Surely it is worth your while to use and "BOOST" a home product that is being strongly boosted and used even on the "outside."

LILY MILK is the very essence of milk purity. It is taken from the healthiest of cows under the most hygienic conditions. To absolutely insure its purity, it is thoroughly sterilized, thereby eliminating even the remotest possibility of infection.

Thousands are using it exclusively. Order from your grocer. Use it "Prosperity Week" and every week.

"The kingdom of God is within you." "The kingdom of God is love, joy, peace." Love, joy and peace must dwell in the hearts of this united and happy family.

Are their fears concerning the fortune well grounded? In a way, yes. In another way, no. The enemies of the kingdom are the world, the flesh and the devil, whatever this third member of the trinity of evil may be construed to be. It is difficult to separate the "world" from the "flesh." Our material nature is of the earth earthy and it is on the things of earth that it feeds. This is why the family we are discussing are right in their misgiving as to the effect of a great fortune on their moral nature. The possession of vast riches is surely a temptation to indulge the "lusts of the flesh" and thus become selfishly disunited from the other members of the family, lose their love, and losing that love, their joy and peace. They may well look upon the possession of a fortune when they observe the manner of life of many around them whose wealth is unbounded. In this country the amassing of large fortunes has been followed naturally by freer indulgence of the taste for the things of the world, but not by a great increase in refinement. These people whose fathers and mothers were poor and upright may by means of schools, tutors and masters be more intelligent than their parents; they may acquire a veneer of culture. But speaking broadly, they are not usually so refined as their poorer ancestors. They are more selfish and therefore are far from the kingdom. It is not that they have gone out of the kingdom, but rather they have crowded the kingdom out of their hearts. Becoming selfish, self-seeking and indulgent, they have become neglectful of the rights of others. They may not be dishonest in outward act, but they are not at all so thoughtful of the interests of others. As they indulge their baser appetites they tread closely on the edge of grossness of living, and are in danger of becoming actually unclean of life. How the extremes meet in society and the rich come to touch all along the line with the outcasts of society in uncleanliness of life.

In another way this family is wrong. With principles like theirs they should be safe from the temptations of the world acting through fleshly lusts, drawing them into gross selfish indulgence, generating self-seeking and gross selfishness in their hearts by which the kingdom might be crowded out, and in the place where joy and peace dwelt, making life so happy, holding envy and hatred, separating those who love and making life unhappy.

There is a way to avoid this danger. The sphere of sympathy of this family is narrow. Lack of means confined it mostly to the family circle. With this large fortune in their possession, united in sympathies as they are and happy as their joy and peace makes them, they should have no difficulty in agreeing to use this legacy in such a way for the good of others that it would be to their hearts as showers to the soil. Used to do good for those outside the family circle in a wise and careful way, what added joy this money would bring to the hearts of all, what an increase of daily peace as they contemplated the good this money was doing! The sphere of their sympathy might be enlarged in exact proportion to the increase of their wealth, and love is not exhausted by loving, but is increased by lavishing itself more generously. With the sphere of loving sympathy broadened, the inflow of joy into the soul would be in a larger stream, and the happiness of the whole family would be strengthened and deepened by each member's participation in the altruistic sacrifices made for those around.

And there are multitudes of families whose hearts are kept like well-springs of joy and peace who have the kingdom within them by just such a way of living. Hard as the Master said it was for the rich man to enter the kingdom, that is to make room for the kingdom in his heart, many rich men have not gone away from the call of duty like this one of old. He had rich men among His first disciples, and one of them, Joseph of Arimathea, furnished a sepulcher for the Master's body when the Roman soldiers had put Him to death. This early rich man who had the kingdom within him has had followers in all the ages, and today there are more rich men in the kingdom than in any other age.

EAST AND WEST.

Westward the gleaming sea,
    Eastward the hills
Whence flow, from thee to me,
Dear love, through vale and lea,
    God's little rills.

Ah! how the ripplets sing
    Softly of thee:
What is the news they bring
Through bracken, gorse and ling
    From thee to me?

Eastward the mountains brave,
    Westward the sea:
Loved one, the silent grave
O'er which the yew trees wave
    Holds thee from me.

Westward the boundless sea,
    Eastward the hills;
Into eternity
My love is gone from me;
    Mourn little rills.

THOUGHTS ON RELIGION.

By a Layman.

RELIGION IN SCIENCE.—There is a constantly growing conception which regards it not as a thing confined to church organizations, in the form of religious worship, on special days and hours, but as a reality permeating the whole of life. God is becoming more generally recognized as a veritable Deity, immanent in history and in all the processes of nature. As a result of this general spiritual awakening, manifestations of an ever-living and eternal God are recognized in every blade of grass, every tree, every shrub, every flower, and in fact averything animate and inanimate. It is further recognized that the greatest known manifestation of God is that of a reasoning human being, who, through his God-given senses, has developed a dawning consciousness of the spiritual nature of God.

The greatest help in the development of this reasoning consciousness has come through the aid of science, which can truthfully be called the handmaiden of God. There are many things pertaining to the religious life, however, which are partially, if not wholly beyond the present range of scientific knowledge. Spiritual truths are ever in advance of demonstrated science, but those persons who have a living faith in God, and in the ever-increasing scientific discoveries, firmly believe that through the medium of science the heart knowledge of God will be fully confirmed and verified beyond any possible doubt.

Religion appeals to the heart of man, and science appeals to his intellect; therefore both should work hand in hand in the endeavor to clear away the fogs and mists of ignorance which veil the glory and majesty of God from ignorantly selfish humanity.

In spiritual matters, practically all humanity are as yet as little children, and we have many advancing grades of knowledge to go through, supplemented by many varying degrees of life experiences before we can presume to dogmatically or otherwise define the limits, or even but faintly grasp the reality of God's loving wisdom and boundless mercy for His creatures. Those mortals who profess to know all about the heavenly and earthly kingdoms over which God reigns supreme, simply register and express their own individual ignorance.

We are all more or less conscious of the fact that we are human beings, descendants of ancestors who rose by gradual processes from lower forms of animal life, through many struggles and much suffering, to the present estate of man. Further than this we know but little, but we are told of the future glorious destiny of spiritual mankind by divine messengers of God, who have appeared in the flesh from time to time, born as other men, and who have revealed spiritual truths sufficient unto the age, for our guidance and progressive development, and we have every reason to believe in the truths revealed by them, because many of these truths have been confirmed by scientific discoveries of man.

Science has taught us that this earth of ours is an enormous globe of matter, with vast continents and oceans on its surface, and with a clinging atmosphere, the whole moving very rapidly (nineteen miles each second) through space; and constituting one of a number of other planets, all circulating around the sun. Science has also led us to realize that from the distance of a million miles, this earth would appear as an object in the sky, rather like the moon; that from a greater distance it would look like any of the other planets; while from a vastly greater distance neither it nor any other planet is large or luminous enough to be visible—nothing but the sun would then be seen, looking like a star.

When we can realize that our earth with all its imperfections, is one of the heavenly bodies, we can just barely begin to realize the greatness of God, whose laws rule such a vast multitude of worlds, and we can also commence to realize how little mere man really does know after all.

Advance science also tells us that our solar system of worlds, under well-established universal planetary laws, has recently passed from the zodiacal sign of Pisces into that of the sign of Aquarius, indicating the end of an old and the beginning of a new cycle or age. We are further told that the whole known universal system is moving about a great central sun and that in this grand sweep, it requires our system 25,870 of our years to make its circuit about this great center, and that a "house" or zodiacal sign embraces a period of one-twelfth of this period, or about 2156 years. There are twelve "houses" or "signs of the zodiac" and each of these signs in the grand cycle represents a smaller cycle or age.

We are told by certain scientists that in the transition of our solar system from one zodiacal sign to another, the astrological influences of each sign overlap those of adjacent ones, causing a long period of unsettled world conditions, when new ideas, institutions and methods appropriate to the newly dawning age, come into fierce conflict with the almost worn-out ideas, institutions and methods of a passing age or cycle.

There are many earnest searchers after truth who believe that we are now in this transition period, which accounts for the great social wave of unrest that is encircling the entire globe. They also believe that we are now in the day of the fulfillment of the prophecies of the sacred scriptures, basing their belief largely upon the prophecies and teachings of Jesus, who is recognized in the Christian world as the greatest known world teacher or divine messenger that has been sent by God to spiritually enlighten humanity.

Labor in South Africa. By Frank G. Carpenter.

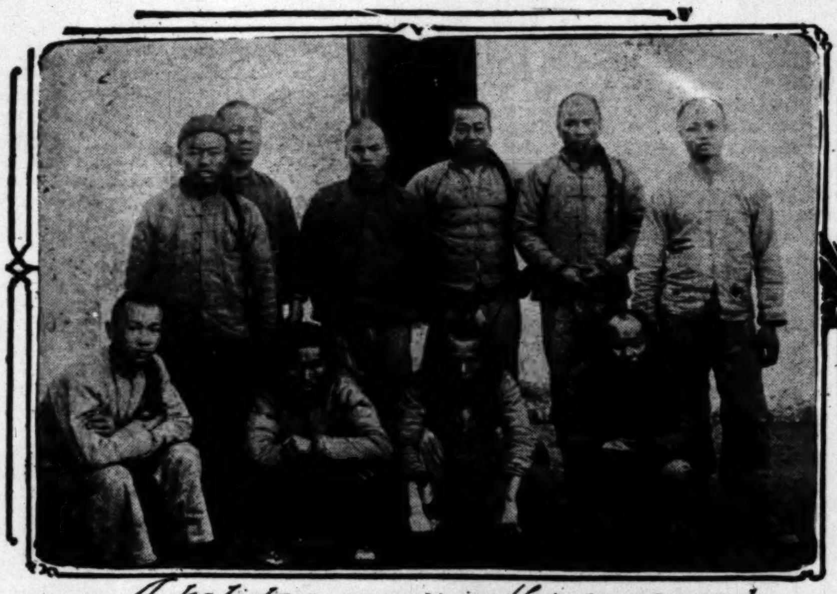
CHINESE VERSUS KAFFIRS.

HOW EXPULSION OF CELESTIALS WILL AFFECT GOLD MINES.

From Our Own Correspondent.

JOHANNESBURG.—John Chinaman must get out of the Transvaal. Gen. Botha's hand has written that decree on the industrial wall of South Africa. No more coolies are to be imported. The first shipment of 3000 back to China was made, now more than a year ago, and others will be exported at intervals until these yellow slaves, as they are called, are eliminated from the golden treasure vaults of the Rand.

This movement will affect the whole world. It will, for a time, dam the enormous streams of the yellow metal which have been flowing out of these mines and will cut down the gold supply of the nations. Within the past twenty years South Africa has produced a billion dollars' worth of bullion, and about half of this has been turned out since the Boer War. It has been mined largely by Chinese cheap labor, and now that the Chinese are to go the mining nabobs are in despair as to getting others to take their places.



A holiday group in the compound.

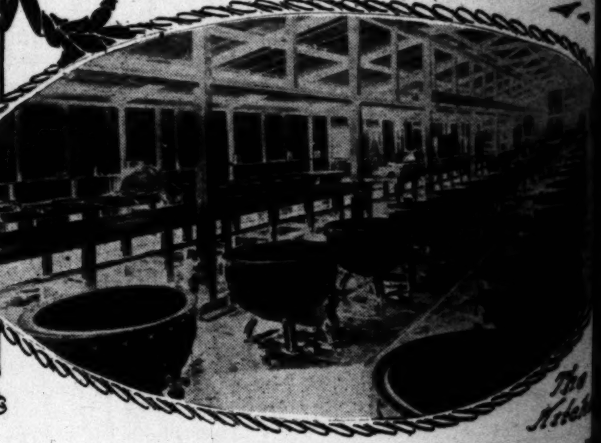
Down in the mines



The

Gold mining in the Transvaal is a low-grade proposition, and it must be carrried on at low wages. Out of the sixty-five or seventy mines now on the Rand more than one-third do not yield over $7.50 worth of gold to the ton, and in some the yield is still less. The quantity of ore is practically inexhaustible, and the output is limited, almost entirely, by the amount of labor at hand. Last year it was about $130,000,000, or between one-third and one-fourth of the whole gold supply of the world. It could be doubled or trebled if the Rand had the labor, and if it has it not it must fall. There are more than 50,000 Chinese here at work, and they form the best of the unskilled labor that the Rand has ever had.

The Native Labor Supply.

But first let me tell you something about the native labor of South Africa. There are about 5,000,000 negroes in the British possessions south of the equator, and there are perhaps 1,000,000 more in Portuguese East Africa over the way. Of this, however, a large number are comprised of old men, women and children. The men employed in the mines range in age from 15 to 40, and it is estimated that there are only something like 400,000 available employés in the whole population. Moreover, the natives will not work longer than six months at a time, so this cuts the constant supply down to a possible 200,000, which, even if it could be relied upon, is far less than the wants of the country.

Before the Boer War there were 111,000 natives employed in the gold mines. This number dropped to almost nothing during that struggle, and the high wages then paid by the armies and others so disorganized the industry that when the war closed and the mines again began to work the shortage in the labor supply was 30,000 and more. It was then that the possibility of getting Chinese was discussed, and, as a result, the celestials were brought here by the shipload.

The importation began in 1904. The first shipment came in July, and by the close of that year 20,000 of these almond-eyed, pig-tailed workmen were getting out gold. Since then about thirty or more steamer-loads have been brought, and the total invasion has amounted to 60,000 or more. This has been decreased by exportation and in other ways until at the first of last year there were about 53,000, and at present there are 50,000 or less.

The cost of bringing the Chinese was about $55 per head. They came for terms of three years, with a possible extension to six years, but no longer; and they were to be paid at the start $15 a month. It was provided that they were to live in compounds, or walled yards, during their stay in South Africa, and that no one could employ them except under license.

The most of them came from North China, and more than half were shipped from Tien-Tsin. They were brought in on a contract between the British and Chinese government, and were washed and scrubbed, vaccinated and photographed and medically examined before leaving. They got two months' pay at the start, and they were so well cared for that very few died on the way. It was a part of the agreement that they were to be carried back home, and the Transvaal was assured that the Chinese would not be allowed to obtain a foothold in the land.

How the Chinese Came to Africa.

During my stay here I have gone through the mines and watched these Chinese at work. They are far more industrious than the negroes, and form a much better labor supply. While going through the underground workings of the Simmer and Jack, the greatest producing mine of South Africa, I was told by Mr. Seagraves, the manager, that the Chinese will do at least one-third more work than the native Africans. Said he:

"We have increased our output that much with 10 per cent. less men than when we worked [illegible] the time the men stay in the mine this depends [illegible] and on the jobs on which they are work- [illegible] piecework they can depart when they have [illegible] amount. For instance, the hammer boys, [illegible] holes for the blasting, are supposed to make [illegible] a day, but if they can drill that in three or [illegible] they are at liberty to return to the surface, [illegible] stay and work on at the rate of 1 cent per [illegible] above that. The most ever made by any [illegible] inches, and one of the Chinese gangs [illegible] average of fifty-four inches per man, which [illegible] they make about 56 cents per day in addition [illegible] board and lodging. As a rule, the men work on [illegible], when they march back to the compound [illegible] closing the day.

[illegible] Labor Supply.

[illegible] as to how the loss of the Chinese is to be [illegible] discussed everywhere in the Transvaal. At [illegible] are in the mines about 18,000 whites, 98,000 [illegible] in the neighborhood of 50,000 Chinese. The [illegible] mining companies employing Chinese is over [illegible] these companies produced in 1906 more than [illegible] worth of gold. They paid out in wages and [illegible] something like $25,000,000, and in addition con- [illegible] the way of food supplies and other stores, [illegible] were between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. [illegible] the Chinese have gone it is supposed that their [illegible] have been filled by natives. There is a great [illegible] against the Hindoo, and it is hardly prob- [illegible] will be imported. [illegible] negro labor supply, a large part of that now [illegible] is from Portuguese East Africa. It was [illegible] by contractors, who pay the Portuguese [illegible] per head and agree to give the natives [illegible] and good treatment. Indeed, it is said that [illegible] Chinese came more than 80 per cent. of the [illegible] was brought in from outside the Trans-[illegible]

[illegible] down the coast I met the agent of a labor [illegible] who had been drumming British Central [illegible]. He had contracted for a large number [illegible] of various tribes, whom he marched down to [illegible] and there loaded them on the steamers. Central Africa is not thickly populated, but I am told here that about 10,000 natives can be annually brought from there to the Rand if the proper inducements are offered. At present the wages in that part of the world are about 3 or 4 cents a day, so that the 50 cents or a dollar paid in the mines seems riches.

Men From Rhodesia.

Another possible source of labor is Rhodesia. There are now many negroes from Basutoland and Bechuanaland here. During my stay in Rhodesia I was told that the negroes of that country make fairly good workmen, and that if rightly superintended they will form an efficient labor supply. They move slowly, but they work steadily and do not "loaf on the job" like the average American or European. The ordinary working day is about eleven hours long, and the wages in the mines there is $10 per month, including the cost of feed. On railroad construction ordinary workmen are paid $3 a month, and receive their food in addition. The extension of the Cape to Cairo Railroad is being constructed with native labor, and I am told that these negroes can lay track almost as fast as the best track-laying machines of the United States when manipulated by our white labor. During the last stretch of the railroad which ends at Broken Hill they laid five and one-half miles in eleven hours, and on the average they laid more than a mile of track per day for something like 400 miles. In this work the rails and steel ties were brought along on the cars as fast as the track was laid. The natives took the rails from the cars and carried them to the ties. About fifteen men were required to each rail, and the stream of carriers went on continuously from daylight to dark. I doubt not they could do equally well in the mines.

The Hotel Clerk.

HE DISCUSSES HIGH FINANCIERING WITH HOUSE DETECTIVE.

By a Special Contributor.

"I S'POSE now that the government's got its hand in, they'll be prosecutin' a whole lot more of them big bankers wot brought on the panic," said the House Detective of the St. Reckless.

"Well, I'm not so sure about that," said the Hotel Clerk. "It's been my observation that the party in power always works very hard for a record just before election; after election not so much, if at all. In the heat of the campaign when everybody is whirlwinding and spellbinding, as the case may be, it's a grand thing for the administration at Washington to be able to direct the voter-at-large's attention to the pleasing spectacle of a prominent banker starting up State in charge of a deputy marshal, with a view of getting a close haircut and a different suit of clothes, when he arrives where he's going at. Such a sight, while more or less distressful to the close friends and family of the eminent financier taking the trip, is calculated to afford entertainment and joy to the party working by day, who got stung for his little $8.75 when the savings bank blew up last fall with a low muffled crash. Also it makes him prone to come out from under his rock and vote the straight ticket.

"But now that it's all over, and Bill knows that he beat Bill and Bill also knows how blamed thoroughly Bill did beat him, I have a strong suspicion that for quite a spell you won't see any Federal Grand Juries leaping on any more of the gentlemen who promoted the financial festivalities of this fall a year ago."

"Wot starts 'em to huntin' bankers so fierce sometimes and leavin' 'em alone other times?" inquired the House Detective.

"Different things," said the Hotel Clerk. "Often a lot of the amphibious financial giants of Wall street will get together in one of their robber's caves, sometimes called a directors' room, and pass a set of solemn resolutions to the effect that 'It's now about time to nominate a burnt offering.' There've been a lot of trust companies and things going up in the air with hardly enough cash on hand to satisfy the receiver's private wants, and the populace is clamoring for an Angora to chase. I propose that we formally elect our young friend Moose from Maine to the responsible position of being the goat,' says J. Pierp. Devilfish, just as soon as John D. Octopus has opened the proceedings with prayer. 'Moose is too much like a longshoreman in his style. He's so noisy and boisterous in his work that he's frightened away any number of bank rolls that might be feeding out of the hand of any one or all of us by now.' 'Right you are,' says T. Fortune Sandshark. 'This man Moose absolutely refuses to put on gum shoes and confine himself to legitimate second-story jobs. He wants to take a gas pipe and go out in the public highway. What's more, he's breaking all known rules of the game by working both sides of the street at once. It's making talk among the class of people that used to give up their life's savings without any unpleasant rows. I move, therefore, that we make Moose of Maine the chief goat and Pickles of Montana the first deputy goat.' So then the nominations are closed and the secretary casts the unanimous ballot of the lodge, and the next thing you hear from Moose and Pickles, a Federal judge with a soured disposition—he has to have a soured disposition or he wouldn't be a Federal judge—is asking 'em if they're guilty or not guilty, and they say they're not guilty, and he tells them in effect that they needn't let that be worrying 'em, because if they're not now they will be before he gets through.

"Or else some prominent financier who learned the principles of the banking game from a study of the life of the late Jimmy Hope falls into the error of writing a few confidential letters that the government gets hold of. It's all right for a literary man to write private letters because when he dies the executors of the estate collect the said letters, they being all the estate there is, if he was a true literary man, and the executor puts them up in the form of a book that sells for $1.50 a copy. But if he's a malefactor of great wealth they don't wait until he's dead to spring his letters on him. A District Attorney reads them aloud in court in a loud, mocking tone of voice and then asks the jury to put him away for not less than ten years. If I was a rich man, Larry, which heaven forbid, I'd conduct all my personal correspondence on a slate and always send a messenger boy along with a wet sponge.

"There's something about this science of high finance that fascinates me. What is the gift that enables a promoter to sell something belonging to somebody else to somebody who doesn't want it? What is the science by which he divides a pretzel with you in such a manner as to keep the outside rim of the pretzel for himself and give you the uncooked or inner part, where the hole is, and still leave you perfectly satisfied. I couldn't take a basket of ripe Peach Melbas around and trade 'em for green hazelnuts, but a true financier can start out in the morning with a capital consisting of one Siberian crabapple and return at eventide, driving home a large herd of watermelons ahead of him. In time I might be able, with proper training, to learn how to rob Peter to pay Paul, but I don't think I could ever learn how to present it to Paul with one hand and take it away from him with the other, and then collect interest from him for the length of time he had it—which is the true science of inside financiering.

"I never knew but one great financier, Larry. We were raised together in the same town. From the cradle he showed marked signs of a financiering turn of mind. As an infant he could swallow small coins without injury to himself. The only time he suffered was when they made him give 'em up. At school he excelled in arithmetic. He didn't play marbles, but he always had more marbles than any of the other boys. At the age of 14 he was pulled through a serious illness by allowing him to look at money. It was reliably reported that he could hold a $10 bill clenched in his boyish fist and take on flesh. So just as soon as he began to train his adolescent pinfeathers to grow out in a side-whisker effect and began to wear white piqué vests everybody knew he was designed, both by art and by nature, for the financiering profession.

"As a young man he was not what you would call a free spender. Any time he let go of any currency a cold and clammy hand seemed to clutch his heart at the roots and turn off the juice. He didn't drink or smoke, and, so far as the rest of us could tell, the only reason he ever visited the village souse conservatories was in the hope of some day finding a café that had a gents' furnishing-goods department in connection, so, when you asked him to have something, he could take a linen collar if you took a plain drink, or a nice pair of 35-cent suspenders if you went in for one of the fancy mixtures. We called him Henry Ill Wind, because he never blew anybody good.

"So when he got a job here, the first thing we heard from him he was sweeping out a bank, and the next time we heard he was running the bank and the former owner was doing the sweeping out. He just naturally had to have a bank in order to conduct financiering on a large scale. A bank is just as necessary to a prominent financier these days as a James K. Jimmy is to a safe burglar. It's the thing he gets in with.

"The last word I had of my old boyhood chum he was rated at twenty millions, and had strong hopes of entering society some time when society wasn't looking. His principal pleasures, outside of business hours, were hiding in the umbrella closet from process servers for Federal grand juries, and importing titled sons-in-law for his daughters and Old Masters, that looked like they'd been cured in a smokehouse, for himself. The papers say he never quits working. For that matter, neither does a barrel of kraut when it begins to spoil in the spring of the year, and putting together what I knew of him and what I've heard about kraut, I guess the operations are very similar."

"The papers say that this last big banker that got sloughed up started life as a candy butch on a railroad," said the House Detective.

"Well," said the Hotel Clerk, "I've seen a lot of candy butchers that I thought ought to develop into Wall-street wizards with the proper chance. Their little way of selling a pair of real gold spectacles, that'll begin to turn green before the train reaches the next station, to an elderly widow lady traveling alone, proves that they'd fit just right in Death Valley. The evidence in the last trial showed that our friend must have been a dandy train butcher in his day."

"And yet he made just one slip and they nailed him," said the House Detective.

One slip is enough," said the Hotel Clerk. "Jesse James never climbed up on but one chair to fix a picture and just look what happened to him."

No Personal Grudge.

Dr. John Lovejoy Elliott, head worker of Hudson Guild Settlement, in New York, was lecturing some boys from the waterfront on the doings of Nero. He gave a vivid picture of the cruelty of the Emperor, and thought that he must have fixed the idea of non-ethical deeds in the minds of his hearers. Then he began questions.

"Boys," said the teacher, "what do you think of Nero?"

There was no reply, and the class moved around uneasily.

"Well, O'Brien, what do you think of Nero? Would you say he was a good man? Would you like to know him?"

No answer, and O'Brien looked longingly at the door.

"Well, wasn't Nero a bad man?"

"He never done nuthin' to me," was the unexpected response, reflecting the Tammany policy of not butting in.—[Success Magazine.

By a Special Contributor.

ACCORDING to the State Department's new baby blue list of the diplomatic dramatis personae for the social season just opening, Washington drawing-rooms are to be adorned this winter by two princes, one marquis, three counts, one countess, three viscounts, one viscountess, twelve barons, seven baronesses and two chevaliers, besides one oriental dignitary with the ancient title of "khan," five with that of "bey" and three others with the mysterious suffix "nai."

Mammas ambitious for titled sons-in-law will be particularly interested to learn that both princes, five of the barons, two of the counts and one of the viscounts are bachelors.

The Bachelor Princes.

The two bachelor princes will be Vincent zu Windisch--Graetz, attaché of the Austro-Hungarian, and Nicolas Koudacheff, first secretary of the Russian embassy. Prince Vincent is 25 and is a conscientious student of English, besides international law, in which he expects to be soon examined for promotion in the diplomatic service of his country. It is said that he cannot marry outside the nobility without the Emperor Francis Joseph's permission, and inasmuch as that aged Emperor is the stickler of Europe, there is little chance for a Yankee grande dame with plethoric purse and marriageable daughters to capture him for a son-in-law. Prince Nicolas would probably not be so much restricted, since in Russia a prince is of comparatively low rank in the nobility. However, Prince Nicolas ranks high officially, being chamberlain to the Czar.

The marquis of the corps this winter will be Phya Akharaj Varadhara, the Siamese Minister. According to the State Department "phya" is about equivalent to marquis. But in the absence of these gentlemen themselves, no one in Washington can give an equivalent for Nai, the title which will be borne by three of the Minister's attaches.

The Counts.

The newest of the counts—Carl von Moltke, who has just come, representing Denmark—already has an American wife, who, before he married her about two years ago, was Miss Cornelia Van Rensselaer Thayer of Boston. He is a scion of one of the oldest families in the aristocracy of Europe, and is a relative of the illustrious Gen. von Moltke. He is 39, broad-shouldered and clean-shaven; has been an officer in the Danish navy, secretary of embassy in London and Berlin, and has just finished five years as charge d'affaires at Rome. Like the Duke of the Abruzzi, he has made a name as an arctic explorer. While in the navy he headed a successful exploring expedition to Greenland.

The other two counts of this season will be Hermann von Hatzfeldt-Wildenburg, first secretary and counselor of the German embassy, and Alexander Torok, attaché of the Austro-Hungarian embassy, both bachelors. The former would have some difficulty in marrying an American girl, should he so desire, since in the German foreign office the principle has long been held that a German diplomatist must marry only a German woman.

Allowed to Marry American.

However, Bismarck made an exception when he allowed Gen. Count von Schweinitz to marry an American woman while Ambassador to St. Petersburg, and another exception was made when the late Baron Speck von Sternburg was allowed to wed Miss Lillian Langham, whose mother was an American, but whose father, by the way, was an Englishman, whose mining interests took him to California. This Sternberg-Langham marriage caused quite a row in the German Reichstag some six years ago when Chancellor von Buelow, replying to the criticisms of the opposition, read a letter of Bismarck's permitting the former German-American marriage. In this Bismarck said: "Refusal to grant permission to Count von Schweinitz to marry an American would exercise an extremely unfavorable influence upon our relations with the United States, which have been so carefully promoted. There are enough tendencies at work against us in America, and our refusal would be utilized in a hostile sense."

Two of the viscounts in this season's list belong to the French embassy. They are Viscount de Martel, third secretary, who has his viscountess with him, and Viscount Charles de Chambrun, the bachelor first secretary, for whose alliance with an American lady there would—in the minds of even our most hardened opponents of international marriages—appear "extenuating circumstances," for besides being quite well off, young, handsome and clever, he is the great-grandson of our beloved ally, the Marquis de Lafayette. Another bachelor of the title is the Viscount de Alte, the Portuguese Minister.

The Twelve Barons.

The most important of the twelve barons who will adorn official society this year is the Italian Ambassador, Edmondo Mayor des Planches. By virtue of being the Ambassador of longest residence here, he is the "dean" of the diplomatic corps. The Baroness is the daughter of a high functionary of the French government, who made a fad of collecting jewels, miniatures, plate and bric-a-brac once owned by Napoleon and his contemporaries. Baron Hengelmuller, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, brought a wife from his own country. Indeed, the Baroness had a title of her own before marriage, being the daughter of an Austrian count. She and the Baron will this season have more titles in their suite than will any other of the embassies. In fact, it includes no untitled personage. Besides Prince Windisch-Graetz and Count Torok, it will include Baron Ambrozy, the first secretary Baron Haymerle, secretary, and Baron Hye, attaché—all bachelors, also Commander Baron and his wife, the Baroness, F. Preuschen von und zu Liebenstein, who have the longest names on the diplomatic list. Then at the German embassy there will be the young bachelor Baron Hartmann von Richthefen, second secretary, while the Russian embassy will have three barons, one married and two bachelors, and two baronesses, one a matron and the other a maiden, the last-named being Baroness Elizabeth Rosen, daughter of Baron and

New Countries of Europe.

The Most Notable Goat Fight in the World's History.

By a Special Contributor.

DOWN in the Herzegovina, one of the new provinces acquired by Austria-Hungary in the recent upheaval in the Balkans, one has a nation at war against the goat.

Beg pardon, we are quoting dispatches when we use here the word nation, for not one American newspaper in ten got the correct term for the place. The Herzegovina—like the Labrador, the article is always prefixed—has for many years been a district, a county, if you please, of Bosnia, and Bosnia a vilayet, or province of Turkey.

Those new countries of Europe have long had a very peculiar status, one worthy of going into. Bosnia, for example, has, since the war of the '70's, been absolutely under Austro-Hungarian control. The troops of the Emperor-King have erected here a model government. But, like Egypt, the powers perpetuate a delicious fiction that it is still, or was up to this October, Turkish soil, simply "occupied" till quiet was restored.

Sultan Receives Tribute.

In Bulgaria one had another fiction. Bulgaria had her army, her navy, her stamps, her coins. And yet, at least up to 1904, she paid the Sultan grudgingly $700,000 a year (this the figure, according to a Sofia journalist,) and was a part of Turkish empire. Then a few years since she moved her frontier over to inclose East Rumelia. And as East Rumelia was Turkish, and she is Turkish, what could the Sultan do, when Bulgaria was so good as to govern for him more territory than agreed?

But—the Herzegovina—the center as well as capital whereof is Mostar. One has there the most remarkable example of reclaiming a province the world has yet witnessed, being carried on among a half-civilized, or possibly better, a half-modernized people, by a handful of troops, and the fight being waged round the goat.

As we got the story in Mostar, it is as follows:

Baron Ritt, Governor of Mostar, today is butting against the goat, and the goat is the very largest article of production in his entire domain.

Problem Is Difficult.

Gov. Ritt finds the problem the most difficult he has ever had to tackle, for, while the question itself is whether the goat shall survive in the Herzegovina, the real issue is the loyalty of the people to the government or their disaffection toward it for all time.

In this interesting little capital of the Herzegovina, in an office looking out upon the high, bleak mountains where the goats and the sheep are grazing by the thousands, their bleats floating in as if to mock His Excellency, we had a talk with the Governor on the subject ever uppermost in his mind.

"The goat," he says, "is today the great factor in the life of the people. A goat here ranges in value from $4.80 to $5.60. A man's wealth, moreover, is stated frequently in terms of his herd.

Would Suppress Goat.

"The state today, on the other hand, is striving to suppress the goats. The animals destroy vegetation, which we feel to be the great essential for the rehabilitation of the Herzegovina. The people, however, care nothing about reforesting the mountains for the benefit of future generations, and so raise the cry for the goat.

"To them the goat is everything. We, in their eyes, are most arrant despots. As the reindeer to the Laplander, so the goat to the Herzegovina. Hide and hair, meat and milk, horns—all are utilized.

"What is more, the goat is not much trouble. The animal is hardy and hunts its own food, so the people ask us, and not without reason, why prefer vegetation, which there would be no animals to devour, to the goats, which seem already to find all that they require?

"Accordingly, to pacify the peasants, the goat tax has been made very low and is regulated by the number of animals a man may possess in inverse proportion. The more goats the more per capita tax.

"A peasant who has a small herd—say about ten goats—returning from the mountain each evening, pays 8 cents a head. A man whose herd is a hundred strong, it is felt, can pay far more for each."

Wonderful Government Work.

In the Herzegovina constant evidences of graft do not stare one in the face on all hands.

"The government," Baron Ritt states, "has taken the following stand in the matter:

"Forests are absolutely necessary to the Herzegovina to regulate the climate, if for no other reason.

"Then, too, they are needed to yield a humus and thus stop the spread of the desert region already too abundant in Bosnia.

"Besides, they are essential to regulate the supply of water.

"The government, therefore, is attempting to reforest the mountains and make them green in order to secure these benefits for the peasants.

"Different methods are being employed to accomplish this purpose. One of the most usual is to blast holes with dynamite in which to plant the trees. Soil then is carried to the pit and the sapling set out. The place is declared a forest reserve.

"Frequently what appears from the road as a mere slope of rock is covered with tiny oaks and other very young trees and is edged with signs prohibiting pasturage in the area.

Goats Driven Into Area.

"On the sly, however, and frequently from mere laziness or spite, the peasant will drive his goats into the area.

"Then when he is fined heavily for the destruction wrought he becomes an opponent of the government.

"According, however, as these plants so set out thrive at the outset, providing, of course, the goats do not get in, we judge if it will pay to plant further in the locality and also in just how many years such a tract may be termed fertile. Some places have become covered by green vegetation in two years.

"These then are held in reserve to the end of the third year. Then they have become what we class as 'partly forested.'

System Is Wonderful.

"Sheep, then, are admitted to the tract—the new pastures. These animals do not rise on their hind legs to devour the growing tops of the plants.

"One year after opening to them cattle are admitted, for they do not reach the tops, so high are these now.

"Finally, one year later still, the goat is admitted, the shrubbery being now strong enough and high enough to care for itself. The arrangement, however, of these various pieces of reserve is unique.

"Parallel plots," he continues, "are laid out over the province, so that when Plot No. 1 is entirely reserved in the next sheep are grazing. The neighbor to this has sheep and cows both. In the farther field or strip sheep, cows and goats graze together, much as one sees these in Switzerland or the Tyrol.

"Each year each reserve will advance one step—one more becomes available for sheep, another for cows, a third for the goats. So that in three years' time the peasant receives back the public land of before, the vast goat pasture, but now no longer denuded as it has been for centuries.

"Eventually the barren Herzegovina should be fertile and green.

Resurrection Idea Indorsed.

"Seven years ago we introduced the latest innovation—i. e., the 'resurrection idea.'

"A field was taken by the government, cleared of everything, declared reserve, and the weeds, which had previously been crushed by the nibbling of cattle and of smaller herds, so that they sent out several side shoots instead of one main stalk, are permitted to rise.

"Then such plants as are harmful to the majority are cut out and the land is allowed to green with the others.

"The venture is a paying one, and already over 400 hectars have been covered by this process in a single circuit.

"Still another way of fighting the havoc done through the centuries by the goat is in sowing a vast amount of seeds over the barrens by hand.

"We have very strict forestry laws in this region, and violators are subject to imprisonment. Instead of jailing the men, however, they are set to gathering seeds—which is far more pleasant, out in the open, than remaining in the cells—and later to sowing them. Consequently, if but one wild seed in 500 thrives, the venture still pays. It costs the government nothing and the produce of that one seed will help spread the good work indefinitely.

"In the north of the Herzegovina there is still some primeval forest, which is being cared for and made productive by like ingenious methods.

Results Are Outlined.

"The matter of water is, of course, affected directly in this connection. In the winter we now have too much water by far in the deserts, and in the summer not nearly enough. Streams dry up, and when it rains the water is sucked into the soil before it can trickle down the mountains, the slopes carrying it off and causing it to disappear until December, when the country is flooded. The great Lake of Popolboljo, dry over the summer, then appears.

"Government cisterns have been built in consequence, each city keeping her cisterns clean. In July and August each year laws are passed regulating how much water each householder may draw per diem, and that for drinking alone.

"Strangers must pay for this privilege, and as frequently there will be no rain for months, drinking water will sell at as much as 8 cents the glass. At such times the goats and cattle are driven into the mountains by the children, as in Kipling's story, six to eight hours' distance, to find running water and pasturage.

Herds Driven to Alps.

"The Lower Herzegovina has but little pasture, so that in May the herds, cattle, sheep, horses and goats together, are driven to the Bosniac Alps. The pastures there are guarded by the government, and it is fixed just who may pasture in a given area, and exactly how many head of animals he may bring into such space in order to prevent the ruination of the grazing.

"The system is much like that employed in Iceland.

"The end of April witnesses thousands of horses and goats driven through Mostar on their way to the mountains for the summer.

"In families, say of ten persons, three will accompany the herds, and these spend the summer in the Alps, making cheese and white round butter or lard cakes, on which the people live in the winter, when it is exceedingly cold in this section.

"The formation of the land is responsible for whatever havoc the goats have not done in bringing the Herzegovina to its present barren state.

"It is this, then, which the war against the goats is to serve as first step toward conquering."

FELIX J. KOCH.

Girl Lawyer in Paris.

FIRST OF HER SEX, BUT SHE MAKES A HIT WITH HER FIRST CASE.

From a Special Correspondent.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Mlle. Hélène Miropolsky, a talented young lady barrister, made her début last week at the Palais de Justice. For the first time in the history of the modern Paris law courts a woman stood alone before the red-robed judges surrounded by all the solemn majesty of justice, pleading in her own right as legal counsel, the cause of another woman who was being tried for murder. No wonder that the court was crowded with an eager public and that all the other counsel, young and old alike, who were not engaged in other cases that day, thronged to witness the ordeal of their young lady colleague.

Clad in the sober black gown and white bib of counsel, but without the medieval bob wig so familiar in England, Mlle. Miropolsky was not in the least overawed or outwardly nervous. She had doubtless looked at herself in the mirror that morning and recognized that the verdict of "the men" could not be other than favorable. Mlle. Miropolsky is a handsome brunette with fine dark eyes, a wealth of wavy black hair clustered out from beneath the coquettish toque, and altogether she is pleasant to look upon, for she is in the bloom of twenty-one summers. Even the public prosecutor, her adversary, unbent from his stern mission as the avenger of justice and made a graceful little speech, welcoming his learned friend at the outset of her legal career.

The case that this twentieth-century Portia was called upon to defend was a peculiarly pathetic one. It was that of a poor woman, a button-maker, who had managed to keep the wolf from the door until she mated with a brutal and lazy man. During the winter Hélène Jean found herself with her baby on many a day face to face with starvation. Work had fallen off and there was no prospects of matters improving. At last one cold morning in March she lost all courage and addressed the following piteous letter to "Monsieur le commissaire de police:"

"Life is too miserable for it to be worth living any longer. I have decided to die, but I shall take my baby with me, for I cannot leave him to the tender mercies of the world. I beg you as a favor to have all my belongings sold so that a wreath may be bought for my baby boy."

Then she lighted the little charcoal stove, locked the door, filled up all the cracks and then, taking her baby in her arms, lay down on her bed to await death. When, hours later, the door was burst open, it was too late. The baby was already dead. Hélène Jean, who was still alive, was taken to a hospital, where she lay between life and death for many days. When at last she left the hospital it was to find the prison doors open to receive her as the murderer of her own child.

The young barrister could hardly have had a more grateful case to defend than that of this bereaved, heartbroken prisoner, alive in spite of herself and now childless. Mlle. Miropolsky drew such a picture as only a woman could draw of another woman's sufferings, and when she had finished, the tears stood in the eyes of many of her hearers. The jury's consultation was brief. There was only one possible answer to such an eloquent appeal; Hélène Jean was unanimously acquitted. The young "avocate," her cheeks flushed with emotion and triumph, was warmly congratulated by a crowd of admiring confrères, who pressed forward to touch their pretty and learned sister's hand.

Hélène Miropolsky's triumphal début was followed the very next day by another "masterly" pleading in the same court. This time, however, the subject was an ungrateful one. It was the trial, for attempted murder, of a female Apache. Last December in the gray light of early morning, an old widow, named Delellie, who keeps a little draper's store in rue St. Martin, was taking down the shutters, when a young woman of the quarter, Louise Brut by name, entered and asked to be shown a blouse. While Mme. Delellie was busy getting it, the young one was trying to get at the till. Unfortunately, Mme. Delellie turned round at the critical moment. Caught in the act, the Apache rushed at the old woman, seized her by the throat and, kicking her violently in the stomach with her knee, laid her on the floor. The old widow struggled desperately, but Louise Brut held her round the throat with a grip like a vise. A few seconds longer, and the victim would have been a corpse. At that moment a second customer entered the store. The Apache fled precipitately, but was arrested shortly afterward.

The prisoner pleaded that she was intoxicated at the time of the outrage, and as it was proved that she had drunk two cups of coffee and four glasses of absinthe just before going to Mme. Delellie, Mlle. Miropolsky was able to induce the jury to allow extenuating circumstances! Maitre Henri Robert, the great criminal advocate, could not have done more for his client than that. Louise Brut was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Mlle. Miropolsky is, therefore, now fairly launched upon her career, at the very outset of which she has reached a degree of celebrity that many briefless barristers dream of, but never attain. It is probable that the new "avocate" will confine her activity to her own sex. Such at any rate is her present intention.

It is not generally known that prior to the great revolution of 1789, no woman was admitted to the bar. The rules of the order were extremely strict, and excluded "the deaf, dumb, mad, minors of sixteen, women, judges, notaries, policemen and persons belonging to a religious order." When the revolution broke out the Corporation of Barristers shared the fate of every other privileged body; it was dissolved and the bar was thrown open to every one. Many prisoners, most indeed, defended themselves, and there is more than one famous instance of women having come forward to plead the cause of their husbands and fathers. The first on record was Mlle. Nina d'Ambert, whose father, the Marquis de Merle d'Ambert, colonel of the regiment of Royal Marine, had quitted France without permission for England, in order to put his wealth in a place of safety. On his return he was seized as an émigré and brought before the terrible revolutionary tribunal, before which hardly any one ever dared to appear as defending counsel of a prisoner. Mlle. Nina d'Ambert fearlessly presented herself on behalf of her father. The tribunal could not in decency refuse to listen to her, but her eloquence was in vain. The Marquis was guillotined and his unhappy daughter died broken-hearted.

It is a curious fact that the Paris bar only now reckons 1220 "maitres," fully half of whom never don the robe. So there should be plenty of room for "ces dames," in spite of the fact that we are clearly less litigiously inclined than our sires.

Pouring Oil on Troubled Waters.

The wind haze ahead thinned out a bit and we caught a glimpse of a bold coast with high cliffs, which appeared to rise sheer from the sea. As we were driving directly upon it we saw that if we hoped to weather out the gale riding to our drag we should have to get more offing. But it was many minutes before there came a patch of water in which we dared try to round up. Even then it was touch and go; broadside on a sea struck the boat and knocked her on her beam ends; she staggered up, and before the next big one hit her was all the way around and nosing her way to windward. For a while we hoped that we were going to be able to poke into it, but before we had got far there came a comber which swept us from bow to stern. The Beaver struggled through, hung poised, and then fell into the trough as if pushed off the edge of a wall; the following sea broke across her, but as her weather side was rolled high up she took but little water, the velocity of the wind carrying the bulk of the heavy spray clean across. We came up blinking and gasping and wondering whether we were afloat or foundering, says Henry C. Rowland in Appleton's Magazine for November, in relating his experiences in a storm on the Black Sea while motor-boating across Europe.

Pomeroy put his mouth to my ear.

"This is no good!" he shouted. "We've got to heave to!"

It did not strike me that there was much choice, as the reefs were not many miles under our lee. But it was evident that we could not last long as we were going, and there was always the chance that the gale might ease enough to let us start the motor off. So I went forward and drew my

There was no con- for refusing admission to the gentler sex, but in order to keep them out an examination so rigid was instituted that not one male lawyer out of every ten in good standing could have coped with it, and thus in the eighties only two more succeeded in getting inside the barriers. One was Mrs. Laure de Force Gordon of California, the other, Mrs. Ada M. Bittenbender of Lincoln, Neb.

Mrs. Carrie Burnham Kilgore attained her ambition in 1890, and was the first woman admitted during the decade, but a number of others followed, and in 1900 an even score of women had earned the highest privilege possible to an American lawyer.

And these women and those who followed have not been content with the empty honor, but have frequently appeared and argued in the court. Mrs. Lockwood appeared fully a thousand times, and Mrs. Marilla M. Ricker, a most talented pleader, has been most frequent in her appearance. Mrs. Ricker is also said to be the only woman who ever sat on the bench with the Lord Chief Justice of England.

The first woman to practice law in this country was Margaret Brent. Lord Baltimore, then Governor of Maryland, asked the Legislature that she be appointed to be executor of her relative's estate.

One of the learned members said that it would be better that the estate be lost than a woman appear to make an argument before the court. Margaret Brent, however, won her case.

And yet a few years after the Civil War, when Mrs. Carrie B. Kilgore applied for admission to the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, she was told by the then dean that when "niggers and women are admitted to the law school" he would resign. Mrs. Kilgore herself relates this incident.

It is largely through the efforts of the women who practice before the Supreme Court that married women throughout the country have acquired guardianship over their children equal with the fathers, and enjoy the right to money earned by them.

Women in general have been admitted to law colleges, to membership in school boards, and to suffrage in many States through the hard work of women who have attained the hearing of the highest legal tribunal.

The dean of the women practitioners in the United States, the gifted Mrs. Lockwood, won the most noted case ever placed to the credit of a woman attorney when the United States Supreme Court gave a verdict of $5,000,000 in favor of 6000 Cherokee Indians.

The laws of the United States secure to the weaker sex its right to practice before the Supreme Court. During her fight for the privilege, Mrs. Lockwood persuaded Benjamin F. Butler to introduce a bill providing that any woman of the requisite talents should be eligible to practice before the Supreme Court. It was lost the first time, but the next session Mrs. Lockwood reappeared with it and was successful in getting it through.

The difficulties of getting ahead in law which have faced almost every woman who developed the aspiration, are excellently illustrated in the case of Mrs. Kilgore. She was the first woman to practice law in Pennsylvania. Born in Craftsburg, Vt., her parents died when she was a little girl. Then her guardian decided that two years' education was enough for a girl. At 15 she became a teacher. Three years later she taught mathematics in the public schools. For a few years she was a professor in a medical college. Then in 1865 she began to read law. Six years later came her application for admission to the law school of the University of Pennsylvania when she was met with the insult coupling her sex with negroes.

For ten years they withheld the permission to enter the law schools, but even when this had been accomplished she faced only the beginning of her troubles. No Philadelphia court would admit her to practice. Finally, in 1883, through the efforts of Damon G. Kilgore, her husband, a Philadelphia lawyer, she was admitted to practice in the Orphans' Court. In 1886 she was admitted to the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court. It was largely through the fight she made that women came to be admitted to practice in the courts of Philadelphia and to be allowed to study in the university law school.

One of the most interesting of all these women practitioners has been Mrs. Marilla Ricker. She has been practicing since 1882, and has made a specialty of criminal cases.

It is related of Mrs. Ricker that after the lawyer opposing her had made a two-hour speech she addressed the court in these words:

"Your Honor and gentlemen of the jury, I follow the example of the learned counsel on the other side, and submit the case without argument."

The jury laughed, while the court suppressed a smile, and the case was decided in her favor.

Years ago Mrs. Ricker went to England with a letter of introduction from Chief Justice Chase to the Chief Justice of England. She was welcomed by the Justice, and was invited to sit with him during the trial of cases, a privilege never accorded to any other woman.

Most of Mrs. Ricker's clients have been women, and many of her cases have dealt with the collection of debts due working women.

Among the women practicing law before the Supreme Court are a number who have a practice worth $10,000 a year.

A Portia in the courts of justice today is no longer the novelty that Shakespeare found it. G. P. S.

Expensive Railroad Rates Abroad.

Mr. Bryan could have told us that on his trip from Liverpool to London, a distance of 200 miles, his fare, including 150 pounds of baggage, was $5.50, while the fare from Boston to Albany, 201 miles, is $3.80. He could have found by inquiry that the engineers who pulled the train from Liverpool to London were paid $2, while the men who run the engines from Boston to Albany receive $7.60 for substantially the same mileage. If Mr. Bryan made the trip from London to Edinburgh, a distance of 400 miles, he paid $13.92 for his ticket. If he had felt interest enough in the matter to suggest the inquiry, he would have found that the engineers who handled the train received a total of $6 for the 400-mile run. When he reached New York he could have traveled on the Empire State Express from New York to Buffalo, a distance forty miles greater than the distance from London to Edinburgh, for $11.25; and he would have found out by inquiry that the engineers who pulled the Empire from New York to Buffalo were paid $16.64. In other words, while the fare in the United States was 20 per cent. less, the pay of American engineers was 177 per cent. more than that paid abroad.

Mr. Bryan might have truthfully told his fellow countrymen, on his return, that the average pay of American railroad men is from 75 to 100 per cent. higher than is paid for similar service abroad, and that the rates, both freight and passenger, in foreign countries average fully double those of the United States.—[William C. Brown, senior vice-president of New York Central Railroad, in Leslie's Weekly.

The Transfer System.

A football enthusiast revisited his native town after six months' absence, and was disappointed to find nobody on the football field. Seeking out the treasurer of the club, he inquired the reason.

"We can't raise a team," answered the treasurer.

"Why, what's become of those two brilliant fullbacks you had last season?"

"Our secretary sold them to a crack league club for £100 apiece."

"And how about the halfbacks?"

"Oh," said the treasurer, "the B—— Club offered us £200 for the three, and our secretary said it was too much to resist, so we let 'em go."

"Then what became of your center forward?"

"Oh, he didn't want to leave us, but another club offered £100 for him, and our secretary persuaded him that a change would do him good."

"Well, you've made a lot of transfer money out of the men, anyhow," remarked the enthusiast, "why don't you buy some new players?"

"There's the rub—we can't get hold of it," replied the treasurer, almost tearfully, "our secretary went off with the money to seek some new players, but that was four months ago, and"—sadly—"he ain't come back yet."—[Ideas.

Moody's Militant Church.

WHOLLY INDEPENDENT IT HAS DONE WONDERFUL WORK.

By a Special Contributor.

JUST as there was only one Dwight L. Moody, masterful world evangelist, so there is no other church just like Chicago's famous "Moody Church" on the face of the whole earth. There are thousands of churches greater in many respects, but the Moody church is in a class all by itself. Wholly independent and without affiliation with any particular sect or denomination whatever, it is at the same time a central ecclesiastical force whose workings ramify not merely throughout and beyond Chicago, but to no small degree around the globe.

Poor folk are notably welcome in Roman Catholic churches everywhere, as in the rank and file of Protestant churches, and the Moody Church is no exception. In fact, if any partiality exists as between rich and poor, it is the latter who are favored in this intensely democratic and peculiar organization, which "excommunicates" the member of influence and worldly importance when occasion arises as readily as the humblest day laborer; which will accommodatingly sprinkle you if you incline to that method of baptism or immerse you if you prefer to go under the water; which buys a column every week at advertising rates in one of the country's greatest newspapers in which to publish the gospel tidings; and which is a real, live, sure-enough twentieth-century success along first-century old-theology lines!

Almost every Sunday it is announced from the platform of the Moody Church that the poor who have nothing to give are just as welcome to the best the church affords as are those who contribute most liberally. "The best seat in the house is yours if you will take it," says the preacher, and the courteous ushers are particularly on the alert to welcome the poorly-dressed worshiper. One of the church's most respected elders combined that exalted office for many years with the lowlier role of church janitor; and there isn't a man of wealth among the thirty-odd members of the governing body, the Executive Committee, although rich folks are not wanting in the large congregation.

The Moody Church building is a commodious, three-story, red brick structure, situated a few blocks north of Chicago's business center, at the northwest intersection of La Salle and Chicago avenues. It is a "downtown" church, attended mainly by worshipers of the working classes, and to those who know the facts of its history, the principles on which it is conducted and the scope of the work it is accomplishing, it looms large in the religious firmament as one of the greatest beacon lights of evangelical Christianity in the world.

Downtown churches almost invariably decline steadily in membership on account of removals to outlying districts, and frequently disband or withdraw to more favorable locations. This is so familiar a process that one almost regards it as the working of an established law. It is therefore noteworthy that the Moody Church is an illustration of the contrary effect. Although a downtown church, its membership (over 2000) is now at the highest point in its history.

At least one of its methods is modern and forceful to an extent not approached in the work of any other church in Christendom as far as the writer knows. A column of space is purchased weekly in the Chicago Daily News at the regular rate for religious notices, and in this column the pastor, Rev. A. C. Dixon, D.D., lays before that paper's million or more readers the religious teaching which he considers of vital and timely importance; and about 1000 newspapers in as many of the smaller cities and towns throughout the United States are buying these sermons from a plate agency and printing them regularly. Publication of the paid weekly sermon in the Daily News was started early last January; and so numerous have been the evidences of interest in this method of disseminating Christian teaching that it is now planned to publish the sermons in all Chicago daily papers of all languages.

Here is the story of the church's founding: In 1857 D. L. Moody started a Sunday-school in a deserted saloon in the worst district of Chicago, with 200 saloons and gambling dens crowded together within the range of a few blocks. The school was a success from the start, and soon required larger quarters; and Mr. Moody enlisted as superintendent a prominent business man, Mr. John V. Farwell, the millionaire merchant recently deceased.

President-elect Abraham Lincoln addressed the school while in Chicago on his way to his first inaugural at Washington—the first and only time he ever made a Sunday-school address—and about sixty of Moody's boys who heard him responded to the President's first call for volunteers.

Mr. Farwell had secured Mrs. Lincoln's promise that her distinguished husband should visit the Sunday-school, and when the superintendent called with a carriage at the home of the prominent citizen who was entertaining him, he excused himself immediately, leaving in the midst of dinner, and together they drove to the crowded school. On the way Mr. Lincoln declared that addressing a Sunday-school was out of his line. He was willing to visit the school, but did not wish to do any preaching. But when his tall figure appeared in the hall, the shout which greeted him was irresistible. He made a brief address earnestly commending the work of the school and telling his hearers that if they would study the Bible and practice its precepts they were sure to become useful and honored citizens.

The school again outgrew its quarters, and in 1863 the Illinois-street chapel was erected to accommodate it, Mr. Moody collecting the money required, about $20,000. The membership was now about 1000, and of the scholars and their parents some 300 had professed to adopt the Christian life. Mr. Moody urged the converts to unite with established churches, but soon it became an evident necessity to organize them as a separate congregation.

Accordingly Mr. Moody invited the city ministers of his acquaintance to meet in council at his chapel for the purpose of organizing them as a church. The council was held December 24, 1864, with a good attendance of ministers of various denominations. All, however, felt obliged to decline to participate officially except the Congregationalists, to whom fell the duty of organizing "The Illinois Street Independent Church."

The Illinois-street chapel was destroyed in the great fire of 1871, and for two years Mr. Moody's congregation worshiped in a large one-story frame tabernacle which was among the first buildings erected in the burned district. The winter following the fire was a period of much distress and the tabernacle was a center for the relief of the needy. It was kept open day and night as a shelter for any who chose to enter; food and clothing were supplied freely, and the religious services which began early every afternoon and lasted until late in the evening fairly glowed with evangelistic fervor. At many of these meetings the singing was led by the late Ira D. Sankey, famous singer and composer of gospel hymns and Mr. Moody's associate in his great campaigns.

During last winter the Moody Church conducted relief work for unemployed men somewhat similar to that of the old tabernacle days. For fifty-eight successive mornings a free breakfast of bread and butter and coffee in unlimited quantity was served, first in the church lecture-room, and then, when larger accommodations were required, in the church auditorium. A total of 58,500 meals were given, and the hungry men, most of them homeless wanderers, consumed an average per meal of four cups of coffee and seven-eighths of a loaf of bread each. Every morning the breakfast was followed by a religious service and the old-time scenes were reenacted with like results. At these meetings, which were attended almost exclusively by non-churchgoers, 847 men made public confession of having begun the Christian life, among them gamblers, thieves and crooks of all kinds.

In the memorable panic year 1873 the first story of the present Moody church structure was built—and the edifice was completed in 1876, Mr. Moody having in the meantime scored his first great success in the British Isles. It is interesting to know that the final indebtedness on the building was met with a fund of $25,000 representing accumulated royalties on the sales of the Moody and Sankey hymn-books in Great Britain. Mr. Moody, when notified by the committee in charge of the book sales that this amount was due him, refused to accept a penny of it (his enemies had said he was mercenary,) and the committee finally decided that the money should go into the church building in Chicago.

Sketching briefly its subsequent history, the church has been served by a line of ministers including, among others, the late Rev. George C. Needham, an evangelist of note; Rev. Charles A. Blanchard, D.D., president of Wheaton College; Rev. Charles F. Goss, D.D., who has since attained literary distinction; Rev. R. A. Torrey, D.D., and the present pastor, Rev. A. C. Dixon, D.D.

The pastorate of Dr. Torrey, 1893 to 1901, marked a great advance in the prosperity of the church and its work. Dr. Torrey was at the same time superintendent of the Moody Bible Institute, established in 1889 and located close to the church; and his dual relationship to the two institutions led to a cordial cöoperation between them which was of great benefit to both and which still continues.

Over four years elapsed after Dr. Torrey's departure before Dr. Dixon was called from Boston to assume the pastorate, the pulpit being supplied in the interim by men of distinction at home and abroad who had been called to deliver lecture courses in the Moody Bible Institute. During this time the church not only suffered no diminution of prosperity, but actually made additional headway; and when Dr. Dixon took hold in the fall of 1906 a new era of expanded activity immediately began. During the winter of 1906-7 and again in 1907-8 the Great Northern Theater was engaged for a noon-day service once a week. It was a week-day service in the center of the business district, and soon the city had learned that in Dr. Dixon Chicago had acquired one of the world's most forceful and most eloquent preachers.

Unswerving loyalty to the Bible is the basis of everything in the Moody Church's creed, government and practice. The formal confession of faith, to which the assent of all applicants for membership is required, is made up from beginning to end of verbatim quotations from the scriptures.

The principle, "In essentials unity, in non-essentials liberty" expresses the attitude toward varying doctrinal views. For instance, as to the mode of administering baptism, members who believe the Bible teaches sprinkling are sprinkled by an elder having the same conviction, while those who believe the scripture method is immersion are immersed by an elder who believes likewise. Similarly infants are sprinkled or "dedicated" as desired by the parents. And strange as it may seem, no ripple of dissension on these subjects is every seen in this cosmopolitan congregation.

The membership includes representatives of nearly all white races, with a few orientals and colored folk; and there is an almost equal diversity of previous religious connections. "The rich and the poor meet together"—the latter of course greatly predominating—but no class distinctions are observable.

There are no pew rents; all the seats are free; no admission fee is ever charged for any service or entertainment of any character; and the church motto lettered above the main entrance reads: "Ever welcome to this house of God are strangers and the poor."

"The church is supported entirely by voluntary offerings. The total contributions for 1907 amounted to $32,-

The Hague.

[illegible] OF THE QUEEN AND THE ROYAL HOUSEKEEPER.

By a Special Contributor.

[illegible] of the things that struck us most about this [illegible] modern city was that Queen Wilhelmina [illegible] back door to her palace. At least, there [illegible] is none, if one may judge from the fact that [illegible] delivering parcels, and the milkman with his [illegible], went in by one of the front entrances.

[illegible] and more we discerned by sitting comfortably [illegible] opposite the palace and watching what [illegible]. It was not with a view to studying the meth[illegible] the groceries that we sat there, but to [illegible] start for her daily drive. Incidentally we [illegible] number of interesting matters.

[illegible] at the Hague is a three-story solid hand[illegible], which forms three sides of a hollow [illegible] statue of the famous and noble Wil[illegible] faces the palace, bearing the arms of [illegible] provinces on the base. The ends of the two [illegible] square are directly upon the street, the only [illegible] in front of the palace being the inside [illegible] before the great door. This may be contradicted by na[illegible] other capitals, but it is true that it is a [illegible] city, with wide streets, stately public build[illegible] houses, fine shops and an excellent tram [illegible]. The splendid trees are among the great beau[illegible] The Hague. There are magnificent avenues all [illegible], and especially on the way to the lovely [illegible], where the first International Peace Con[illegible] held. Going, too, to Scheveningen, the smart [illegible], one passes through enchanted forests, in [illegible] one have for a moment perfect faith, one [illegible] fairy princess or the Sleeping Beauty. The [illegible] is a lovely little lake surrounded by [illegible] buildings. Along one side trees are planted, [illegible] the tired traveler to rest and gaze at [illegible]. Here we again experienced the protecting [illegible] the Dutch. As we rested a boy came up to [illegible]. We declined firmly, first with "Neen," [illegible] then a plain English "No," but the [illegible] us for his prey, and persisted.

[illegible] very importunate a gentleman came by. [illegible] at a glance, hooked his walking-stick crook into the boy's collar, walked him off a few paces, and delivered a lecture which had the effect of frightening the boy from our neighborhood.

We have also discovered that Dutch politeness does not stop at bowing to the other occupants of a bench or a restaurant table. The men who happen to be shopping—with a similar reluctance to that shown by the men of other nationalities—take off their hats and bow to each lady who enters the shop while they are there. This is slightly disconcerting at first, but one becomes accustomed to anything—even to stewed apricots with chicken, and cheese for breakfast, which the waiter considered "English," and gloried in accordingly.

MARY MACLEOD MOORE.

Never Had a Debt.

KING VICTOR EMMANUEL HOLDS THAT UNIQUE DISTINCTION.

From a Special Correspondent.

ROME, Oct. 22.—King Victor Emmanuel stands unique as the one sovereign in the world who has never had a debt! More remarkable still, he was practically free from debt as Crown Prince, when his finances were anything but florid.

The Italian civil list amounts to the very respectable sum of $1,200,000 yearly, but the King's expenses are enormous. He hands over every year $400,000 to his mother, he keeps up from eight to ten palaces and estates, which came to him from the dispossessed Italian rulers, and he is paying off the debts of an extravagant father and still more so, grandfather. When he came to the throne he found that there were many large debts, on which very high interest was being paid, of the great Victor Emmanuel, a King in the old style, without thought where spending, women, and feasting were concerned, but a hero for courage and love of country. King Humbert was more restrained in his pleasures, but thought that a king should be a king all through, and not look at the pennies. Thus when his son came to the throne he found a sad state of financial chaos.

Victor Emmanuel's public point of view, curiously enough, is that of his subjects, that while the country is poor her sovereign should pay the personal family debts, and his private view is that a sovereign lowers his own dignity and that of his subjects if he runs into money difficulties, and is obliged to pawn his jewels, for example. He therefore looked about him for the best way to raise money, and came to the conclusion that the bourgeoise way is the best, i. e., to cut down expenses. What a day that was at court! When he had expounded his plans to the Minister of the Royal House, that functionary went about with his eyes half-out his head with astonishment, and is even said to have been seen wringing his hands and praying for a return of the good old days! There was great astonishment, not only in Italy, but abroad, when the young sovereign, with over a million dollars' income, sold nearly a hundred horses which had been eating their heads off at the Quirinal Palace, only keeping those strictly necessary for royal use. At the same time two or three cooks were got rid of. Today the Queen's clothing, while still of the best quality, is not bought regardless of the price, as was the case with Queen Margherita. Furthermore, Queen Elena's gowns and hats are seen quite three times, if not more, by the public, and entertaining at the palace is restricted to two balls a year, the necessary state dinners, and such indispensable functions. Despite the household economies, foreign sovereigns who have visited the Quirinal declare that they were entertained as well, if not better, than at any other court.

King Victor Emmanuel's subjects do not thank him for his care of the national exchequer. Quite the contrary. They complain of what they call his "parsimony," say he is not a king, but a gentleman farmer, go so far as to call him the "miser," and hint that he is saving his money and putting it safely in English government bonds, so that the day he loses his throne he will at least have his money! This, of course, has come to his ears, but with such a man gossip makes little impression, and he has merely redoubled his efforts to get the debts paid off and live as he chooses.

Another of his "economies" was to turn the royal stables, here and there, into paying concerns. For instance, Castelfusano and Castelporziano, near Ostia, on the sea, under the late "magnificent" King, were merely passive shooting places, which required large sums to keep up. The "bourgeois" King has, with modern methods, transformed them into money-making properties, which pay from 3 to 5 per cent., and at the same time keeps up his game preserves at half the cost. The Coltano estate, which seemed to be nothing but worthless marshes, has been drained, and now pays something like 10 per cent., and the "miser" has given a large part of it as a gift for the installation of the Marconi wireless.

However, with all his good qualities, it must be confessed that the Italian sovereign carries his economy somewhat too far. It is all right to pay off other people's debts, but not at the expense of decorum. It is authoritatively stated that Queen Elena sells her old clothes, that is, the very old ones—the comparatively good ones are sent to her family at Montenegro—and that her husband thinks twice before opening a bottle of champagne. It is, perhaps, unfortunate that King Victor reigns over a nation which does not particularly love and admire the domestic virtues in a ruler if not kept in the background and overshadowed by kingly show.

A RHYME OF RECORDS.

Dick went up in an airship,
And Tom remained below
To race in a big red auto
And break a record or so.
He geared his car to its highest —
And turned it loose in its power
And traveled around the circuit
At two hundred miles an hour.

But Dick careering above him
Was leaning over the side
And gazing down on the landscape,
Enjoying his aërial ride,
When the bag and the basket parted
And down he came from the blue
At a hundred miles a minute,
Which was better than Tom could do.

THE BRANDED.

They pass me ev'ry day with furtive glance
From hollow eyes that once were clear and fair;
Their feet move slowly with a hid despair—
The feet that once tript lightly in the dance.
One paid to Appetite a price too dear;
One shunning Poverty enslaved her soul.
The Past from out their lives the rarest stole;
The Future's clouds hang pitiless and drear.

I would not curse them tho' they branded be;
I would remember we are common dust.
He lifted you, O Mary, from your lust,
And it is He who gives you purity. . . .
Great Master, guard me lest I cast a stone,
Who should for sordid sins myself atone!

Lover's Hard Battles.

Female Hosts Whom the Duke of Abruzzi Had to Fight.

By a Special Contributor.

THE troubles the Duke of Abruzzi has had in putting through his cherished plan to wed Miss Katharine Elkins, daughter of the millionaire Senator, are little understood in the United States. The worst part of them came not from the King, but from his women connections.

Victor Emmanuel, of Italy, is good-natured and easy-going, much like his murdered father in temperament.

When rumors of Miss Elkins's possible accession into his royal family reached him, he sent for the Duke of Abruzzi, and asked his intentions. The famous royal explorer told of his hope of winning her.

It is said that the King urged no very serious objection. Certain it is that he could not have seriously discouraged the young suitor, for immediately announcement came that the marriage was a certainty of the near future.

Queen Helen of Italy.

Dowager Queen Margherita.

Duchess of Aosta.

Dowager Duch
of Aosta.

Dowager Duchess of

But this was before the women of the family got a chance at the proposition. Then the Duke reached his real hour of trouble. He had a host to deal with, for the politics of Italy is such that three women wield tremendous power in the affairs of state, and there are a number of others not without serious influence.

The Dowager Queen, Margherita, widow of the murdered Humbert, and mother of King Victor Emmanuel, is the most loved woman in the realm. No other has ever had the hold that was hers on the affection of the people. She was the daughter of the Duke of Genoa, and in her youth they called her the "Pearl of Savoy." Her wedding to Humbert was with her no mere affair of state. She honestly loved the monarch, and his long amour with the Duchess of Litta, with its scandal and the suit of the Duke of Litta for divorce, naming the King as co-respondent, was a frightful blow to her. But she bore the disgrace of it bravely for the sake of the country, and finally her heroic conduct so impressed the King that he broke off the liaison, begged forgiveness, and a lasting reconciliation came between the royal pair.

But almost before the overjoyed Queen had had any pleasure of the new condition, the hand of the anarchist, Bresci, removed Humbert from earth, and put on his throne Victor Emmanuel.

The love of the people for the old Queen has never changed. They remember her brilliancy, her diplomacy, and while the superior physical charms of the present Queen are conceded, there has never been any serious replacing of the old ties of love.

The King believes devotedly in his mother, and consults her on everything. Hence when her powerful influence was thrown against the Duke of Abruzzi's wedding, he had a strong rival to deal with.

Then, too, the present Queen sided with her mother-in-law.

Queen Helen is the daughter of the Prince of Montenegro, and it is known that she narrowly missed becoming the wife of the present Czar of Russia. It was before Nicholas became Czar that he learned to admire the beauty of the Princess of Montenegro. He went a-wooing, and sought her hand in marriage. She inclined favorably to his suit, but before the union could be arranged, the statesmen of the Russias decided on other plans for their future ruler, and willed that he should marry his cousin, Princess Alix of Hesse. This was a blow to the Princess, and there were not full compensations for it when the Prince of Naples sought her in marriage.

He, who later became King, is hardly five feet tall, is hopelessly delicate, and is afflicted with hip disease. The line from [illegible] e came was so vigorous that the condition [illegible] g is a matter for amazement.

Hele [illegible] erbly handsome woman, both as to face and fig [illegible] she has in her make-up much of the courage and stubbornness of a people who, hopelessly outmatched, have never hesitated to pit their arms against those of the Turk.

She was ambitious; she married the King. For a long time it looked as though there would be no heir to the throne, and that the Duke of Aosta would succeed. But the stork came.

Helen now, as the mother of the future King, enjoys a much more influential position than while she was the childless wife of a King whose poor health seriously jeopards his stay on the throne.

Helen was very positive. Of course it was out of the question, this marriage between a member of Italy's ruling house and the American girl, who, no matter how beautiful, wealthy and worthy, lacked the royal blood which Princes and Dukes must espouse.

Then the Duchess of Aosta showed her hand. She was with Margherita and Helen, which in itself is quite uncommon. The strength of the Duchess's position can hardly be understood in this country, but for a long time there were strong indications that she was destined to be the Queen of Italy. Her husband, the Duke of Aosta, is the son of the older brother of King Humbert. He stood next to Victor Emmanuel until the child came to put him out of the race.

The Duchess, who is a daughter of the late Comte de Paris, almost became the wife of the heir to England's throne. The Duke of Clarence, eldest son of King Edward VII, loved her, and but for the demands of his state and religion, would have married her. Helena, a Catholic, was also anxious to wed him, and it is said that she went to the Pope and on her knees begged his permission. His Holiness refused.

The Duke of Clarence never learned another love, though later he became affianced to the Princess May of Teck, now wife of his young brother, the Prince of Wales, and the name of Helena was on his paling lips when he died.

Ambitious and piqued, the Duchess turned to Italy and married the Duke of Aosta. The union was never a happy one, and on three occasions, angered at his amours, the Duchess has with difficulty been restrained from leaving him. Naturally, as probable Queen of the future, she was a person much listened to. Even now that a child stands between herself and his dream, her power is still strong.

Aiding this powerful trio were other women of influence whose voices are always heard in councils of the royal family of Italy.

The Princess Letitia, the Dowager Duchess of Aosta, the Duke of Abruzzi's stepmother, was at first antagonistic, though she is said to have been one of the first he persuaded into taking a new view.

The Dowager Duchess of Genoa was also active with the opponents of the union; so was the [illegible] Genoa.

Duke Abruzzi must have played his [illegible] fully to have finally turned the [illegible] of his work he did through the King [illegible] the woman of his choice, and is deeply [illegible] beautiful Helen, a condition by no mean[illegible] curiously-assorted royal houses of Europe.

Therefore he had a willing ear for the young Duke, and once this royal aid had [illegible] that remained was a policy of careful [illegible] feminine relatives of the royal house.

The Town Hall is on the road to uptown and the many residence districts that go to make up this great, populous city. But before leaving the business quarter, you must drop in to the marble bar in Pitt street. Australians are credited with consuming more cups of tea per diem than the greediest child at a Sunday-school feast. The country is a thirsty one. And to show their impartiality as regards drinks, the Sydney-siders invite you in to the "most splendid barroom in the world, bar none." Strangers used to visit the Hoffman House in New York to see the famous pictures—perhaps the Waldorf-Astoria has now eclipsed the Hoffman—but both these are hotels. The Marble Bar is just a saloon, but even prohibitionists enter its doors to inspect the marbles and the living statues. At a quiet hour under the dim glow of the electric bulbs you might take the place at first glance for a chapel. Nowhere else but in some Italian church have you seen such beautiful pillars and slabs of veined and tinted stone, framed in polished wood. But the subtle invincible odor of alcohol asserts itself; the attendant ministers, robed in black, tall and stately, prove to be barmaids, special importations, however, of the select Spiers and Pond type and not to be confounded with dive girls. The price of drinks is scaled to match the fixtures in this most sumptuous of gin palaces. The thousands lavished on it came, men say, from the profits of the great Australian racing lottery, which for some years has been banished to a neighboring island.

Thirst and esthetic taste being satisfied, you can take a street car at the door and wander out into the suburbs, to Waverly Heights or Woolahea, the cricket ground and race course, the University of New South Wales. The Sydney trolley lines are called "trams." They are run on the zone plan. You take a penny ticket, paying for it in a copper coin, as big as a half-dollar and worth 2 cents, and ride to a certain limit. Then you must buy another ticket, and so on "da capo," till you get to the end of the line. Except on match or race days, it is hardly worth one's while to go so far afield as the Grounds. In the university buildings, which are practically in the country, the Gothic type, with its spires and oriels, has been followed. But the colonial "alma mater," dating from 1852, is modern enough to train her sons directly for the professions, instead of restricting her teaching to the "humanities" and general culture.

Taking a trolley trip toward the suburbs, one is likely to lose one's sense of direction, as the roads wind up hill and down dale. But orientation is easy in this sunshiny land, provided you remember that it is the antipodes, and that the sun's position at noon is in the north. After adjusting your notions accordingly, you learn without surprise and accept as a logical sequence that the East End is Sydney's fashionable quarter. Bondi and Coogee are quaint native names of two pretty suburban townlets. But perhaps the best view of what the wealthier people of the city have done to improve the naturally picturesque environs is obtained from the line that runs out to the South Head. It follows the high ground above the harbor, skirting its bays and creeks, and is lined with handsome residences and beautiful grounds.

But the majority of Sydney's half-million inhabitants live side by side in rows and terraces which are the counterparts of middle-class London. Take a walk along Oxford street, the wide avenue into which the streets of the business quarter lead. On one hand you have the Domain and St. Mary's Cathedral, on the other the turf of Hyde Park, which is only a fraction of the size of its London namesake. Oxford street runs on into Paddington, a thickly-populated quarter of brick and stucco-fronted houses, guarded by iron railings with spikes on which to hang empty beer cans. But these names are not the only reminders of London. English is spoken here with a decided Cockney accent and disregard of the aspirate; the lingo of the coster ballads is in the air.

In physique and notably in height the Sydney folk surpass the Londoners. Their British origin is not so evident as is the case with the New Zealanders, for the sub-tropical climate has overlaid the ruddy complexion with a coat of tan. Citizens who derive from other European nations are comparatively rare, and the Asiatic admixture is not very great. The local Chinese have managed to monopolize furniture-making here.

Like all Australians, the Sydney people have no use for stiffness, hauteur, or rigid lines of social demarkation. Perhaps that is why Mark Twain, who has lived much in Europe, said that here and also at Melbourne he felt almost at home again. But their democracy is not aggressive, except in politics, where the leaning toward socialism is very marked, nor brusquely self-assertive and defiant of social conventions, save in the case of the "larrikin." By this queer name is designated the local variety of hoodlum or hooligan, a class which seems to be a by-product of all great cities in lands where military service is not compulsory. The larrikin is just a young Ishmael whose hand is "agin" every one—especially the constabulary—who is not a member of his own "push." The name is said to be derived from "laking;" but their horse play is extremely rough, their humor malicious.

On a fine holiday afternoon the Domain is thronged with Sydney folk. The "bloke" is there in his Sunday's best, with the missus and the kiddies, the youngest being wheeled around in a "pram," which is the same thing as a baby carriage. For the Domain is the city's lounge and airing ground, its Central Park, eighty or ninety acres of rolling turf, walking across which is not prohibited, shaded by great trees and close to the business quarter. It overlooks and reaches down to the harbor, and encloses, like a Paradise in Eden, a celebrated botanical garden. Amid its groves of palm and bamboo, its bosky dells fragrant with strange blossoms, paths are artfully laid out so as to command charming vignettes of the sea and shipping. Plants of the tropic and temperate zones are assembled here in inexhaustible variety.

For Sydney enjoys a climate very like our own, lying as it does 34 degrees south of the equator or almost to a minute of latitude as far south as we are north. Differences, of course, exist. Their rainfall is more copious. Their winters seem to be actually frost-free, with a minimum of 4 degrees above freezing; like the South of France, they say, the wealthy Londoner's ideal winter resort. The mean temperature is high, 62.6 degrees F.; and the hottest ever, 106 degrees F., exceeds our limit a little. But they suffer from that drawback, common to most sub-tropical cities, ours excepted, in the summer, moist, muggy weather.

Sydney, however, has an antidote to heat prostration ready to hand. What if the streets are sweltering, it is sure to be cool on the water; and no point in the city is more than a mile and a quarter distant from the harbor. Circular Quay is the hub of the water front, the focal point of holiday and suburban traffic. All day long local steamers are arriving or departing from the slips which adjoin the Quay restaurant, where you can eat fried snapper and look out of the window at the great Orient and P. and O. liners. Sixpence or a shilling pays for a round trip across to the North Shore, up the Paramatta River or to a landing on one of the numerous bays of the harbor.

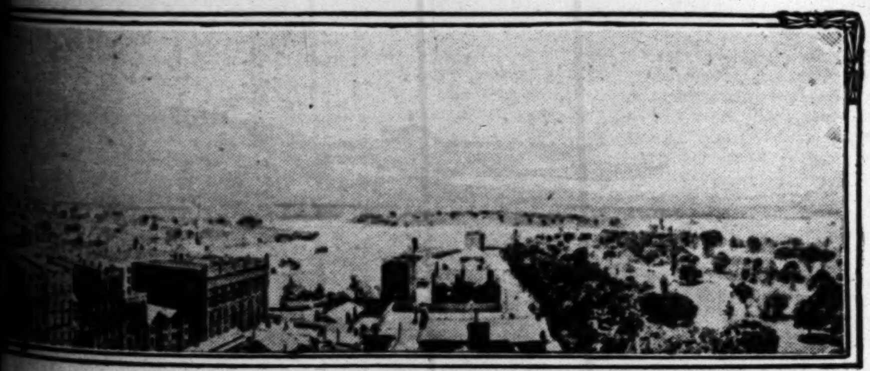
The Paramatta is the Thames of Sydney. Its estuary is a continuation of the harbor inland, and presents the same features of land-locked bays and branching creeks. From it you get a view of the smoky, chimneyfied manufacturing side of Sydney. Farther up in the wide reaches about Mortlake the famous oarsmen of Sydney train and race; and at Paramatta, above the railroad bridge, are groves of Australian navel oranges. With the harbor at their doors. Sydney citizens can freely enjoy the sports of yachting and fishing, but in the matter of sea bathing they are hampered by the presence of voracious and aggressive sharks. Swimming out from shore is highly dangerous. At the beach resorts wire-entanglements and stockades have been built to keep these pests off, and behind such protections the bathers swim in a sort of salt-water corral.

While viewing the different aspects of the many-sided city from the deck of a suburban steamer, the tourist may gain some notion of its maritime traffic. There is no such crowding of vessels here as in ports situated on narrow rivers, no coup d'oil of tangled masts and yards. Regular lines or casual tramp, every vessel passing the Heads finds a snug berth at some appointed station along the 20,000 feet of wharf frontage. In the course of ordinary trade, it is figured that the tonnage of vessels using this port amounts to the good round figure of 80,000 tons a day. In the height of the wool-exporting season this total is augmented by half as much again.

One can take passage at Sydney for almost any port in the Seven Seas. Most of the big steamship companies are represented here, and their boats arrive and depart regularly for Europe, Asia, Africa, and America, following the beaten tracks. But Sydney appeals to the imagination as the port of adventurers. Whalers, pearlers, copra gatherers, all those craft that nose around the endless archipelagos of the South Seas, outfit here. The ship that you see going gaily out with the tide past the Heads may be a trader to the dangerous cannibal Islands of New Britain; or to New Guinea, the last of the wonder lands, as yet scarce explored and unexploited; or a seeker commissioned for the Antarctic continent and the quest of the southern pole.

Only a few score years ago this busy water front was nothing but a penal settlement, peopled by armed guards and convict laborers. Rushcutter's Bay still retains its original name, but Sydney Cove, which came to mean in London slang a ticket-of-leave man, is now Circular Quay. Among the convicts dumped here many must have been offenders against overstrict laws. When men could be hanged for sheep stealing, they were doubtless transported for what we should now regard as minor offenses.

Few cities, however, can point to such a contrast between the present and the past. After all the Sydney-siders are right in sounding the praises of their harbor. It was the making of them. The colony is poorly off for navigable rivers, and in such a case the possession of a good harbor means a virtual monopoly of trade. Behind it are the great natural resources of the colony in gold, wool, and coal. And Sydney herself happens to be located close to the coal-bearing belt. With this stimulus to industrial activity the amazing growth of the city is connected. But regarding the colony as a whole, it is a lopsided growth, as of a tumor. For a young country of a million and a half souls can hardly spare a third of them to swell the population of a capital city.



SYDNEY AND ITS HARBOR.

Willella's Mirage.

THE ALASKA MINER ENTERS THE HOUSE OF THE AMAZONS.

By a Special Contributor.

MY father died when I was only a baby. So now that my two brothers are married and scattered to the four winds of the earth, our household is, like Cranford, in the possession of the Amazons. There is mother, who is mother always. Then there is Aunt Martha. Frances, my eldest sister, is a progressive sort of person, the kind who, when there is a "Keep Out" sign, says: "Oh, come on! See, here's a nice hole in the fence where some one else has crawled through." Frances is less bother than the rest of the female element of our family, for she has a profession, but that need not enter into my story. Then there is Willella, who is the heroine, or, rather, the central figure of my story. And there is myself, which makes five.

Considering us as Amazons, I really ought to mention Christabel, who makes the sixth. But we fell in the habit of not mentioning her when we sold our old home in the village of Bellding, and decided to put the lares and penates in cold storage and take a nice furnished house in the city until we could all make up our minds just exactly where we wanted to live and get it boiled down to one place. We never had fully realized what a lot of women we were, until we began to look at the nice "To Let, Furnished," houses of nice people who were going away for a few months and were really anxious to get some nice people to come in and take good care of their houses and pay a good rent. Two of us at a time would go to look at a house, and as we're nice and respectable-looking, things would go along very smoothly until the inevitable question about the personnel of the family would come up. "No, no children," we would affirm smilingly, "just——" and at the end of the sentence, the lady of the house would throw up her hands and exclaim: "A household of five women! I COULDN'T have five women in my house! Why, think of it! My rugs would be worn threadbare in front of the mirrors." It was really dishonest of us, I suppose, not to mention Christabel, for I am quite sure that she spends more time before her mirror coddling her wooly pompadour than any of the rest of us do. Still, servants' rooms are not considered at all seriously in most houses.

In spite of the disgraceful fact that we were five women, we at last found ourselves established in the very pleasant home of a reasonable woman. I have told all of this family history in the attempt to begin at the beginning of my story, although of course every story really has to begin in the middle. I suppose I should have to go into a psychological analysis of Willella's disposition, and a detailed study of why she is the way she is, if I were really to begin at the beginning of this story. Willela is not a person who can gracefully keep busy and happy doing nothing. She is simply perishing to do something, but it is never the same thing long enough so that anything gets done. One day she longs for wealth so that she need never do anything but be carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease. The next day she decides that she really ought to take up art, because an artist once said some things of hers were not bad. The next day, however, she decides that it would be interesting to be a stenographer—there is something so fascinatingly neat and business-like about typewriting.

We all look solemn and quote to her how

"The flighty purpose ne'er is o'ertook
Unless the deed go with it."

And yet it is rather interesting to see what wild visions will torment her next. It worries mother, for she says it keeps Willella thin and makes wrinkles in her neck.

Well, in our nice taken-furnished house we developed the habit of reading the morning Times around the breakfast table. We never did that before because in Bellding the Times didn't come till noon. But here the paper was thrown in the yard about half-past 7, and Christabel would bring it in just as we had a little more coffee. Some cooks would be cross to have us dawdle so long when she might be clearing the table, but Christabel is a believer in the sentiment of

"Ne'er ask the hour; what is it to us
How Time deals out his treasures?
The golden moments lent us thus
Are not his coin, but Pleasure's."

And if we dawdled it gave Christabel some extra golden moments to coddle her pompadour before the mirror (though she didn't like the mirror very much, because it had wavy lines in it that made her hair look kinkier than it really was) and to think about the "tall gem'man, swell dressah"—the colored gardener of the people next door.

It was really laughable how systematically we came to read that paper. The Times divides itself naturally into three parts. This resulted in the fractional problem of three divided by four, for Aunt Martha did not mingle in this harum-scarum perusal, but quietly waited and then read all the foreign news and the things that make a newspaper really valuable. Mother always wanted first the piece that contained the "Items from Bellding." Frances seized the sheet of mining news first because she had invested so heavily in an Arizona mine that her whole year's income from her "profession" was involved. The "Exchange," "Wanted" and "For Sale" part was all that was left, so it happened that Willella began to concentrate her attention on the "Wanted—Help Female" column, and that part of the paper came to be her first choice. Furthermore, it came to be the regular thing for her to read aloud some bit which she interpreted as savoring of adventure.

"There," she would say, "if I knew how to cook so that I would be tolerated for a moment, and if I didn't really just loathe cooking, I should answer that advertisement. Girls have done that, you know, simply for the sake of experience. It would be like a regular twentieth-century novel if it were not for the cooking—taking the position of a menial and being in reality a lady in disguise." Or, "They want an apprentice in Mme. Gautier's shop. Mother, would you really object seriously if I should look into this? I always did think hatmaking a fascinating art. You know I can really get a very unusual and original effect when I just pin things on a hat. Richard le Galliene's wife started a hat shop in Paris. I suppose it would take a long time, though, to work up in the art."

About this time Willella actually began to experiment with the typewriter which Uncle Henry stored in our attic until he should open an office again. She got a girl she knows to show her how to slide things around a bit, and then went quite faithfully to work. Down below I judged that all unaided and uninstructed she was making marked progress. At first there was a distinct interval between each two clicks, then there came a time when a dozen or so clicks would succeed each other with quite a professional rapidity.

Sunday mornings we would simply wallow in the Times because there were so many pieces of it. Willella would take up her favorite piece with great gusto, for the "Wanted, Help Female," column was about three times as long as usual. The Sunday morning after the week that Willella had been learning to typewrite, she followed me upstairs to my room with the paper under her arm.

"Annabel," she said, "I'm going to answer this advertisement. I'm going to write a beautiful neat answer on the typewriter just for fun."

I took the paper and read the "Wanted, Help Female," that she indicated. Here is an exact copy of it—I cut it out of the paper after it was all over: "Wanted—A refined, educated lady as secretary to an Alaska mining man. No has-beens need apply. State qualifications and give references. Address Box 986." "Alaska mining man." That sounded interesting and lucrative; but, "Willella," I objected, "it sounds a trifle—well, rude—that part about the has-beens."

"I thought of that myself," admitted Willella, "and the expression 'refined, educated lady' grates, too. But he is probably some crusty old fellow, a successful business man, who simply doesn't understand those finer points of the English language. Probably that's why he's wanting a private secretary."

Now that all seemed plausible enough. Anyway I haven't very good judgment, so I said: "All right. Answer it and see what happens. Only a private secretary usually knows stenography, doesn't he or she?"

"Not necessarily. I can use the typewriter pretty well," asserted Willella brazenly. So she went up in the attic and stayed more than an hour, during which time the machine clicked fitfully. Then she brought her work in for me to see. It WAS beautifully done—so neat and correct, not a comma too many or too few, such excellently-chosen words, and the margins and spaces absolutely faultless, and "Willella Fletcher" signed in Willella's most individual, most competent-looking hand.

I wrinkled my brow a bit over the references Willella had given. "Suppose he really does ask Dr. Mann about you? Or Prof. Jones? Or Mrs. Beauchamp? Won't they think it dreadfully peculiar?"

"Oh, that is a mere matter of form," responded Willella easily. "It will never go so far as that. In all probability I shall never hear from it again. Of course there will be dozens and dozens of answers to an advertisement like that."

I glanced critically over the missive again. "Graduate of University So-and-so, year so-and-so in so-and-so," I mumbled. "Not many of the character and promise of yours, mark me," I croaked.

"Better not to mention it before mother unless it materializes. She so throws cold water on enterprises of any sort," suggested Willella.

"Yes," I agreed.

Saturday mother and Aunt Martha went to Bellding for a few days' visit. Willella went to the station with them and then stayed in town to shop. They had left before the first mail delivery. When the postman came there was among the mail an interesting-looking letter for Willella. It was a Hotel Valhalla envelope, the color of weak orange ice. To me it shrieked "Alaska-mining-man" to the very stamp, which was upside down. Willella had luncheon downtown, and didn't even telephone out, so that I almost died with curiosity before she finally came poking in about 4 o'clock. I dragged her into the library and presented the orange-ice-colored envelope. She gazed at it unenlightened, and slowly extracted a hairpin from her blonde coil, notwithstanding the fact that I was offering a pearl letter opener with trembling fingers. Willella is so bound down to habit in a few particulars! She read it at last, and then handed it to me.

"Miss Fletcher: I shall be here Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and shall be pleased to have you call then that we may discuss the ad. 986. Your reply to same now before me. Very truly,

"J. G. HOLLANDER."

"Ahem!" I said.

Willella and I looked at each other and burst into smothered laughter.

"Too late! Too late!" quoted Willella with apparent relief.

"Nonsense! See it through!" I counseled, prompted of the devil.

"How?" said Willella.

"Call him up at the Valhalla and tell him why you missed the appointment."

"I haven't the NERVE," gasped Willella, her fair skin pink up into her pompadour.

"Nerve!" said I. "Nonsense! It isn't a case of nerve. It's a cold-blooded business proposition. Besides, who courage?"

THE STORY THE LITTLE OLD LADY TOLD IN THE CAR.

By a Special Contributor.

We were snowbound—actually snowbound—there in that stuffy old Pullman, out in the wilderness, a score or more miles from the nearest little place called Watson Station. Watson Station! What a God-forsaken place we found it to be, when we finally reached it; it was presumption to even [illegible]! But cut off, as we then were, from the world, we thought of Watson Station as a haven of rest—a sort of lost paradise. We had all drawn together in one end of the car, seeking companionship. Some of us had tried to think up some way to amuse the crowd, but it was a hopeless job; every attempt failed. We didn't want to be there; we wanted to be at home. We didn't want to be cheerful under the circumstances, so we sat around in the most uncomfortable positions we could assume and looked as glum as possible. We said everything disagreeable we could think of about the railroad and its management, and in our secret hearts we cursed an All-wise Providence—that is, some of us did.

There was only one person in that whole car who did not complain, and that was a little old lady who lived near Watson Station. It wasn't that she preferred the [illegible] Station (any one could have forgiven that), for she was most anxious to get home, and wasn't a bit happy—I saw that from the first—but was of the sort that knows how to put up the best front. She had no doubt been through lots of trouble, but it was written all over her that she knew there was always sunshine ahead. "It might be worse," she said; to which we made no answer. "The coal and food might give out," she went on; no one showed any interest.

"Where there's life, there's soap!" growled an athletic-looking young fellow, who a moment later expressed himself in more forceful language by saying: "The trouble with this bunch is that it has on the Grand Old [illegible]."

The little lady from Watson Station had been silent [illegible] as most of us had, but she was a determined woman. One could see that she spent all her life trying to make every one believe that the world was [illegible] and sunshine, and one could see also that she never gave up without a desperate fight. She smiled at each one of us in turn, a good, motherly smile to [illegible] responded with about the sickliest assortment of smiles that could well be imagined. Still she persisted. "I expect that if each one of us told how he happened to be here at the present time," she said, "it would make some mighty strange stories. Now, you wouldn't believe it, maybe, but I'm here all on account of a waffle iron."

"A waffle iron!" said somebody, trying to inject a little [illegible] and interest into his voice.

"A waffle iron!" said the old lady, with decision. "I [illegible] you care to hear how it all came about."

"Yes, we would!" we said in chorus, and our voices were [illegible] and cold as the snow that stretched outside the car.

"I'll tell you all about it, then," said the little old lady from Watson Station, either unaware of our attitude or ignoring it purposely.

We settled down, but we were mighty restless about it, each one drawing more than ever into his or her shell, out of sorts with ourselves, our neighbors, the little old lady, and in fact with all creation; we settled down, [illegible] to meet our fate unflinchingly; to die a lingering death, depending in duration on the length of the story, uncomplainingly as martyrs of old. There wasn't one of us who wanted to hear that story, nor cared a rap why the old lady was there, nor was anxious to find out what the waffle iron had to do with it, nor—well, in fact, we didn't care about anything. We were weary of life, and we gave ourselves into the old lady's keeping, not even praying for mercy. So we settled down, while the little old lady looked around and began:

"Well, we live back in the country about two miles or so from Watson Station, on the county road. Most people would find it pretty lonesome, but Sam'l—that's my husband—we've lived there all our lives, so we don't mind it. There's only been just the two of us most of the time, and we've always lived real happy, though we've always had everything that could make us comfortable, for I must say that Sam'l has always been mighty generous with me, and never has refused me anything I really wanted; and I guess I could have had a waffle iron if I'd been set on it. If I had, it would have saved all this trouble, and I'd likely be at home now darning Sam'l's socks, instead of being snowed up for goodness knows how long.

"We've got some kin in the city, and I think as much of them as if they were my own folks, and we've visited them a good many times. They are always good to us, and make us feel at home, and aren't ashamed of our back-country looks and manners. In the summer time we've often had the children down to stay away from the city for their vacation. It always seemed to me that the country was just made for children, with the whole of creation to run wild in, and they certainly love it over on the old place. It happened, however, that John and Lilly never got a chance to come down till last summer, though goodness knows they'd intended to come often enough.

"When I knew they were really coming, it popped into my head—I don't know why it should have, but it did—that it would be nice to have waffles for breakfast, so I said to Sam'l: 'Sam'l, hot cakes are all right for us, but when John and Lilly come we'll have to have waffles, and I'm going over to the Grants and borrow their waffle iron.' Sam'l looked surprised, but he just laughed and said: 'All right, Mary, waffles goes.'

"The Grants are our nearest neighbors. They live about a mile from us, along the county road away from the station. They just moved there from the city, and have everything you can think of, and as they have been real friendly and not a bit stand-offish—though they well might be, for one of Mrs. Grant's brothers is a Senator, and some of their kin came over in the Mayflower—I didn't mind borrowing, so I drove over in the afternoon and made a nice visit. Just before I left for home I asked in a sort of a casual way about the waffle iron, and rMs. Grant was very glad to lend it to me, for she said they rarely used it and I needn't hurry about returning it. So I went home with the waffle iron, as happy as you please.

"Well, John and Lilly came all right, and breakfast the first morning I got out the waffle iron and greased it and poured in the batter and shut it up, but when I came to open it up, the waffles stuck to the iron, so I just pushed the old thing aside and we just had plain, old-fashioned pancakes for breakfast, and John and Lilly both said they'd never eaten anything in their lives that tasted better, and I believe they meant it. I left the waffle iron on the back of the stove, and fussing around doing up my work, I knocked it off on the floor and broke the little hinge, and I can tell you that I was disgusted. 'I knew it,' I said; 'I broke that cup yesterday, and the plate the day before, and a body's always sure to break things by threes. It's as sure as leaving the teakettle lid off before company comes.' But that didn't help matters any, and I said to Sam'l: 'Sam'l, I must go up to town and get a new waffle iron, just as soon as the folks go.'

"I suppose that Lilly would have been glad to get the thing for me, but I didn't want her to know what an old goose I'd been, and besides, other people's troubles are an awful nuisance. Well, you all know how things will drift along. Sam'l had a bad cold, and my rheumatism troubled me some, and Billy—that's our grandson—came home from college with his shoulder out of place from football. I think football's awful, but Billy likes it, though he's suffered a whole lot by it. Still, he's all we've got to live for, and if he likes to take his pleasure in such an odd way, I suppose we'll have to let him. Now, that's just the way; I've gotten away from my story entirely talking about Billy, but 'most everybody has a Billy somewhere, though it isn't always a grandson.

"Well, as I was saying, I kept putting off going to the city about that iron, from time to time. One morning I looked out of the window and saw Miss Grant driving into the yard, and I felt as if the end of the world had come, and I said to Sam'l: 'Sam'l, they've come for the waffle iron.' Sam'l went to the door, and before I could come out I heard him say in a real cheery sort of way: 'I'm awful sorry, Miss Grant, but Mrs. Dobbins has just gone to the city to do a little shopping and take a holiday.' I heard Miss Grant say how sorry she was to miss me, and then I heard her ask about the waffle iron. I never thought I'd live to feel like a regular sneak thief, but I certainly did then. Sam'l looked around and slammed the pans a good deal and grumbled some, and then he said he was real sorry, but Mrs. Dobbins had certainly put that waffle iron away securely; but she wasn't going to be gone but a day or two, and he'd get the waffle iron over as soon as she came back.

"When Miss Grant had gone and Sam'l came back into the room, I was so mortified that all I could say was just: 'Oh, Sam'l!' and he said: 'Well, Mary, you hurry up and get ready, and I'll drive you over, and you'll have just about time enough to catch the train to town.' So I hustled around, and Sam'l hitched up, and I measured the iron and took the number, and I just caught the train.

"Now, all the way to town, of course, I was so afraid that I couldn't get a match to the waffle iron, but I found out that I had no trouble whatever, and I went to John and Lilly's and had the best time I could without Sam'l along. They wanted me to stay for a good visit, but I was impatient to get back, and I sort of had that waffle iron on my conscience, and I was so afraid that something would happen to it before I could get home that I really had no peace of mind. So I packed up and took the train, and here I am, snowed up in a car a dozen miles from nowhere—Sam'l at home worrying at this very moment—the Grants no doubt thinking all sorts of queer things—and all on account of a waffle iron.

"I don't know as this story will teach you people much of anything, but it's taught me a mighty good lesson that I'll not forget, and that lesson's just this: Don't borrow, and don't try to pretend you have what you haven't; and the next time we have waffles at our house, when Sam'l and I find that hot cakes ain't good enough for us, we'll use our own waffle iron."

The old lady smiled at us as she finished, and we all of us smiled back in return, and this time our smiles were not half-hearted. There must have been some unusual charm in the way she told her story, for somehow the world looked brighter when she had finished, and we felt more at ease with one another. It seems strange, but it was not long before we had broken up into little groups, and they were happy groups at that. The drummer and the prim old maid were in friendly conversation; the college boy and the pretty little girl were telling each other their life stories, or something equally as engrossing; there were a couple of men in one end of the car who were having an animated discussion over fish they had caught, and there were some of us who did not desert the old lady. What a happy old lady she was—I shall never forget her—and the rest of our confinement was a real pleasure, just because a little old lady was bound to be happy, and at the same time was bound to make others happy.

When we reached Watson Station, and the little old lady started to leave us, we gave her three good rousing cheers, and then as an afterthought three cheers more for the waffle iron, and she thanked us with tears of joy in her eyes. We had been so good to her, she told us, and Sam'l would appreciate it so much, and if we were ever in those parts again she wanted us, all of us, to come and see her—and Sam'l. Some one called out: "Will you give us waffles?" A cloud passed over her face, but she was all smiles in a moment. "No, indeed," she said. "You'll get good, old-fashioned pancakes, with my own home-made butter and real maple syrup." Then she left us—dear little old lady of Watson Station.

The last we saw of her, as she stepped from the train, she was in the hearty embrace of a cheery-faced old man, whom we knew must be Sam'l. I saw her lips move, and though I could not hear, I fancied she was saying: "Now, Sam'l, do be careful of the waffle iron!" The college boy sighed as we lost sight of our good old friend. I think he envied Billy. Who would not envy him? I think I almost envied Billy myself—or else perhaps Sam'l.

WALTER BEACH HAY.

A TRIP IN AN AEROPLANE.

AN ENGLISHMAN TELLS OF HIS RIDE THROUGH THE AIR WITH WILBUR WRIGHT.

[London Daily News:] When all was at last ready I took my seat on the flyer, taking care to fasten my cap well down, for the motor was running well and we expected to attain some high speeds. The roar of the engine commenced, the starting weights were released, and off we went with a bound, but not a worse one than when starting on a switchback. Before reaching the end of the rail we had left it and were in the air. We were flying.

Once clear of the ground the feeling of security was perfect, and I was able to watch with great interest the movements of the operating levers. We tore along at forty miles an hour, and soon came to the first corner. Here a point of interest to motorists was demonstrated, viz., that no matter at what speed a curve is taken the machine adjusts its own banking, so to speak, and at the will of the operator it tilts up gracefully when taking a turn, and is therefore equivalent to a motor car tilting up the road in front of it so that it is always "banked" to just the correct angle to suit the speed at which a curve is taken; all liability to skid outward being thus avoided. Those accustomed to motor racing on road or track will appreciate the effect of this, which is that taking a curve on a flying machine will, instead of being more dangerous, be actually safer than on an automobile.

The prevalence of "undulations" of the atmosphere rendered very close attention necessary to the two levers controlling the equilibrium and altitude. I noticed that both these were kept constantly on the "joggle" with slight movement.

One has been accustomed to consider the atmosphere as a mass of air, decreasing in density with its altitude, but otherwise uniform; experience on a power-given flyer, however, shows that far from this being the case, the atmosphere near the earth's surface—even in what we call calm weather—is made up of spiral movements of varying diameter, sometimes vertical and sometimes horizontal, undulations of all sorts—little hills and valleys, and "streams" of air—in fact, one might call it a new "world" conquered by man. A world with "scenery" of great variation, which, though invisible to the eye, is none the less felt by the operator of a flying machine.

To maintain equilibrium and steering control, while battling with these complex movements of the air, has been the great problem which for centuries has baffled human ingenuity, and which is now solved by the Wright brothers after years of systematic study and experiment.

Sometimes we flew above the trees, sometimes we flew three feet off the ground, entirely at the will of the operator, who thus showed the most perfect control over his machine that any one could imagine. The side gusts and varying currents which we encountered at times, caused gentle dipping motions, not unlike a switchback, but always under complete control.

Our speed in the early morning caused tears to roll down our checks, but with goggles on one would have no difficulty in reading a map, making notes, or taking photographs, etc.

After a flight of several miles a descent was begun for landing. At the right moment the engine was stopped, and we came to ground so gently that I found it impossible to tell exactly when the runners first touched the surface. On landing, we skimmed along the surface rather like a toboggan, coming to a standstill a few yards from our starting point. The sensation of flight was novel and delightful, and the fact of accomplishing what several eminent scientists have "proved" impossible gave also an added satisfaction.

With regard to the "art" of flying, Mr. Wright and his machine seem to work together as one unit; the management of a machine of this kind in breezy weather, however, is not at all easy; at the same time, it can only require patience and careful practice before any intelligent man possessed of coolness and good judgment can learn it.

DISTANCE.

We have clasped hands again, ah, true,
  We have no quarrel—that is done—
  But nevermore beneath the sun
Comes back to me that friend I knew.

We shall break bread together; men
  May mark no difference in our ways,
  But only through my yesterdays
The friend I loved shall walk again.

We have forgiven—act and speech
  Have proved it. Who shall then surmise
  That space between our hearts that lies
Unbridged—beyond all sound or reach?

A Primitive Race.

STRANGE AND ABHORRENT PRACTICES AMONG ARCTIC NATIVES.

By a Special Contributor.

UNCIVILIZED tribes, primitive, almost aboriginal, from unknown regions of the earth are always interesting to modern people. One takes interest in contrasting the methods, manners and customs of the primitive races with those of modern civilization, and whenever the opportunity offers even the layman with no particular scientific bent of mind will enjoy the chance to investigate and learn something of what the forbears of modern nations were like.

Every one is interested in the study of the American Indian, and travelers who visit out-of-the-way places will unconsciously make a closer study of the inhabitants than they would of their own race. In the case of the American Indian, the romance and tragedy of the real American, lends zest to the search for information. Yet the casual observer or the one who is limited in time, realizes that the present-day opportunities to see the Indian as he really was a hundred or more years ago, are rare indeed, while few have penetrated to the regions where the American Indian is still living as of yore.

In fact, so few are the opportunities for seeing the primitive races as they really are, unsullied, unspoiled or unraced by contact with civilization, that when the chance is offered it is quickly seized. It is only when some great occasion arises when modern man with the everlasting commercial instinct changes things about and brings the wild tribes to civilization, that the people at large can see and study for themselves.

Thus it happens that at every great international exposition held within the last twenty years, some few of these interesting tribes have been found. One would think that with the large number of great expositions in recent years it would be next to impossible to find any race of men that had not been exhibited before. But it has been done most successfully, and when the great Pacific World's Fair, the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition, opens at Seattle next summer, a race as primitive and uncontaminated by modern civilization as any on earth, will be found upon the grounds.

For the first time in the history of expositions, the real unsullied native of the Siberian Arctic will be on view. These natives are called Eskimos from their similarity in costumes and habits with the natives of the most northern part of North America, yet they are racially widely different. The intense cold and the lack of other habiliments makes it necessary for them to wear furs. Yet would one say that the native of the upper Amazon who wears only a strip of cloth about his body is in any way kin to the native of the East Indies or to the native of darkest Africa just because the Malay or the negro limits his clothing to a similar strip of cloth?

A party of thirty-four natives of Northwestern Siberia will be a feature of the 1909 exposition. They come from three different villages, and although living within 150 miles of each other, each tribe speaks a different dialect, making it almost impossible for them to speak to one another. There are two tribes of Sealmen and one of Deermen. The Sealmen come from the coast on the Arctic side of Siberia, and are so called because they live chiefly upon seal meat. The Deermen come from the interior and live on venison.

These Siberian natives were persuaded to leave their homes and bring their entire earthly possessions to Seattle by Capt. A. M. Baber, who has been engaged in trading in the Siberian Arctic for many years and who has the fullest confidence of the natives. He was assisted by W. P. Bissner, who had a good knowledge of the various Siberian dialects. The party was brought to Seattle this fall because it would be too late next year to get them out, as navigation with the Arctic does not open until well into July. On their arrival at Seattle a few days were spent in seeing the sights and then Capt. Baber took his charges to an abandoned fishing camp on Hood's Canal, where the Siberians can hunt and fish and live without coming in contact with civilization. An interesting event occurred while the party was in Seattle. A new member arrived, and, while pure Siberian, is not, of course, a native. The baby is doing well, and will no doubt be one of the pets of the exposition next year.

The manners, habits and customs of the Siberians are peculiar. They are real primitive people whose chief business in life is the struggle for existence. It is always a case of food with them. They live in skin tents (igloos,) their clothing consists entirely of skins and the best part of their waking hours is spent in the pursuits of the animals that supply skins as well as food. Seal, walrus, sea otter and various kinds of fish are the staple article of diet of the Sealmen. The Deermen use some fresh-water fish and much deer and bear meat, found on the tundra; wild fowl and their eggs give some variety. Since first coming in contact with the white man, about sixty years ago, they have learned to like hard bread, sugar and black tea. The latter is the result of the Russian influence, as green or Japan tea is not allowed in Siberia.

The community idea is strong with the Siberians. If one gets a dozen sealskins or half a dozen deer carcasses, and has a full box of tea he is to drain over the feet of the person for whom the sacrifice is made. When this party of Siberians left the north the sacrifice was one of the greatest ever known in that country.

The Siberians along the Arctic are not afraid of a rifle. When the white man first penetrated into the frozen northern seas they carried rifles and the natives soon became accustomed to them, and now they handle them without fear. But at first they certainly must have thought it was the Evil One. In the Baber party are two men who were rich enough to own rifles. The weapons are never used except to kill bear and walrus. They are snared and strangled to death. Seal and otter are harpooned. Birds and small ground animals are snared. It is the practice never to bleed an animal when killed, as the natives believe blood-drained meat is unfit to eat. That accounts for their never shooting any except the larger animals. Hunting is their life work as well as their sport.

The women do the cooking, look after the children, and [illegible]. The water of the Arctic is intensely cold, but the Siberian women will wade out to their necks with a long hand seine for fish.

The Siberians are a moral people. The thief is their worst criminal, and is given short shrift, being stabbed when caught, but not given the rites of their burial. Unfaithful wives are a great rarity. Perhaps it is because the women are proud of their beauty beyond the Arctic circle. When the wife is unfaithful the husband has the privilege of biting off the tip of her nose. Capt. Baber declares that he saw but two women thus mutilated in his ten years' experience in the north. If the husband is unfaithful, the wife leaves him, taking the children. However, as the tie between the parents and children is a most affectionate one, the men seldom break the laws. The most terrible punishment that can be afflicted upon a Siberian father is to take one of his children. All children are loved by these primitive people. If a family of little ones is left motherless and fatherless, the other families eagerly contend to see who shall take them into their family. Even if the winner has a big family of his own to support, the additional duty is carefully and thankfully assumed. If he cannot get enough food to last out the winter, other families contribute their share.

Much might be written about these children of nature who have no books, no god, no laws except their traditions. They are unspoiled, natural and simple, just as the original forbears of the Aryan race were when civilization first began. These people came from the same region where human life is supposed to have started, and though all the thousands of years of development the Siberian natives have been the same. And it is exceedingly doubtful if the missionary or the educator can improve their lot to make them happier. They had best be let alone.

THE HOME-COMING OF BOGGS.

Old Chester Boggs went way back home, to take one look around
And see the quiet, dear old friends, and tread familiar ground;
The trolley cars whizzed up the roads where golden rod once bloomed,
And, to make way for a skyscraper, the baseball ground was doomed;
The deacon drove a whizz machine, in place of one-horse shay.
And, just to free his dizzy mind,
Old Chester Boggs aloud opined:
"The cross-roads burg of yester-year's a latchkey town today."

The houses, deep in flowery yards, that looked so trim and neat,
Had been replaced with modern flats—steam-heated—all complete.
The orchard, where the laden trees had charmed his boyish soul
Was found to be a Coney Isle, where loop-the-loop cars roll;
He caught a vagrant taxicab and homeward went his way.
And to a man across the aisle
Old Boggs remarked, with mirthless smile:
"The cross-roads burg of yester-year's a latchkey town today."

A New Use for Cheese.

An English farmer recently went into a restaurant in Liverpool and called for some bread and cheese.

"What kind would you like, sir?" inquired the waiter. "Cheddar, Yorkshire, or Gorgonzola?"

"Very same, that last," said the farmer; "I'll try a bit of that."

He thought it so tasty that he bought a pound, took it home for his wife late at night, and left it for her on the cupboard in the kitchen. Next morning he came in from his before-breakfast round and asked her if she had found the parcel.

"Oh, yes," she replied, "I saw it there all right, and very good mottled soap it is, no doubt, when you know how to use it. But I couldn't make it lather very well when I washed the children, and after I'd done they smelled so strong that I've turned 'em out for a breath of fresh air, just to sweeten 'em a bit before they go to school."—[Everybody's Magazine.

Bolinas by the Sea.

A PICTURESQUE RESORT NOT YET REACHED BY RAIL.

By a Special Contributor.

A BIT of nature unspoiled—even by sign boards; a magnificent beach, unlittered by picnic rubbish; an atmosphere unsullied by smoke; a stillness unbroken by any sound more startling than a distant fog horn; a straggling, picturesque village, scattered over and along the hillsides and above the beach of the bay and the lagoon—this is Bolinas. Harsh winds, chill days, the strain and burden of everyday living are left behind as one travels over the road of a thousand curves, on the stage that is the only connecting link between Bolinas and the outer world—save for the "butter" boat which twice a week swings around Lime Point and through the Golden Gate to the city. There is never any rush for train or boat here, for neither railroad, trolley nor boat line reaches the place.

Across the bay from San Francisco to Sausalito on the ferry boat, by trolley to San Rafael, then a stage ride of eighteen miles over the Fairfax hills, which rise, swell by swell, until one looks across to the crown of Mount Tamalpais—apparently almost on a level—that is the way to Bolinas. The road winds and winds, corkscrew fashion, through magnificent forests of redwood, oak, bay, madrone and cypress; with glimpses of beautiful Mill and Ross valleys and across to Tamalpais; with stretches where only snatches of sky and distance are revealed between treetops; beside murmuring streams; past springs and occasional mountain homes, until the summit is reached. And then—a panorama—the ocean, the bay, the green slopes of the mountainside, the distant village of Bolinas nestling under its shade trees—a picture of mountains and sea and of quiet pastures and sheltered homes that enchants.

After hours of slow climbing, the descent is swift. The red road winds, thread-like, about the hills, making turns and curves that send the leaders almost out of sight before the stage reaches the whirling point. A few years ago a forest fire swept this side of the range clean. Now the ground is covered with a dense mass of chaparral. From this base rise the dead trees, pitiful corpses unburied, their limbs hanging blackened and leafless about them. Only the redwood trees, with amazing vitality, have survived. Many of these, blackened and charred, fringed with dead branches, are yet putting forth a beautiful growth of feathery green.

After we leave the mountain slope we drive along the edge of Bolinas Bay for two or three miles and then through the crooked street to the country store and postoffice—the village center. There are old houses, oversheltered by weeping willows and stately evergreens; neat modern houses, quaint bungalows and summer cottages perched along the hillsides, a couple of unpretentious churches, a white schoolhouse, a quiet country hotel surrounded by an old-fashioned flower garden. Then one catches the roar of surf, and following a wooded lane, comes out upon a curving beach. To the west extends a long arm of reef; beyond is a sweeping rise of hills; far to the south the haze hangs over San Francisco.

Bolinas is the ideal spot for rest; there are no crowds, no "attractions," only unending pictures, undying music of surf, balmy air spiced with ocean breezes. The town is scattered over the lower edges of abrupt hills which open to give a glimpse of the ocean and sweep gently back from the inner bay. Curving streets and country roads are bordered with shade treees and houses are surrounded by flower gardens and orchards; while scattered through the hills are ranch houses and pastures.

The protecting arm of Duxbury Reef shuts off the full force of the waves, while the southern exposure and the hills to the northward protect the outer bay from the sharp coast winds. The strong breeze pouring through the Golden Gate sucks the fogs in that direction, often leaving Bolinas in the sunlight while heavy fogs hang just beyond. The inner bay, shut in by the long "sand spit," gives an opportunity for boating. For three miles along the "spit" extends a hard, wide beach, unsurpassed for driving or walking. On the opposite shore of the lagoon picturesque coves and ranches, Dipsea Inn and Willow Camp are to be visited. Bathing in the lagoon and the outer bay is good, and yachts can anchor safely "outside." For those who love fishing, there is abundant sport. From Duxbury Reef rock cod, sea trout and perch are caught, while Bolinas Lagoon is noted for its smelt. Trolling for salmon is also a common pastime.

This is the nearest beach to San Francisco where good sea bathing is found. The beach is scattered with driftwood, and clam bakes and bonfires are favorite amusements, while there are many drives and walks that are full of interest and offer choice bits for the artist's canvas. Bolinas is a favorite resort with artists—for rest or for work, as the spirit moves.

Bolinas is no upstart resort. Before San Francisco existed, ships used to anchor in this bay to obtain supplies and fresh water from the abundant springs in the neighborhood. The lumber for the first wharf in San Francisco Bay was cut in the hills back of Bolinas Bay, so says the tradition. The vast rancho of the Briones family, who owned all this territory, furnished cattle and supplies for trading vessels of the coast.

There are rumors of trolley lines and railroads that shall sometime reach Bolinas; but the lovers of the little haven of rest shrink from the possibility of the crowds and rush and commonplaceness that always follow these innovations. They would rather travel by the stage over the mountains, or walk over the trail from Mill Valley or West Point. This latter route is often taken by San Franciscans, who find the tramp of twelve miles over the hills well repaid by a Sunday in Bolinas. Distinctive and unique in its aloofness from the world, one hopes that it may be long before this place becomes a "popular resort," and at the same time wonders that it has not already become so. If it had been located in Southern California instead of in Marin county, it would long since have had its trolley line and big hotel.

BOLINAS BY THE SEA, AND THE "INNER BAY."

Death Is Painless.

The fear of death, which has been so enormously exploited in dramatic literature, sacred and otherwise, is said to be almost without existence in sickness. Most patients have lost it completely by the time they become seriously ill.

Death and sleep are both painless, according to Dr. Woods Hutchinson in the American Magazine, and cause neither fear nor anxiety by their approach. It is one of the most merciful things in nature that the overwhelming majority of the poisons which destroy life, whether they are those of infectious diseases or those which are elaborated from the body's own waste products, act as narcotics and abolish consciousness long before the end comes.

While death is not in any sense analogous to sleep, it resembles it to the extent that it is in the vast majority of instances not only not painful, but welcome. Pain-racked and fever-scorched patients long for death as the wearied toiler longs for sleep.

While many of the processes which lead to death are painful, death itself is painless, natural, like the fading of a flower or the falling of a leaf. Our dear ones drift out on the ebbing tide of life without fear, without pain, without regret, save for those they leave behind. When death comes close enough so that we can see the eyes behind the mask his face becomes as welcome as that of his "twin brother," sleep.

A Runaway Princess.

HOW ROSAMUND FOUND LOVE AND HAPPINESS AT LAST.

By a Special Contributor.

WHEN David heard Rosamund's gentle tap at his studio door late in the afternoon, he felt a sudden thrill. A smile of pleased expectancy was still on his lips when he opened the door, and he almost laughed aloud when he saw the youthful apparition standing demurely before him.

The apparition spoke.

"This is Monsieur Allen, the painter?" she murmured in a sweet voice with a slightly foreign accent.

"Yes," replied David in his most engaging manner. "Won't you come in?"

The girl stepped easily and gracefully into the room quite as if she belonged there.

"You advertised for a model?" she inquired gently.

David's romantic mood had a sudden shock. A professional model! He stared at her gravely. She was pretty, and she looked different somehow. Meeting a sudden glance from her remarkably beautiful eyes, apart from psychological influences, his interest in her as a woman began to revive. Perhaps, after all, she WAS different. He smiled encouragingly.

"When shall I come?" she said. Her manner was calm, even imperious, and David found himself meekly answering that he would be ready for her the next morning at 9.

"Oh, thank you, Monsieur, you have made me very happy." The sweet voice trembled a little. "I shall be here promptly at 9 tomorrow, as you wish. Thank you so much. Au revoir, Monsieur Allen." And she was gone.

Afterward he discovered the long silk scarf she had worn around her throat clinging to the back of a chair. He touched it curiously. It was warm and soft, and smelled of violets. It wound around his fingers as if it were alive. Again came that curious unaccountable thrill, and he said to himself that she was different, smiling as he thought of his intuitions.

The next morning, true to her word, she arrived promptly at 9. She came in, self-possessed and cheerful, throwing her hat and coat carelessly aside and looking around the studio with an eager girlish enthusiasm that David pronounced charming.

"Oh, I know I shall love it!" she cried.

David studied her with a keen professional eye.

"By the way," he said, "you have not told me your name."

She started slightly. "My name?" she said, as if the thought had just occurred to her. Then an adorable dimple appeared in her cheek. "You may call me Rosamund, Monsieur David."

In the zest of painting from a good model, David forgot to be merciful, until he saw her suddenly grow white.

"My dear child," he cried, jumping up in dismay, "I have been a brute. Why didn't you tell me? You are trembling all over."

"Don't mind," she said faintly. "It is nothing; I shall soon get used to it."

"After this," said David, "you shall rest every fifteen minutes until you become hardened."

At noon David suggested something to eat. The girl stretched her arms lazily.

"Oh, that sounds attractive. And may I make tea?"

David laughed.

"Bless her heart! Tea! We shall have to content ourselves with beer. Does Rosamund not like beer?"

"Ye-es," answered the girl dubiously.

"Which means that Rosamund does not like beer. It is too bourgeois, n'est pas? But perhaps Rosamund likes wine. We have some excellent Burgundy in our wine cellar. Now bread and butter, cold chicken and Burgundy are not to be despised, are they, Rosamund?"

"Beautiful!" cried Rosamund.

David, true bohemian that he was, drew a table before the fire, and from mysterious sources brought forth the luncheon, whistling gaily meanwhile. He told Rosamund that she was to sit in the big chair and play "lady," and he would allow her to do nothing, even to cutting the bread. If Rosamund but knew it, this was an unusual tribute. The occult influences quite evidently lingered with David.

"Now," he said, as he drew up his chair, "isn't this better than tea and toast, Rosamund?"

"Yes, Monsieur Allen, but I did so pine to be useful."

"Child! It's a shame! Are you very disappointed?"

"Inconsolably," laughed Rosamund. "May I give you an olive, Monsieur David?"

Rosamund was soon known around the various studios as "David's model." Her aristocratic beauty was much admired, and she became much sought after as a distinguished and remarkably appealing type. She had a trick of holding her dimpled chin very high and looking off with half-closed, weary eyes, her white shoulders thrown back, her scarlet lips curved in a proud, mysterious smile, that won her the title of "Princess" from the men. She puzzled David. He would stare at her for a long while, and then he would put down his pipe he had been smoking thoughtfully, and say:

"Who are you?"

She invariably answered with a little mocking laugh:

"Rosamund, Monsieur David's model."

"But I want to know. Please tell me—who are you? Where did you come from?"

"Monsieur is inquisitive."

And as persuasive as he might be, he never could get her to say more than this about herself.

Rosamund knew her power. She was a thorough little autocrat. All the men loved her, pettel her and fought after her, until she was in thorough danger of being spoiled. It was just at this critical stage in her career that David interfered.

They were lunching together, and David was lighting his pipe.

"Rosamund," he said slowly, between puffs, "I want to have a serious talk with you."

The girl looked up quickly.

"Why?" she asked, in a low frightened voice. "Has anything happened?"

"No, dear," he answered gently, "but things are not exactly right. It is hard for me to explain just what I mean—only that—well, hang it all, Rosamund, it's plain to be seen, though you will tell me nothing of yourself, that you are unused to this sort of life, knocking about the world and shifting for yourself. You interest me strangely, and you appeal to me in a way that makes me want to keep you from harm if I can. I know this glorious, free world we live in so well. There is a lot that's good in it and a lot that's bad—and I want to keep you from the bad, Rosamund. Don't frequent the studios, child. Posing hours are safe, because that's business; but after that, keep away."

He paused, meeting the girl's clear, surprised gaze. She said nothing for a moment, and then she leaned forward, her elbows on the table, her chin in the palms of her hands.

"What is this to you? Why do you care?"

"Rosamund!" he whispered.

She reached out for his hand, and they sat gravely looking into each other's eyes, across the little table.

"How good you are!" she cried in her sweet, vibrating tones. "What do all the rest mean to me! It is you only whose opinion I value, you who are my friend—the only real true friend I ever had in the world."

Her lips trembled; there were tears in the big gray eyes. The pale intense little face so near his own seemed inexpressively dear and lovely to him.

"Rosamund!" he cried.

He leaned forward suddenly, kissing her on the mouth. In another moment he heard the door close gently and she was gone.

He found her little gray gloves where she had left them on the piano, and the long silk scarf that smelled of violets.

He pressed them to his lips.

"Rosamund!" he whispered, "Rosamund!"

Rosamund did not come to the studio for several days after this. When, one afternoon while David was working rather disconsolately by himself, the door opened softly, and a familiar, graceful figure stepped lightly across the room.

"Monsieur David," called the sweet voice, "Monsieur David, have you missed me?"

"Missed you! Can you ask? I have been sufficiently punished, Rosamund."

The girl shook her head.

"Now, now," she said smilingly, lifting a warning finger. "Come, let us get to work."

"No," he protested gaily, "I feel in a 'holiday mood.' Rosamund, what do you say to dining at T——'s and going to the theater this evening? We'll just be lazy this afternoon. You shall sing to me and read to me, and——"

Rosamund interrupted him with a delighted laugh.

"Splendid!" she cried. "But it seems to me, as Monsieur himself has planned, he will be the only lazy one. Well, then, the first thing to do, before we begin the programme, is to see that Monsieur is comfortable. There, sit right here, in this beautiful big chair, and put your head back on this red cushion, so—how becoming! You are irresistible, Monsieur, in that pose. And then—and then I will bring the guitar over here with me, and sit on the dear little bench, so—and sing for you. What shall I sing, Monsieur David?"

"Sing," said David, "the song I like best of all."

The girl touched the strings of the guitar softly and began the words of Tosti's Venetian Boat Song. David closed his eyes with a peculiar joy that was more like pain in his heart. The rich tones of her voice pierced his soul. He saw himself with her on the Venetian waters with the moonlight above them, and all the wild, sweet music around them, drifting on—on.

> "We're all alone, the world, my own,
> Doth hold but you and me, but you and me."

Rosamund put down the guitar gently. Her eyes were full of tears.

"I can't sing this afternoon," she said, listlessly turning over the leaves of the magazines on the bench beside her.

"Rosamund?" cried David after a while, coming out of his dreams. But Rosamund did not answer.

"Rosamund, dear."

Still no answer.

David left his chair and came up softly behind her, looking over her shoulder.

"What are you buried in?" he asked. She turned a rather flushed face to him, crushing the paper she held close to her breast.

"Nothing," she said hurriedly, "nothing."

"Will you let me see it, Rosamund?"

"But it will bore Monsieur."

"Whatever interests you interests me, Rosamund."

"Monsieur!" indignantly, as he took the paper from her.

"But I see nothing here, honey," he said, pretending to be deeply disappointed. "Unless it is all this stuff about a runaway princess—made up, I suppose. Who ever heard of a runaway princess? Ah, here are the pictures of the Duchess A——, the Princess's aunt, the Duke de B——, the Princess's fiancée, and the naughty little Princess, Marie-Fedora herself. Why Rosamund!"

He looked up suddenly at Rosamund, then down at the paper, then up at Rosamund.

"How curious!" he cried. "Did you notice, dear, that this incorrigible little princess looks wonderfully like you?"

The girl laughed. Two brilliant spots of color burned in her cheeks.

"You really think I look like that! What a dreadful blow to my self-esteem." Her eyes met his, sp mischievous, defiant.

"Of course," said David calmly," her features slightly blurred, and her beauty pales beside you nevertheless the likeness is obvious."

"You are hurting my feelings, Monsieur." He was very near his, and the sweet mouth with the lizing smile. It was a perilous moment for David

"Princess," he persisted calmly, with remarkable control, "I always wondered where she got the scribable air. Now I know. But what a charming princess she is who stole into my studio one day witch me. A black-haired, red-lipped, retrousée-nosed princess. Your Highness," "are you hungry? Or do princesses get hungry? Your Highness consent to dine with me in style tonight, or must we be grand? Oh, please say that we must be grand, Princess."

"Monsieur," in her haughtiest manner, "you ing fun of me."

"Making fun of you, dear!" David's voice grieved surprise. "Why, don't you know how that would be? Come, shall we forget all that there ever were such stupid things as and dine in one of our queer little out-of-the-way Won't that be nice, Rosamund?"

And Rosamund's frowns quickly turned she gaily answered yes.

Holidays grew numerous after this. David lazy. Life seemed to him like one beautiful dream.

Memorable days were spent in the park. was one day that would never be forgotten. walking along one of the smooth, hard roads late in autumn. The west was golden with sun. The air was fresh and sweet with the moist earth and falling leaves.

The girl stopped short in her walk, drawing breath.

"Oh," she cried, "do you ever feel passion ful just to be alive?"

"Yes, dear, sometimes very glad;" and he her.

But she did not see him. The enthusiasm out of her face. She seemed tired and listless. heart quickened with the thought of the longed to tell her. He had tried so often, time she had evaded him. Dreading the ending a happiness almost complete, by the unknown, David patiently waited. It was to drift like this, and some day, some day—David's sought Rosamund's and gave it a quick little ate squeeze. She looked up with an smile, and they walked contentedly on.

They had turned homewards and were laughing talking like a pair of careless, happy children, sound of horses' hoofs coming rapidly behind terrupted Rosamund's light speech, and made them hastily aside. To their surprise a hansom cab before them and a large woman with a red immense beak-like nose, leaned forward. shrank back with a little cry of fear.

"Princess Marie-Fedora Rosamund V——," the said in a deep bass voice, "I have found you Heavens! what a scandal this has already created. must have been out of your mind. Come here

Rosamund stood like a statue, her breast rising falling quickly, her hands tightly clenched. She not speak. Her voice seemed to have failed her. looked at David helplessly, appealingly. He forward eagerly. He felt that he was confronting formidable enemy, but all the chivalry in him aroused.

"Madam," he began politely, "I am sure you mistaken. This is——"

"Young man," interrupted the Duchess severely, think I ought to know my own niece. Marie-Fedora come here!"

The girl began to move falteringly toward the She had reached the door when she paused, looking David.

"Aunt," she said desperately, "I can't go back—I go back."

"Child," the bass voice rebuked melodramatically, "where is your sense of duty? Where is your Rosamund sobbed.

"Monsieur David," she said brokenly, "I must good-by to you, good-by to all the old happy days. it is very hard. Monsieur David," and she put out hand for him to take. "I have deceived you Can you forgive me?"

For an answer David lifted the cold trembling fingers tenderly to his lips.

"Rosamund," he whispered, "I cannot let you Stay with me." His grasp tightened on the little "Dear heart, stay with me."

"Marie-Fedora," thundered the bass voice, "I waiting!"

Rosamund, with one last despairing look at wrenched herself free and stepped into the cab beside aunt. The driver touched his horse with his whip, David stood with his head bared, following the cab tragic eyes as it turned the curve and rolled out of sight.

David's life became a blank after this. He did not Rosamund again, and he did not hear from her until had crossed the ocean.

"Dear Monsieur David," she wrote, "after your kindness to me this summer and all that has happened I feel that some explanation is due you. Do not think me ungrateful, Monsieur. Your friendship and you has been the one beautiful thing in my life. can I tell you how it all began? In the first place, was never intended to be a princess, I am quite sure that. I have always rebelled at the fact. I have in the utmost state and brilliancy, and have known society in many different countries, but it has all me to death. Until I knew bohemia, and you, I was always bored. I hated all the people I met. They infinitely dull and stupid to me. I longed for is poor and humble, and free—free! All my good Russian blood fought against conventionality and bondage—for I am a Russian girl, Monsieur, in spite of my French manner and Parisian accent. Finally the climax came. They engaged me to an odious creature, son of a rich, illustrious Italian family. I determined then to end it. And one day I ran away. I came to America. I came to New York. At first it all seemed like a splendid frolic to me, until my money gave out. What could I do, incapable and inexperienced as I was? The outlook was discouraging, and I had about given up when I saw your advertisement in the paper. The rest you know. My life has begun where it left off. The people have forgiven me my eccentricity and have ceased staring [illegible] on the street. I am trying to be good. I am doing my duty, but oh, it is hard. I am not happy, Monsieur David. Good-by, God bless you, and think sometimes with pity in your heart of—Rosamund."

David was desolate. Rosamund the woman, his model, had been a familiar dream, a delicious possibility. Rosamund the princess, engaged to the Duke de B——, was as remote to him as the stars shining in heaven. He worked like a fiend, painting with a savage passion that made the older artists smile. David painted Rosamund. Rosamund all in white, with a scarlet flower in her glossy black hair near the little pink ear and creamy tints of her soft throat. Her beautiful head thrown back in the old free, careless way, the deep gray eyes dreamily half-closed.

He sent the picture to Paris. It was given a prominent place in the Salon, and received a medal. All this was very pleasant, but David was not happy. He seemed indifferent to the friends success brought him. He wanted to be alone. When he was not painting, he took long walks in the park, or he would go where he could listen to music, smoke and dream. He often took up his 'cello, and invariably the bow would draw forth the strains of his beloved song:

"We're all alone, the world, my own,
Both hold but you and me, but you and me."

He would shut his eyes, and with a curious mixture of pain and joy in his heart, seem to see her as she sat on the little bench with the guitar in her hands, the wistful expression of the pale face, the beautiful eyes that in moments of intense emotion had the dewy look of unshed tears; and sometimes the aching pain in his heart would bring tears to his own eyes.

David went over to Paris, of course. He had been there several weeks around the studios and among his artist friends. He found himself something of a lion. His picture had created quite a sensation—not only in the art world, but among aristocratic Parisians—on account of its marked resemblance to the fashionable idol of the day—the clever and beautiful young Princess Marie-Fedora Rosamund V——. This was commented upon freely before David, and he was continually questioned by his friends. But their efforts were in vain. He remained polite and agreeable, but uncommunicative.

And one day in the Bois de Boulogne, David himself saw the Princess, leaning languidly back in her stately carriage, looking lovely but weary, sorrowful and frail amid all her magnificence. The Duchess was beside her, and before her an insignificant dissipated-looking young man wearing a monocle and a general air of ennui. This, then, was the Princess's fiancée, the Duke de B——. Poor Rosamund!

The carriage rolled slowly by, and the sad little Princess passed out of sight all unconscious of the longing, adoring eyes that followed her.

The day before he had planned to leave Paris, David went alone to the Salon. It was a dark, cold afternoon with a drizzling rain, and the rooms were almost empty. A figure stood out in conspicuous relief before his picture. He saw the uplifted chin, the pure profile, the dreamy half-closed eyes. His heart gave a great leap.

"Rosamund!" he cried joyously.

The girl turned quickly with a look of glad, unbelieving surprise. She leaned forward breathlessly.

"Monsieur David," she said, "Monsieur David." She held out both her hands. "Oh," and the sweet voice trembled, "I am so glad, so glad! I have wanted you so much."

"My beloved!" cried David, holding the little hands as if he would never again let go of them, and looking deep into the glorious gray eyes.

[illegible] while Rosamund spoke.

"Monsieur David," she said, pathetically, "I have been so wretched. This life is unendurable to me."

"Dear heart!" murmured David.

"They insist that I shall marry the Duke de B——, and the thought is worse than death. Monsieur David, I am going to run away again. I am going back to America and the dear studio life."

"Rosamund," said David, lifting the little hands reverently to his lips, "will you marry me?"

And so Rosamund and David ran away together and were married. And not since the distinguished Marquise de —— eloped with her chauffeur has there been such a scandal in high life.

But what was it to Rosamund and David, spending their honeymoon on the Venetian waters, the tender moonlight caressing them, the gondolier's rapturous song ever in their ears?

"We're all alone, the world, my own,
Both hold but you and me, but you and me."

Col. Torrence.

THE RED-HAIRED GIRL HAS HIM GUESSING HARD.

By a Special Contributor.

STANDING within the protecting shelter of the doorway at the Van Nuys Hotel, Col. Torrence discoursed to me upon the beauties of night. Without a miniature cloudburst was blusteringly displaying its abilities, Main street was a veritable river, the cars splashing along its course throwing out huge sprays from beneath their wheels. Men and women had drawn up under every protecting awning, only the more venturesome continuing on their way. A cabman was reaping a small fortune from ferrying impatient men across the street.

"Night, my young friend," said the colonel, "is always and everywhere the most beautiful portion of the twenty-four hours. What is finer than a moonlit night in the country, with each tree silhouetted against the ruddy face of the moon? And what sights the man-in-the-moon sees along the sheltered country lanes! And a starlit night on the desert—it is perfection!

"But to my mind the most humanly satisfying beauty of night is seen in the cities—well-lighted cities like Los Angeles, where men and women are in a more merciful light than that of the sun, themselves transformed into things of beauty, where the streets gleam afar with myriads of sparkling disks, like diamonds displayed upon a black ball dress.

"And the most beautiful of city nights is one like this, my boy."

"Tut, tut, Colonel, you mustn't refer to the lingerie display in that brazen manner."

"The shame is yours, sir; I was about to call your attention to the way the wet pavements and running gutters reflect the electric street lamps, how the light dances upon the water. Notice how one can see the slanting rain only in the glare of the automobile headlights."

A young woman hurried past, a very small young lady, slight and short, her red hair not put to shame even by the lights the colonel had just been raving over. She hesitated on the corner and drew her skirts about her, as though she intended to plunge boldly into the muddy stream. Another moment and the colonel, in all the finery of a new brown cutaway suit, was beside her.

"Allow me to assist you over," I heard him say, as he gathered the girl up in his still strong arms and started for the other side. Two minutes and he was back by my side, smilingly accepting my chaffing.

"A little experiment," was all he would say in explanation of his astonishing conduct.

" 'There's no fool like an old fool!' Why didn't you give the cabby two bits to take her across? Look at your trousers!"

"Now, don't kick so hard," remonstrated the Colonel. "You may get another story out of this episode—who knows? And as for the trousers, I'm going around to my hotel to change them."

"First come with me and take something to ward off that cold you deserve," I answered in the interests of peace.

The next day, in a dryer atmosphere (dryer externally,) the Colonel deigned to explain the nature of his experiment.

"Billy Dawson," he said, "carried a small, pretty, red-headed girl across a wet street one time last winter, did it in broad daylight, and because she asked him to. Now, Billy has ridden on the same car with that girl on an average of twice a week ever since, and she has never spoken or even bowed to him. He pointed her out to me one day, when he told me about it. When the same young lady appeared at such an opportune time last night, I thought I would volunteer and see what her after-treatment of me would be.

"Of course, there is a question of practical ethics involved here. Is Billy right in thinking that having performed an act of signal gallantry entitles him to the same recognition that would be his if some one, perhaps a comparative stranger to both, had said 'Miss Smith, I want you to meet Mr. Dawson?' And is the girl not right in perhaps considering that the service was its own reward—in which idea, if such be her idea, she is, to my notion, not far from correct?" Here the Colonel indulged in a knowing, reminiscent wink.

"Or is it because Billy is a young man and rather a good-looking one, that the alleged shyness of her sex prevents her from speaking now when they meet. If next time I see the young lady, she recognizes me, we shall know that the last is the cause of her puzzling silence. In that case I shall cultivate her acquaintance, and when the opportunity offers say, 'Miss Smith, I want you to meet Mr. Dawson.' Thus will I live up to my reputation and at the same time gratify Billy's longing for pleasant smiles from the girl with the auburn tresses."

There came another rainstorm, and the day after, it was with a superior smile that I met Col. Torrence.

"Has she spoken to Billy yet?" I inquired.

"No, same old distant look, he says."

"Spoken to you?"

"I haven't seen her since the night I ruined my brown trousers," the Colonel answered with considerable irritation.

"Seems I'm getting on better than either of you," I loftily said. "She spoke to me last night."

"She did! What did she say?"

"Said 'Thank you,' when I set her down on the other side of the street."

After I had ordered, the Colonel recovered sufficiently to inquire:

"Lose your watch or anything?"

"Came through intact. Seemed like a nice girl."

"Fine girl, if she only wouldn't talk so much," the Colonel sarcastically answered. "Well, I didn't miss anything when I came to check up. What do you suppose she does it for?"

"Perhaps because she wants to get across the street."

"Yes! Mighty fortunate that there's always a succor standing around ready to take her over. I can't see why that girl hasn't the decency or intellect to recognize her benefactors when she meets them, instead of standing on this silly introduction ceremony. May be so many she can't remember them all;" and the Colonel went off in high dudgeon.

When I chanced on him an hour later, he was in a highly perturbed mental condition.

"I've met two other fellows who say they've carried her across the street at various times. What do you make of it? You're sure you didn't lose anything?"

"Nothing but my heart, Colonel."

"That's no loss, you are always losing that."

It was three days before I again saw the Colonel, and he was the bearer of exciting news.

"You remember that red-headed girl," he said, "the one with the habit of being carried across wet streets? I just saw her walking down the sidewalk with Billy Dawson and chatting away as friendly as you please. I really thought that girl was too nice to speak to a man unless she had been properly introduced."

" 'Consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds,' " I quoted.

"True! Therefore I will not be consistent. While it puzzled me, I did rather admire the way that girl could let a man ruin his shoes for her and never after betray by any sign that she had ever seen him before."

"Perhaps Billy has been properly presented to her."

"Who could have done it?"

"Perhaps I did."

"But you don't know the girl."

"Didn't I tell you I carried her across the street one evening?"

The Colonel refused to be temporized with longer.

"Where did you meet her?" he demanded.

"At a dance the other night, and introduced Billy Dawson to her the same evening."

"The women of Los Angeles," said the Colonel, after a little silence, "have not cornered all the visible supply of curiosity. Since you have seen fit to usurp my position of Professional Introducer, young man, it is up to you to see that I am properly presented to this girl of the Walter Raleigh-Queen Elizabeth stunt, and that right soon. I intend to fathom this mystery."

It is a significant tribute to the Colonel's ability that one interview was sufficient for him to obtain the desired enlightenment. When he met me at the rendezvous he ordered a "Tom and Jerry," and when its mellowing comfort had sufficiently restored his equilibrium, related the result of his investigations.

"It seems she is writing a vaudeville sketch, and in it there is a verbal stunt wherein the heroine describes the various ways men have of carrying fair young damsels in their arms. So our friend of the sunshine hair has been collecting actual data on the subject. You wouldn't think a pretty girl like that would have to descend to these methods of obtaining that kind of information.

"She declares she is going to work me up strong in this sketch of hers. Do you suppose she will have the nerve to do it?" There was a trace of anxiety in the Colonel's voice.

Exchange Children.

Among the oddities of European education at present is the exchange of children system.

Last year the Paris branch reported 146 exchanges, affecting 292 children, an increase of twenty-six exchanges over 1906, and the greatest number to date. The plan is to have a boy or girl from a French family sent to Germany or England, where he or she becomes a member of a German or an English family, the latter in return sending a child to France who is taken in charge by the parents of the French child.

Each family pays the traveling expenses of its own child and keeps it clothed. Nothing is paid for bed or board on either side. The society pays all expenses of finding consenting families, of negotiating the exchange and of safeguarding the children in transit.

The main purpose is set forth as being the reciprocal cultivation of knowledge of foreign tongues. Then every exchanged child, it is assumed, will take home a genial impression of its foreign sojourn and will always have a kindly feeling for its hosts.

By far the greater number of exchanges are for the school vacation season only. This, it is expected, may be made very general.

Last year's exchanges were divided as follows: France-Germany, 105 cases; France-England, 34; France-Austria, 5; Germany-England, 1; Germany-Italy, 1. There are 240 boys and 52 girls exchanged; England furnished eight of the girls, Austria three, and the rest were French.

The probable spread of the system is indicated by the fact that the society received altogether 3500 tentative proposals for exchanges during the year. Altogether 800 exchanges have been negotiated since the society started.—[New York Sun.

Hard Work.

On a journey through the South not long ago, Wu Ting Fang was impressed by the preponderance of negro labor in one of the cities he visited. Wherever the entertainment committee led him, whether to factory, store, or suburban plantation, all the hard work seemed to be borne by the black men.

Minister Wu made no comment at the time, but in the evening when he was a spectator at a ball given in his honor, after watching the waltzing and two-stepping for half an hour, he remarked to his host:

"Why don't you make the negroes do that for you, too?"—[Everybody's Magazine.

The Retort Courteous.

THE old major of cavalry was the owner of a pair of bow legs and a hot temper. He was, moreover, an enthusiastic golfer.

He was still only fifty yards from his first tee with his fifth stroke. The new member had been waiting to play, and at last his patience gave out.

"Fore!" he cried, and drove off. He had done better to have waited a little longer.

The ball scudded along the turf and rolled between the major's legs. "Here, you, sir, confound you," exclaimed the latter, hotly, "that is not golf, sir!"

"Perhaps not," replied the new member, slowly and thoughtfully, "but it is rattling good croquet."—[Detroit News Tribune.

A Chance to Laugh.

A STORY is told of a woman living in a lonely part of the far West, whose husband had one day been away from home much longer than usual. She waited patiently, however, when to her surprise and alarm a band of ruffians rode up and dismounted a little distance from the hut. Approaching her, the leader of the party explained, apologetically:

"We've come to tell yer, ma'am that we've lynched yer husband. We admit we've hung the wrong man, so you've got the laugh on us there."—[Unidentified.

The Sour Milk Cow.

THE woman was new to the country, and her host took great pains to explain to her whatever she didn't understand about the farm. He had little regard for the truth, this farmer; he delighted to test her gullibility to the utmost.

The cows seemed to interest her more than any other domestic animal. One of the cows had lost her tail somehow, and this fact led the woman to ask why it was.

"That's the sour-milk cow," the farmer explained with a straight face. "We always cut the tail off one cow in the herd so as to get sour milk fresh every day."

The woman looked her doubt.

"It's perfectly true," the farmer insisted. "You see when the cow's tail is gone the sun shines continually on the cow's udder and the constant heat sours the milk."

But the woman still doubted.—[New York Sun.

Lady Randolph's Repartee.

LADY RANDOLPH has a sense of humor, or perhaps I should say wit, as exemplified in a short passage at arms with Mr. Bernard Shaw. She wrote a polite note to that gentleman asking him if he would come to a luncheon party; to which he curtly replied: "Certainly not; what have I done to provoke such an attack upon my well-known habit?"

To which she answered: "Know nothing of your habits; hope they are not as bad as your manners."—[Putnam's Magazine.

Lucinda's Dreadful Dream.

"I'VE had some dreadful dreams in my lifetime," said Lucinda, "but never any half so dreadful as the one I had last night. I shall be miserable till I know whether it's coming true."

Of course everybody wanted to know what the dreadful dream was, and Lucinda continued:

"Why, I dreamed my coat was ruined!"

Chorus of commiserating groans at this.

It seems that Lucinda has lately bought a new suit and the coat didn't fit her exactly, and so she took it back to have it fitted, and it isn't to come home till next Wednesday; and last night she dreamed that it had come home and that it was worse than it was before, that they had made a mess of it, that the coat was ruined.

Now, wasn't that a dreadful dream? Truly? Why, if Lucinda had dreamed that she had fallen from the top of a tall mountain or been dropped from a flying machine or something like that, then she would have waked up the minute she began to fall, and so have known right away that everything was all right; but as it is, she's got to wait till next Wednesday to know if that dreadful dream is coming true.—[New York Sun.

Appreciative.

HON. "BILLY" COWHERD, late Democratic nominee for Governor of Missouri, is famed as a story teller and more often than not the stories he tells are on himself.

"I was making a speech in a small town near Kansas City," said Cowherd, "when I noticed that an old gentleman in the front row had gone sound asleep. I made up my mind that he should hear me, and shouted until I was hoarse, all to no avail.

"My speech done, the crowd, as is customary at country political gatherings, pressed forward to congratulate me. The first man to grasp my hand was the veteran slumberer.

"'That was a great speech you made, Mr. Cowherd; a magnificent speech. I enjoyed every minute of it.'

"You can imagine I didn't grow much inflated at the nice things the others said, but I couldn't help admiring the old gentleman's tact and truthfulness in saying he had 'enjoyed every minute' of my speech. He seemed to be enjoying it."—[Unidentified.

"Will it kill them?" asked the lady.

Not Introspective.

THE minister of a large parish in a certain western diocese had for some time been much troubled by the scandalous gossip that seemed to be occupying the minds of a portion of his flock, and, after exercising a great amount of tact and perseverance, at last succeeded in running to earth the originator of most of the settlement's society slander. The guilty one was a regular attendant at the schoolhouse services, and the minister knew that should he take him to task personally and individually he would inevitably lose a sheep—albeit a black one; so he decided to sermonize him. Accordingly, a special discourse was prepared, and the following Sunday afternoon, literally hurled at the offending member as he sat on a desk in the corner of the schoolroom. Everybody present appeared to fully appreciate the situation, and at the close of the service, departed quietly and somewhat thoughtfully for home. All except the black sheep, who lingered to assist "parson" to hitch up his team, and to remark: "That wer' a fine sermon, sir. I'll bet that hit some on 'em pretty hard!"—[Bellman.

Cross-eyed Cat Too Much for Tars.

DESERTED by her crew at the very moment of sailing from Seattle for the north, the fishing schooner Edrie still lies at her moorings, and all because of a cross-eyed black cat. Friday the crew was making final arrangements to sail, when a yell resounded out of the hold. A sailor burst through the hatch, scrambled over the side, and made off before any one could stop him. While the others were gazing after his retreating form a yowl came from the darkness below, and a black cat appeared upon the deck. One look at the stub-tailed, green-eyed feline was enough. Every man of the crew picked up his bundle and silently departed, nor can the captain by any means lure any of them back on board.—[San Francisco Chronicle.

The Cannon Roared.

WHILE campaigning in his home State, Speaker Cannon was once inveigled into visiting the public schools of a town where he was billed to speak.

In one of the lower grades, an ambitious teacher called upon a youthful Demosthenes to entertain the distinguished visitor with an exhibition of amateur oratory. The selection attempted was Byron's "Battle of Waterloo," and just as the boy reached the end of the first paragraph, Speaker Cannon suddenly gave vent to a violent sneeze.

"But, hush! hark!" declaimed the youngster—"a deep sound strikes like a rising knell! Did ye hear it?"

The visitors smiled, and a moment later the second sneeze—which the Speaker was vainly trying to hold back—came with increased violence.

"But, hark!" (bawled the boy)—"that heavy sound breaks in once more,
And nearer, clearer, deadlier than before!
Arm! arm! it is the cannon's opening roar!"

OUR BALSAM FIR.

SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF A COMMON CALIFORNIA TREE.

By Ernest Braunton.

A LARGE number of readers of this department have from time to time asked to have our local native trees fully described in non-technical terms so that one without any knowledge of botany may with some certainty determine the trees they meet on mountain, hillside or cañon depths. This we will undertake to do, and give as well some points of interest about each tree not in any way connected with the recognition of the tree. So far as these sketches are concerned they will be continued at the pleasure of our readers, running alphabetically in the order of their botanical names.

Abies concolor is the only species of fir common throughout Southern California, and is known locally as balsam, white, or silver fir, though all of these names are applied to other species. It belongs to a family of about twenty-five species widely distributed over the northern hemisphere nearly half of which are found in the western half of North America and four species are common in California. These are, besides the local one mentioned, A. grandis, white fir; A. venusta, silver or Santa Lucia fir, and A. magnifica, the red fir. The Douglas or false spruce (Pseudotsuga Douglasii, or P. macrocarpa) is often classed with the Abies, and as it is the first tree met with in our local mountain climbs, it may be well to note that the cones of our fir always stand erect while those of the false spruce droop.

Abies concolor ranges from Arizona to Oregon and Nevada, and is found in Southern California, on the San Gabriel, San Bernardino and San Jacinto Mountains. It is a rough, gray-barked tree of varying heights up to 150 feet. Under the outer bark or layer of bark it is pale yellow in color. The branches are smooth, with circular scars from whence the leaves have fallen. The leaves are really spirally arranged, but owing to a peculiar twist at the base of some they appeared to be two-ranked or arranged on two sides of the stem, similar to our flat-leafed ferns. The leaves are very narrow and from two to three inches long on the lower branches, but shorter above; are flat and obtusely pointed, and pale green on both sides. The cones are rather light and flimsy of structure when ripe, three to five inches long, always erect, maturing the first year and fall to pieces on the tree, leaving the center or axis remaining looking as though the tree had been decorated with little Christmas candles. Cones are therefore never found under the trees unless some unusual force has knocked them off.

Acacia Greggii.

We have one native specie of acacia, though it does not approach Los Angeles nearer than about 100 miles, the nearest point of its native heath being San Gorgonio Pass beyond San Bernardino. It is either a small tree or a straggling shrub, sometimes, under favorable conditions, attaining a height of twenty feet. It is found on the western border of the Colorado Desert and runs far over the border of both State and country. It has stout recurved spines, flat at the base and about a quarter inch long. The leaves are fern-shaped, branched into four or five parts with four or five pairs of leaflets on each part. The pods are small, flat, usually with about two seeds in each, much constricted or narrowed between the seeds and after the seeds have dropped out the pods remain on the tree. It flowers in rather a desultory manner from April to September and is by no means valuable as an ornamental. In English it is known as the Cat's Claw, and to the Spanish as Uña de Gato.

The Large-Leaved Maple.

In the ascent of Mount Lowe one finds along the water courses after having toiled upward to about 3000 feet, our big-leafed maple (Acer macrophyllum.) It is a handsome tree, growing larger as we travel northward until we reach Oregon, though it extends up the coast to Alaska. It makes a handsome deciduous shade tree and thrives in our hot, interior valleys. As we have but the one species locally and nearly every one knows a maple at first glance, it would seem unnecessary to here describe it.

Flowers Brighten Life.

Flowers brighten many lives that have little else to cheer them; many a cottage which would otherwise be considered squalid is made cheerful and homelike by an abundance of flowering plants, even though of the cheaper and more common sorts. This bright array of colors has kept many a child interested and at home who would, had the yard been bare, have left for more congenial surroundings, for there is usually a sympathetic relation between humans and plant life.

Gardens Not Costly.

No one in California should hesitate to make a garden through fear of cost. Good plants at very low cost are on sale in all our plant depots, and if one cannot afford even these, there are scores that readily grow from cuttings with the most ordinary treatment. Many others seed so freely that one plant will in a single year stock a whole neighborhood with its offspring. There is no land beneath the sun where a garden of attractiveness may be so easily and cheaply built as in Southern California.

Sago Palms in Bloom.

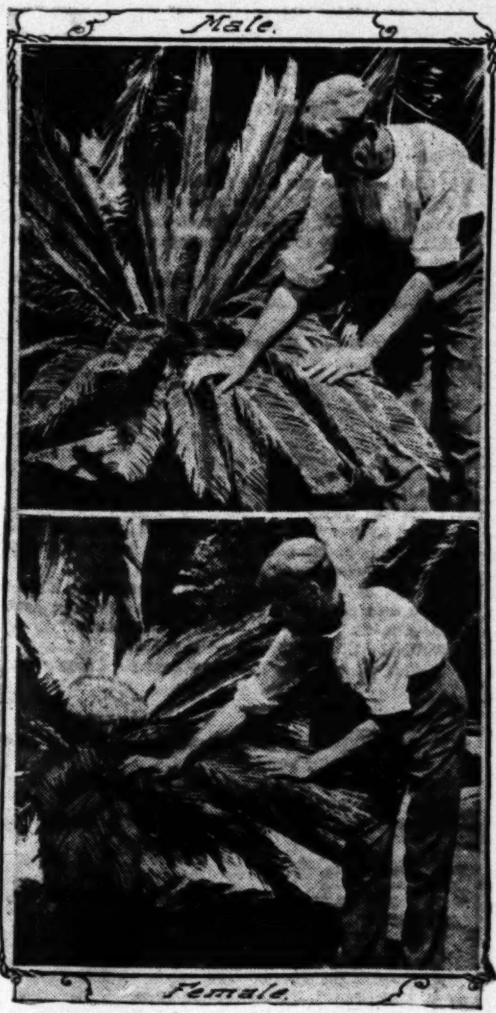
Very few gardens are fortunate enough to have sago plants of both sexes in bloom at the same time, but such has been the case during the past summer in the grounds of the Hotel Green at Pasadena. Both plants are typical, and about the same size, and show very markedly the difference between the pistillate or female blossom and the staminate or male. In gross aspect the former looks like a brownish cabbage head and the latter quite like a giant pine cone. The cone-like structure sheds perfect showers of golden pollen dust and by pulling apart the fracts or branch-like leaves of the cabbage head the marble-like ovaries may be seen nestling down in the heart of the blossom. A study of the two is very interesting and enlightening.

Bare Back Yards.

There is no more desolate scene at this time of the year than the bare back yard nor any view more restful and satisfying than one filled to overflowing with appropriate vegetation. Borders against the fences and buildings with vines to cover the former and ornament the latter will transform a desert into a veritable paradise. When one views the contrasts presented in some sections of our city he is led to wonder what class or race of people inhabit some shacks where no living plant is seen.

Collecting Native Plants.

Native plant life is now at its lowest ebb, and all perennial roots, if they may be found, may with greatest ease and safety be now transplanted. Where ferns have not been disturbed by cattle or other stock their dead tops betray the position of the roots, and if lifted at this time they can hardly fail to grow and thrive. Many native perennials, as golden rod, penstemons and this class are known to most of us by the remains of the summer's flower spikes. Those who know them not should set an identification stake in blooming time.



MALE AND FEMALE CYCADS.

Ferns for Indoors.

During the past few years we have seen a most remarkable development of house ferns among sports from the Boston fern until at present we have a half-dozen forms more ornate and peculiarly adapted to pot culture than it were possible to obtain a few years ago. It is a strange fact that some of these fancy varieties thrive better in confined areas than they do in the open ground. Only a rankly impure air and inexcusable neglect can kill or even harm the kinds now so common in our local markets.

Grand Fuchsias.

Never have fuchsias been common in such grand sorts as at present, and for east, west, or north exposures they are unsurpassed. During the past two years the writer has tried a score of late introductions, but the best of all has proven to be one known as Sylvia. Every garden in the land should contain a plant of this most beautiful fuchsia, which in size of flower and purity

CIVIC EDUCATION.

IMPORTANCE OF PROPER TRAINING OF RISING GENERATION.

If in the future we are to have more beautiful cities in increased numbers as well as in improvement of those now existing, it behooves us to see that the rising generation is so developed and so instructed that they be fully equal to the problems that will confront them a score or more years hence. Though much of necessary education and training will be given in ..., by far the greater development should come as a result of intelligent teaching and suggestion at school, as a large part of our civic (and home) beauty depends upon horticulture, nature study, especially plant life, and the school gardens are going to be the strongest factors in the upbuilding of the improvement worker who is to follow us.

Children must be taught in a natural way about things of nature all about them. This development is not won by the present-day cramming process or acquiring an astounding lot of information during a few years. The child rather should be encouraged to become interested, slowly but surely, until the proper desire for investigation is developed in his mind so that he will henceforth go forward without the aid of the teacher except as the latter is a "steering committee" of one. Restrictions must be removed both at home and school, and the child allowed to investigate unshackled.

SUNSET PARK, LOS ANGELES.

A short time ago the writer asked a class of school children how many had street trees in front of their homes, and there were some who really did not know whether any were there or not; others knew there were trees in evidence, but had no definite knowledge as to the head or crown above. Very few indeed knew the kind of tree that grew in the parkway, yet all were old enough to know this much and more regarding plant life. If each child were asked to minutely describe the first street tree encountered after leaving home for school and the peculiarities of form, bark, leaf, blossom or fruit or both, a grand start could be made. If the next day each child could bring a leaf from the tree for comparison, assisted by a really intelligent teacher and this line of work carefully and systematically followed out we would soon have a city composed largely of advocates of street tree planting, for all would love trees or be interested therein because of intimate knowledge of at least all the more common sorts.

When a little older this student body would so eagerly and gladly take up the study of systematic planting that the transition from "nature study" would exist in name only. At the end of their school days these students would know practically all plant life, in all its phases, from seed to maturity, not from what was taught at school, for such instruction could form but a small portion of the school day; but from observation and experience suggested at school. If such a course were pursued for but one generation our land throughout, both in city and country, would be one vast park of individual homes connected and harmonized by thoroughfares lined with solid lines of street trees and endless ribbons of parkway lawns or flower beds. We would then have in place of "city beautiful" or "country beautiful," what would be one vast stretch of horticultural beauty from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in all of which territory Southern California, having the greatest possibilities, would stand supreme over all other sections or states in the land of never-ending summer, sunshine and

Our First Public Parks.

The first step in municipal park development began in 1849, with the articles which A. J. Downing wrote for the New York papers. To them can be traced the formation of Elm Park in Worcester, Bushnell Park in Hartford, and Central Park in New York, the first three distinctly municipal parks in the United States. During the next five years a portion of the land now known as Fairmount Park, in Philadelphia, was taken from the water department and dedicated for park purposes. Druid Hill Park in Baltimore, Lincoln Park in Chicago were begun, and some other cities were taking steps toward installing municipal parks. During the period of our Civil War but little was done in park work, but about 1870 it revived with considerable energy, and during the next twenty-five years many of our large park systems were evolved. It was during these years that Frederick Law Olmsted was in his prime and doing his great work, which culminated in the World's Fair grounds in Chicago in 1893. Also during this period several other skilled landscape architects came to the front.

First Steps in Improvement Work.

Under the above head one lecturer on citrus maintains that the initial step should be cleaning up of back yards, and says that actual trial has demonstrated that dirty back yards may be cleaned up at cost ranging from 10 cents to $1.25. It is of course no use to urge the clean-up of front yards if the work is to begin in the year for any one having a clean and orderly back yard may be depended upon to have a front yard that is somewhat attractive. A campaign of back-yard cleaning would remove many of our cities from the charge that American premises generally have Queen Anne fronts and Mary Ann rears.

Outdoor Pictures.

All our fine landscapes should be preserved as far as possible and none should be spoiled by the presence of ugly bill boards, etc. When a fine rolling or sloping tract is converted into building lots an artist should be consulted, by whose advice the original beauty might largely be preserved and an economic disposition made of the land at the same time. It is not necessary, or even desirable that lots should be square or streets straight. On the contrary, the straight line is not the line of beauty and is not in any sense natural—for man cannot make a straight line without considerable trouble, and some of us cannot do it at all, for which we should be thankful.

So far from needing straight streets and walks, men have been seen to deviate from a straight course when walking along a sidewalk even when doing their level best to follow a crack therein. So it may be marked, and remarked that neither in a natural or an unnatural state can man walk in a perfectly straight line. Preserve all the beautiful landscapes and we will have both towns and cities more attractive. A well-known writer on civic beauty has said: "More people and more generations of people may gain a mental, moral and physical uplift from the living picture of a really beautiful landscape with its never-ending change with the procession of the seasons, than from any landscape upon canvas." Preservation of our outdoor pictures will insure a beautiful country for ever.

Public Fountains.

In Southern California, particularly in Los Angeles, there is a dearth of fountains in number, and none of any architectural pretensions. All over Europe one may almost travel for weeks in sight of grand fountains or at least pretentious ones, even though many are ugly or inappropriate. Some are quaint, others grotesque, and many ridiculous; still others are offensive to good taste and a few are even monstrous. While we should avoid questionable designs, we need a few ornamental fountains, for we have so few as compared with other cities that it is at once noticeable to all experienced travelers.

The Street Tree Butcher.

All hail the day when we shall have a force of competent tree pruners under a city forestry department! Tree butchers in various sections of the city still continue to mutilate trees to the point where their greatest beauty and effectiveness is gone forever. A tree wrongly pruned can never be entirely righted nor its original beauty restored. Some pruning on street trees is necessary each year, to remove dead wood, shape the tree, prevent it from breaking down, remove abnormal growths, to thin out an excess of branches, or to promote greater health and vigor by reducing the top until the roots are easily sufficient for the work required of them; but such work should only be done by experienced and competent men. Our evergreen trees do not need the pruning necessary to the deciduous street trees of the East which gives us still more warrant for asking that the small amount necessary should be properly performed. If our city forester had sufficient funds at his command local nurserymen could furnish him with pruners who have been tried and found efficient.

One Man's Work.

On the opening of the new lands in Oklahoma a thriving little city was established, in the midst of which was laid out a public square. In the center of this the Courthouse was placed, and around it were built straggling structures such as characterize frontier towns. The people of the town seemed not to care, and the unkempt waste was for ten years neglected and forsaken. Then came the "useful citizen"—in this case a young business man, who with a love of nature deep seated in his soul felt the heinousness of local conditions. He plowed and harrowed the square as for a crop. He planted it with bits of trees which seemed scarcely more than straws. These he set in rows like corn and cultivated as he would have the maize.

Throughout the torrid days of the Oklahoma summer he carefully cultivated these little trees, while his fellow-townsmen looked on and smiled. But the trees grew and in a year were two feet high; in another year they had grown to five feet, hundreds and thousands of them, and the square took on the appearance of a young nursery. Then the "useful citizen" (or the superintendent as he was now called officially) notified the citizens that they could buy the little trees at a low price, and he sold them in abundance without in anywise interfering with his plans—the beautifying and adorning of the square—and he soon had sold enough to pay all the expenses incurred in the experiment. Now, these trees are large and umbrageous, thrifty and vigorous, making of the square a park increasing in beauty daily, and in summer the delight of children and family parties for miles around. In fact, the park is now the most attractive resort within a radius of more than a score of miles, and it but represents the work of a single up-to-date citizen. What a world of good an organized band of workers could do in any and all of our Southern California towns!

One Woman's Work.

An American woman lately went to live in a Canadian town. She with her husband occupied one of a half-dozen houses on a fine terrace surrounded by private grounds. Behind was the Courthouse with the usual collection of county buildings. Its grounds, too, surrounded with the terrace and a dense untrimmed growth of trees and shrubs which were a menace to the eye and the health of the community.

The American woman began to trim her trees and plant vines around her house. Nasturtiums and geraniums were planted, but the alley in the rear of the house, through which a private road passed, had long been a dumping ground and an eyesore. This attempt to beautify induced every one in the block to follow suit. Unsightly fences vanished, weeds disappeared, lawns were kept shaven until now they look like velvet; the trees and shrubs around the county buildings were trimmed and now pavements are being laid all over the city, and a great improvement is to be noted wherever they have been laid. What was once almost an eyesore has become one of the most beautiful streets, not only in the province, but on this continent, all through the initiative and persistence of a woman whose heart was in her work.

Good!

A crowd of small boys were gathered about the entrance of a circus tent in one of the small cities in New Hampshire one day, trying to get a glimpse of the interior. A man standing near watched them for a few moments, then walking up to the ticket taker he said:

"Let all these boys in, and count them as they pass."

The man did as requested, and when the last one had gone, he turned and said:

"Twenty-eight."

"Good!" said the man. "I guessed just right," and walked off.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

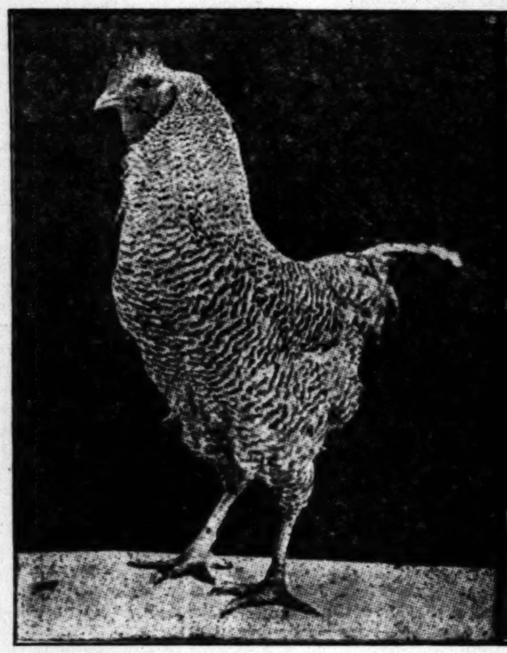
EGG MACHINES.

THEY NEED CONSTANT ATTENTION BY A GOOD MECHANIC.

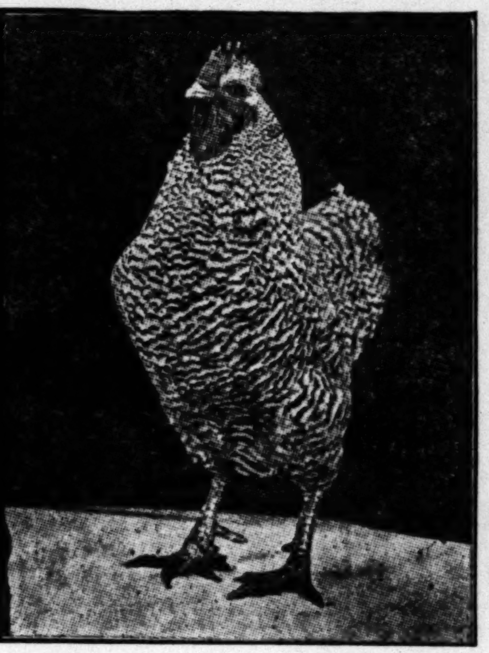
By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experiences with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

A HEN is an egg machine, good or bad. With power of choice she is a poor one, generally. All special machinery needs constant attention, if a special product results, and this is an age of specialism. We do not want hens to lay eggs in the spring only, as they will if given power of choice. We want them to lay every month in the year, and give up the notion of making their own living and of breeding and caring for young. We can control young hens by special treatment of habitat and physique, but old hens are too smart to be controlled or else we wear out the hen gearing in a few years. Personal smartness and giving away of gear both probably enter into our defeat. Humanity gets many a lesson in these smart days from old hens.



A BARRED ROCK OF WEAK CONSTITUTION.



A BARRED ROCK OF STRONG CONSTITUTION.

The physique of a hen is able to make an egg machine for about three years, with a good hen motor in proper contact, but it takes a good mechanic in constant attendance to adjust the two. If anybody queries what may be a hen motor, let him go kill a hen, and what departs from the expression of the hen is the motor, what remains being the machine. We are not able to compete with nature and make either machine or motor, and it is well to consider our limitations and realize how much of mystery and mastery lies in a small eggshell as it comes from the hen. In order to keep the motor working right, the machine which carries it must be right. The machines we make are able to stand idle and wait for power, but the hen machine, like all living things, burns up at once without a motive power turned on for going. We can't meddle with the levers and have a hen; but we can put an egg into environment which is able to make an egg machine—if only a female egg. Put into even heat at about 100 degrees with proper amount of moisture, a little individual in the shell will signal and walk out of it on the twenty-first day, while the hen mechanic waits most respectfully. He knows how, and serves the right kind of air and heat to make a healthy chirper if the little fellow only started out of masterful mystery a normal germ. The start is almost everything—quite everything. Heredity is a monarchy if given power of choice, but the hen mechanic dictates things that better be, and expects the kind of tot that tumbles out of the shell. Both the tot and the mechanic is helpless unless working ogether. It is a trade to grow chickens into egg machines, and not the least of trades.

With right environment, the normal hen chick has to respond to conditions with an egg-laying machine. Food is the fuel which keeps up combustion, and the kind of food determines the action of special parts. If we feed fat-producing foods the hen takes on fat, and fat is against eggs. If muscle food be left out of the diet the hen will be soft, and not equal to egg making, while if fed muscle food which digests she has to have muscle. A hen will not hold out long that can't digest proper food. There was something wrong with her start, or she would have to digest proper foods. The hen mechanic builds his machine for the special business by feeding special foods specially, the hen being in strict confinement and not left to choose. The hens that do not respond to treatment are called scrubs, whether they are or not. Many of us, probably, who are not expert mechanics have doubts. Scrubs go down and out, are eaten as good fuel for other animals at world work, while the aristocrat, responding to treatment, gets into the egg habit, and can't help herself. Her chirps are cheery in the close pen. Liberty is only a matter of near relation to her, and her ignorance of it a bliss. The scrub seems no happier with freedom, because along with it she has frights galore; good anxieties, and often chooses unwise shelter at night.

Without any anxiety for self, the egg machine is a neat affair all around. She digests the especial foods and sends them to build egg parts, and when well built, expresses herself in being a lovely creature, when the hen mechanic feeds foods that make further for eggs, and eggs have to come. Every time she lays an egg, she is joyous, and makes others joyous. Poultry husbandry involves a fast-growing trade, and poultry-supply houses are certain exponents of it. Next best to going to college and studying poultry husbandry directly, is studying foods and appliances at the local supply house. The needs of the students are there, and by studying the exhibits, one can acquire the knowledge which has made them practicable. The student mechanic can make egg machines, and run them successfully.

Constitutional Qualities.

Not long since reference was made in this column to the fact that large egg production, though very desirable from a commercial point of view, nevertheless had a tendency to weaken the offspring of hens with abnormal egg records. This fact has been strongly demonstrated in the experiments carried on by the Maine Experiment Station which, by careful selection and breeding, had been successful in the creation of a flock of Barred Plymouth Rock hens that averaged something like 200 eggs per year. It is, indeed, of the utmost importance that for breeding purposes the male bird possess strong constitutional powers; must be pugnacious, vigorous, active—indeed, be the "cock of the walk." As an object lesson in the general appearance of a strong constiutional bird and one who lacks these qualities, we show, herewith, two illustrations of two Barred Rock males of the same age. Not only does constitutional vigor apply to the inherent breeding quality of the bird, but it also possesses a broad significance in its outward apearance. Note the clear eye, the strong comb, the well developed head points, broad breast and square and blocky appearance of the stronger bird, and the reader will at once grasp the significance and importance of breeding only to vigorous males and to females of like character possessing the egg-laying type.

Voices from the Mail.

F. H. Poders, Los Angeles, sends in the following queries:

1. "If a person were to buy a five-acre plot and plant it to deciduous fruit trees, would it be well to allow a flock of chickens free range over it? Would freedom have a tendency to cause the birds to forget their egg-laying propensity?

2. "Would it be best to have one or two thoroughbred breeds of opposite characteristics? In moulting and setting time could not two be manipulated better, so as to have the least effect on egg production?

3. "My choice of Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte or Orpington and Leghorn."

1. The plan is perfectly feasible and under the average care given to poultry, the yield of hen fruit would average with the average flock. Under [illegible] telligent culture it is the writer's opinion [illegible] yield would be better if the birds were [illegible] small flocks and given closer quarters.

2. If allowed the range of the orchard [illegible] would be advisable. Whatever variety appeals [illegible] to your fancy is the one to tie to. Moulting [illegible] regular as to season. Two or more breeds [illegible] simultaneously one year, and the following [illegible] or less as to time.

Your choice is all right. Rocks and Leg[illegible] a good combination if more than one variety [illegible] If you want eggs as a source of revenue, [illegible] Mediterraneans; if eggs and carcass, either [illegible] ican or English classes are good. It all [illegible] what strikes your fancy. The breed you [illegible] one your are more apt to succeed with, other [illegible] ing equal.

H. J. Show, the popular breeder of [illegible] sends in the following note under date of [illegible]

"Noting your article in today's Times, I [illegible] few prices of last year might be interesting. [illegible] to give you the retail price here, it may [illegible] in Los Angeles: September 4, 1907, 40c; Oct[illegible] 45c; October 18, 1907, 55c; December 13, [illegible] cember 30, 1907, 45c; September 1, 1908, 40c; [illegible] 28, 1908, 45c; October 14, 1908, 50c; October [illegible] You see by that that the prices were a little [illegible] year than this, that is, the retail. On January [illegible] they were selling for 30c. Conditions this [illegible] certainly favorable to moulting, too much [illegible] all the hens that moulted early will moult [illegible] find that a good many hens are taking the [illegible] this year, and that won't make eggs get [illegible] early. A great many people have gone out of the [illegible] business this year, therefore now is the [illegible] into it."

The above agrees with general prevailing [illegible] throughout the State. While in Petaluma [illegible] the universal complaint was low prices for [illegible] high feed bills during the summer. Within [illegible] few weeks, however, there has been an upward [illegible] in the price of hen fruit, due to the disposal of [illegible] stocks and also to the fact that many [illegible] "gone out of chickens." This condition only [illegible] what was said in these columns last summer, [illegible] that the man who "comes through" the dull [illegible] bound to be a winner at the return of the [illegible] believe that the business will assume normal [illegible] tions this winter, and that breeders with the [illegible] make money.

C. E. B., Pomona, describes an ailing [illegible] thusly:

"Briefly, this hen ate ravenously and drank [illegible] yet moped around; had a swelling of head, [illegible] nose running and labored breathing and the comb [illegible] almost white. There is no indication of roup [illegible] has safely been brought through an attack of [illegible] They have clean, running water, whole wheat [illegible] table scraps.

The symptoms of swelling head, running at [illegible] and eyes, indicate a common cold; if rattling [illegible] throat, it is a cold with bronchitis; add to these [illegible] cult breathing, it is probably pneumonia; [illegible] cankers form in the mouth it is diphtheria or [illegible] ritic roup. Illness usually indicates a pale [illegible] various stages of colds affecting fowls, give [illegible] the drinking water, a dozen homeopathic pellets [illegible] quart of water. A good remedy to keep on hand [illegible] use for cold, bronchitis, etc., is equal parts [illegible] pepper, ginger and mustard, mixed as stiffly as [illegible] in lard, then flour worked in to make a stiff [illegible] form in slugs or pellets about the size of a small nut; give by opening the mouth and dropping [illegible] the throat. A single treatment often cures; if [illegible] not, it should be followed by another dose in [illegible] four hours.

The World in Flowers.

A masterpiece of floriculture appears in a [illegible] park. It is a huge globe with maps of the [illegible] oceans and deserts all made of flowers. The [illegible] tains 32,000 plants and stands on a flower bed [illegible] diameter and containing 16,000 plants.—[Pop[illegible] chanics.

Thrice Grand Vizier.

A PERSONAL SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF KIAMIL PASHA.

From London Daily Mail.

KIAMIL PASHA, whom the King has delighted to honor in a message to the Sultan, is the personification of that bloodless revolution which has changed the aspect of Turkey and the near east. His vigor, like that of his race, is unimpaired by age, and his courage has gained strength under the oppression which for more than a quarter of a century has been the lot of his country.

A quiet, kindly man is the Grand Vizier, keen of eye and of mind, with a bearded face that shows intellect and [illegible]. Despite eighty-odd years and a career of [illegible] venturesome activities, he alone seems to have the experience and authority, as well as the determination indispensable at this crisis. In no country is the career more open to talent and luck than in Turkey. As in the days of the Arabian Nights, a peasant may become Grand Vizier; but it is contrary to Turkish [illegible] that he should live to fill the post thrice. This distinction belongs to Kiamil Pasha. In 1885, when Sir Henry Drummond Wolff went to Constantinople on a mission with reference to affairs in Egypt, Kiamil was one of the plenipotentiaries appointed by the Sultan to treat with him. He was at that time Minister of Pious Foundations—an important position; but before the end of the year events in Bulgaria brought about a change of administration, and Kiamil Pasha became Grand Vizier. The experience of the next two years was calculated to make an Anglophile of the Sul[illegible], but it served to excite in him the im[illegible] reform.

[illegible] independence, the jealousy with which he guarded the [illegible] of his office, and his barely-concealed hostility to the Camarilla had already created enemies among the Sultan's favorites. But Kiamil Pasha was no [illegible]tioner. One day he presented himself to the Shadow of God upon Earth with a copy of a constitution framed on the lines of Midhat Pasha's [illegible] scheme, and declared that unless it was inaugurated the Ottoman empire would tumble about its master's ears. The Sultan, who had just succeeded in creating the nearest approach to a real autocracy the world has ever seen, resented this censure of a state in which everything was directed by his will. The Grand Vizier was commanded to quit the palace and to remain a prisoner in his house until the will of his master was made known. The representatives of the powers intervened, and instead of being bowstrung, as might be expected, Kiamil Pasha was made Vali or Governor of Aidin, and went into exile. Here he remained for fifteen years, forgotten of the world until it entered the Sultan's head to order him to Rhodes on account of age. Kiamil Pasha, however, doubted the motive that inspired this change, and having memories of the fate of that other reformer—Midhat Pasha—he took refuge in the British consulate at Smyrna. Here he remained while George Barclay, now British Minister [illegible], negotiated with the Sultan for the safety of the former Grand Vizier. Abdul Hamid consented with what grace he could command and exchanged the exile of Rhodes for a house in Constantinople. Under the protection of Great Britain Kiamil Pasha returned to the capital and was received in audience by the Sultan.

And now, within two years, the exile finds himself for the third time Grand Vizier. But under what changed conditions! Not the Sultan but the people have named him to so onerous and responsible a post. Vizier means "one who bears a burden," and is applied to the Minister who takes upon his shoulders the burden of public affairs. The word vizier, however, is rarely used by the Turks, who prefer the title Sadr Azam, or "the greatest [illegible]"—the front and source of honor. He is the sovereign's representative in all secular matters, and has his spiritual counterpart in the Sheikh-ul-Islam, who is appointed and dismissed by imperial order and is not changed with the Grand Vizier. In recent years the authority of this office has been greatly diminished by the practice of sending direct communications or iradés to the officials of the empire instead of firmans or Vizierial letters. The new constitution has restored the ancient prerogative of the Grand Vizier, and until the elections determine the [illegible] of ministers Kiamil Pasha retains all the power that was exercised by a Grand Vizier before Abdul Hamid took upon himself the responsibility for every detail of administration and reduced his ministers to the position of private secretaries. That Kiamil Pasha is resolved to use his high authority is manifested by his treatment of Prince Sabah-ed-din, a nephew of the Sultan and one of the most active members of the Young Turkey party, who recently committed the indiscretion of being interviewed by a newspaper correspondent. This action may be taken as the measure of Kiamil Pasha's character and as a proof of his confidence in the stability of the new régime of which he is the head.

Before the revolution there were two councils. The Council of Ministers—composed of the Grand Vizier, the Sheikh-ul-Islam, and most of the ministers—sat at the Bab-i-Ali, or Sublime Porte, and was occasionally summoned to the palace, but never met in the presence of the Sultan, whose views and decisions were conveyed to the council by secretaries or favorites who had the right to appear uninvited before the sovereign. The second was the Council of State—a much larger body, resembling in some respects our Privy Council—with its sections for legislative, financial, and legal affairs. The form of these councils is still maintained. Apart from his reforming zeal, Kiamil Pasha has personal qualities that commend him to his countrymen. His honesty has always been above suspicion, and of his patriotism he has given sacrificial proofs. To his wise counsel and example Turkey owes the distinction of a bloodless revolution; he has used the authority of age and experience to hold in check the vagaries of enthusiasts, and by the choice of his colleagues has given assurance that these peaceful methods will not be abandoned. While anxious as far as possible to retain the spirit of the old laws, he acknowledges the urgency of radical reform in finance and administration. His choice of European coöperators is an indication that he is pledged to no nation save the Ottoman. France holds 70 per cent. of the public debt, and a Frenchman may naturally look to have the supervision, if it is to be entrusted to a European. There was a time when the Grand Vizier had leanings in the direction of Germany and the Triple Alliance; that was in the day of his first Vizierate. But time and circumstances have brought him nearer to Great Britain, to whom he owes some gratitude, seeing that it was an Englishman—Mr. Ayrton by name—who gave him his first instruction in European forms and laid the foundation of that education which enables him to speak with fluency five languages and to think, at any rate, in one.

WILLIAM MAXWELL.

Fattipose and His Auto.

OWNER OF A MOTOR CAR COMPLAINS THAT HE'S HATED.

From New York Sun.

MR. FATTIPOSE was talking about automobiles and things.

"I'll give this to myself," said he, "that before I felt opulent enough to buy an automobile myself I didn't hate the fellows who already possessed 'em. That may sound incredible, but it's a fact. I didn't even feel jealous of them. I envied them a bit, of course, but I was glad to see them enjoying themselves in their cars, and I made up my mind that I was going to have one of those things just as soon as I was able to see the money end of it.

"Well, now I've got one. I've had it for about two months. And I observe that a number of my friends are beginning to treat me haughtily, especially when they catch me redhanded in the act of riding around in my car. I should add that all of those who bestow the aslant gaze upon me are fellows who don't own automobiles. I have heard indirectly that some of those fellows express the conviction that I have developed a case of the enlarged head. They make this asseveration in connection with the fact that I own an automobile and drive it around the streets of New York. One of these friends, it has come to me, has announced his belief that I have become too large for my clothing. A man with whom I used to be on quite cordial terms has, it seems, resented my flaunting past his house at all hours in a big monstrosity of a buzz wagon—I use his words as they were reported to me. This man lives on a street that is used by many pleasure vehicles because it is a wide, well-paved street. Of course until I heard of his remark I never knew that I hurt him in going by his house in a motor car. Since I heard it, I've invariably made a detour when in his neighborhood with an automobile to avoid passing by his house, for really I don't want to hurt anybody's feelings.

"I hate to annoy any of my neighbors and friends, but, because some of them take my motor car so much to heart, and fancy I've developed a case of elephantiasis because I own it, it's not up to me to sell the machine or have it converted into junk, is it?

"You see, I enjoy the thing. I like to ride about in it. It's one of my few pleasures. Now, I know lots of fellows who enjoy playing poker. I don't, because I'm a wretched player of the game, and I can't stand the loss of sleep, anyhow. But I don't object to their playing poker. Not in the least. I listen to their stories of how they caught a pat full against the other fellow's pat flush, and how they didn't do one solitary, single thing to the other fellow, with real interest and enjoyment. I don't hate them for playing poker, because I know they like the game, and I'm glad they're glad.

"Several of my friends drink quite an amount of liquor, because they enjoy it, have fun with it, and presumably know their own business. I don't take it for granted that they don't know their own business. I don't object to their drinking. If they like it and enjoy it, why, I've got no kick coming. Plenty of fellows I know go in for handball, golf, canoeing, and so on. They become enthusiasts over these things and talk to me at great length over their hobbies when I meet them, and I always listen to them with interest and gladness, whether I have any genuine regard for the subject matter of their fads or not. I don't learn to dislike fellows who become baseball or fishing or hunting bugs. These things are their pleasures.

"Why, then, should these chaps furtively dislike me, as I know a number of them do, because I have a motor car and go about in it?

"I don't know. I give it up. You can search me.

"The answer may easily be sprung that the other forms of enjoyment to which I've alluded—poker playing, rum drinking, canoeing, fishing, hunting and the like are not 'dangerous to other people' or that they don't 'interfere with the comfort of other people.'

"Well, I am here to deny that the automobile is so infernally dangerous to other people as it is represented to be. I am perfectly and placidly aware that my denial combined with the denials of all the other automobile people on the globe won't have the slightest effect upon the folks who don't own automobiles or ride in them themselves, but I make the denial all the same if only for the purpose of getting the thing out of my system.

"More than that, I aver, affirm, vow and vum in all solemnity that ninety-nine one-hundredths of all the automobilists of the city of New York take into strictest account the comfort, safety and equanimity of the pedestrians on the streets. Moreover, I would maintain with my dying breath that there are not in New York as many reckless, high-speed automobile drivers as there are reckless high-speed drivers of carriages, delivery wagons and other vehicles pulled by horses.

"No use in talking at all, lots of folks have a warped view with respect to the owners and drivers of motor cars. Why should the man on the street swell up with wrath over the sight of an automobile approaching him, even at a moderate rate of speed, when he never generates a similar feeling with respect to the richly-appointed carriage with a crest, more or less ridiculous, emblazoned upon the panels, pulled by a couple of gaily-caparisoned steeds, when that kind of an outfit bears down upon him at a reckless and arrogant rate of speed, just as often as not?

"I'd like to know if it isn't a reasonable enough proposition that the automobile, if folks would only admit it, really is only about one-half as dangerous as a carriage drawn by horses. The automobile is under thorough control, the horses may not be. The drivers of some New York carriages are impudent, defiant, seemingly possessed of the opinion that they are above the law, as indeed some of them really seem to be. If you don't scoot out of the way in a hurry they'll run you down.

"Now, one of these richly-appointed carriages drawn by a fine pair of horses and including the expensive trappings costs just about as much as a good automobile. Why then should the man on the street who has to scurry like all Harry to escape from the rapidly-driven carriage accept the arrogant driving of the coachman as a matter of course and offer no protest or word of resentment, when he scowls and growls savage things when he hears the toot of an approaching automobile that begins to slow up about thirty feet away from him if he doesn't feel like exhibiting the necessary alacrity in getting out of the way?

"Once more I invite you to search me.

"A great many of these sulky, resentful pedestrians, the ones who have the utterly unreasonable grouch against people who ride in motor cars, are said to resent being warned out of the way by the toot of the auto horn. They complain about the horn. They might just as well ask why is a cow or when is a hen. However, inasmuch as some folks really do not seem to apprehend why the horn of the automobile is necessary permit me to unravel the mystery: It's because, you see, if there were no horn why the folks on the streets wouldn't know the motor car was coming.

"Deep, isn't it? Hard to understand, hey? You see, when a carriage or a laundry wagon or a dirt or coal cart is approaching the horse or horses make a clattering on the pavement with their iron-shod feet—profound what I'm saying now, isn't it?—and the horse-drawn vehicle creaks and rattles and otherwise announces its contiguity, propinquity and approaching juxtaposition, so to speak.

"But the motor car, as maybe you've noticed, runs on rubber tires, and some automobiles make no noise whatever that can be heard above the ordinary hum of the street and the din of traffic. Consequently automobiles are fitted with horns wherewith the driver may warn folks passing in front of the machines. That's the answer to the question 'Why is an automobile horn?' And yet there are slews and slathers of folks who when they are crossing directly in front of the path of a motor car will turn around and glare most ferociously and vitriolically at the driver when they hear the ever so gentle, not to say apologetic, warning toot of the horn.

"To see them doing this you'd imagine that the driver of the motor car had hurled a passé egg or a tired vegetable at them with all of his might and main and aim. Not only that, but many of them the instant they hear the little tootlet of the horn deliberately slacken up their speed and cross the motor car's path with the greatest imaginable leisure, just to show the driver that they don't care for any old automobile; that they're free and independent citizens; that they're going to walk the streets at their own pace just as often and as long as they danged please; that they don't think much of these automobile bugs, nohow; that the streets were made first for pedestrians and for fluffy wuffy motor-car idiots last of all, and so on and so on.

"In those ancient days when the streets of New York were filled with flying bicycles nobody ever appeared to resent the tinkle of the bicycle bell that foretold the approach of the little machine. They took that warning signal as a matter of course and stepped willingly out of the way. Why, then, is this buck over the tooter of the automobile? Doesn't the general attitude in this respect prove that the nub of the grouch is their resentment held against the folks who are sufficiently prosperous to be possessed of motor cars?

"Nope, I haven't the speed bug. I don't want to race or even to go fast in my machine. I'm perfectly satisfied to obey the speed laws down to the final letter and comma and semicolon. There wouldn't be the slightest fun or satisfaction for me in chasing around scaring folks half to death and provoking their hatred and perhaps their violence. That's why it sort of gets me bilious when there's a great big yammering howl directed at all automobilists, irrespective of previous condition, age or servitude, when some one bughouse driver of a car gets into a messy accident owing to his mania for fast driving. When one locomotive engineer disregards orders and gets his train into a ditch we don't howl that all locomotive engineers are madmen and maniacs and things, do we? Well, then, what's the answer?

"The automobile isn't any new thing any more, and that's why I'm becoming some doubtful whether folks who don't own them will ever make up their minds that automobilists are human beings. The grand remedy would be to provide everybody with an automobile. That would fix it all right."

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products.

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

Exeter Tobacco.

I HAVE received sample packages of two varieties of genuine Turkish tobacco with names I will not attempt to spell out here. The cured leaves are very fine in texture and color, grown at Exeter, this State, by A. Beyekian. Several acres of these varieties have been grown the past season, and the profits were good according to a Tulare paper. Of course with past trials in memory it will require more than a statement like this to draw any one into tobacco culture, for the curing process alone would make success very problematical. But it is good to know that an expert tobacco grower is making experiments on rather a large scale. There are no insurmountable difficulties climatic, for any degree of humidity, quality or situation of soil or any other condition can be found in this great State. Let every one be encouraged who will make trial of new crops here

Pear Blight Conditions.

THE announcement by the largest Bartlett pear grower in the State that the present season has been the most profitable one he has ever experienced, does not seem to coincide with the pessimistic reports I have been making for some time. But the divergence is only apparent, for this grower has systematically and persistently cut the blight out of his orchard. When the Sacramento River overflowed the valley he went with his men into the orchard in boats and removed every infected branch that could be found. This season he has received his reward. He told me his sixty acres produced 23,000 boxes of marketable Bartlett pears, for which he received 2 cents a pound. This grower will plant a new orchard to this favorite fruit in spite of the fact that hundreds of pear orchards in his county have been absolutely destroyed by the blight.

The moral of this story is "Get the best scientific and practical advice and follow it to the letter." Howard Reed, proprietor of this pear orchard, attended every convention where M. B. Waite, the pear-blight expert, delivered an address upon this disease. Waite is the man who spent two years with his assistants in California for the Bureau of Plant Industry investigating this malady. He addressed two State fruit growers' conventions, and Mr. Reed has demonstrated the value of Waite's advice. It has meant to him success, while the pear growers who paid no attention to Waite have failed. No attention was paid to the alleged pear-blight remedies. Mr. Reed will continue to fight the blight by removing the infection wherever he can find it. This will be more difficult if the next season proves favorable to the disease, but it is only a question of more work and not of methods.

The Demonstration Train.

I PROMISED to keep the readers of The Times posted upon the progress of the special train to be run throughout the State by the Southern Pacific under the auspices of the University of California and the State Commissioner of Horticulture. The train will consist of five cars, to be run on schedule time, the first trip covering the upper portion of the Sacramento Valley as far north as Anderson. It will require nine days to make this itinerary. On Monday the 9th this train will pull out of Sacramento pretty well equipped for the trip, returning to that city on the evening of November 17, during which time thirty-two meetings will be held with the fruit growers and farmers along the way. These conferences will extend from one to four hours, according to the importance of the interests of each locality visited.

The University car is being equipped at the State Farm at Davis, and I cannot give any detailed account of what it will contain. But it will illustrate grain growing, dairying, stock raising, veterinary practice, forestry and orchard practice with samples and appliances. Four representatives of the university will accompany the train, alternating with the representatives of the State Commission in lecturing and demonstration.

The car of the State Commission will contain about forty airtight cases containing samples of fruit-tree diseases and conditions. These cases will be fastened to the walls of the car and will contain specimens of walnut, pear and peach blight, peach yellows, olive knots, various root knots, citrus gummosis, leaf blister, phylloxera, woolly aphis, Anaheim disease, sun scald, malformations caused by mechanical injuries and diseases, and many other similar specimens. Another lot of samples will be devoted to the principles of plant propagation—samples of budding, field and bench grafting, the use of waxing and demonstrating the failures of field budding and grafting. The car will also contain hundreds of specimens of scale and other insect pests, samples of spraying materials of all kinds, appliances for their use and a miniature fumigating outfit. The latter is unique, consisting of a diminutive tent and derrick, commissary wagon, drum, carboy, set of pitchers and generating vessels all made to scale and all put up in a neat case in miniature. Other features too numerous to mention will make this car one of unusual interest, and run in coöperation with the University car will form a combination of object lessons that should be of great value to those who visit the train at its various stopping-places.

This enterprise is of interest to Southern California, as it is intended to run the train to every portion of the State if the farming communities find it helpful to their business. The Southern Pacific Company is leaving nothing undone to make the new movement successful, and it promises to be both popular and useful.

Selling Inferior Fruits.

THE SACRAMENTO DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION has called attention to the inferior fruits offered to passengers on the trains at the various stations throughout the valley. It is claimed that the grapes, pears and apples offered in this way are misrepresentative of the high quality of the fruits produced in the commercial orchards. San Francisco is complaining about the poor stuff furnished the hotels and restaurants, and if popular outcry was worth anything in such matters, reform would soon be in evidence. But little will come of it as long as our fruit growers and merchants let the retail fruit trade go at loose ends.

The fruit markets of San Francisco are in a chaotic condition. A large percentage that is displayed there by the retailers should be condemned by the health authorities. The Los Angeles markets are in better condition, but not ideal by any means. I am heading a small movement toward the improvement of the retail fruit markets of the State by getting representatives of the growers and commission men to come together and discuss the faults of the present system. E. F. Adams, the agricultural editor of the Chronicle, will deliver an address upon this subject at the State Fruit Growers' Convention, and a prominent commission merchant of San Francisco will present the question from the standpoint of the trade. The improvement of the local fruit markets is of vital interest to all growers within reach of the centers of population in the State if they expect to supply the home demand. There is no question as to the benefits arising from the sale of no fruits but the best, but such a revolution cannot be effected by merely complaining. It will come only through organized effort in which the shippers will have to join in one policy and the fruit merchants also. The growers are the sufferers with the consumers, and should unite to make improvement possible.

Pure Food Results.

THE STATE BOARD OF HEALTH has just published its biennial report to the Governor. One subject treated in this document is of particular interest to the producers of farm products. It is in relation to pure-food products. Of the food samples not found in violation of the California Pure Food Act in all the samples analyzed are baking powders, breads, buttermilk, flour, unfermented grape juice, olive oils, canned soups, lard and salt. That is, every sample examined showed a clean record. Every other group of food articles had from one to many individuals adulterated or mislabeled. Some were noticeably good, but the totals show that the pure-food act is being violated with impunity. Out of 989 samples of all foods analyzed 565 were in violation of the law. Forty of 147 sample confections were adulterated. Meat-food products, spices, mustards, ice cream and condensed milk were high in the list in adulterations.

The Secretary of Agriculture at Washington is empowered by law to proclaim any seedsman selling impure seed, and well the Secretary uses this power. I do not know that the State Board of Health has the power to send out a list of adulterated foods with the names and places of the manufacturers, but the Department of Agriculture does this very act for the public on the pure-seed question. I have a list now of those selling impure seeds, and find an occasional well-known seedsman in the list. It hurts.

Taxes Paid in Eggs.

VERY often in the rural districts of the East the thrifty farmer's wife drives to town with a case of eggs, cashes it and pays the annual tax with the proceeds. In the island of Cyprus it was the custom after British occupation for the government to accept grasshopper eggs from the natives in payment of taxes. The natives were too poor to pay in money, so every able-bodied native was compelled to collect and deliver for destruction twenty-two pounds of grasshopper eggs as his poll tax. At the end of the first year of this law a total of 304,524 pounds of locust eggs had been turned in by the natives of the island, or 2,000,000,000 eggs, estimating them at 30 to 35 to each nest.

This is the very extreme of poverty and cheap labor, but there are all gradations of pay, and the average is low in all these countries. Some of them raise citrus fruits, and these statistics but show what the American citrus fruit grower would have to face were the tariffs upon citrus fruits made non-protective. They would be paying their taxes in hens' eggs in a few years.

A Heavy Tax.

THE report of the Riverside County Horticultural Commission for October shows that 31,314 trees were treated during the month by spraying or fumigation for scale. This is a small number compared with those treated in Los Angeles county, and yet what a burden it places upon the growers. Riverside has not yet been visited by the purple scale, that most difficult and destructive of all pests to eradicate. The county spends a reasonable sum of money each year in patrol and eradication work, and has an effective Board of Horticultural Commissioners. Small is the expense compared with the burden the appearance of the purple scale or rust mite would add to the cost of maintaining an orchard. Many counties in the north are suffering from the ravages of the thrips and other spread of phylloxera. With a well-paid tural Commission in each of these counties back the ravages of these pests would have and checked long since.

Profits in Alligator Pears.

THe following account of profitable ing in Los Angeles county is found in a ten me by Mr. P. D. Barnhart, a well-known botanist of Los Angeles. It will be observed writer does not advise every one to jump growing, hence I gladly give space to the statements of profits made from individual fruit. The photograph referred to did agricultural editor:

"Herewith enclosed find a photograph Chappelow avocado fruit tree, a seedling the seed was planted seventeen years ago rovia. The fruit sold from this tree this breaker, $147.75. The first picking this season was 6, the last October 19; the fruit of first-class for 15 cents each, the culls for 5 cents each a few were without seed. The reader with cal turn of mind can figure what the financial an acre would be if planted to fifty trees be folly on the part of any one to put number on that much ground.

Gardening in California—Flower and Vegetable.

[illegible] Bermuda Grass.

[illegible] presence of Bermuda grass in the gardens and [illegible] parts of the State is becoming a very serious matter. This grass is not a "patching" to Johnson [illegible] destructiveness, but the latter is so tall and [illegible] that it is ordinarily rooted out on first appearance around the home grounds, and is not considered [illegible] there. Horticultural Commissioner Meserve [illegible] that a possible remedy may be found for Bermuda grass in the use of crude oil. He and Mr. Bemis [illegible] considering some experiments to determine [illegible] of oil in grass extermination. Johnson grass [illegible] spreading in Los Angeles county. It is a [illegible] in the Upper Sacramento Valley and bids [illegible] a great menace to cereal crops, fruit orchards and vineyards.

[illegible] know what the after effect of oil upon the [illegible] if the former is found a good killer. This [illegible] to be determined. Bermuda grass is shallow [illegible] grass the opposite, and the oil process [illegible] the Bermuda and not touch the rhizomes of [illegible]. Every experiment toward the extermination [illegible] should be encouraged, as there will soon [illegible] with these soil pests if no remedies effectual [illegible]. Already many hundred acres of fine land [illegible] been abandoned, and more will follow. What a pity those who introduced these noxious [illegible] into California a score of years ago were not [illegible]. What is to be done to exterminate these pests [illegible] gardens, lawns and farms is more than any [illegible]. It will be a prominent topic for discussion [illegible] Fruit Growers' Convention. The man who [illegible] the convention on that subject has been in[illegible] Johnson grass in over 100 square miles.

[illegible] Germs.

[illegible] intimate relation exists between the fertility [illegible] and its bacterial life. It is therefore impor[illegible] the conditions of the soil which are most [illegible] the rapid development of soil bacteria, for [illegible] will depend plant growth. Acid soils are in[illegible] because the soil bacteria cannot grow in them. [illegible] applied to land, assists in the decomposition [illegible] matter in the soil, but indirectly. Lime [illegible] the acidity of the soil and renders it more [illegible] to the development of soil bacteria, which are [illegible] for the decomposition of organic matter. [illegible] soil may be so waterlogged as to be al[illegible] unproductive. Why? The excessive [illegible] of water cuts off to a large extent the supply of [illegible] is required by the bacteria. Muck beds are [illegible] nitrogen, and often contain considerable phos[illegible] and potassium, but they will not produce good [illegible]. Make them a fit habitation for soil bacteria, that [illegible] them and correct the acid condition, and they [illegible] productive. Acids in the soil may also [illegible] solution minerals that have a poisonous effect [illegible] as for example, compounds of iron and alum[illegible]. The whole difficulty must be met by overcoming [illegible] effects of soil acids. But nature has pro[illegible] cheap neutralizer of acid soils.

[illegible] some of its forms is the most economical. It [illegible] several available forms; it may be had as [illegible], hydrated lime, air-slaked lime, and finely[illegible] limestone (the unburned rock, finely ground.) It [illegible] contained in shells, marl, wood ashes, lime-kiln [illegible] and slag phosphate, and occurs, in combination [illegible] other elements in phosphate rock. A study of the [illegible] proper use of lime in some of its forms, com[illegible] necessary with adequate drainage, can be re[illegible] to bring about a soil condition which will favor [illegible] of bacteria friendly to maximum crop pro[illegible].—[American Cultivator.

[illegible] Strawberry.

[illegible] strawberry is another plant that will repay the [illegible] care. The average city man knows nothing [illegible] taste of the strawberry. He is obliged to take [illegible] upon the market or go without. The commercial grower, on the other hand, would find it impossible to place a well-ripened strawberry of the better [illegible] upon the market in its best condition. His [illegible] is to grow the coarser varieties and pick [illegible] the green side, otherwise they would be a mass [illegible] pulp before they arrived at their destination. The city grower, however, can choose varieties [illegible] not, perhaps, for the enormous quantity per [illegible] but for the delicacy of their flavor, and he can [illegible] the fruit upon the vine until it has absorbed [illegible] of richness which will make it a treat for [illegible]. All I fear is this, that if the growing of [illegible] were to become common, and if the city [illegible] found out how much better a well ripened strawberry [illegible] the commercial article, the commercial [illegible] would stand little chance of selling their products [illegible] among the unfortunate class who could not [illegible] for themselves. And just here, I do not [illegible] commercial fruit growers; they are doing the [illegible] can be done. It is a condition that cannot be [illegible]. Strawberries will, of course, be grown upon [illegible] space, and there are many niceties in the grow[illegible] which, if time permitted, I would be de[illegible] to note.

[illegible]—What is true of strawberries is true, per[illegible] a less extent, of raspberries. The smallest yard [illegible] for a few hills of these. Here may I digress [illegible] we have in the raspberry an example of what [illegible] can do for the commercial grower. [illegible] years the Cuthbert raspberry has held its place as the best commercial raspberry on the list. It was prolific and of fair quality, but slightly tender, so that quite frequently there were heavy losses in regions exposed to severe winter weather. The reports from the experimental stations seem to show clearly that this old stand-by, the Cuthbert, is now likely to be superseded by the Herbert, which is not only quite as prolific as the Cuthbert, but is much hardier, so as to materially reduce the losses from winter killing.—[Alex Macneil, in Cultivator.

Saving Aged Trees.

THE modern method of treatment for saving old trees ready to fall apart from decay is by the use of braces and cement. The decayed part is gouged off, leaving but little more than a shell of sap wood and bark. Within the cavity steel braces are inserted and bolted in place. The cavity is then wired, the wire being stretched from nails driven into the wood and serving as reinforcements for the cement. Then the cavity is filled with moist cement, filling the entire space.

If the opening is a large one and exposed to rain it is covered with a strip of zinc, but usually a coat of fine finishing cement at the entrance of the cavity is sufficient. It is painted or stained the color of the bark so that the work of repairing is hardly noticed. This plan saves for many years trees ready to fall to pieces at the first storm. In course of time more decay will occur around the cement, but the framework and braces will hold up the shell as long as any life is left.—[American Cultivator.

Garden Truck.

WORD comes from Otis, a small station on the Salt Lake road, just the other side of Daggett, that the parties who have recently taken up all the government land in that section are already at work improving it. Teams have been set to work clearing the land and cultivating it, and by winter the land will be ready for planting.

At first it was intended to set the entire tract to eucalyptus, but this plan has been changed, for much of the land will be seeded to alfalfa while the remainder will be planted to potatoes and garden vegetables, for which there is a large demand in that section. It is said that later a part at least of the land will be set with eucalyptus. Potatoes have already been tried in that section, and, strange as it may seem, have proved a great success, and in order that the land may be made self-sustaining until the trees would begin to pay, it will be partially utilized with other crops.

A well has been sunk to a depth of twenty-five feet and a pumping plant installed, which, although a large one, has not been able to reduce the water level in the least. Altogether, the outlook in that section is exceedingly bright.—[Index.

Kitchen Garden.

THE season of tender vegetables is now over, and we are entering on the winter season when we can revel in the more hardy varieties. California gives us a double season. Not a perpetual spring as is sometimes claimed, nor a continuous summer, but two well-defined seasons, the one somewhat tropical, in which tender vegetation, that characteristic of the South, does well, but which is too hot for the more hardy kinds; then our winters, which are like an eastern spring, and during this season all the vegetation which does well in the East during the spring months does equally well with us. So that we have two years in one, so far as vegetation is concerned, and we have just got over the tropical and are entering on the second, or our rainy spring-like one.

Most of the hardy vegetables may be sown this month. Radishes, lettuce, Windsor beans, peas, all the cabbage family, spinach, and many others. These will do well during the rainy season and furnish a plentiful supply of fresh vegetables for the table.

The asparagus bed should be cleaned up, kept free from weeds, deeply spaded and well manured. Asparagus responds liberally to thorough cultivation. Celery too, should be well cultivated, and as the plants attain size, should be covered for bleaching.

Carrots, parsnips, rutabagas, turnips, and most root crops can be sown and will do well during the cooler weather of winter.

Onion seed may be sown now, and for this the soil should be thoroughly well prepared. The seed should be sown in drills about a foot apart, not too thick, as the young onions will have to be thinned out to three inches in the row when they come up.

Land not required for immediate use may be dug and left in the rough. This will aërate the soil and leave it clean and in good shape for planting when needed. In fact, it is a good idea to give some of the vegetable patches an occasional rest, for, like animals and man himself, the soil can be overworked and needs an occasional rest, even though it be well fed.—[Town and Country Journal.

Ivy.

POISON ivy has a three-parted leaf. Ampelopsis, or Virginia creeper, for which it is often mistaken, has a five-parted leaf. The latter is a true vine. The ivy is of half-vining habit, but seldom grows to a greater height than four or five feet. It can always be told by its three-parted leaf. Poison oak is oftener known as poison sumach, because of the resemblance of its leaves to the sumach. It is of shrubby nature and bears quantities of greenish white berries. It is seldom found growing on high land. But poison ivy flourishes everywhere. Mowing it simply causes it to spread by underground suckers. But if mowed and sprinkled with kerosene, and the ground is then burned over, it may be gotten rid of without much trouble. Use plenty of kerosene.—[Vick's Magazine.

A Sugary African Fruit.

CONSUL JOSEPH I. BRITTAIN of Prague quotes an Austrian journal which tells of a plant recently discovered in Africa, belonging to the family of leguminous plants, called Parkid biglobosa, which produces a fruit containing 25 per cent. saccharine and about 20 per cent. reducing sugar, and when ripe about 30 to 40 per cent. saccharine. If the percentage of sugar is correctly stated, the plant would take first rank among sugar-producing plants. The extraction of the sugar from the fruit is said to be accompanied by no difficulties.—[Fruit Grower.

Important If True.

A STORY is going the rounds of the State press to the effect that the California quail is to prove the exterminator of the black scale. The average grower will wait awhile for verification of the story before depending upon this means of ridding his trees of this great pest. Every time a tale like this gets out a few fruit growers turn away from approved methods and hopefully await the promised relief. They are always disappointed. We do not challenge the sincerity of those people who are always making these alleged discoveries, but simply record the fact that they are usually mistaken. If all the short cuts to relief from scale pests, including the use of parasites, had worked out as promised, several tons of scale would be destroyed annually that now roost high and feed upon the life of the trees. Wait for verification of the quail story before destroying the fumigation tents.

South African Fruit Trade.

THE South African fruit export trade for 1908 shows a great advance over former years, the 172,738 cases of fresh fruit being an increase of 90,383 cases on 1907. Grapes carried in cool storage show the greatest advance, the 77,000-odd cases exported being more than three times any previous year's export. The conference of South African fruit exporters, held recently at the Cape, agreed unanimously that further cool-room accommodation at the instance of the harbor board should be provided, and the Minister for Agriculture directed that a letter with reference to this subject should be sent to the secretary of the harbor board. They unanimously accepted suggestions from the minister that self-recording thermometers should be kept in the ship's cool chambers—to be kept under seal during the homeward bound voyages, and accessible for examination by officers of the government at both ends—and that the Union-Castle Company should provide increased cool-storage accommodation for fruit on its steamships.—[Ice and Refrigeration.

Misfit Marriages.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:

"A number of papers are asking correspondents to answer the question, 'What is love?' You have not invited suggestions on that subject, but it may be answered, that frequently it is the desire of two persons to live together in an unsanitary manner. Illustrative of this, the following is given, names not being necessary.

"A number of years ago a young clergyman in the East was attacked with tuberculosis, and to improve his failing health took charge of a church in Pueblo, Colo. The desired results were not attained, but as not uncommon with persons afflicted with that disease, he was confident his difficulty would soon be overcome, and sent back for the woman to whom he was engaged, to come to Pueblo and they would be married. On her arrival the lady saw at once that the invalid had greatly failed, and was reluctant to fulfill the engagement. The clergymen, however, was persistent, and at length the woman was overpersuaded; the fact of not having sufficient funds to return having its weight. So they were married, the woman hoping that the good Lord would find some way to rescue her from the fate she feared.

"No improvement taking place, it was thought that another change might be of benefit, so he was sent to a mission in Utah. Before the first winter was over he was obliged to preach his sermons while sitting, not being able to support himself on his feet. In the meanwhile, the wife also contracted the disease, and was failing even more rapidly. The clergyman became convinced that should he be sent to California both would recover; and at length funds were raised sufficient to send them through, and they came to a town not very far from Los Angeles. One week after their arrival the wife died, and two weeks later the husband followed.

"This man was an ordained preacher, and an educated man—at least in his profession—yet he failed to realize that, afflicted as he was, their manner of living would surely cause the death of his bride.

"This case is mentioned merely as an illustration. Any one with limited imagination can follow and trace cause and effect in thousands of such cases. On the dangerous mountain trails the horse is not used, for the alleged reason that he has not sufficient courage to travel the dangerous passes. Hence the burro is substituted. The horse has a lively imagination, and seeing the danger, knows it. The other is called 'sure-footed' because he knows not the danger. There is not a spark of imagination in an ass."

"Marriage is the suicide of love," said Prof. Edward D. Monroe, Ph.D., of Stanford University, before the Woman's Literary Club of Woodlawn, Chicago. "The increasing number of divorces each year in America seems to substantiate this conclusion." A restrained murmur of amazement was heard among several hundred club women present.

"In the first place, marriage is entered upon by thousands of foolish and frivolous girls and thoughtless young men, without the least consideration of the question of mutual adaptability or of congeniality. Wedlock is rushed into, and a few months after the honeymoon the couple come back to their rational senses and realize that there are grave temperamental differences to reckon with.

"Before long there appears on the horizon of love's young dream a decided 'affinity,' and most of you realize what that implies. It signifies that the bonds of matrimony will ere long be ruthlessly shattered and that the wind-up will be in divorce courts."

"I sincerely wish that in my judicial career I had never united any couple in wedlock," was the declaration of Municipal Judge Van Zant, of Portland, Or. "From now on, I will absolutely refuse to marry any one. It is not that I am opposed to marriages, but I don't want it on my conscience that through any instrumentality of mine, a mismated couple was ever pronounced man and wife."

Judge Van Zant's stand on the marriage question is the result of a deep-rooted conviction on his part that the magistrate performing the wedding ceremony is in a degree culpable if the union turns out to be a failure. His declaration was prompted by the double wedding of two young couples arrested in a lodging-house. He not only declared such enforced marriages to be a hollow mockery of the marital relation, but declined hereafter to act as magistrate in any marriage whatever.

On the same day that this was printed in The Times appeared the following pitiful story from St. Louis:

"Mrs. Ira Burton, a 14-year-old wife, said today at the City Hospital that she had concluded marriage was a failure. Quarrels and separation from her husband due to parental interference from both families, she says, caused her to attempt suicide by taking morphine.

"'My mother-in-law thought I should like my husband,' she said. 'My mother thought I was not strong enough, and they quarreled over it. My husband and I took sides.'"

Poor child! Driven out of life before her life was well begun.

On the very next day appeared the following dispatch from Sheridan, Wyo.:

"Bertha Filmore, aged 13, has filed suit for divorce here, following a secret marriage in Memphis, Tenn., on May 22, 1908. According to the child-wife's complaint, the attentions paid to her last spring by Louis Filmore were objected to by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Curtis, and they sent her to visit relatives in Ryne, Ia. Filmore is alleged to have boarded a train and followed the girl, whom he persuaded to go to Tennessee, where her age was given as 16. It is charged that upon their return Filmore abused his bride, used vile language toward her, and otherwise treated her cruelly, and finally, on July 4, locked her out of their home. There will be a sharp fight over alimony, as Filmore is well-to-do."

Yet, Americans hold up their hands in holy horror at the marital customs of the Mormons and the Turks and at those who practice stirpiculture.

Not one marriage in a thousand is entered into on account of mutual adaptation and not one child in a hundred thousand is deliberately begotten.

Is it any wonder that marriage is so often a failure?

What we need is not more difficulty in securing divorce, but more deliberation and circumspection in marrying.

Here are some wise remarks on the subject of adaptability in marriage. They are by Dr. E. B. Foote in his "Home Cyclopedia."

"Some very important reforms are necessary to make monogamic marriage what it should be. Many of these have already been pressed upon the attention of the reader. The most important of them all is adaptation in marriage. To secure this, you should put yourself in positions to meet with a variety of individuals of the opposite sex; seek, rather than avoid, society; familiarize your minds with mental adaptation, and especially with physical adaptation, study carefully the temperaments, and avoid much social intimacy with those who are not temperamentally adapted, as it is often the case that a platonic attachment springs up between two who are totally unsuited physiologically to come together in wedlock, and this mental congeniality leads the two platonic lovers to so far commit themselves that they cannot gracefully 'back out' of an engagement. This is unfortunate for the present, and, in many cases, disastrous in the future. Such engagements, if made, had much better be broken if both of the parties concerned can consent to this course.

"It becomes a difficult, if not cruel alternative, when one of the parties cannot detach the fixed affections. It is hard to advise in a case of this kind, but physiological facts should be presented to the one whose constancy exists in spite of alleged incompatability, and in most intelligent minds they would not be revealed without producing a wholesome result. Above all things, never marry for a home, for money, for position, for revenge, for obstinacy, to please friends, nor to show your gratitude to any one who has greatly befriended you in adversity, or saved your life when in peril. In the last-mentioned consideration you may much better give all you have and mortgage all your prospective gains as a recompense, than to deed away your future happiness."

Merry Widow Hats as Life-Savers.

AFTER all the criticisms of those monstrous hats the women are wearing nowadays, it seem that they have some good points. Recently the dispatches told of a girl in the East who was saved from drowning by a Merry Widow hat. A few days ago, near San Bernardino, a woman was cooking, in her little cabin, when she saw an automobile go by with a man and woman in it. On the latter's head was a wonderful hat. She ran out to the door to take a look, and while there the stove—in which there was a piece of dynamite—exploded, being blown completely through the walls of the cabin. Had she been near it, she would probably have been killed. To complete this story, the automobilists turned back, and when she told them how it happened, they insisted that she should keep the hat as a souvenir.

Can't Stand Excitement.

ON the day following election several deaths were reported from suicide or "heart failure" due to the excitement of the contest—which to most of us seemed a very dull one. Are Americans becoming so debilitated that they cannot stand a little excitement? It almost looks like it. There has been of late years a marked increase of diseases that may be directly traced to such habits as cigarette smoking, alcohol, fast eating, lack of sufficient sleep, and worry.

A Centennarian in the Poorhouse.

A RECENT press dispatch from San Francisco announced that Capt. G. E. D. Diamond, who claims to be 112 years of age, has been forced to ask for admission to the poorhouse. He is described as still walking with considerable sprightliness.

It has been claimed that the age given by Capt. Diamond is exaggerated. He admits himself that he has no record of his birth. He is, however, undoubtedly at, or near the century mark.

When the editor of the Care of the Body called on the old gentleman, in his humble little hall bedroom on East Third street, in San Francisco, about six years ago, he found him quite spry, and an interesting talker. He attributes his activity at an advanced age to the fact he has been a vegetarian for eighty years, and that he uses olive oil freely, both internally and externally. He has delivered lectures and has written a pamphlet. The physical-culture institution and the olive-oil men which Capt. Diamond has boosted in his pamphlets and lectures should see that the old gentleman does not have to spend his few remaining years in a poor-house.

[illegible] the Care of the Body.

DR. ROBERT DUDLEY EMERY has returned to Los Angeles from a three months' trip through the United States, during which he combined business with pleasure, visiting a number of prominent medical and hygienic institutions and men. He attended the tuberculosis congress and visited the great Battle Creek sanatorium in Michigan. Dr. Emery reports that interest in natural methods of aiding nature to cure disease is [illegible] surely growing throughout the country.

[illegible] of Europe.

[illegible] BAUMGARDT, lecturer, returned on the first of this month from a six months' trip through Europe, in the course of which he visited Norway, Sweden, [illegible] Finland, Germany, Tyrol, Austria, Greece, [illegible], France and England, gathering material for a new series of lectures. Before leaving for Europe Mr. Baumgardt promised to give readers of the Care of the Body a few of his impressions of the social life of the people over there, especially as it relates [illegible]

Mr. Baumgardt's observations in Sweden and Norway confirm what has here been written, that the leprosy which has been so common in Scandinavia is there, as [illegible] mainly due to the large dependence upon fish diet. As pointed out here, fish is entirely deficient in iron and sulphur, both of which minerals are constantly needed by the human body. Moreover, in those countries the fish is often eaten in a rotten condition. As the habit of an almost exclusive fish diet has become less general it has been noticed that leprosy is declining.

The Scandinavians display some pleasing phases of humanity—of kindness to animals. For instance, no horse is used after fifteen years of age. Over every stable in Norway you see a sign reading: "Be Kind to the Horse."

Modern Germany impresses Mr. Baumgardt as a wonderful country. In many respects they are ahead of us there. Germany, he declares, is the America of Europe, with Berlin representing Chicago—a beautiful city with clean streets—swept regularly by women.

The "mailed fist" crops out everywhere in Germany—the distinction between officer and soldier, professor and student, and employer and employé.

In the German breweries many of the workmen consume the amazing amount of five gallons of beer a day each. They look big and strong and healthy, but the scratch of a pin usually results in blood poisoning and [illegible]

Austria has made great progress. Vienna claims to be the most beautiful city in the world. As a celebrated Viennese said, however: "It costs to be beautiful." Taxation in Vienna amounts to a large percentage of income. Great poverty prevails among the masses. A sight is seen on a certain street, where women of the town are allowed to gather of an evening. Here may be seen, every evening, attired in beautiful costumes, a thousand or more prostitutes, some of them under 16 years of age.

The Viennese are not immoral. They are simply un[illegible]

Mr. Baumgardt was much impressed by Greece. He regards the Greeks as mentally and physically the most splendid people he has ever met—magnificent types of humanity. They claim to be descended from the ancient Athenians. Perhaps that is why they retain so much of the old Grecian beauty of visage. The Greeks were noted for raising blooded cattle and chickens, but also made a study of human breeding, from before the period of pregnancy until the child became a man. The Greeks are noted as shrewd traders. A few thousand Greeks control the trade of the Nile Valley, to the chagrin of the English. Contrary to the usual impression, Mr. Baumgardt says he found the Greeks reliable. There are no brigands in the country now.

The water in Athens is very bad. It is brought into the city by the same aqueduct that was used in the days of old Athens. The Greeks are struggling under an immense debt, on which they have to pay high interest.

England has made marked progress of late years. London is now the best-paved city in the world, and one of the cleanest. The streets have to be absolutely up to specifications or up the pavements come—at the expense of the contractor. This was done with the street of Whitehall, recently. London is one of the healthiest cities in the world. The pavements are composed of wood blocks with asphalt on top. Every morning the streets are sprinkled with a disinfectant.

In Switzerland, while there are many industries, the chief one is the entertainment of tourists from all parts of the world. Transportation has been brought to great perfection in Switzerland. For the equivalent of $8.65 you can travel third-class by rail and steamboat for two weeks all over Switzerland, traveling all the time, if you [illegible]

As to restaurants, Mr. Baumgardt found that prices as a rule are as high for a similar class of service as in America. The cooking is good, but the food, as a rule, is [illegible]. Meat is very high in price. Veal is largely used, [illegible] other day, sometimes when it is quite immature. [illegible] perhaps has the best restaurants, and next to that—contrary to the general opinion—England. However, this is largely a matter of taste. England is the only country in which you can get roast beef. In London, besides the expensive restaurants, there are many restaurants where the charges are quite reasonable. A man named Lyon, a Jew, has 250 restaurants in which a specialty is made of the use of aërated bread. Then, cheaper still, are the "A B C" restaurants, of which there are 350.

There are many vegetarian restaurants in London. Mr. Baumgardt reports that vegetarianism is making marked progress in Europe—less in England than on the continent.

The Conservation of Vitality.

EDGAR WALLACE CONABLE is an idealist. He is also a writer of no mean ability. His book, "Factors in the Process of Human Development," was reviewed here several weeks ago.

Mr. Conable, like Ishmael, has been somewhat of a wanderer upon the face of the earth. He had a colony of some kind in Arkansas. He lived in Los Angeles for several years, and during the past twelve months he has been trying to run a hygienic sanatorium in San Diego county. It was too far from transportation—for one thing—and now he has settled for a time in the city of San Diego, where he still continues to publish his little monthly magazine, "The Pathfinder."

Mr. Conable's latest booklet is entitled "Solution of the Sex Problem," and as a subhead "A Scientific Treatise on the Conservation of Sex Vitality." In regard to one of the effects of sex intemperance on the human race he says:

"It is a crime to breed children into poverty.

"It is a crime for parents, in ill-health, to bring children into the world.

"It is a crime to bring children into the world in the absence of the ability to give them, at least, a common school education.

"It is a crime to bring children into the world in the presence of inharmonious relations in the home life.

"It is a crime to bring children into the world in the absence of the most careful and considerate preparation on the part of parents."

As he says: "The unwelcome child is possessed of a most unfortunate and unenviable birth right. . . . The whole world is congested with the offal of a sex-dissipated race. Our ancestors for centuries back have done nothing but breed in lust. What then can be expected of the present-day generation?"

Mr. Conable believes that the decadence of the human race may be wholly attributed to its lack of proper control of the generative organs, which as he says, is a terrible stae of affairs to be obliged to record among "civilized" nations. As Mr. Conable adds, however, "it seem that the greater the 'civilization' the more excessive have grown our desires to prostitute the soul and give the devil full and unrestricted sway."

Of the masculine woman as a mother Mr. Conable writes as follows:

"The masculine woman never makes an ideal mother, though she may be scrupulously faithful to her trust. But it were better, far better, had the child from such parent been left unborn."

Here is a quotation from the book:

"Because of the world-wide prevalence of stupendous ignorance on the part of the great majority, the general idea prevails that the sex functions of the body were created for but two purposes, siz: self-gratification and the perpetuation of the human family, and that every man and woman who does not make himself or herself conspicuous in this direction is dwarfed in the matter of brain functioning. But there is a third purpose for which the male and female organs were created, and it is by far the most important. To be strongly sexed evidences, always, both great mental and physical capacity in every direction, provided there is no waste of the sex energy. No man or woman ever became great in the accomplishment of any work where the sex element did not conspicuously predominate. This is the source whence comes the great magnetic energy which stands back of everything we do. No sexually-weakened or depleted person has ever left a lasting monument to his memory. There never lived a great artist who was not strongly sexed. All men and women in the front ranks of every branch of human effort are, and always have been, strongly developed sexually. All the great singers, musicians of every description, actors, sculptors and painters of all ages, past and present, have been what is commonly termed, abnormally sexed. But in the absence of this 'abnormal' sex functioning, there would have been no place in history for any of these. Not that every person who is highly developed in this direction possesses the capacity to become great and conspicuous in the world's evolution; far from it. But in the absence of this powerful vital factor, it were impossible to accomplish anything which the world calls great. It is the conserving of this powerful magnetic energy which provides the supreme energy and motive power lying back of all our life efforts. And it is the waste and dissipation of this same vital stimulant which causes us to construct indifferently and only on a purely animal plane. . . . All nations which have gone down to rise no more forever, were led to their destruction through the instrumentality of the curse which the alleged man, Adam, placed upon the race. Heredity endowed them with gross, sensual natures and the penalty was death—extinction. No race and no individual who worships long at the shrine of sex passion can survive. History, in this respect, is constantly repeating itself."

Discussing the subject of marriage, Mr. Conable declares that 90 per cent. of the marriages of the day are unhappy. Possibly he does not exaggerate. He believes that the starting point of inharmony and discord in the home can be traced directly to the sex end of the proposition. Here he is also doubtless correct, for sex is at the basis of marriage. As he says: "The woman believes the man's love has grown cold. The man is of the same opinion concerning the woman, but neither one really knows where the trouble lies. . . . Marriage will ever continue to be a failure so long as sex dissipation dominates the race."

Mr. Conable shows that one of the greatest evils and misfortunes growing out of inharmonious married life is the effect it has upon the innocent offspring.

The author shows that in a great majority of cases men and women marry without the slightest consideration as to an adaptability of temperaments. In a successful marriage there must be a meeting of the negative and positive, otherwise it will be a failure. "The female or negative principle," he says, "is likely to be found in the man as in the woman, and the male principle is just as likely to be found in the woman as in the man. The feminine principle is always magnetic, whether found in man or woman, and the masculine principle is always electric, no matter in which one it predominates." In perfection, the author says man—which refers both to man and woman—is created dual. That is to say, he possesses both a magnetic and electric temperament, and requires no companionship other than himself. This, the author declares, is the ultimate, and he believes that this state of unfoldment can be reached now.

Perhaps.

Mr. Conable declares that the electric temperament can introduce the magnetic element into his own make-up, and vice versa, thus becoming master of himself.

The author is careful to add that all this is in the future—that he is simply hinting at the possibilities latent within all men. A full conception, he says, is beyond the reach of the great majority for whom this lesson is intended.

The virile element in man, which is life itself, Mr. Conable believes to be supplied directly and indirectly from the Universal Storehouse. That which comes to us indirectly is found in the various foods. This, he says, builds us up largely on the animal plane. Through the respiratory organs and the pores of the skin Mr. Conable asserts the body is charged with "Spiritual Virility."

If Mr. Conable intends to claim—he has suggested along this line in previous writings—that the time may come when the high form of animal known as man can get along without "grub" he is away off. Men and brethren, let us be sane.

The author is quite right in saying that much depends upon the kind of food eaten. Flesh foods tend to inflame the animal passions, while plant foods will build up normally.

When it comes to the latter part of the pamphlet, in which the author attempts to justify the title, and put forth a "solution" of the sex problem, it must be admitted that it is not altogether so satisfactory or conclusive as the earlier part, in which he describes conditions as they are.

The author discusses "the developments of the virile forces" and the "control of the reproductive functions." He urges that in marrying care should be taken to take into account the temperaments of both parties. Then he urges each party contracting a marriage to make an earnest effort to develop the latent principle within himself or herself. He urges that no attempt in the direction of reproduction should be made in cases where the virile powers of either man or woman have been dissipated, until wasted energies are normally restored by the conservation of sex vitality.

He urges, as a means of purifying the body to discontinue the use of animal foods and products of animals, alcohol and tobacco. To take numerous short fasts until the breath is sweet, to cleanse the outer surface of the body at least once a day, to flush the lower bowel at least once a week. To sleep in pure air, take moderate exercise, masticate thoroughly, drink freely of pure water, and take no drugs.

All this is good advice, provided you don't allow yourself to get too much into a rut. As the editor of the Care of the Body has said, it is a good thing to sin a little once in awhile, dietetically and otherwise.

The author insists that by following these suggestions unnatural or morbid sexual desire may be largely eliminated. Undoubtedly so. A vast proportion of the lust in the world is due to the eating of stimulating foods or the overeating of any food. Much more so than to the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Air is, however, as the author truthfully says, the primal element, which contributes in greater degree to the active life principle in man. Air is really more important than food, but on the other hand, as above stated, a man who imagines that he may ever be able to live on air is several kinds of—well, suppose we say a dreamer.

This booklet is published by the author, Edgar Wallace Conable, 829 Eighth street, San Diego, Cal. Price 50 cents by mail, paper covered; cloth-bound edition, 50 cents extra. Or with Conable's Pathfinder for a year, $1

The Power of Life and Death.

A RECENT dispatch from New York announced that Dr. Charles A. L. Reed, of Cincinnati, chairman of the committee of the American Medical Association on national medical legislation, is still boosting the subject of the passage by Congress of a law to conserve the health of the public, similar to the one proposed by the A.M.A. It is also stated that President Roosevelt has agreed to recommend in his next message to Congress the passage of such a law.

As previously stated, in the opinion of the editor of the Care of the Body the passage of such a law would be little short of a national calamity. This for reasons abundantly set forth heretofore in these columns.

In the latest number of the official organ of the American Health League ("American Health,") there is published a defense of vivisection and also a strong eulogy of Pasteur and his hydrophobia treatment. Now, the fact is, as admitted by many eminent physicians, that Pasteur has done vastly more harm than good. The number of asserted hydrophobia cases has vastly increased in France since his system was introduced, just as the number of asserted diphtheria cases has enormously increased of late years.

Dr. Reed—who has Senatorial ambitions, and would like to introduce the medical element into Congress—draws attention to the fact that 60,000 persons die every year of cancer. How, pray, is a national board of health to prevent this? By compulsory carving? Eminent surgeons have admitted that the chance of permanent recovery from cancer after an operation are as one in 200.

Such a board of health as that proposed would be merely a further step in forging the shackles that the political doctors are anxious to clasp around the limbs of the American people. Even in the ranks of the allopathic medical fraternity there is serious and widespread dissatisfaction over the tyrannical methods of the medical trust—the American Medical Association.

We already have too much medical legislation. A bureau to insure general cleanliness and the sale of clean foods and drinks would be all right, but that is as far as the government should go. Apart from this, every man in this country should be as free to choose his school of medicine as he is to choose his school of religion. Otherwise, our boasted American liberty is a farce.

Dr. J. A. Rigby of Preston, England, consulting physician to the Royal Infirmary there, had a brave and outspoken article in the December number of the Independent Review upon the surgeon's power of life and death. Among other things he said:

"This terrible power of life and death is thus placed in the hands of an inexperienced youth, practically without any safeguard whatever; for after the operation is over, provided the patient dies, the operator merely requires to fill up a form of certificate furnished by the State, in which there is stated the disease for which the operation has been performed, the nature of the operation more or less explicitly expressed, with the fatal result. There is an end of the matter. The State in no way troubles itself about the interests of the patient, and the law allows to remain uninvestigated a death which may have been caused by culpable ignorance, want of experience, or other causes which certainly should be investigated."

There is a strong movement in England just now to demand Coroners' inquests on persons who die after a surgical operation—a reasonable request.

A woman correspondent writes as follows:

"The M.D's are now introducing hypnotism courses in the medical colleges, so we can look to more butchery on the operating table now. Poor victims will be taken unawares. I went that way, so know whereof I speak. The latest operation I heard of was removing the uterus and leaving the ovaries."

In Vienna is the largest hospital in Europe—probably the largest in the world. It is called the Algemeine Krankenhaus. It receives charity patients from all over the empire of Austria. They are sent there to be experimented upon in the dissecting-rooms. The operations attract students of medicine from all parts of the world, even as the decaying carcass of a steer upon the plains attracts the buzzards from far and near.

In this hospital operations are carried on in a most heartless manner, in the interest of medical "science." Rather, say, in most cases, in the interest of medical curiosity. What is gained from these cruel and harmful assaults upon the human form divine? Probably some suggestion for a new animal poison, to be injected into the blood, which in turn, within a few years, will be cast aside, as not only useless but injurious, and something else substituted therefor, that is as bad, or perhaps even worse. The greatest thing in the healing line that ever came out of Vienna was bloodless surgery, and Dr. Lorenz did not have to mutilate human beings in order to learn that.

This sort of thing is, in plain language, human vivisection. That is what it is, and that is what all the ambitious carvers of human beings are anxious to have, as a regular thing. In France the proposition was recently put forth openly that medical men should be permitted to take criminals and experiment upon them by cutting them them up alive. Always, of course, in the interest of medical "science."

An English friend, who has been studying in Vienna, recently sent the editor of the Care of the Body the following little story of the Vienna hospital: A lad who had been mangled in a railroad accident was brought to the hospital and placed on the operating table. The surgeons stuck a knife into him without first giving him an anesthetic. Whereupon the boy howled pitifully. The surgeon hit him in the face with his fist, saying: "Hault's maul"—"shut your mouth." The next day the boy died.

We see in such conditions as these what would happen to us if the medical fraternity was allowed all the power it craves. It would be an unpleasant world to live in.

Americans must guard their medical liberty as sacredly as they guard their social and religious liberty.

Medical "Altruism."

IN the California State Journal of Medicine for November, Dr. Jones calls attention to a feature of the recent International Tuberculosis Congress at Washington which he thinks has been overlooked by the press. He refers to the great "altruism" displayed by the medical fraternity in coming together to discuss means of out" a disease that every year brings millions into the pockets of the doctors.

Let us look at this a little. Most of these doctors are certainly intelligent enough to realize—or if not they should be—that neither consumption nor any other disease can possibly be "stamped out" so long as people continue to live wrong. Also, that consumption will never be stated or diminished by the injection of poisonous matter into the blood, or through other [illegible] of unnatural methods, of which a new one is launched with a great flourish of trumpets, every few [illegible] When the medical fraternity get together and [illegible]—as a few are already doing, all honor to them [illegible] ing of consumption with the only possible method of treatment, namely, fresh air, day [illegible] plain nourishing food, containing a sufficiency of organic salts, and eaten in such amount only as [illegible] is able to digest, and assimilate, with moderation, gradually increased—when they do this, it is time enough to boast of their disinterestedness. "It is remarked that women as a rule are more [illegible] and trifling than men. The Illinois Supreme Court Decision.

A CORRESPONDENT asks for some particulars in regard to a decision of the Illinois Supreme Court, in which it was decided that the compulsory vaccination law of Chicago is not constitutional.

The case was that of Jenkins vs. the Board of Education of the city of Chicago et al., appealed from the Circuit Court of Cook county to the Supreme Court of Illinois. The decision was rendered on April 23, 1908. [illegible] D. Jenkins, a resident and taxpayer of Chicago, sent his 6-year-old daughter to a public school. She was refused admission because she refused to be vaccinated. The Circuit Court decided against her, which decision was overruled by the Supreme Court of the State. On [illegible] 1908, a rehearing of the case was denied.

In its decision the court made the following point:

"The general police powers of a city authorizing the passing of ordinances and the making of regulations for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease do not include the passage of an ordinance making vaccination a condition precedent to the right of education."

"An ordinance passed by a City Council under its police power for the promotion of health or the suppression of disease must be reasonable in its character, and rest on the ground that it is a necessary means of preserving the public health."

"The city ordinance providing that no principal or person in charge or control of any school shall admit to the school any child who shall not have been vaccinated within seven years next preceding the admission or application for admission to any such school of such child, nor shall any such principal or person retain in or permit to attend such school any child who shall not have been vaccinated, was unreasonable and void."

"The health commissioner of the city of Chicago is a ministerial officer, with no legislative powers, and can perform only such administrative duties as are conferred by some valid law or city ordinance."

In Vino Veritas."

In her latest book, "Ancestors," Gertrude Atherton makes one of her characters say: "The man that is not a gentleman when he is drunk has no right to be one at all."

There is truth in this. Also, in the old saying: "In vino veritas," for a drunken man is but an exaggeration of the sober man, although he often wouldn't recognize himself in a mirror.

The most amazing drunken people are not those who want to fight everybody—you can knock them down, and be done with it. It's the fellows who become affectionate and lachrymose, and weep on your shoulder, between protestations of devotion and outbursts of maudlin self-

Willella's Mirage.

der is invisible after a shave, etc., etc., why, in the language of the Orpheum, he must be after the "Little Widow." Perhaps he wants some one who can go out to dinner with him and wear "the clothes" in style!

"'And that looks like a pretty safe "perhaps."

"'This young woman says she has requested a definition of the term "has-been," feeling that she is qualified to fill the position if the definition does not disqualify her.

"'It looks like a poser for the Alaska mining man.'"

When Frances stopped reading, there was a breathless silence in the room. It seemed such a personal application, inasmuch as the Alaska mining man had but a few minutes ago stepped out of the very room where we were sitting. In Bellding we had always been used to seeing our name in the Evening News whenever we went anywhere or had guests, but about this piece there was a ghostly suggestion of being there without having your name mentioned.

Then the funny side of it overcame Frances and me, and we went off into peals of laughter. Not so Willella. She went and threw herself prone on the couch and lifted up her voice and wept. Frances and I stared in consternation. We never weep in our family. We are taught not to from earliest infancy. When the first violence was over, she sat up and began to talk—her nose and lips all swollen, her whole face terribly red, and her eyes bloodshot. "It is just horrid!" she fumed. "We haven't come to the end of this yet. Mr. Hollander is a perfect gentleman. He will be simply furious when he sees that, of course. He will respond to it and will probably give the names of people who answered the advertisement. It will be just awful, and I think it's the meanest thing, when I never did anything like that in my life before." Willella broke into renewed wailing. Well, it WAS a bit appalling to think that that Alaska mining man, whose reputation was evidently a trifle doubtful, had just walked out of our library. We reasoned with Willella, and tried to convince her that she was in no danger of newspaper notoriety, but she was in so unreasonable a frame of mind that she moped and worried all the rest of the day. "If only mother were here so that I could ask her what she thinks about it!" she would say over and over again.

In the morning Willella went out on the lawn early and waited for the paper boy. Of course there was nothing more about the mining man, and Willella was so greatly relieved that she did not mind our laughing at her for ever thinking of such a ridculous thing.

Like "The Light that Failed," this story has two ends. This is one: Willella accepted the position as secretary, and proved herself so capable that she received $150 as her second month's salary. Then, since Mr. Hollander had proved himself the perfect gentleman that he had seemed, she was married to him and went to Alaska, where she now lives in a great castle in a forest at the edge of a fabulously rich gold mine.

But the true end is this: When Mr. Hollander called up for Willella's decision, she told him that her people had decided that she had probably not had enough business training to succeed in that sort of thing. And he was quite cross about it. When mother heard the whole story, she smiled wisely and said: "Whatever is is well." I thought to myself that she would not have said the same if Willella had accepted the position.

Willella no longer reads the "Wanted—Help Female" column. Sometimes when she is watering the geraniums in the window boxes, she will shed a furtive tear or two amid their scarlet bloom, and will say sadly: "They were just beautiful mirages—all those interesting things—the successful hat shop, the school in South Africa, the private secretaryship in Alaska. I'm just a very ordinary girl." And then she heats the iron and presses her flounces and frills because she is going to the theater with Tom Atwood, or because Dick Harris is coming to call, or some other trivial because.

Bill's Specialty.

"Howdy, pap! What's your son Jim doing these days?"

"Jim? Oh, he's running a telegraph key at the depot. Jim's an operator."

"And how's Zeke?"

"Zeke? Wa-al, Zeke is captain of a lake steamer. He's a navigator."

"And Pete? Is he still living?"

"Oh, yes. Pete's working on an airship. He's what they call an aviator."

"Well, what has become of Bill? Is he doing anything?"

The old man blew a quid of tobacco at a wide-eyed grasshopper.

"Yep, stranger, Bill's hanging around the house all day grumbling and complaining and saying the country's going to smash. Bill's just an aggravator, just a plain aggravator."—[Judge.

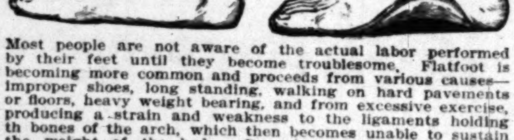
Rheumatic Feet



Most people are not aware of the actual labor performed by their feet until they become troublesome. Flatfoot is becoming more common and proceeds from various causes—improper shoes, long standing, walking on hard pavements or floors, heavy weight bearing, and from excessive exercise, producing a strain and weakness to the ligaments holding th bones of the arch, which then becomes unable to sustain the weight of the body. Dropping of the arch results. This often comes on gradually. With weak arches the person loses that elastic step, tires easily and often complains of great pains in the heel, instep and ankles. The next stage is flatfoot and as the disease advances severe, excruciating pains radiate up the limbs and as a rule unfit the sufferer for work. The first thought is rheumatism, and in many instances they resort to liniments, bandages, mud baths and taking medicines internally. The trouble lies entirely with the severe strain on the muscular and nervous system through the arch or instep. Army recruiting surgeons reject one-third of the applicants for this one ailment. My properly fitted NON-SPRINGY Arch Supports afford immediate relief and effect a permanent cure by supporting the arch in a natural, easy manner, gradually raising the bones to their normal position, relieving all the strain on the weakened and relaxed ligaments until they are capable of resuming their natural functions. Price $2.00, $2.50 or $3.50 per pair.

THE RECORD OF

THE EQUITABLE SAVINGS BANK

DURING THE PANIC OF 1907

The panic began in Los Angeles October 28, 1907.

Detailed statements of condition were published October 29th, Nov. 11th, Nov. 25th and January 1st. (These statements are said to be the most complete and comprehensive ever published by any bank.)

Notice of withdrawal was required from "Term" depositors at the beginning, but with relaxing stringency until January 1st, at which time all restrictions were removed. We believe that throughout this time all legitimate requirements of depositors were fully met and that no one was seriously inconvenienced.

Notice was not at any time required on "Special Ordinary" (checking) accounts.

During the period mentioned the bank did not issue any scrip, borrow any money, sell any securities or call any loans.
